BERLIN SEES LONDON BLOCKING ACCORD IN DESIRE FOR TRADE

Locarno, Thoiry and League Covenant Are Declared Imperiled in Deadlock on Arms.

Britain Declares War Goods Reach to China—Germans Say Ban Would Ruin Industries.

AMBASSADORS CAN'T DECIDE

They Pass Question of Ending the Allied Control to Geneva, Which Sends It Back to Them.

BERLIN, Dec. 10.—In circles close to the German Government it was asserted here tonight that the struggle behind the scenes in Geneva was no longer a political battle by Germany against the combined forces of Britain, France, Italy and Belgium, but had shifted into commercial warfare between Britain and Germany, with the former aggressor. It was said that the situation had assumed such a serious aspect that the Locarno and Thoiry agreements, and even the League Covenant, threatened to become mere scraps of paper as far as these two powers were concerned.

The German press, it was said, had been muzzled and acquiesced in what amounted to orders from the Foreign Office, printing only versions of the Geneva conference taken from French, British, Belgian and Italian newspapers or from carefully pruned articles by their own correspondents attending the League Council session.

Though the full results of the Ambassadors' conference in Paris have not been published here, it is asserted that the Allies' previous objections on such matters as the composition of the German General Staff, the Königsberg fortress and other fortifications on the German eastern frontier, the close connection between semi-military organizations such as the "Steel Helmets" and the Reichswehr, the withdrawal of the Interallied Control Commission and its replacement by a League Control Board, and plans for the Rhineland evacuation all have lost their significance, and the entire conflict has centred around Britain's objection to Germany's manufacturing and exporting half finished materials that can be converted into munitions and accoutrements of war. Britain's attitude is firm that German must curtail this form of industry.

Many Articles Convertible for War.

It is known that Germany is manufacturing quantities of articles capable of being converted into war materials, which are shipped to Sweden, Russia and other countries, where the arsenals embody them in instruments of warfare. Chief among these industries, and one which would be hardest hit should Britain refuse to budge in her present stand, is the optical industry. A confidential round-robin circulated among the industrialists indicates that unemployment in Berlin alone would be increased by 4,000 should a ban be put on the export of lenses used in binoculars, rangefinders and other telescopic sights and optical instruments which can be adapted to war needs.

The manufacturers of airplane spare parts, component parts, time fuses and ordnance parts, which are exported, also employ thousands, and the suppression of this industry, it is said, would decrease the budget revenues through taxes and affect the nation's trade balance, as well as augmenting dangerously the large unemployment army which now, through the payment of unemployment doles, is severely testing the capacity of the Government coffers.

Herr Stresemann cannot acquiesce in Britain's demands, the Wilhelmstrasse says, without precipitating a Government crisis here owing to the inner political struggles among the Socialists, Nationalists and Little Coalition parties. The Socialists, who at least have shown tolerance of the Government's foreign policies, have been estranged by Herr Scholl, a leading Deputy of the People's Party, who stated in a recent speech that if the Cabinet must be rebuilt to include either the Socialists, forming the largest party, or the Nationalists, the second largest, he considers the reactionaries more bearable than the Socialists. This action seems to have lost to the Marx Cabinet the support of the Socialists, and to win the concurrence of the Nationalists in his foreign policies Herr Stresemann must return from Geneva with a decided victory.

Expect Repetition of March Fiasco.

According to a Government spokesman, Geneva is hopelessly deadlocked, with the political features eliminated, and a repetition of the March fiasco is awaited.

It is asserted that Herr Stresemann went to Geneva with full confidence of putting through a program far beyond that of abolition of the Interallied Military Control Commission and its replacement by League inspection, withdrawal of the occupation troops and arrangement of the Sarre district's affairs. With M. Briand it is said he had reached an agreement for withdrawal of the control commission and evacuation of Germany without turning affairs over to the League, and with only a small civilian force left in the Rhineland, but without real power over German affairs.

M. Briand desired a commission such

New England's Farmer Boys Ranked High for Matrimony

The prosperity of young farmers in New England makes them the most eligible bachelors in the land, it was said yesterday at a hearing before the Interstate Commerce Commission on a request of railroads in New England for a 20 per cent. increase in freight rates on milk.

Supplementing a statement of a witness regarding the sound financial condition of the farmers there, W. A. Cole, counsel for the Boston & Maine Railroad, read excerpts from a bulletin issued by the University of Vermont advising parents to urge their sons to become farmers and saying girls should consider the latter as among the best marriage prospects.

This testimony relieved the monotony of a mass of statistical matter introduced by the carriers to prove that New England's farmers can well afford to pay the increased rate demanded, which is being opposed by the New England Milk Producers' Association.

MARCONI RECOUNTS BIRTH OF WIRELESS

FOUGHT BY CABLE COMPANY

He Sees Big Promise for Future, Including Television and Power by Wireless.

By T. R. YBARRA.

LONDON, Dec. 10.—Twenty-five years ago next Sunday Guglielmo Marconi, waiting with every nerve and sense taut in an old, dilapidated building on the coast of Newfoundland, received the first signal ever transmitted by wireless across the ocean. That signal proved that his dream of linking together the nations by a method of communication infinitely more mysterious and more uncanny than any hitherto discovered had at last been snatched once for all from dreamland and ranked among the solid facts of existence.

Today the Italian wireless wizard, still modest and retiring despite the overwhelming fame which his discovery has brought him, gave for the first time his own personal account of those wonderful moments of a quarter of a century ago. It was the privilege of THE NEW YORK TIMES representative to obtain from Senator Marconi himself this personal narrative, describing the arduous preparations, trying hours of suspense and glorious thrill of achievement when the instrument devised by him—how primitive it would seem today—ticked off on that lonely Newfoundland shore a message from Cornwall, England, three thousand miles away, which told him and the whole world that his marvelous child of science, until then reckoned merely a "child prodigy," was a full-grown reality, with an illustrious future shining before it.

Senator Marconi described it all today in the big, sumptuous London offices of his wireless company, though twenty-five years ago he and the other dreamers of big dreams were in cramped and unassuming quarters.

Senator Marconi's Narrative.

"On Dec. 12, 1901, in a room of a disused barracks on Signal Hill, St. John's, Newfoundland," he said, "on a table stood some instruments connected by a thin wire with a kite that was held up at a height of about 400 feet by an Atlantic gale. To the same instruments there was connected a telephone, in which shortly after noon were heard sounds constituting evidence that in far-distant Cornwall rhythmical signals that corresponded to the letter S in the Morse code had been projected into the ether of space and had actually crossed the Atlantic.

"In 1895 and 1896 I had proved the possibility of transmitting signals to a considerable distance by means of raised antennae and an earth connection. In 1899 I had proved that the curvature of the earth did not interfere with a propagation of ether waves over short distances and in 1909 I felt that the time had come to venture further afield. Having regard to the many improvements I had lately introduced into the methods of tuning the transmitter and receiver, I was absolutely convinced that transatlantic wireless telegraphy, not merely as an experiment but as a sound commercial propo-

MAYOR BEGINS MOVE TO MERGE BUREAUS AND SAVE CITY MONEY

Will Ask for a Special Board to Study Ways to End the Department Overlapping.

MAY MEAN NEW CHARTER

MANY SEE SHAKE-UP COMING

Mayor's Survey Board Seeks Data as He Announces Plan for the Consolidations.

Mayor Walker announced last night that he intended at an early date to introduce in the Board of Estimate a resolution providing for the appointment of a special committee to study and report upon the problem of a reorganization of the City Government, to effect economies and eliminate overlapping and duplications of effort.

The Mayor added that he realized perfectly this would be an involved task, and that it doubtless would necessitate important revision of the City Charter and, possibly, the adoption of a completely new charter. He pointed out, however, that he stood committed to such a reform since early in his Administration, and that he was convinced the time had come for him to take active steps in the matter.

The Mayor's declaration was precipitated by the fact that earlier in the day it had become known that, under the auspices of his City Committee on Plan and Survey, questionnaires were being sent out to the 113,000 city employes regarding their duties, to determine whether the City Government is overmanned and whether city departments and bureaus may be consolidated or eliminated without impairing efficiency.

Survey in Charge of Warren.

The survey is being conducted under the supervision of Joseph A. Warren, Commissioner of Accounts, and Secretary of the Committee on Plan and Survey. It purposes to fulfill preelection pledges of Mayor Walker for an economical administration, and in many respects parallels the program of Governor Smith for State reorganization.

Within recent days 50,000 questionnaires have been distributed to city employes with instructions to make returns to Commissioner Warren. It is expected it will take four weeks more to complete the survey.

The forms provide space for name, title of position, salary, code number and division and duties. At the bottom of the questionnaire space is left for remarks by the employe, who is invited to advance an opinion as to how the city may have a better and more economical government.

These answers are segregated by department and the data collected will be turned over to the Mayor's committee by its secretary. Commissioner Warren believes that his task will require two months to complete. In communicating the results to the committee the Commissioner will make no personal recommendations, leaving it to the committee to determine what reforms should be submitted to the Mayor and Board of Estimate for consideration.

Examiners to Check Up.

Following up the questionnaires, inspectors and examiners in the office of the Commissioner of Accounts will make separate studies of the city departments and their reports also will be transmitted to the special committee.

On various occasions Mayor Walker has expressed the idea that there was too much overlapping in the departments and he has indicated that certain activities of bureaus might be stopped without serious harm. The appearance of the questionnaire has made nervous many employes who regard the survey as a forerunner to a general shake-up which may result in the loss of jobs.

Every department, from that of the Board of Education with its personnel of 23,000 down to the lowly per diem employe, comes within the scope of the inquiry.

This investigation is independent of the survey provided for in a resolution offered to the Board of Estimate by Controller Berry. His resolution providing that a suitable city agency be instructed to investigate the activities of all the departments will come be-

LONDON, Dec. 10.—The Advisory Committee on Spoken English, which includes George Bernard Shaw, Sir Johnston Forbes-Robertson and the poet laureate, Robert Bridges, and whose purpose is to tell British broadcasters just how to pronounce the words they project into the ether every night, today issued a new batch of its officially sanctioned pronunciations which has seriously upset numerous people.

For instance, the committee decrees that "centenary" shall be pronounced as though the second syllable rhymed with "bean" and that the first syllable of "evolution" shall sound exactly like the name of the noted chatelaine of the Garden of Eden.

The second syllable of "missile," it is decreed, must rhyme with "smile," and the second syllable of "doctrinal" with "mine." The word "patent" must never be pronounced "patent" except in "letters patent" and "Patent of Nice." The first syllable of "patriot" must rhyme with "hat" not "hate."

Perturbed individuals, threatened with the destruction of their 'long-cherished ideals, today sought the Secretary of the Advisory Committee only to be told that no shoemaker, except in America, would dream of allowing the first syllable in "patent leather" to rhyme with "bat."

He also adjured the British nation never to pronounce "victuals" as it is written, but to make it rhyme with "skittles."

WALLIS'S CONDUCT OF TOMBS UPHELD

FINDINGS IN FATAL BREAK

Congestion and Inadequate Guard Are Hit—Ways to End 'Alarming' Condition Told.

The regular November Grand Jury, which has been investigating the outbreak in the Tombs on Nov. 3 in which five persons were killed, returned a presentment to Judge Otto A. Rosalsky in General Sessions yesterday embodying all of the remedial recommendations which had been made previously by Frederick A. Wallis, Commissioner of Correction. The presentment said conditions in the city prisons, especially in the Tombs, have been alarming and a menace to public safety for years. Immediate remedial measures were imperative, the Grand Jury reported.

"In my opinion," said Chief Assistant District Attorney Ferdinand Pecora, who presented the matter, "the presentment is an endorsement of Commissioner Wallis's administration and policies. This, to my mind, is indicated not only by the absence in the presentment of any finding by the Grand Jury criticizing the Commissioner but also by the fact that all of the recommendations contained in the presentment are endorsements of the requests and recommendations which Commissioner Wallis has laid before the municipal authorities for the last four years."

Find Wallis Is Not to Blame.

When asked if the Grand Jury felt Commissioner Wallis was to blame for the attempted escape or for the conditions criticized in the report, one of its members said: "Decidedly not."

Commissioner Wallis last night expressed gratification at the action of the Grand Jury.

"Every one of their recommendations has been presented and urged by me in writing and in person," he said. Asked how soon he would resume his departmental investigation, the Commissioner continued: "I have been ready for some time to proceed along the lines suggested by the Grand Jury' recommendations. I have delayed action only at the request of the District Attorney and the police authorities. I am anxious to go forward as soon as those officials advise me I may do so without prejudicing certain lines of their own investigations."

After a preliminary paragraph in which it was set forth that the Grand Jury was charged with investigation of the Tombs outbreak, the presentment, which was signed by John H. Naughton, jury foreman, and Herbert E. Einstein, Secretary, said:

1. The conditions which have existed for many years in the local prisons, particularly in the Tombs, in our opinion are alarming, a standing menace to the public safety and imperatively require immediate remedial attention. These conditions are due primarily to the fact that the custodial forces of these prisons are grossly inadequate and underpaid.

We endorse the numerous recommendations which have been made for several years past by the Commissioner of Correction, and by other Grand Juries sitting in the various counties in this city, as well as by other organized bodies, for the betterment of these prison conditions.

We recommend that prompt provision be made for increasing the number and the compensation of the custodial forces of these prisons, in order that men of quality and merit may be available for such positions. We advise that the special attention of the Mayor and the other members of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment be again called to the urgent need for these increases, to the end that suitable appropriations may be made therefor.

Condemn Money Practice.

2. We find that the inmates of the Tombs Prison have always been permitted to have possession of such money and other valuables as they could command. We deplore this custom as constituting an ever-present source of temptation to bribery and other corruption. We recommend that all prison inmates be deprived of the possession of money or other valuables and that the same be placed in the care of bonded clerical custodians specially appointed for that purpose.

3. We find that the commissary department and the barber shop of the Tombs Prison are manned by private civilian employes. Their work, as well as that of other civilians serving inmates in the prison, necessarily brings civilians into daily contact with the inmates. We therefore urge that the most rigid supervision and inspection of

DAHL FORESEES RISE IN CITY SUBWAY FARE

Warns That Independent Tubes Must Charge 8 or 10 Cents or Face Huge Deficit.

$172,755,800 LOSS BY 1933

Fifth Note to Estimate Board Says Headlong Policy Will Imperil City's Credit.

The proposed system of independent municipal subways, now under construction, if built in accordance with present plans and without the cooperation of the existing subway systems, will have to operate on at least an 8-cent and probably a 10-cent fare, in the opinion of Gerhard M. Dahl, Chairman of the Board of Directors of the Brooklyn-Manhattan Transit Corporation.

Mr. Dahl expressed the opinion in the fifth of his series of open letters addressed yesterday to the Board of Estimate, urging cooperation between the city and the private operating companies in the construction and operation of the projected new lines.

Referring to the estimates made months ago by John J. Delaney, Chairman of the Board of Transportation, Mr. Dahl wrote: "An 8-cent fare is a certainty, for by the Board of Transportation's own figures the cost per passenger will be 7.42 cents, and this estimate is based on numerous charitable assumptions.

Cites Competition.

"It must be remembered," Mr. Dahl continues, "that the city system, by its own election, will be in competition with the Interborough and the B. M. T., both held to a 5-cent fare by the terms of their contracts. Is it imaginable that people will crowd on an 8-cent or more fare subway when they can get the same ride elsewhere for a nickel?

As a consequence, lessened patronage looms as an inevitability, and every passenger lost will add to the cost of carrying those that remain. As the law compels the new system to be self-sustaining, resulting losses will probably compel a ten-cent fare.

There are masses living in congested centres in Manhattan and other boroughs who either do not ride at all or else ride only occasionally. To most of these any increase in rents and living expenses means an added load to already heavy burdens. Where is there any fairness in putting this additional load on these non-riding masses of citizens?"

"It is equally true that all car-riders are not taxpayers. Official statistics indicate that the commuter and transient fares, in and out of New York, average in excess of 1,000,000 for a typical weekday. These vast numbers of commuters and transients pay no taxes whatever to the City of New York. A large percentage of them pay their nickel for a rapid transit ride, just as any citizen does, but unlike the citizen of New York, they do not have to reach down into their pockets to pay the deficits caused by the losses, due to the difference between the cost of a car ride and the price charged for it.

Discusses Financing.

"The Board of Transportation, in its communication to the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, under date of May 26, 1925, outlined two plans for the building and operation of the new city system, one the so-called 'five-cent fare financing plan' and the other the so-called 'eight-cent fare financing plan.'

"The 'five-cent fare financing plan' proposes to finance a material portion of the construction cost by assessments upon the benefited real estate. This plan is generally conceded to be unworkable as a practical proposition. Even if it were workable and practical it would merely saddle on certain preferred location real estate the burden of subsidising losses, intsead of having everybody subsidize these losses by taxes, as is now the city's method of meeting its deficits res ulting from the existing five-cent fare contracts.

"Obviously, the assessment plan for subway financing is subject, in general, to the same limitations as apply to financing by the sale of fifty-year bonds, because the assessment must be made, not upon the estimated, but upon the basis of the actual cost completed.

"The city must first find the funds and complete construction before making the assessment. When the assessments are so made they are payable over a period of ten years. Therefore, construction must be financed by the sale of short-term corporate stock or the issue of tax notes, both of which would be chargeable against and subject to the constitutional debt limitations.

"The 8-cent fare plan of financing the proposed new subway contemplates paying for the construction cost by issuance of fifty-year bonds. This plan, as Mr. Delaney has admitted,

WETS IN CONGRESS LOSE THEIR FIGHT TO CUT DRY FUND

Poll Only Twelve Votes in the House for Motion to Reject Enforcement Appropriation.

'UNDER COVER' ITEM KILLED

CRAMTON HITS AT SMITH

Michigan Member Says Opposition to Dry Law Will Not Help Him Reach the White House.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—The "beer bloc" met humiliating defeat in the House today, when proposals made by it to defeat or materially amend the appropriation bill providing $13,000,000 to enable the prohibition unit and Coast Guard to carry on next year were rejected by overwhelming votes. Only a minor dent was made in the bill, which was passed without a roll-call.

The appropriation was carried in the Treasury-Postoffice supply bill, which provides also $15,340,000 for the Coast Guard, including its expenses in fighting rum-runners. The measure appropriates $137,371,000 for the Treasury Department and $753,483,000 for the Postoffice Department. It was passed by the House after the drys had won the prohibition unit battle by a vote of 140 against only 12 for the wets.

The session was marked by charges that Tammany Hall stood high in the councils of the strategic board of the "beer bloc," that the New York organization was responsible for much of the opposition in Congress to the dry law, and that Governor Smith would not make progress toward the White House if he gave aid and comfort to those withholding appropriations to enforce a constitutional mandate.

The only change made in the prohibition section of the bill was one urged by Representative LaGuardia of New York, which related to an item of $500,000 for "under cover" work by dry agents. The bill provided that moneys might be advanced to dry agents on requisition, and that they need not certify how it was expended. The LaGuardia amendment prohibits advances and directs that agents shall be reimbursed by voucher which shall set forth the precise purpose for which the money was spent. Lump sum allowances were asked by the prohibition forces so as to place as little restriction as possible over agents who deal with informers, stool pigeons and other phases of "under cover work."

Brings in Smith's Name.

Representative Cramton of Michigan, a dry Republican, brought the name of Governor Smith into the debate during a tilt with Representative Gallivan of Massachusetts, to whom he referred as a "General in the wet army."

"I'm not a General; I am merely a private in the ranks," Mr. Gallivan explained.

"Your army comes almost entirely from Tammany," Mr. Cramton continued. "I am wondering if the board of strategy has been in Tammany Hall, and whether 'Al' Smith is a member of the board. I do not believe he was; I do not believe 'Al' Smith ever will approve the development today of Tammany opposing any appropriations for enforcement of the law. I do not believe he is prepared to go before the country, not only as a wet candidate for President, but as the candidate of the wets who are opposed to the enforcement of the law. The attitude of Tammany on this floor today places him before the country as this kind of a candidate."

"It is the limit of gall for members to stand here and oppose the enforcement of a law we are bound to sustain," shouted Representative Upshaw, a dry Democrat from Georgia. "It is unfumigated gall for members to stand here and assail a patriotic organization like the Anti-Saloon League."

Representative LaGuardia appealed to his wet colleagues to "talk as statesmen and not simply be contented with making speeches for home con-

Japanese Halt Car Strike On Hearing Emperor Is Worse

TOKIO, Dec. 10.—Today there was a characteristically Japanese development in the Tokio street car strike, which was called last night because the Municipal Electric Bureau had rejected the men's demands for higher wages.

Learning that the Emperor's condition was worse the strike leaders held a hurried conference this morning and decided temporarily to suspend the strike on condition that the authorities agree not to discharge those who had taken part in it.

BAUMES ACT UNFAIR, TAYLOR TELLS COURT

In Plea to Appellate Division He Asserts That It Makes 'Automatons' of Judges.

BACKS LAW IN GENERAL

Says Henry George Once Held Up Man for $2, in Declaring All Prisoners Are Not Hopeless.

Protesting against "automatically extreme punishment for lesser crimes," Kings County Judge Franklin W. Taylor appealed personally to the five Justices of the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court in Brooklyn yesterday to support his stand against enforcement of the Baumes laws in the way demanded by District Attorney Charles J. Dodd. It was the first time, court attachés said, that a member of the Kings County judiciary had appeared to argue his own case.

Judge Taylor came to appeal from a peremptory mandamus order commanding him to cause the production from Sing Sing of Harry Simmons, a negro convicted before him as a first offender, and to make him plead as a fourth offender on supplemental information filed by Mr. Dodd. Supreme Court Justice Harry E. Lewis had signed the order.

A crowded court room listened as Judge Taylor argued against the interpretation of the Baumes laws which would make this procedure mandatory. Finishing his explanation of the legal points involved, he urged in quiet tones that justice should not be subordinated to demands for rigor in punishment. Criminals, he said, could be reformed; Judges should not be made automatons in dealing with them.

Says His Views Were Distorted.

Defying what he called distorted criticism of his views, he declared his duty was clear. "If to be a Judge meant to be a moral coward, then I would resign at once," he said.

"When this case came before me," he asserted, "I realized the responsibility involved in my decision. I decided it according to what seemed to me to be the law, and without regard to whom it might please or displease. My guiding star was the judicial oath. Yet because some people did not understand the facts I was falsely painted as being hostile to the Baumes laws in general. A Judge's duty under such circumstances is well defined. He must keep his head and do what he believes to be right. My reputation for administering drastic penalties to gross offenders is well known, but I have never seen justification for automatically extreme punishment for lesser crimes."

Judge Taylor read into the record the history of the case, explaining that Simmons had been indicted last September for second-degree grand larceny as a second offender for having misappropriated $116.75 while working for a Brooklyn coal company. Upon his being brought to trial, the District Attorney moved that the Court accept a plea of guilty as a first offender, and Judge Taylor accordingly sentenced him on that record. Later the District Attorney filed information of three prior convictions and asked the pris-

OIL MAN CROSS-EXAMINED

NAVAL PAPERS WITHHELD

TESTIMONY NEAR CLOSE

Counsel Oppose Calling Fall to Stand — John McCormack Will Appear for Doheny.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—Edward L. Doheny, the California oil operator, charged with Albert B. Fall, former Secretary of the Interior, with conspiracy to defraud the Government, with the wealth of the Elk Hills naval oil reserve as the object of the alleged conspiracy, faced the fire of Owen J. Roberts's cross-examination today.

For two and one-half hours Mr. Roberts questioned the seventy-year-old defendant, but all noted the fact that Government counsel today did not go after Mr. Doheny in the unmerciful fashion with which he handled other Doheny witnesses—notably John K. Robison, U. S. N., who told of the "Japanese war scare"; Arthur W. Ambrose the petroleum technologist; Dr. H. Foster Bain, former head of the Bureau of Mines, and others who have come forward to add their testimony to the defense of Fall and Doheny.

As on yesterday, Mr. Doheny proved a good witness for himself. Again he referred to the "Japanese peril" which he swore Robison told him about and which, more than anything else, led him to embark on the oil proposition which had caused him so much trouble in the sunset of his life.

As for Mr. Fall, he swore that Fall's word, so far as he, Doheny, is concerned, is still as good as his bond, and he admitted, before objections could be interposed, that very recently he had loaned Mr. Fall $5,000. When Mr. Roberts sought to find out if he had made any other loans since the $100,000 transaction of 1921, Justice Hoehling sustained the objection of defense counsel and that question was unanswered.

Knows Little of Fall's Ranch.

Mr. Doheny admitted that when Mr. Fall asked him for the $100,000 he had not acquainted him with the fact that the Three Rivers ranch property which Mr. Doheny says was offered as security was mortgaged. Nor did the witness know who are the directors or officers or stockholders of the Tres Rios Land and Cattle Company, the corporation owning the Three Rivers properties.

Yesterday Mr. Doheny testified that Mr. Fall had told him the Three Rivers ranch and other holdings there were worth about $800,000 and that, in 1925, he had turned over thirty-three shares, or one-third of the stock, to him as part payment of the $100,000 deal of 1921. Today Mr. Roberts brought out that the par value of these thirty-three shares is $3,300.

On the stand Mr. Doheny made a pathetic figure. A pillow was placed on the side of the witness chair on which he rested the arm from which he has suffered for a week. It seemed that Mr. Roberts realised the physical condition of the witness. Not once did he adopt his machine-gun style with which those who have attended the trial are so familiar. It seems Mr. Roberts was actually gentle with the witness. However, the attorney did manage to get before the jury some answers which, in the opinion of the Government counsel, were of a telling nature.

Wilbur Gives No Information.

Secretary Wilbur was also a witness today, but he had no information to impart. He had been subpoenaed to bring the "Japanese war peril" papers of 1921 and 1922, but did not have them. There was a rumor that they could not be found, but this was not substantiated. The defense was not peristent with the Secretary and took the position that Mr. Doheny had told the jury all that was necessary relative to the "war threat" which Captain Robison detailed to Mr. Doheny more than five years ago.

It was said tonight by one of counsel for Mr. Fall that the question whether Mr. Fall will take the stand would be decided before court convenes tomorrow. The ex-Secretary is said to be anxious to testify, but his counsel so far have declined to approve the suggestion that he go on the stand and submit to Mr. Roberts's cross-examination, which in Mr. Fall's case would be a most vigorous one. Mr. Fall's various letters denying that he had obtained the $100,000 from oil sources and finally asserting that Edward B. McLean had lent him the money would be a feature of Mr. Roberts's examination.

Mr. Fall had his first character witness today. So far a score or more have sworn that Mr. Doheny is a man of the highest integrity and patriotism, but none had appeared to say a good word for the former head of the Interior Department. Today Post-

Four Actresses Killed in Rome Theatre Fire; Screams Cause Stampede at Opera Near By

ROME, Dec. 10 (AP).—Four music hall actresses were killed when a fire, caused by a short circuit, swept through the Apollo Theatre in the midst of the performance tonight.

The screams of panic-stricken women in the audience and the roar of the flames were heard in the adjoining Eliseo Theatre, where a performance of "Cavalleria Rusticana" was in progress, causing a stampede among the thousand persons in the audience.

One of the actress killed was a German. The others have not been identified but it is believed they were foreigners, since most of the performers were recruited in Germany, Austria and England.

The fire started at the conclusion of the final number on the Apollo program, when the audience was preparing for the dancing which was to follow. The flames burst from behind the stage to the curtain, spreading rapidly to clusters of artificial flowers decorating the walls and ceiling of the auditorium.

Within a few seconds the entire place was aflame, but the audience had succeeded in getting to the exits. The four actresses who were burned had returned to their dressing rooms and were trapped by the flames, which barred their escape and prevented the entrance of firemen who responded to the alarm.

In the meantime the stampede in the Eliso Theatre was controlled by the directors, who appeared on the stage, reassuring the audience there was no danger. The performance was suspended, however, and the patrons marched out to the street as the orchestra played the Royal March.

Government Seizes $20,000 Due Bergdoll; Fugitive's Mother Lets Aunt's Bequest Go

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 10.—An inheritance of $20,000 left to Grover C. Bergdoll, the "draft dodger," under the terms of the will of his grandmother, Elizabeth Bergdoll, who died in 1895, was seized today by Assistant District Attorney Joseph L. Kun, representing the United States Alien Property Custodian. The fugitive's mother, Mrs. Emma C. Bergdoll of Philadelphia, offer no objections.

The Government's action was taken after Federal authorities had received notice that Bergdoll would seek the $20,000 due to him from his grandmother's trust fund and that the Government's efforts to seize it under the Trading with the Enemy act would be opposed.

Mrs. Bergdoll was present today when the audit of the trust fund was called before Judge Vandusen, in the Orphans' Court. After a brief consultation, her attorney announced that Mrs. Bergdoll would not interfere if Grover's share of the funds was awarded to the Alien Property Custodian.

The trust fund, amounting to about $300,000, was created for the benefit of Mrs. Louise Alter, aunt of the fugitive Bergdoll. Mrs. Alter died last March, and, under the provisions of the Elizabeth Bergdoll will, the fund reverted to the residuary of her estate, which will be divided among the children of Louis Bergdoll, Grover's father, and Elizabeth Bergdoll Shoening, both deceased.

Grover's three brothers and his sister are each entitled to $20,000, it is understood, and his mother to $50,000. Judge Vandusen said he would announce his formal decision later.

JURY'S WET STAND PLEASES SENATORS

VOTE ON RESOLUTION HAZY

One Grand Juror of Minority Says Many Colleagues Viewed It as Sort of "Grand Stand Play."

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—Gratification over the New York Federal Grand Jury's denunciation of prohibition was expressed today by Senators Wadsworth and Copeland, who received official copies of the resolutions the Grand Jury adopted. Senator Copeland inserted the resolutions and the names of the jurors in the official record to let the Senate see "the high grade" of the jurors.

"I am not at all surprised," Senator Wadsworth said. "The conditions were well known to any observant person. This is merely more testimony coming from a reliable source as to the failure of prohibition. The Grand Jury must have had many prohibition cases before it, and has drawn its deductions from these."

"It is in harmony," he continued, "with the opinion of many of us who hold the prohibition law unenforceable. It looks to me as if we will have to get the army, navy, marine corps and the police reserves of the country assembled if we are going to try to enforce an act so out of harmony with public sentiment.

Five Against Resolution.

Although the November Federal Grand Jury, of which Louis W. Flaunlacher was foreman, announced Thursday that it had condemned the Volstead act and urged its modification by a vote of nineteen to four, it appeared yesterday that the vote might have been eighteen to five, or at least that five jurors had intended to vote against the anti-Volstead act resolution which was sent to Senators and Federal Judges.

George E. Carhart, who headed the minority vote, said yesterday that those who voted with him were William H. Pouch, Benjamin F. Bailey and Stanley E. Otis. Mr. Carhart said it had been erroneously published yesterday that George W. Godward had voted with the minority and that the name of Mr. Otis should have been published instead.

Mr. Godward and Mr. Otis were both asked yesterday how they had voted and each said he had voted against the resolution. Mr. Pouch, about whose vote there seems to have been no question, was out of the city. The vote was by "ayes" and "noes" and the debate was carried on from day to day, Mr. Godward said. On that account one "no" might have been counted erroneously.

According to Mr. Godward an even greater number of grand jurors felt that the resolution should never have been presented and that the Grand Jury had gone a little out of its way to make a sort of "grand-stand play."

Members of the jury who had voted for the resolution said they had so much experience with prohibition law violation cases during November that they felt the Grand Jury was qualified to express an opinion against the Volstead act which, in its opinion, was unworkable, a menace and a law which should be modified to the point of sanity.

KINGS GRAND JURORS PRAISE COUNTY JUDGES

Association Pledges Support to Policy of No Christmas Cheer for Criminals.

A committee of the Kings County Grand Jurors' Association, composed of 1,200 men who have served on the Grand Jury, visited the County Court in Brooklyn yesterday to compliment the county Judges on their administration of the law. This was the first time that the association had commended Judges in open court.

At a session later with the present December term of the jury the committee urged maximum severity for hardened criminals.

Addressing Judge W. Bernard Vause, who recently advised that no Christmas cheer be shown to criminals, the President of the association, Charles H. May, pledged support to him and his fellow-members of the bench. The members of his association, Mr. May said, would do their utmost to uphold the Judges "in their astute, brave, wise and impartial administration of the law looking to the suppression of crime, which has so suddenly become rampant in our midst."

"Believing as we do in your sincerity of purpose," he continued, "may we assume that you will look upon our activities with an interest which will invite your spirited cooperation and help? Your work and our work has a common intention. We represent a silent police element in society, and the more who are enrolled in the cause of decent citizenship the more likely we are to beat those who are enrolled in crime."

Judge Vause, speaking for the other Judges, expressed his thanks and declared the jurors' association had been a force for constructive service. In the delegation were George Dressler, President-elect; Curtis W. Shields and Victor A. Lersner, ex-Presidents, and Clarence E. Spayd, Secretary of the association.

Besides Judge Vause the others on the bench are Franklyn Taylor, George W. Martin, Alonzo G. McLaughlin and Algernon L. Nova.

CHURCHES DEMAND STRONGER DRY LAW

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Dec. 10 (AP).—Strengthening the prohibition law by supplemental legislation, and curbing lynching by education and legislation were favored by the Federal Council of Churches at its closing business meeting here today.

"Friends of prohibition and law enforcement in Congress" were asked "to demand prompt and fair consideration" of the President's recommendations concerning necessary legislation for sufficient funds for more effective liquor suppression, in a resolution which was adopted unanimously.

Lynching was dealt with in a special report which stated that the "increase in the atrocious evil of lynching is arousing much agitation and causing much thoughtful consideration again on the question of action by the United States Congress to make mob murder a Federal offense."

This report stated that, despite renewed efforts of the Church to discourage mob violence, twenty-seven lynchings had occurred in this country up to Nov. 15, nine more than in the whole of 1925, representing "the severest setback since 1922 in the campaign to marshal churches against lynchings."

Another measure passed pledged the council to study the whole question of marriage and divorce and to support "Golden Rule Sunday."

Other resolutions urged that the United States and other nations reach an agreement at once on the "comparatively unimportant point" keeping America out of the World Court; efforts at cooperation between the State Department and the Mexican Government to prevent commercialized racing, gambling, drinking and vice in border communities, and peaceful settlement of differences between the United States and Mexico, and condemned the suggestion that the United States resort to armed intervention in Mexico and lift the arms embargo by the United States.

Methodists Challenge the Wets.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10 (AP).—The dry forces of the Methodist Episcopal Church declared war today on the enemies of prohibition:

"We are in a war to end intemperance and we are not intending to lay down our arms because in certain recent engagements we suffered reverses," was the challenge to the wets of Bishop William Fraser McDowell, Chairman of the Church's Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals.

METHODISTS ASSAIL SMITH'S WETNESS' ONLY

Dr. Wilson Declares the Church Is Not Opposing the Governor for His Religion.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10 (AP).—The Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals of the Methodist Episcopal Church opposes Governor Smith of New York "for his wetness, not for his religion," its Secretary, Dr. Clarence True Wilson, said today in his annual report.

The Methodist Church was not seeking temporal power in Washington, said Dr. Wilson's report, nor was it "lobbying," but it was exercising through the board its "full right of petition and organizing public influence."

The defeat of Senator Wadsworth of New York, was described as "one of the most significant victories prohibition forces have yet won." Mr. Wadsworth was charged with responsibility for steering dry legislation "into the ditch" at the last session of Congress.

"This showed that the ditch was his favorite place," said Dr. Wilson, "and we decided that he belonged in it and we would put him there."

In denying that religion was the motive behind opposition to Governor Smith Dr. Wilson declared the "temperance forces would have been supporters of Senator Walsh of Montana, who, like Smith, is a communicant of the Catholic Church, if he had been nominated by the Democrats in 1924."

"We shall stand for a man who is loyal to the Eighteenth Amendment and its enforcement, regardless of whether he is a Methodist, Catholic or Jew," he added.

THIRD PARTY IN 1928 SEEN IF SMITH RUNS

Chattanooga Editor Says West and South Will Bolt and Defeat the Governor.

TAMMANY MEN PUZZLED

If Governor Smith is nominated for President by the Democats in 1928, a third party will be formed in the South and the West with the result that the Governor will be beaten, according to George Fort Milton, editor of The Chattanooga News, who has contributed an article on the 1928 prospect to the Dec. 15 issue of The Outlook.

Mr. Milton in 1924 was one of the most active workers in the camp of William G. McAdoo at the Madison Square Garden Convention. He now expresses the opinion that Governor Smith as a candidate for President could not carry two States in the "solid" South.

"He is an optimist, indeed," Mr. Milton writes, "who will credit Smith in a general election with the ability to carry against a dry, Protestant Republican, Tennessee, Kentucky, Oklahoma, North Carolina or Arkansas, even with the opposition of a third party.

"Carrying New York for President is far different from carrying it for Governor, but, even assuming, that Smith would win New York, his Southern losses would more than offset it, and he would not have a ghost of hope from the Mississippi West.

Sees Compromise Upheld.

"It is almost impossible to achieve any compromise between the dry Democrats of the South and West and the Tammany wets. Even the Smith claim of victory cannot bridge this chasm. The stronger the Smith insistence, the more unyielding resistance elsewhere is sure to be."

In another article appearing in next week's issue of The Outlook, Don C. Seitz calls attention to the fact that there are 18,654,026 Roman Catholic communicants in the United States. Mr. Milton does not believe, however, that this vote would go undivided to Mr. Smith merely on the strength of his faith. He expresses the belief that the Catholic vote would split on the wet and dry issue, pretty much as the Protestant vote does and that even among those of his own religious fold he would suffer on account of his wetness.

How to reconcile Governor Smith's avowed political wetness with the attitude of Southern and Western Democrats on Prohibition which is bound to become a big issue in the 1928 National campaign has proved a good deal of a puzzle to the Governor's political backers. Tammany leader George W. Olvany has been in touch of late with prospective Smith supporters among the Democratic leaders of other States regarding ways to place his candidacy before the country. In the correspondence which has passed a great deal has been said about the wet and dry issue.

Mr. Olvany before leaving for his Long Island home for the week-end said yesterday that there could be no doubt about where Tammany stands on the question of modification.

"We are wet," Mr. Olvany said. "The majority of the people in this State undoubtedly are wet and unquestionably want the law changed. No one wants the saloon back and no one would tolerate its return. But the people do want personal liberty and should have it."

"Do you believe the prohibition amendment should be repealed, as Senator Wadsworth has advocated?" he was asked.

"The repeal of the amendment would bring the saloon back," he replied. "I am satisfied the amendment will stay in the Constitution."

"Do you favor the Quebec system of distribution?"

"Placing the control and distribution of liquor under the Government would seem to afford a satisfactory solution and would do away with many of the objectionable conditions we now have," Mr. Olvany replied.

ANDREWS DEPLORES FEDERAL INTRUSION

Prohibition Chief Calls Interference With Local Police Power "a Big Mistake."

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE Md., Dec. 10.—General Lincoln C. Andrews, the Prohibition Chief, told the Baltimore Drug Exchange today that he was not in sympathy with methods of enforcing the Eighteenth Amendment whereby the Federal Government assumes police power of a community. He called such measures "a big mistake."

"Please do not blame me for the passage of the Eighteenth Amendment. When it was enacted I was in France. I am trying to do my duty.

"I believe that the Federal Government should concentrate on one big objective—the elimination of the organized liquor traffic. If the Federal Government performs that work it has done a big job.

"It also is part of my policy that the work of local enforcement should be left to the police and judicial officers of each community."

POLICEMAN GILL SUSPENDED

Accused of Hitting Police Sergeant —Gets Court Hearing Monday.

Patrolman Martin Gill of the Old Slip Police Station, who, since his appointment to the Police Department in 1920, has been commended three times for meritorious work, was suspended yesterday for alleged felonious assault on a Police Sergeant.

Sergeant Duncan Cameron reported that he had found Gill at midnight Thursday on West Street in what he believed was a drunken condition. He said he took him to the Police Station and that while awaiting a Police Surgeon Gill slapped him, drew his service pistol and shouted: "I'll croak you."

Later the Police Surgeon said Gill was "fit for duty." He was released in $500 bail by Magistrate Oberwager in Tombs Court for examination Monday.

In 1924 Gill was commended for the capture of two men who killed William J. Brennan, a prizefighter. In 1921 he received commendation for killing a robber who attempted to push him from a roof.

Officers of the 307th Regiment who are members of the Yale, Harvard, Princeton and Army and Navy Clubs made an attack on the Casino in Central Park last night which simulated the regiment's capture of the Chateau du Diable on the Vesle River in France, August, 1918.

A hundred yards below the Casino the men formed for battle, armed with torpedoes, rockets and strings of firecrackers. At the blow of a histle the attack started. The Yale and Army and Navy sections formed the centre and the Harvard and Princeton sections were placed well apart in the left and right flanks.

"Forward, men!" shouted Captain Tobias Miller, in command of the centre. The flanks remained stationary while the centre advanced up the hill laying down a barrage of rockets and firecrackers. The Casino fell without the loss of a man, but consternation prevailed when it was discovered that the flanks had taken no part in the attack.

Captain Miller led his men back, but it was not until the flanks' supply of ammunition was exhausted that the battle was ended.

Peace again reigned, and the men marched back to the Casino, where the reunion dinner was held. The roll was taken and no casualties were reported.

Among the speakers who were instrumental in negotiating a treaty were Colonel Herbert Spooner, Colonel Weston Jenkins, Colonel Delancey K. Jay, Lieutenant Frederick M. Warburg, Captain Alexander Pratt, Lieutenant Richard Ward, Major Dudley Davis and Captain Charles Swezey.

SEES KLAN POWER GROWING IN WEST

BUT IT THRIVES ELSEWHERE

He Advocates a Federal Law to Penalize Mask Wearers as an Effective Weapon.

Thomas H. Adams, editor and publisher of The Vincennes (Ind.) Commercial, and Chairman of the committee of the Indiana Republican Editorial Association whose recent exposé in public affairs in that State showed the Ku Klux Klan to be the dominating factor, said yesterday at the Hotel Vanderbilt, where he is making a brief stay, that the Klan was growing in strength in the West. He named Illinois, Wisconsin, Missouri, Nebraska and Iowa as spots in which the Invisible Empire continued to thrive.

Mr. Adams declared his information concerning Eastern States was not extensive. He said, however, that through correspondence that developed since he undertook to lead the fight in Indiana he has been told of thriving branches of the Klan in New York and other Eastern States. Most of his information in New York concerned towns in the northern section, he said.

The Grand Jury of Marion County, or Indianapolis, is now in its tenth week, and has examined 250 witnesses regarding their knowledge of the Klan in State affairs, Mr. Adams said. The agitation that developed last Summer when the Republican editors of the State, aided by fifty former lieutenants of D. C. Stephenson, former Grand Dragon, who is serving a life sentence in prison for murder, delved into Klan affairs, upset the political foundations of the State, he asserted.

"We believe that the Legislature elected in November is clean and that we have ended the Klan control in Indiana," said Mr. Adams. "We showed that Stephenson dictated legislation, controlled Governor Jackson and harrassed industry by threats to exercise his power in councils of the State. Stephenson controlled twenty-one States and had Mayors of cities acting at his bidding. Now, with the Klan membership in Indiana cut from 169,000 to 50,000 and the public shown the danger of its control, we think it is dead there. But other States are still in its grasp."

The solution of the Klan problem is the passage of a Federal law to penalize the wearer of a mask, in Mr. Adams's opinion. He has found that the Klan operates by controlling the balance of power in a State. If the political parties alone struggle for the control and there is no threatening group, masked and hooded, waiting to step in, government in the open has a better chance of being clean, he said. The first step should be a definite thrust at the mask.

Mr. Adams is the guest of Dr. John Wesley Hill.

CITES HEALTH HOUSE FILES.

Ullman Puts Cards in Evidence Despite Charge They Were Stolen.

Charges that stolen evidence was being used were made at yesterday's session of the hearing on charges of fraud and deceit against Dr. Leonard L. Landis, proprietor of the House of Health at 140 East Twenty-second Street. The hearing, conducted by the State Board of Medical Examiners, is in its ninth month.

When Deputy Attorney General Sol Ullman attempted to introduce several cards on which the medical records of the House of Health were kept, Frederick Hemley, counsel for Dr. Landis, objected strenuously, saying that the cards had been stolen from the institution's office. Mr. Ullman said he wanted to introduce the cards in order to show later on that a scheme of stereotyped diagnosis was practiced at the House of Health. On his promise to "connect" the evidence the cards were allowed as evidence.

Asked about certain symbols on the cards, Dr. Landis said he did not know what they meant. Mr. Ullman asked whether "K K" did not mean "chronic kicker," to which Dr. Landis replied that he did not know, but thought it to be a good idea.

VARE OFFERS AID TO HIS OPPONENTS

Says He Will Cooperate to Insure Preservation of Election Records, Pending Contest.

WILL DEFER APPEARANCE

Plans to Present No Credentials Until 70th Congress Meets and Dill Withdraws Resolutions.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—William S. Vare, Senator-elect from Pennsylvania, whose right to a seat in the Senate is under attack because of primary campaign expenditures in his behalf, announced today that he would cooperate in any step taken by Senators to impound the ballots cast at the November election in Pennsylvania.

Under the impression that the Pennsylvania law required the destruction of the ballot before another election, William B. Wilson, former Secretary of Labor and Mr. Vare's opponent in the Senatorial contest, has sought action by Senators which would insure the preservation of the ballots if he should contest Mr. Vare's election. Senator Norris had suggested that such a step be taken.

Mr. Vare stated that he had informed Senator Reed of Pennsylvania, who is slated to defend Mr. Vare in any proceedings disputing his right to a seat in the Senate, that he would "gladly welcome" any move to preserve the Pennsylvania ballot boxes or other records indefinitely and wished this notice given to the Senate. He stated also that there appeared to be some misunderstanding concerning the Pennsylvania laws, and that the election records could not be destroyed for two years, under a penal law which preserves them for that period in cities of the first class.

"As the Philadelphia boxes must thus be preserved until Nov. 2, 1928," Mr. Vare said, "there is no danger of their loss or destruction in the next year, or before the new Senate meets, as seems to be the impression in some quarters.

"But," he continued, "no matter how the Pennsylvania laws govern preservation of the boxes or contents, or other accessories of a general election, I desire to make it clear that if for any reason whatsoever any Senators desire any or all boxes used at the Pennsylvania general election preserved, I am willing to cooperate with them in any way I can to insure not only such preservations indefinitely, but the fullest and freest examination."

Definite assurance was given by the Vare forces to Senator Dill today that Mr. Vare would not try to present his credentials until the eSnate of the Seventieth Congress convened. As a result, Senator Dill decided not to call up the resolution he introduced yesterday, declaring Mr. Vare disqualified to present his credentials.

Through the agreement Senator Dill prevented Mr. Vare from filing his credentials in the present Senate and then following the usual custom of Senators-elect of occupying rooms and drawing salary on and after March 4, 1927.

The Reed Investigating Committee decided today to summon a few witnesses for further testimony in the Oregon and Arizona primaries. It is planned to wind up the inquiries in these States and include the result in a report to be made on Pennsylvania and Illinois. The Committee will probably start work next week.

LONG ISLAND RAILROAD SET BACK IN FARE PLEA

The Long Island Railroad Company, in its application for a 20 per cent. increase in commutation fares, sustained a temporary setback at the hands of the Transit Commission yesterday when Commissioner Leon G. Godley disqualified the testimony of a witness on two important exhibits.

The witness was Edwin F. Wendt, the road's consulting engineer, who sought to testify concerning costs under general expenditure and "going concern" costs. Edward Deegan, counsel for the Public Service Commission, objected to Mr. Wendt testifying on the ground that he was not familiar with railroad organizations, operating costs, security sales and other corporation expenditures. Alfred A. Gardner, attorney for the road, argued at length that opinion testimony should be taken in support of the exhibits.

Commissioner Godley told counsel that the commissioners of both the Transit and Public Service Commissions had ruled the exhibits might be admitted if the witness was qualified to testify.

George C. Bishop, Superintendent of Motive Power of the Long Island road, in his testimony valued the rolling stock of the road at $42,433,169.

The hearing was adjourned until next Monday.

J. R. Rogers, 70, Has 400 Patents.

COOLIDGE RECEIVES 600 FOES OF WAR

Women Present Letter Saying They Will Continue Fight for Participation in World Court.

FOR OPEN FILIPINO POLICY

Conference With Islanders on Manner of Granting Them Independence Favored by Washington Meeting.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—President Coolidge today was urged to continue to work for the participation of the United States in the World Court in a letter placed in his hands by Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt in behalf of the Conference on the Cause and Cure of War when the delegates called at the White House.

The delegates, numbering about 600, were received in the Blue Room this afternoon by the President and Mrs. Coolidge.

After explaining the composition and purpose of the conference, the letter to the President stated that eight of the nine organizations represented had indorsed the World Court and were actively campaigning in behalf of American participation. Continuing the letter read:

"These organizations stand ready to do what they have done before, and to continue the campaign on behalf of the World Court until this nation has become a member of it, no matter how many months or years may be included in the campaign."

Criticism of America Is Modified.

The conference today went on record, by a vote of 680 to 25, in favor of complete cancellation of the war debts to the United States and by a larger vote favored partial cancellation of debts to America incurred by foreign countries for relief work after the war.

At the afternoon session protests from the floor against implied criticism of the United States for failing to join the League of Nations or the World Court in the reports of the Findings Committee resulted in amendment of the section concerned.

Following objections made by Mrs. Henry M. Youmans of Waukesha, Wis., representing the League of Women Voters, and Mrs. Maud Swarts of New York, of the Women's Trade Union League, the paragraph expressing the belief that, by not accepting obligations similar to those undertaken by members of the League and Court, the United States was retarding their efforts toward world peace, the paragraph was modified by the insertion of the words "through any other machinery" to read as follows:

"That so long as the United States, whose vast economic power and resources permeate the entire world, does not through any other machinery assume similar obligations, it is retarding the efforts of the other nations to establish peace and security."

Accord on Mexico Is Urged.

The conference favored the appointment by the President of a commission to confer with a commission appointed by the various Filipino groups to discuss the time, manner and method "of granting independence to the Philippines."

It further recommended "that on the report of this commission Congress be urged to establish an openly announced and continuing policy for the Philippines."

A recommendation that each situation between the United States and Japan be met as it arose "with justice and courtesy" and that public sentiment insuring such action be created, was accepted as an adequate expression of the views of all the delegates on the Japanese question.

Further study and a better understanding of the Monroe Doctrine were advised and the Mexican situation was warmly discussed before a resolution was agreed upon urging, in effect, that every effort be made by the United States amicably to adjust and to compose the present existing differences with the Mexican Government.

POLICE HUNT ACID THROWER

Girls in Streets Are Victims of Apparently Demented Man.

An apparently demented man who throws muriatic acid at girls' legs was being sought last night by the police of the West 123d Street Station, following complaints that several girls in the Morningside Avenue section of Harlem had been burned in this manner.

According to the police, incidents of this kind occurred on Monday and Tuesday, but the names of the victims were withheld. The thrower is said to be an undersized, well-dressed man. Last Sunday afternoon he painfully burned Miss Corinne Casey, 21 years old, of 92 Morningside Avenue.

Miss Casey, an artist, the daughter of Thomas J. Casey, editor of The Packer, a trade paper, was walking with two girls near the subway station at West 125th Street and Broadway when she felt a burning sensation on her legs. She paid no attention to it at the time and boarded a train. The pain increased, and she went to St. Vincent's Hospital for treatment for the burns, and later to Dr. Charles Huber of 131 East Eightieth Street. Her injuries are not serious.

The sale of the Mori collection of Japanese prints, books and stencils closed last evening at the American Art Galleries with a grand total of $20,928.50. The final session brought a little more than $5,000. A Shigemasa surimono of chrysanthemums and butterflies went for $300 to Mrs. J. Reily. Dr. A. B. Duel bid in for $155 a Hiroshige print, and another by Hiroshige brought $135, going to Tamaqa.

WOMEN AT OHIO DINNER; 41-YEAR BAR LET DOWN

Butler Speaks on Grandeur of New York—Plunkett for Supremacy at Sea.

For the first time since the Ohio Society of New York was organized forty-one years ago women were invited to join the members last night at the annual dinner held in the grand ballroom of the Waldorf-Astoria. More than five hundred attended and about half the guests were women.

Charles D. Hilles, President of the society, spoke on the innovation in presiding as contributing to make this anniversary celebration an outstanding event in the history of the organization. Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, President of Columbia University and Rear Admiral Charles P. Plunkett were the principal speakers.

Dr. Butler in an address on New York said: "It is a liberal education to know the City of New York. Few persons, he said, know it is the greatest manufacturing centre of the world, the greatest educational centre in the world and that it is building up one of the greatest art collections of all time. The people of New York, he said, are not interested in making New York big, but are earnestly and sincerely endeavoring to solve the great problems of the country.

A plea for the return of American supremacy on the sea was made by Rear Admiral Punkett.

"There is going to be no peace in the world," he said, "until America is as great on the water as on land, with those things that bring to the world peace, whether it wants it or not."

Mr. Hilles outlined the history of his native State since the pioneer days, recalling that Ohio has furnished more Presidents to the nation than any other State. He said Ohio owed its enviable position to the sturdy stock that settled in it.

Dr. James Cattell of Philadelphia also spoke. Other guests at the President's table were William H. Truesdale, Newton W. Gilbert, former Governor of the Philippine Islands; William S. Hawk, Samuel Mather, William H. Crocker of San Francisco, Judge Philip J. McCook, Judge N. B. Billingsley of Lisbon, Ohio; William T. Dewart, and the Rt. Rev. William A. Lecnard, Bishop of Ohio, who gave the invocation.

HOUSE FOR COOLIDGE STILL TO BE CHOSEN

Temporary White House Will Not Be a Washington Hotel if He Can Find a Residence.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10 (AP).—A temporary residence for President Coolidge and his executive staff while the White House is undergoing repairs has not been found by the President, who desires to exhaust all possibilities of finding a suitable private residence before deciding to move into a hotel.

It was said today at the White House that previous experience of hotel life in an official capacity had convinced Mr. Coolidge of the difficulties which probably would beset him and his aides.

A private residence, President Coolidge feels, is far more suitable and makes easier the necessary entertaining.

In denying reports that the Mayflower Hotel had been chosen, the White House spokesman today said offers had been received from all the leading hotels in Washington, and that it was possible that one of these may have to be selected.

FIRE SEALS FATE OF TRAPPED MINERS

All Five Believed Dead in Flames Drive Rescuers From Workings.

BODIES OF TWO ARE SEEN

Final Death List of Explosion Now Princeton, Ind., Is 28—Three Survivors Near Death.

PRINCETON, Ind., Dec. 10 (AP).—A raging fire forced abandonment today of all rescue work in Francisco Mine, near here, where an explosion yesterday caused the deaths of twenty-three men and serious injury to a score of others.

Clifford Biel died tonight at the Methodist Hospital here. He was taken from the mine Thursday night in the last group to leave the mine alive. Jess Williams of Princeton is not expected to survive the night, so serious are his injuries.

The mine was ordered sealed when it still held the bodies of five men, B. J. Rohl, W. P. Ratliff, Emery Wise, Walter Thomas and Claude Wright, but only after the rescue crews were convinced all of them were dead and that further exploring in the face of danger was useless.

The bodies of Rohl and Ratliff had been found and were about to be lifted to the surface when the fire forced the rescuers to run for their lives. The bodies of the three other miners had not been located.

Relatives of West, Thomas and Wright stood outside the cage and shaft houses and watched workmen place heavy coverings over the mine surface outlets, thus extinguishing the last flickering hope for the rescue alive of the missing men. Mine experts had sought previously to convince the relatives that there was no hope that the trapped workers were alive.

Of the twenty-nine dead all but two were killed within the subterranean passages of the mine. Two died after being removed to hospitals.

Twenty-seven injured men were today in the Methodist Hospital. Three were in a critical condition. Physicians expressed the belief that the others would recover. Fifteen escaped injured or with only minor hurts.

sumption." He described the New York referendum as "insipid, stupid, useless and dishonest," although the verdict rendered through it he felt was correct.

Against the Dry Unit.

"I do not propose to sidestep or softshoe or excuse my position on these appropriations," said Mr. Gallivan. "Those of us on the Appropriations Committee who have dissented from this bill do not dissent from the appropriations which the Coast Guard will get, nor do we propose to dissent from what the Department of Justice will get, but we are against the National Prohibition Unit.

Mr. Gallivan insisted that the dry law could not be enforced, and said that Major Walton A. Green, chief enforcing officer, had given that explanation for quitting the office.

Mr. Cramton asked Mr. Gallivan to yield the floor and referred to a statement made yesterday by Mr. Gallivan that the speeches of dry members of Congress were written by officers of the Anti-Saloon League.

"Nobody writes my speeches," exclaimed Mr. Cramton.

"I didn't want to embarrass the gentleman by yielding," Mr. Gallivan replied. "I remember a few years ago, in a speech on this floor, I asked the members of this House who liked a drink and took a drink, but voted as the Anti-Saloon League told them to, to raise their right hands. The only man in the House who raised his hand was the gentleman from Michigan, Mr. Cramton. I felt a few moments ago, when I declined to yield, that I would avoid embarrassment for Mr. Cramton."

"I will not allow what Mr. Gallivan just said to go into the records without explanation," said Mr. Cramton. "The gentleman from Massachusetts did ask such a question and it was misunderstood in the uproar of the time. I do not drink."

"But I never accused the gentleman of drinking," Mr. Gallivan retorted. "He admitted it himself."

Wheeler Attacks Gallivan.

Wayne B. Wheeler, General Counsel of the Anti-Saloon League, attacked Representative Gallivan today for the fight he is making against the dry laws.

"Mr. Gallivan's recurrent fulminations against prohibition suggest the symptoms of syncopation," said Mr. Wheeler. "It is a new disease, discovered by a New York doctor to calm the fears of the wife of a thirsty husband. Looking into the dictionary, the disconcerted wife found that syncopation is defined as 'an irregular movement between two bars.'

"Mr. Gallivan may rant, rave and razz until his rage ravels, but the overwhelming majority of real Americans will continue to maintain and insist upon the enforcement of constitutional prohibition.

"While it is the antithesis of all that Mr. Gallivan stands for, yet, at its worst, prohibition has decreased the consumption of beverage liquor, drunkenness, juvenile delinquency, poverty and alcoholism, and increased prosperity, home building, productivity, wealth, health, school attendance and happiness."

LOS ANGELES ASKS ORMISTON'S ARREST

Prosecutors There Wire Chicago to Take Him Out of the Hands of "Private Captors."

MOVE FOR EXTRADITION

Radio Operator Reaches Chicago and Will Fight Removal to California.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Dec. 10.—Kenneth G. Ormiston, former radio operator, who is under indictment in Los Angeles in connection with the Aimee Semple McPherson kidnapping case, arrived here today with his captors.

Ormiston came to confer with his attorney, Edward H. S. Martin, and plans to fight extradition to California. He intends, according to report, to write his experiences.

Chief Collins, who was in Harrisburg when Sergeant Donnelly located Ormiston, maintained tonight that he knew nothing about the case.

Asked if Ormiston was under arrest, he said:

"No, I am so sure that he is not under arrest that I have wired the authorities in Los Angeles to that effect. Sergeant Donnelly may have him, but he is not under arrest. He isn't in the police station, is he?"

Ormiston came to confer with his attorney. Deputy District Attorney E. J. Dennison of Los Angeles believes he should be. He sent to Chief Collins and to the Chiefs at Plymouth, Ind., and Gary, Ind., a request that he be taken from "the custody of private captors" and placed under a police guard.

Mr. Dennison has ordered extradition papers prepared.

Ormiston is merely being escorted by Sergeant Donnelly and is willingly discussing such subjects as he will write about.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 10 (AP).—District Attorney's offices here today moved to take Kenneth G. Ormiston out of the hands of what they called "private captors" and place him in custody pending attempts at formal removal to California.

Ben Cohen, Chief of Detectives, telegraphed instructions to Morgan Collins, Chief of Police of Chicago, to arrest the former Angelus Temple radio operator and hold him for local action.

Dennison said nothing which "smacked of immunity" would enter the proceedings to place Ormiston on trial for conspiracy to defeat justice for his alleged connection with the evangelist's disappearance and kidnapping story.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Dec. 10 (AP).—Frank Moore, driver of the automobile in which Kenneth Ormiston left Harrisburg yesterday morning, returned here tonight shortly after 7 o'clock.

Officials of the taxicab company from which the automobile was engaged said Moore had returned and taken his car to the garage. They said he had not made his report or given any information about his trip.

At Moore's residence it was stated that he had called on the telephone, but had not said when he would be home.

When the car left here Thursday morning with Ormiston and the two Chicago detectives who apprehended him here its destination was not disclosed. Officials of the taxicab company said they did not know and the city Police Department disclaimed any knowledge further than that the party was bound for Chicago.

Must Go to Prison as Chapman's Fence.

The Appellate Division of the Supreme Court in Brooklyn affirmed yesterday the conviction of John J. Phelan of 34 Greenwich Street, Manhattan, on charges of grand larceny and criminally receiving stolen goods, which related to obtaining money on bonds that included a part of the loot of Gerald Chapman and his gang in the Leonard Stret mail robbery. The Sheriff was directed to imprison Phelan, who had been out on bail of $50,000.

Saves His Friend, Trapped by a Cave-in; Digs Prisoner Out With Hands and a Bucket

Paddy Doherty and Tommy Curran got up at the usual time yesterday morning and had the usual argument as to who should use the wash basin first. For years the argument has been going on in their rooms at 265 Clifton Street, and for years neither of them meant anything by it. They are friends.

After breakfast the two set out for work. They are plumber's assistants engaged in building a sewer at Eighty-third Street and Fourth Avenue, Brooklyn. Paddy was to work in the cellar making connections. About 10 o'clock Tommy happened to look over and saw only the head of his friend. The cellar had caved in and Paddy was buried in a deluge of sand.

Forgetting the heated arguments about the wash basin, Tommy ran to the pit and jumping in, began to scoop sand out with his hands. Other workmen built a shoring to prevent further cave-in, but could not persuade the rescuer to come out without his friend. Presently the police emergency wagon arrived and its captain ordered Tommy out.

A pail was lowered, and assisted by his friend, who now had an arm free, Tommy filled it with sand and workmen above pulled it up to empty. All the time Paddy kept cool, shouting directions at the workmen above and at Tommy within. Finally, about noon, Tommy was released and taken to the Norwegian Hospital, where his injuries were said to be not serious.

When Tommy reached the sight of a multitude who had gathered, there were loud cheers and congratulations hurled at him from all sides. He was modest about it all, only saying that he guessed he had better get the afternoon off and make a trip to the hospital to cheer up his friend. Although he didn't say it, there was a suspicion that in the back of his mind he was praising the luck which had allowed the continuation of early morning discussions about the wash basin. A friend's a friend for a' that.

ROCKEFELLER GIVES PRINCETON $150,000

Fund Will Be Used to Enlarge Gymnasium With a Supplementary Structure.

OLD BUILDING TOO SMALL

Director Roycroft Says Donation Will Spur Athletic Interests at the University.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Dec. 10.—A gift to Princeton University of $150,000 by John D. Rockefeller Jr. for additions to the university gymnasium was made known tonight by President John Grier Hibben. Work will start on the additions to the structure in the near future.

The old boiler house, immediately behind the present gymnasium, is to be used for the addition and will contain thirteen standard-size squash and racquet courts. A supplementary "gym" will be constructed on the roof of the old fuel-storage compartment of the boiler house, with an area of about 6,000 square feet. The addition will also contain two dressing rooms for the use of visiting teams, two handball courts and a lacrosse practice court.

At present there are no squash or racquet courts at Princeton.

Dr. Joseph E. Raycroft, Director of the Princeton Department of Physical Education, said tonight that the gift of Mr. Rockefeller would enable Princeton not only to relieve the congestion of the "gym" during the Winter months, but it would also make it possible for the university to encourage such activities as fencing, boxing, tennis, squash and racquets.

The supplementary structure will be 150 feet long by 41 feet wide. It will be unheated, so that students exercising in it during the Winter months will be practically working in the open air. Dr. Raycroft in discussing the need for new facilities at Princeton, said:

"When the Princeton University gym was built in 1903 it was the largest college gym in the country with a floor space of 16,000 square feet, and was considered adequate to meet the needs of the university for an indefinite period. Indeed, it was relatively little used for the first six or seven years. Since that time, however, two principal factors—increased student enrollment and the success attending the efforts made to stimulate students to engage in sports and other forms of regular exercise—have been responsible for an increase in the use of the facilities, which has resulted in a marked congestion during the periods when students are free to exercise and play games.

YOUNG PRENTICE WINS PRIZE FOR ORATORY

Rockefeller's Grandson Takes Second Honor in Yale Juniors' Contest for Ten Eyck Awards.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Dec. 10.—Arthur Clendenin Robertson of Cambridge, Mass., won the first Ten Eyck prize in the Yale junior exhibition for oratory this evening for his oration on "An Undergraduate's Answer to Fundamentalism." John Rockefeller Prentice of New York City, grandson of John D. Rockefeller, received the second prize for his oration on "Leadership."

Mr. Prentice's oration was a warning to Yale lest in her position of preeminence and leadership she should lose sight of the manner by which this position was gained and thus lose it.

Other speakers and their subjects were: William Roberts Chambers of Cincinnati, "Now Is the Time"; Dwight Stone Mallon of Cincinnati, "The False God of Memory," and Conrad Hahn of Scranton, Pa., "The Need of Philosophy."

fore the board on Monday, when it sits as a Committee of the Whole.

Berry Urged Pruning.

It was recalled, however, that Controller Berry, in letters which he sent last Summer to his colleagues of the Board of Estimate, declared that there was hardly a bureau or department of the City Government that might not be pruned without impairing its efficiency and that such a reorganization would effect great economies in administration.

The Controller asserted also that it would be quite possible, by such reorganization, to keep the budget for 1927 within the figures for 1926. He trimmed the budget for his own department to a sum less than that for the current year and at the same time inaugurated reforms and increased several salaries in the Department of Finance.

INDUSTRIAL SURVEY HUNTS SLUSH FUND

Takes Up Printed Charge That Insurance Companies Spend Money for Legislation.

OFFICIALS TO BE EXAMINED

Administration of State Workman's Compensation Act Explained to Commissioners.

When the State Industrial Survey Commission resumed its hearing yesterday in the rooms of the Bar Association Building, Emanuel Koveleski, labor member of the commission, introduced a pamphlet titled "Do Big Insurance Companies Maintain a Slush Fund?" and asked that the commission answer the question. The pamphlet contained a list of companies credited with paying certain amounts as bureau dues and assessments. The total amount was given as $869,000 in 1920 and $1,568,437 in 1924. The pamphlet described these payments as a slush fund to influence legislation on insurance matters.

Edward A. Willoughby of the Travelers Insurance Company, President of the New York Claims Association and the first witness of the day, said he was not qualified to discuss the subject. Herbert P. Stelwagen, Secretary-Treasurer of the National Bureau of Casualty and Surety Underwriters, was summoned hurriedly to be questioned. He said that the term "bureau dues and assessments" was a common term in the insurance field and he defined it as money paid to such bureaus as the one which he represented for services which had no bearing on accelerating or retarding legislation.

Assemblymen Jasper W. Cornaire, Chairman of the commission, instructed the secretary to summon the State Superintendent of Insurance so that he could testify on the subject. The secretary was told not to call officials of the International Labor Press of America, publisher of the booklet. Mr. Cornaire said the circular had been received in evidence and that it was the duty of the commission to delve into the statements contained therein to determine their truthfulness.

State Industrial Commissioner James A. Hamilton told the commission of the functions of his office. He dealt with the operation of the State Insurance Fund and said the business had increased so in the last two years that the fund offered compensation insurance to companies at 27½ per cent. less than any insurance company. He said that in the fiscal year ended on June 30, 1926, there had been paid out in compensation claims by all companies a total of $26,199,510.54. He declared himself in favor of a State monopoly of compensation insurance and said industry had to be taught the value of such a proposition.

The commission will meet on next Thursday morning and representatives of the State Federation of Labor will be heard on the present wage rate.

CHESTERTON DENIES WE WORSHIP MONEY

English Author Declares That Is the Worst Lie Told on Americans.

OXFORD, England, Dec. 10 (AP).—"Of all lies, the worst lie is that the American worships money," Gilbert K. Chesterton, the English essayist and critic, believes.

"An American," he told the American Club at Oxford, "never talks of money in the hushed and awestruck tone that an Englishman employs in referring to financial matters."

Though famed as a humorist, Mr. Chesterton spoke to the Americans for the most part in serious vain. He frankly discussed the differences which exist between England and America and the misunderstanding which so easily arise from them, and his plea was for a newer sort of intelligent understanding between Americans and Englishmen.

"I am not anxious to see this unity of spirit that the newspapers and politicians on both sides of the water often refer to," he said. "Such beautiful phrases as 'People of one stock,' 'Blood is thicker than water,' 'Hands across the sea' are bringing us no nearer together."

Far more effective, believes Mr. Chesterton, is the consideration of America and England as entirely distinct countries. Much of the friction between the two countries, he said, came from the fact that Englishmen expected to find in America the same conditions to which they were accustomed in England, and vice versa.

"Although a small number of English fools have done a certain amount of harm by insulting America," he said, "a far greater number have done harm by praising her in the wrong way. Such praise takes form in such remarks as: 'Look at your fine American courage—you get it from us!' 'Americans love liberty—we invented it!' 'Americans have plenty of optimism, an English quality!'

"The real question to be considered by those who wish to bring Anglo-American understanding to a higher plane is: What is distinctively American that England cannot possess, and what is English that America cannot have?"

CANADA NOW OF AGE, FALCONER DECLARES

Maturity Was Recognized by Imperial Parley, He Tells English-Speaking Union.

SEES SPUR TO OUR AMITY

A. B. Morine, Delegate to Conference at London, Envisions Central Control of Empire.

Sir Robert Falconer, President of the University of Toronto and author of "The United States as a Neighbor," discussed last night before hundreds of members and guests of the English Speaking Union at a dinner in the grand ballroom of the Biltmore Hotel the effect upon Canadian-American relations of the more important conclusions reached by the Imperial Conference at London.

Sir Robert, who was the guest of honor, began his address with references to the uniting influence of the English language and the many ties between the British Commonwealth of Nations and the United States. He said the Imperial Conference had shown that Canada had at last "come of age" among the nations of the world.

"The last Imperial Conference," he continued, "is of great importance because it has given official expression to the fact that these self-governing dominions have been really autonomous. Advances are usually marked publicly after they, in actual life, have been made or very fully prepared for. But a psychological change may pass over a man or a nation when it is openly stated that a stage in its career has been reached.

"The document adopted by the conference is, therefore, no revolution, nor is it a platitude. It is a definite step in the progress of the British Empire or Commonwealth of Nations.

Recognition of Maturity.

"Britain has once again shown her wonderful capacity for government in granting in a most gracious manner, under the leadership of one of her greatest statesmen, Lord Balfour, the recognition that her descendants and others in the overseas dominions have come to maturity and are, therefore, to be given the freedom that goes with it.

"A new responsibility has now been laid upon each dominion, in directing its own concerns, to prepare for its own defense. Hitherto in boundary and fishery disputes between you and us we had Britain standing by our side, and I have no doubt that, on the whole, she helped us very greatly. Henceforth we must negotiate our own treaties, and should we ever be overborne in what we regard as the claim of justice, we shall not have our disappointment mitigated by the prestige of Great Britain as a party to the proceedings.

"On the other hand, in the eyes of the world, Canada herself will win respect. That has indeed already been given to her and the other dominions by Britain voluntarily. If this is the judgment of the mother country, then Europe and the United States will realize that in this Commonwealth of Nations new powers have come to maturity. Already we are told by all our visitors that at Geneva Canada is treated with remarkable consideration, and it may be that the friendliness of the United States will be increased when she realizes that her neighbor is admitted as of age in the circle of the nations.

"But quite as important as any of these is the necessity to recognize that this new status makes no change in the fundamental relationship between the overseas dominions and Britain. Life is above law, above institutions and above procedures of government, and by life it is that families are held together, that society exists. A people lives while it has a soul, and the soul of Canada is unchanged."

Predicts Central Control.

Alfred Bishop Morine, leader of the Legislative Council of Newfoundland and delegate to the Imperial Conference, expressed the conviction that this generation would live to see the establishment in London of a central authority which would control the entire British Empire as a unit. This would mean that the Dominions would retain their autonomy and at the same time have equal voice in the affairs of the empire.

"The Imperial Conference and what it accomplished," said Mr. Morine, "was not the end but merely the beginning of our building. There must be a central power to deal with defense matters, with trade questions, with foreign countries and other subjects.

"I believe that in the important colonies Great Britain will maintain Ambassadors, thus enabling her to keep up a very close communication. Distance has almost been eliminated by modern means of transportation. The sea is no longer a dividing, but a connecting line and it would be almost as easy today to govern all the British Empire by a central power as it once was for Canada to govern herself. We shall yet see the day when such a central authority will be created.

"Today the King is, in a sense, the only legal connection between Britain and her Dominions. We hope that the Privy Council will come to be regarded as the court of the empire to which appeals may be made by all the Dominions."

Friendly Reply Made.

Dr. John H. Finley delivered a friendly response to Sir Robert's address. Paul D. Cravath, Vice President of the English-Speaking Union of the United States, was toastmaster. The list of those at the dais included:

The Earl of Wicklow, Lady Denison, Sir Hugh R. Denison, Commissioner for Australia in the United States; Lady Beatrice Wilkinson, Eric H. Louw, Trade Commission for the Union of South Africa, and Mrs. Louw; Robert Wilberforce, Director British Library of Information, and Mrs. Wilberforce; Duncan W. Fraser, President of the Canadian Club; James Brown, President British Empire Chamber of Commerce; Major Louis Livingston Seaman, representing the George Washington-Sulgrave Institution.

Harry M. Herbert, President of the British Great War Veterans of America; Miss Isabel Lount Evans, representing the Canadian Women's Club; W. J. Turner Lynch, President of the St. George Society; Frederick W. Barker, President of the British Luncheon Club; H. C. Hunter, representing the British Schools and Universities Club; Mrs. Percival H. Gregory, President Imperial Order of the Daughters of the British Empire; A. E. Gallatin, Secretary of The Pilgrims.

Frederick Tench, Vice President of the Canadian Society; Henry Moir, President of St. Andrew's Society; W. A. Earl, Secretary Overseas League; Edmund F. Trabue, President Kentucky Branch English-Speaking Union of the United States, and St. John Betts, Acting Canadian Government Trade Commissioner.

PERSHING BACKS POISON GAS BAN

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10 (AP).—General Pershing believes that to sanction the use of warfare gas in any form would open the way for the use of the most deadly gases and the possible poisoning of whole populations of non-combatant men, women and children.

His view was expressed in a letter to Chairman Borah of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, read today during Senate consideration of the Geneva poison gas treaty, which is up for ratification.

It went into the record while Senators supporting the treaty were giving serious thought to a suggestion the protocol be referred back to the Foreign Relations Committee for further consideration. Informally they agreed that this might be wise, in view of the opposition in the meeting, both in the Senate and outside.

The letter, in which General Pershing said he did not think it possible that the United States would fail to ratify the gas ban treaty, was read into the record by Mr. Borah, who is urging favorable action. Opposition to the protocol is being led by Chairman Wadsworth of the Military Committee, who holds that gas is a humane weapon of warfare.

"My instructions while Chief of Staff," General Pershing said, "were to the effect that we should develop our defense against poison gas and continue the study of gases for offensive use in case of necessity. But its use on the offensive was not to be a part of the instruction for the armies."

Prof. Norris Attacks Kellogg.

The controversy between the American Chemical Society and Secretary Kellogg was sharpened yesterday when Professor James F. Norris, President of the society, charged that the opponents of poison gas warfare were insincere, that their advocacy of the Geneva Protocol was based on misinformation, and that the widespread feeling against gas warfare was a relic of war hysteria and propaganda.

Pressing his society's fight against ratification of the protocol, Professor Norris appeared before the Synthetic Organic Chemical Manufacturers' Association at the Hotel Commodore and protested "in the strongest way possible" against any American action which would forbid the use of poison gas in warfare. He prefaced his remarks, which were extemporaneous, with an address calling upon the technical and scientific industries to assist the universities from which they draw their personnel.

G. M. Heckscher's Trophies Stolen.

WESTBURY, L. I., Dec. 10.—Three polo cups and a quantity of silverware were stolen last night from the bungalow of George M. Heckscher on the Jericho Turnpike here by thieves who entered a rear door with a passkey. The cups were trophies won by Mr. Heckscher. The bungalow is the Summer home of the Heckschers and is now unoccupied as they are living in their town home at 59 East Fifty-second Street, Manhattan.

Cites the Questions Involved.

Judge Taylor said the two questions now before the Court were whether he had the right to sentence a man otherwise than in accordance with his conviction, which in this case, he said, was as a first offender, and whether the provisions involved in the Baumes laws were mandatory.

He argued that the acceptance of the original plea was an adjudication that the prisoner was a first offender, especially since Court and District Attorney had come to the agreement to take that plea after the indictment had alleged a previous offense.

Justice Isaac M. Kapper interrupted to remark: "Then your interpretation is that where a plea is accepted that eliminates the defendant's prior convictions?" Judge Taylor answered that it was, declaring that principles of honor should continue to apply when the Court was dealing with defendants.

Calling for the administration of justice with understanding, he reminded the Court that Henry George, the economist, at one time held up a man on the street and took $2, and that a contemporary dramatist had been a notorious criminal.

"Those," he said, "who in a fanatical reaction against a situation which they honestly misunderstand demand a false and strained construction, contrary to all rules of statutory interpretation, making mandatory a life sentence for all fourth offenders, regardless of the merits of the indivdual case, should pause in sober realization that they in turn must some day ask for mercy and that 'God is love, His mercy shining.'"

Walsh Presents Dodd's Side.

When Henry J. Walsh rose to represent Mr. Dodd, both he and Judge Taylor were subjected to a barrage of questions from the bench. The Justices frankly confessed they were puzzled as to what concrete issue was before them.

"The prisoner may be brought back and admit at once he was a fourth offender," Presiding Justice William J. Kelly said. "Until he appeals from a judgment how is all this before us?"

"I am frank to say I don't know," Mr. Walsh said. "All we want now is to bring the man down from Sing Sing."

"It seems to me, too," said Justice Daniel F. Manning, "that it is simply a matter of getting him here."

Justice Kelly also agreed, saying that the question of whether a life sentence was discretionary was not at issue now.

When Mr. Walsh attempted to continue his argument Justice Kelly ended the hearing. The decision of the Court was reserved.

In his brief Mr. Walsh argued that double jeopardy was not an issue, since the punishment and not the offense was the matter in controversy. The Legislature, he said, had plainly provided that no matter what the grade of offense or what the plea for which a defendant was found guilty, if he had been convicted of other felonies he would have to be punished accordingly, even though the indictment had not set forth prior convictions.

ALLEGED THIEF CAUGHT IN W. J. BURNS'S HOME

Charged with the theft on $20 from the home of William J. Burns, former head of the United States Secret Service and now chief of the Burns International Detective Agency, William Van Puls, a window cleaner of 580 Steinway Avenue, Astoria, Queens, was held in $5,000 bail for examination on Monday when he was arraigned before Magistrate Jean Norris in the Harlem Court yeterday.

The theft occurred at Mr. Burns's apartment at 1,192 Park Avenue, when the detective was en route to this city from Detroit. In the apartment at the time were Mrs. Burns and her daughters, Mrs. Cyrus H. King of Detroit and Mrs. Randall Borough of Ossining. Mrs. Burns sent a call to a window cleaning agency to send a man to clean the windows and Van Puls appeared at the apartment a short while afterward.

Having read of robberies committed by window cleaners, the women kept an eye on Van Puls as he went about his work. Mrs. Borough had left her handbag containing some money and jewelry on a table in the living room and, according to her statement to the police, she saw Van Puls open the bag and extract a twenty-dollar note.

She called her mother and sister. Van Puls made no attempt to escape while the women telephoned to the East 104th Street Station. Detectives were sent over to the apartment and Van Puls was arrested. The police said last night that as far as they knew Vas Puls had no previous police record.

CHILDREN'S CRIES GIVE ALARM AFTER HOLD-UP

They Shout 'Robbers' Following $5,700 Payroll Robbery, but Three Thieves Escape.

Three young robbers held up the assistant cashier of Charles P. Rogers & Co., Inc., furniture dealers, yesterday afternoon and escaped with a payroll of $5,700 in a stolen taxicab. Screaming children gave the alarm.

Anthony Hoffman, porter, with William B. Ryan, the cashier, had brought the money, which was in pay envelopes enclosed in a steel box, from the showrooms of the company at 26 West Forty-eighth Street, to the six-story factory building at 517-523 West Twenty-ninth Street, in a cab.

As they were leaving the vehicle at about 4 o'clock, the three thugs, who were well dressed, rushed them from the sidewalk. Hoffman, carrying the strong-box, was seized from behind by one of them, while another, brandishing a pistol, ordered Ryan from the cab, and the third pointed a pistol at the driver, whose name the police withheld, and told him to get out.

A few seconds later, when a group of children playing near by shouted "Robbers," the cab disappeared around the corner. It was found abandoned a few minutes later by detectives from the West Thirtieth Street Station at the corner of Tenth Avenue and Thirty-second Street.

Ryan said he had been discussing the advisability of using checks to pay the 200 employes of the company with officials of the firm an hour before the hold-up.

NORTHCLIFFE CASE DROPPED IN LONDON

Ex-Secretary, Plaintiff, Withdraws All Charges Against Lord Rothermere.

SUIT COST OVER $150,000

Plaintiff Says She 'Mothered' Northcliffe and Stopped Him From Making a Fool of Himself.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Dec. 10.—The Northcliffe will case, after an eight-day hearing, came to a sudden end today, the plaintiff, Miss Louise Owen, withdrawing all charges and agreeing to a judgment for the defendants.

This is the case in which Miss Owen sued for a judgment setting aside the sale to Lord Rothermere, after Lord Northcliffe's death in 1922, by Sir George Sutton, the administrator of the Northcliffe estate, of 400,000 shares of The Daily Mail.

The shares were sold for £4, whereas Miss Owen contended they were worth £7.

Eighteen barristers were engaged in the case and it is estimated to have cost over $150,000. Miss Owen had been Lord Northcliffe's secretary and was a minor legatee under the Northcliffe will.

Miss Owen, who yesterday admitted that she believed herself to have been in spirit communication with Lord Northcliffe since his death, stated today, when questioned regarding her relationship with Lord Northcliffe:

"I mothered him. I gave him advice if he needed it."

The settlement was brought about by the advice of Mr. Justice Astbury, who stated afterward that if the case had been fought out he would have come to no other conclusion.

Miss Owen had admitted yesterday that she had refused to agree to the compromise arrived at two years ago as regards the Northcliffe estate. (There had been a dispute as to which of the two wills was to be accepted, a question which was finally settled by compromise) until the executors had agreed to recognize her claim against the estate for a £4,000 annuity.

Re-examined about this matter today, Miss Owen said that under the compromise $1,000,000 had been taken out from the estate and given to Lady Northcliffe, which meant so much less for charity. Other people not mentioned by Lord Northcliffe had also been brought into the will, she said.

"Had you a great admiration for Lord Northcliffe?" Miss Owen was asked.

"I was devoted to him," she replied.

"Are you Irish, Miss Owen?"

"Yes, I am."

"On what sort of terms were you with him?"

"Mothered" Lord Northcliffe.

"I mothered him. I gave him advice if he needed it. He said I was fearless and told him the truth, and always, he said, 'I give you leave to pull me up and prevent me making a fool of myself.' I did on several occasions."

Questioned about a warmly worded letter which she admitted yesterday having written to Lord Northcliffe, Miss Owen said:

"I was told Lord Northcliffe was doing queer things. It seemed to me a warning, that it was a danger signal, a sign of the brain getting weak; that was why I wrote the letter—to bring him to his senses.

"There was no quarrel. I never saw him again, but he sent me presents."

This concluded Miss Owen's case.

Mr. Luxmoore, Lord Rothermere's counsel, at once submitted that there was no case against Lord Rothermere, and Mr. Maugham, counsel for Sir George Sutton, the administrator of the estate, took the same view and was supported by Sir John Simon, counsel for The Daily Mirror.

The Judge then suggested that Miss Owen should consult her counsel as to whether she wished to proceed with the case, and Miss Owen and her senior counsel, Mr. Jowitt, left the Court.

During their absence Mr. Archer, who also has been acting for Miss Owen, proceeded to argue that Lord Rothermere, when purchasing The Daily Mail shares, stood in fiduciary relationship and that in the circumstances Sir George Sutton would do anything Lord Rothermere suggested.

The argument was ended, however, with the reappearance of Miss Owen. Mr. Jowitt stated that she had agreed to withdraw and to consent to judgment for the defendants. She had brought the action in good faith, he said, but was now convinced that her claim was unfounded.

Mr. Jowitt stated that he personally also wished to withdraw the charges, which his duty had required him to make, against Sir George Sutton and Lord Rothermere.

LONDON 'MASTER THIEF' SENTENCED TO 3 YEARS

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Dec. 10.—Arthur Spiers, who for years has been regarded by Scotland Yard as a master criminal, but who has served only one term in jail, was sentenced today to three years' imprisonment for receiving stolen property. He was convicted of receiving the loot of London's recent sensational Hatton Garden diamond robbery.

Among his neighbors in the Highgate section of London Spiers was thought to be a prosperous jeweler. He once conducted a jewelry shop and was well known as a connoisseur of diamonds. Well spoken, suave and well groomed, no one took him for the man Scotland Yard had been trying to land for years. The detectives regarded Spiers as a master tactician. It is said that he knew the inside of every house in London worth robbing.

When the Hatton Garden mail van robbery occurred, Scotland Yard immediately began watching Spiers more closely. When he went to his haunts in the financial district news vendors loitering before the doors were detectives. When he dined at fashionable restaurants the men at the next table were from Scotland Yard.

After weeks of work the detectives picked up scraps of information incriminating Spiers. When they arrested him he was the most surprised man in London, so confident was he that he had left no clue.

Spiers was first arrested in 1923, after having for years lived a criminal life. He was sentenced then to eighteen months at hard labor.

Commons Passes Bill Limiting Divorce News; Refuses Amendments to Public Morals Act

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Dec. 10.—The House of Commons tonight gave its third reading to the bill to regulate court reports so that injury may not be done public morals. It was passed without a division, but not before several amendments were voted on, and it would have been outtalked if the Speaker had not accepted a motion for closure of the debate.

An amendment to exculpate the proprietor of a newspaper in which anything offensive appeared without his knowledge was made and rejected.

A difficulty then arose over the meaning of the word "publication" in the bill. Sir Ellis Hume-Williams, the noted criminal lawyer, wanted to know whether it would be an offense to publish offensive details of cases abroad or in foreign editions.

Sir T. Inskip, Solicitor General, replied that if persistently offensive matter of this sort were imported into Great Britain it would be considered an offense.

An amendment was then moved that only the names of the parties and the verdict should be published in divorce cases. This was rejected, and the newspapers will be allowed to reproduce pleadings and judgments, though not the evidence, in divorce cases.

BERLIN SEES LONDON BLOCKING ACCORD

as this to satisfy his constituents and to avoid charges that he had surrendered to German politics.

With these hopes gone, there is doubt in Berlin political circles whether Herr Stresemann will be able to find comfort in his being named a Nobel Peace Prize winner, with the pains of grippe shooting through his head in Geneva, his plans failing and the Cabinet threatened with a crisis.

Though it is generally known that a secret letter has been circulated among the industrialists asking opinions on the results to be expected should Germany be forced to accept Britain's demands, and also the nature of the conflict in the Geneva arena, the Lokal Anzeiger is the only newspaper which hints at what is called the real trouble, and this only by carefully veiled statements from its Geneva correspondent.

AMBASSADORS DODGE DECISION

But Geneva Sends Report Back, Determined to Settle German Control.

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Dec. 10.—With diplomacy worthy of its member's calling, the Council of Ambassadors has passed back to the Foreign Ministers at Geneva the task which was handed to them of deciding whether Germany has or has not disarmed enough to permit the discontinuance of the Allied Control Mission.

At yesterday's meeting Marshal Foch and General Walsh were somewhat emphatic in declaring that neither on the question of the Koenigsberg fortifications nor the export of semi-manufactured munitions was the Reich living up to the demands the Ambassadors had made, and in their argument the two French soldiers could afford to be emphatic because neither of these matters particularly affects France. It is the Poles who are interested in Koenigsberg and the British are worrying about arms trading. France is actually asking for nothing more.

On these two points it was decided that something more must be obtained, and this morning was spent in a somewhat strenuous argument between the military experts of the two countries, headed by General Walsh and General von Pawels, in an effort to win last-moment concessions.

In the afternoon the Ambassadors met to consider what the result of the morning discussions had been, and without themselves taking any decision they drew up their report on the exact situation.

In the main it undoubtedly is favorable to fulfillment of the Locarno and Thoiry ideas, though there still are certain points emphasized on which it will be for M. Briand and Sir Austen Chamberlain to get Herr Stresemann's promise of fulfillment. In face of today's decision at Oslo to award to these three men the Nobel Peace Prize, any other course would have been most injudicious. Even if they find the report not altogether satisfactory to Germany, if they are to remain loyal to Locarno, which earned them their laurels, they must still make this final sacrifice on the altar of peace by arrangement.

German Holds Out For Fortress.

General von Pawels's thesis was that Germany was authorized by the Versailles Treaty to fortify Koenigsberg region, and that "it was natural for her to respond with defensive measures to the offensive measures of Poland."

The Military Committee would not admit this thesis, and Marshal Foch pointed out that if the Versailles Treaty authorized Germany to maintain the Koenigsberg fortifications "in their existing condition" it was quite understood that any reconditioning and, a fortiori, any increases or improvements, were strictly forbidden.

In reply General von Pawels said he would transmit the committee's wishes to his Government, but he strongly doubted that they would modify the decision made by the German Council of Ministers. Prior to this General von Pawels had declared he was not authorized to make any promises, so all the Ambassadors' conference could do was to register the German refusal in a unanimous report which they telegraphed to Geneva.

The Matin's foreign editor, M. Sauerwein, writes from Geneva that M. Briand tonight sent a long report to Premier Poincaré, asking his advice and giving his opinion. According to the writer, three courses are open—interallied control to be maintained until Germany has fully complied with the disarmament clauses, the problem of whether Germany has complied with these to be submitted to arbitration, the Allies to recommend immediate operation of the League of Nations Control Commission and withdrawal of the interallied organization.

M. Sauerwein recalls that Mr. Poincaré as Premier expressed approval—in his reply to a suggestion of Deputy Jean Fabry, embodied in a letter written in February, 1924—of the plan whereby League control should be substituted for interallied control, because the latter was powerless. The writer suggests that the position taken by the French Government as a result of M. Briand's report to Premier Poincaré, and the latter's forthcoming reply will be of the utmost importance in determining a solution of the problem.

Geneva Determined to Settle Matter.

GENEVA, Dec. 10.—The problem of cessation of allied control and inauguration of League control of German armaments is still in the air, but a determination to arrive at an agreement before leaving Geneva is announced in all delegations.

The report of the Ambassadors' conference was unsatisfactory, and after a two hours' meeting of Sir Austen Chamberlain, M. Briand, M. Vandervelde, Signor Scialoja and Herr Stresemann, it was decided by the first four to return the report to Paris. It is understood the council of Ambassadors was instructed to fix a date for withdrawal of the Allied Commission.

But the sole difference of opinion is not at Paris. This morning, at a meeting of the Big Five, the Germans registered firm objection to a French proposal to give into the hands of the League Commission the task of overseeing the completion of German disarmament. Germany declares that under Article 213 of the Versailles Treaty the League Commission can act only under orders of the Council, and cannot continue the work of the Allied Commission. The Germans suggest arbitration by a permanent court for the settlement of the problem.

Just in what capacity the permanent court would act it is difficult to foresee, but the fact that Herr Stresemann today signed the protocol of statutes of the permanent court may be significant.

With France and Germany holding out for their respective viewpoints, it is difficult to see how negotiations can be concluded tomorrow. To give the greatest amount of time for private negotiations, the next meeting of the Council was fixed for 5:30 P. M. tomorrow. As there is still the question of the Rarre to be discussed, cover can be taken under that subject in the event an accord has not yet been reached on the more important subject.

War Goods Reaching China.

GENEVA, Dec. 10 (AP).—The existing impediment to an accord on German disarmament control is said to go further than first meets the eye. In some League quarters the assertion is made that it is really linked up with the revolution in China, which, a Far Eastern statesman told The Associated Press today, was steadily becoming worse, to the detriment and danger of foreigners.

There is suspicion in these League circles that exportations of war material by Germany, which have been condemned by the Allies, are reaching the revolutionists through Russia, helping in the Bolshevisation of China and virtually forming a German-Russian-Chinese collaboration.

Dr. Stresemann, the German Foreign Secretary, it is pointed out, apparently is finding difficulty in placing an effective embargo on the export of war and semi-war material to Russia which, so far as Germany is concerned, is a friendly nation.

Indication that the League Council was paying sharp attention to the Balkans was given in the warning by Sir Austen Chamberlain, the British Foreign Secretary, that Bulgaria must make a better showing in connection with straightening out the affairs of Greek refugees. Sir Austen, who was speaking in behalf of the Council, said the matter was an important phase in maintenance of peace in the Balkans.

WILLINGDON IN STATE OPENS PARLIAMENT

New Governor General, Amid Colorful Scene, Delivers Address From Throne at Ottawa.

OTTAWA, Ont., Dec. 10 (AP).—Canada's sixteenth Parliament was opened in State by Lord Willingdon today amid the booming of guns.

The new Governor General rode to Parliament Hill accompanied by a clattering guard of mounted Dragoons and was received by a guard of honor from the Governor General's Footguards.

The scene in the Senate Chamber, where he read the speech from the throne, was striking, with glittering uniforms, the scarlet and ermine of the Supreme Court Judges and the occupants of the ladies' gallery in evening gowns.

Rodolphe Lemieux, standing at the bar, informed the Governor General of his election as Speaker of the House of Commons and, according to ritual, asked his Excellency that any errors be imputed to him and not to the Commons.

The speech from the throne, as forecast, confirmed that the Prince of Wales has accepted the invitation to attend the Diamond Jubilee of the Canadian Confederation next July. Premier Baldwin of Great Britain has also been invited to attend, the Governor General said, and might be present.

The legislative program outlined in the speech includes:

(1) The re-introduction of Government measures which passed the House at the last session but failed to become law.

(2) Measures providing for assistance to works constructed for the production of coke from Canadian coal.

(3) Legislation dealing with the report of the Royal Commission on Maritime Rights.

(4) Reintroduction of the three-year program for branch line construction on the Canadian National Railways.

(5) Legislation for approval of the agreement with the holders of Grand Trunk Pacific perpetual debentures.

(6) Constitution of amendments to the rules of the House of Commons.

The speech also announced that good progress had been made with the work on the Hudsons Bay Railway and it was planned to continue construction as early as possible next year.

LLOYD GEORGE ON VACATION

LONDON, Dec. 10.—Lloyd George, his wife and their daughter, Megan, left London today for the Riviera, where they will spend a month or more.

The party is going to Marseilles by boat and thence will motor to Valescure, where they will remain three weeks.

LONDON, Dec. 10 (AP).—Former Premier Lloyd George paid his first visit to a motion picture theatre tonight. With his wife and daughter, Megan, he saw the motion picture "Ben Hur." He said it was quite a novel experience for him, as hitherto the only motion pictures he had seen were at private projections in his own home.

BLOODSTAINED SHIRT FLIES IN POLISH DIET

PRESS LAW IS DEFEATED

Decree Is Killed by Chamber Without a Word of Protest—New Law Expected.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

WARSAW, Dec. 10.—A genuine bloody shirt instead of the figurative one usually attributed to agitators was waved in the Polish Chamber this evening when a hot attack upon the Government was led by the White Russians for alleged cruelty to the minorities.

The speaker of the White Russian bloc, during a denunciation of the Government's harsh measures with patriotic White Russians, advanced to the Government benches, where Vice Minister Bartel sat representing the absent Marshal Pilsudski, pulled the stained garment from his pocket and flourished it in M. Bartel's face, declaring that it bore a few of the many spots of blood shed when the police recently charged a peaceful gathering in the town of Dielsk.

Simultaneously photographs of the alleged charge upon the meeting were distributed to all members of the Sejm.

Members of the Government made no reply, having recently declared their policy of the amelioration of the condition of the minorities and because Marshal Pilsudski has visited the White Russian district as the result of many clashes.

The Government sustained a defeat during the session of its drastic press decree, which was rejected by the Sejm without a word of protest from M. Bartel and the other Ministers.

The victory of the belligerent body, however, will undoubtedly be short lived.

The rejection now has to go to the Senate, and before it comes to a vote a new decree is expected to be issued.

The Socialists took the lead against the decree, their leader declaring: "For the honor of the Polish nation, the sake of democracy and the country's reputation abroad the barbarious edict must be eliminated."

Meanwhile the secret police have added to the excitement of the day by declaring that they had uncovered a spy plot which reached into the Finance Ministry itself. One of the offenses disclosed was an attempt on the part of a foreign member of the Ministry to steal the original text of Professor Kemmerer's financial report on the condition of the country and sell it to a foreign nation.

Flushed with the success of the disturbances this afternoon, the Sejm is expected to reduce some departmental expenditures and some of Marshal Pilsudski's closest friends in the Ministry as an indication of its disapproval. In this case the Marshal is expected to take the offensive again, as he did in the last session, against his old enemy, the Sejm.

ST. JEAN DE LUZ, France, Dec. 10.—Official reports that the Prince of Wales will visit Spain early in January are creating excitement in Madrid socity. It is understood that the Prince will travel incognito and when in Madrid will stay at a hotel or at the British Embassy.

Several functions will be given at the Palace by the King and Queen for their royal cousin at which the two charming Princesses, Cristina and Beatrix, will be present.

The Prince's trip is expected to include a visit to southern Spain and the ancient castle towns, including Toledo and El-Escorial, to which he will be escorted by the Duke of Alba, some of whose twenty titles are English.

The greatest reserve is shown in court circles regarding the rumored marriage projects which couple the names of the Prince and Princess Beatrix.

WORLD STATESMEN GET NOBEL PRIZES

TWO CEREMONIES ARE HELD

Institute Honors Four at Oslo—Physics, Chemistry, Literature Gifts Made in Stockholm.

OSLO, Norway, Dec. 10.—The distribution of the Nobel peace prize for 1925 and 1926 made today in the hall of the Nobel Institute here, in the presence of King Haakon, Crown Prince Olaf, members of the Government and the diplomatic corps. The President of the Nobel Peace Prize Committee, Professor Stang, Rector of the University of Oslo, informed the audience that the committee had decided to divide the peace prize for 1925 between Aristide Briand, French Foreign Minister, and Dr. Gustav Stresemann, German Foreign Minister, and the peace prize for 1926 between Sir Austen Chamberlain, British Foreign Secretary, and General Charles G. Dawes, Vice President of the United States. Professor Stang said that today being the twenty-fifth anniversary of the first distribution of the Nobel peace prize, the Norwegian Nobel Peace Prize Committee had entrusted its secretary, Ragnvald Moe, to write a history of the peace prize, which would soon be published. Secretary Moe afterward delivered a commemoration speech.

Dr. Fritjof Nansen was the principal speaker. After a brief reference to the distress feeling in Europe in the years immediately after the war, he outlined briefly the various events resulting in the Locarno agreement and the admission of Germany to the League of Nations last Autumn. Dr. Nansen said that civilization had received a wound through the last war which had not yet healed, and unfortunately most Europeans were about to forget their duty.

Recurrence of another war should be stopped, he said, through what might be called a policy of the League of Nations in which the small nations are intensely interested and are willing to do their utmost to promote.

After Dr. Nansen's speech, which was loudly cheered, the British Minister, Mr. Lindley, read a telegram of thanks from Sir Austen Chamberlain, who expressed his appreciation of the work of M. Briand and Dr. Stresemann.

The American Minister, Mr. Swenson, read a telegram from General Dawes and the German Minister, Herr Romberg, read a telegram from Dr. Stresemann. M. Briand sent a direct telegram.

The entire Nobel peace prize for 1926 is about 117,000 kroner and for last year 118,000 kroner ($32,000).

Nansen Lauds Dawes Plan.

OSLO, Norway, Dec. 10 (AP).—Dr. Fritjof Nansen, addressing the Nobel Institute at the presentation of the peace prize, said that the first light that in the darkness of post-war Europe was by the adoption of the Dawes Plan, which permitted Germany to rehabilitate her finances and commerce payment of reparations.

The United States, he said, stretched a helping hand when the darkness was thickest; the Americans recognized their duty to assist Europe in her reconstruction. The idea of Secretary of State Hughes in December, 1922, to appoint a commission of experts to inquire into Germany's ability to pay reparations had culminated in the adoption of the Dawes Plan, he said, and this had been of the greatest importance to Germany, the Allies, the whole of Europe and the United States.

The Dawes Plan, Dr. Nansen said, was an important condition to the policy of peace which led to the Locarno conference, at which Sir Austen, M. Briand and Dr. Stresemann played so prominent a part, the outcome of which was the Rhine accord and four arbitration treaties.

Dr. Nansen urged that all the Governments of Europe do everything in their power to strengthen the League of Nations, to the end that the terrible spectre of war might be abolished and the future secured.

"If the peoples of Europe would only remember the bestial horrors of war, they would take care that there would be no more such conflicts," he declared.

Award to Dawes Pleases Marx.

BERLIN, Dec. 10.—Chancellor Marx gave out the following statement this evening on the Nobel awards:

"I am sincerely gratified to learn that the Nobel Peace Prize has been awarded to General Dawes. The high honor thus conferred upon him is for the man who sincerely, and inspired by a great sense of responsibility, worked for the reconstruction of economic relations between nations in a service to humanity."

Other Nobel Prizes Presented.

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Dec. 10 (AP).—Two thousand persons gathered today to see King Gustav present the Nobel prizes for physics, chemistry and literature.

There was general regret that George Bernard Shaw, to whom was awarded the literature prize for 1925, was unable to be here. The British Minister received the gold medal and diploma in behalf of the British author.

Those who personally received their medals and diplomas from the hands of King Gustav were Professor James Franck, University of Göttingen, and Professor Gustav Hertz of Halle University, who shared the Nobel Prize for physics for 1925; Professor Jean B. Perrin, University of Paris, physics prize for 1926; Dr. Richard Zsigmondy, University of Göttingen, 1925 chemistry prize, and Professor Theodore Svedverg, University of Upsala, 1926 chemistry.

GENEVA, Dec. 10.—The presentation of the Nobel Peace Prize to the authors of the Locarno accords has caused the deepest satisfaction among the scores of diplomats assembled at Geneva. It is considered not only as a mark of esteem for the efforts of Sir Austen Chamberlain, M. Briand and Dr. Stresemann, but for the whole policy of arbitration and security instituted by the League of Nations. This point was stressed by each of the honored trio.

There also is universal approval of the recognition of the work of Vice President Dawes of the United States.

Briand, replying modestly to congratulations, said: "Of course, I am delighted; but my ambition is that, ten years hence, the people will say that we deserved this award. Sir Austen Chamberlain, Dr. Stresemann and myself have worked together for the last two years in perfect harmony, with only one object in view. That object was the peace of the world. We have done our best, and will continue in the same spirit.

"Today we have the distinguished honor of receiving the Nobel prize. But history will say whether we deserved it. For the sake of humanity I sincerely hope that it will."

Sir Austen Chamberlain said:

"I feel greatly honored by the award, because it sets the seal of international approbation on the work of peace accomplished at Locarno. The representatives of seven powers contributed the results there obtained. The largest share of whatever merit may be claimed is due to M. Briand and Dr. Stresemann, and it doubles my pleasure that in the awards my name is mentioned with theirs."

Dr. Stresemann, wearing the broadest of smiles, said: "It is unnecessary to say how profoundly I am touched to receive this distinction at the same time as M. Briand and Sir Austen Chamberlain. But I do not see in the attribution of the prize a personal distinction, but a symbol of the evolution and developments of peoples. This has been characterized by the steps taken at Locarno and Geneva.

"I know that there are many more difficulties ahead of us, but I have a great hope that we will successfully surmount them and reach the goal toward which we are aiming. As my distinguished colleague M. Briand said, I sincerely hope that history will justify this attribution of the Nobel Prize."

M. Scialoja, Italian member of the League Council, said that the rewards were merited for the other did only theoretical things. "They did practical things," he declared.

M. Ishi of Japan said that the work which these men have done merits the recognition which has been given. M. Titulesco of Rumania said it was the best award which could have been made and is a great tribute to the work being done at Geneva.

M. Chu of China said that these men deserved the great distinction for their work in the interest of the peace of Europe.

"But their fame will be carried still further," he said, "if they make another Locarno pact, treating China with equality, which is the only course to permanent peace in the Far East."

M. Villegas of Chile said:

"I had the honor of being at lunch with Sir Austen Chamberlain when the news was received and I said to my host, 'You will be known as the Lord of Peace.'"

M. Yovanovitch of Serbia expressed the opinion that the trio "laid the first solid stone which has been put in the structure of peace."

"Recognition of their work makes them excellent examples for the statesmen of Europe," he said.

Dawes Praises His Committee.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10 (AP).—Vice President Dawes, in accepting the award, said in a message to Minister Swenson:

"This award, which is in recognition of the work of the first committee of experts of the Reparation Commission, of which I was Chairman, is gratefully acknowledged.

"This committee was composed of Owen D. Young, Sir Josiah C. Stamp, Sir Robert N. Kindersley, Jean Parmantier, Edgar Allin, Alberto Pierelli, Federico Flora, Emile Francqui, Baron Maurice Houtart and myself.

"It was the endeavor of the experts to found their plan upon the principles of justice, fairness and mutual interest, relying for its acceptance thus prepared upon that common good faith which is the enduring safeguard of that hope for universal peace.

"That the results achieved under it have merited for it, in your judgment, this high recognition is a tribute to their united effort."

The Nobel prizes, which in addition to work for the preservation for the peace, also are awarded for acheivements in literature, physics, chemistry, medicine and physiology, grew out of the munificence of the Swedish scientist Alfred Nobel, inventor of dynamite, who died on Dec. 10, 1896, leaving a fortune of about $8,750,000.

BETHLEN'S PARTY WINS MORE HUNGARIAN SEATS

It Is Victor in All but 2 of 91 Open Ballot Contests—Loses 3 Secret Elections.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BUDAPEST, Dec. 10.—The second day of the Hungarian elections resulted in two non-governmental candidates being chosen today in ninety-one districts under the open ballot system.

Altogether 194 Deputies have now been elected by the open ballot, of whom six are non-governmental, though none is a member of any of the Left parties.

The six include Counts Albert Apponyi and Anton Sigreey, moderate Legitimists, and four minor personalities who ran as independents, one with leanings to legitimism and the others to the Democratic Party.

Besides these six, a handful of Fascists have been elected, but they seem to have an understanding with the Bethlen Government.

Contests held by secret ballot in a district in the outskirts of Budapest returning five Deputies resulted in a defeat for the Government. Socialists received the highest vote and won two seats. Government candidates ran next, obtaining two seats. The remaining seat is certain to fall either to the Democrats or to the Christian Economic Party, both opposition groups.

Of the ninety-one open ballot districts the Government was unopposed in thirty-four. Twenty-four seats were contested by candidates of the Government Party only. There were opposition candidates for thirty-three seats.

Among the outstanding opposition aspirants defeated were the extreme Legitimist, Margrave Pallavicini, and the Radicals Nagy and Rupert, the Democrat Rassay, and the Socialist Sfeder.

Contests for most of the remaining forty-six seats in Parliament will be held within the next few days under the secret ballot system.

TROTSKY REOPENS RED PARTY FEUD

BRINGS DOWN INVECTIVE

Official Soviet Organ Accuses Him of Breaking Word and Aiding Foes of Communism.

By WALTER DURANTY.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MOSCOW, Dec. 10.—The "controversy within the Russian Communist Party has flared up anew as a result of speeches of Leon Trotsky and G. S. Zinovieff before the Executive Committee of the Communist International.

Yesterday the Pravda denounced M. Zinovieff for attempting to revive the struggle "in the international arena." Today it hurls this storm of bitter phrases at the head of M. Trotsky, who spoke for an hour and a half last night:

"A demonstration of disloyalty. A renewal of the factional struggle. A profound breach of pledged word. An appeal to the Communist International against the Russian Party. An attempt to ruin the work of the Communist International Committee. A hand outstretched to the Communist International's enemies.

"The ink is hardly dry on the resolutions of the recent party conference when M. Trotsky tries to overthrow them. What does M. Trotsky say? That in our weaknesses, our technical shortcomings, we depend and will depend more and more on the outer world, that the Soviet Union is a component part of world capitalist economy. [The word "capitalist" being in black-faced type followed by exclamation marks], and that the victory of Socialism in our country is impossible.

"The whole speech is a funeral sermon over the impotence of our socialistic construction."

Soviet Stability Unaffected.

This sort of attack—and there is a good deal more of it—in the leading editorial of the official organ of the Russian Communist Party can only mean one thing.

But once it is certain, as THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent is certain, that the stability of the Soviet Administration is in nowise threatened by any conflict with any individuals in Russia, however prominent, all that remains for a foreign observer is to deduce the effects upon Russian relations with foreign countries.

This is because it is perfectly useless to try to elucidate the subtleties of interparty squabbles or to imagine that any one who thinks against the iron grain of the Russian Communist Party will get anything but trouble.

Once the Opposition is disposed of, it might be expected that the Administration would feel more free to develop a further policy of compromise with the capitalist world which the economic circumstances of the Soviet Union appear to dictate. That this has not yet been the case is mainly due to the attitude taken by or forced upon the Opposition leaders, especially M. Trotsky.

Hindrance to Compromise Policy.

As The Pravda says, M. Trotsky's principal difference with the Administration now is that he despairs of the establishment of a pure Socialist regime in Russia, which is an article of faith to him and to the Communist Party as a whole. While attacking M. Trotsky for heresy and "defaithism," it is obviously difficult for the Soviet Administration to carry out the policy of compromise which he declares, perhaps rightly, is inevitable.

In other words, the immediate effect of the interparty controversy has been to increase the stiffness towards the outer world. This is decidedly not without interest at the moment, when W. A. Harriman, representing alike the greatest foreign capitalistic enterprises on Soviet soil and the greatest foreign capitalistic country, finds himself in Moscow.

On the other hand, the long-standing Russian desire to have a really representative figure at the head of the Soviet Trade Bureau in New York, the "Amtorg," has just been gratified by the granting of a visa to M. Piatakof, who is one of the ablest economists and business executives in this country, having completed three years of extremely important service as Vice President of the Supreme Council of National Economy, which controls Soviet industry.

Trotsky Attacked by Stalin.

RIGA, Dec. 10.—It is reported from Moscow that Leon Trotsky yesterday appeared at the Conference of the Communist International and claimed the right which he enjoys under the statutes of the International to defend himself against the attacks of Joseph Stalin, who had just delivered a long report to the International on the condition of the Russian Communist Party.

M. Trotsky's speech was subjected to considerable interruption. N. Bukharin violently assailed him for "continuing a squabble" which the party regarded as settled.

Today the Central Committee of the Communist Party issued instructions to all committees to cease the practice of temporarily excluding members from the party for offenses against it, as it regards the results of this practice to be unsatisfactory. The instructions add that this is interpreted as a concession to the Opposition.

LONDON, Dec. 10.—Moscow has been advised by the Soviet Trading Organization in London, says The Daily Mail, that unless a successor is promptly nominated to Leonid Krassin, the late Soviet Chargé d'Affaires here, there is a strong chance that the official Soviet representation in Britain may be discouraged by the British Government in the future.

Many Conservative members of Parliament are said to be supporting a petition to the Cabinet that the vacancy caused by M. Krassin's death be left unfilled.

A Soviet State-owned steamer, which arrived here a few days ago, contained a cargo consigned as scrap metal to France. The cargo, however, was found to consist of broken bells and organ pipes from desecrated Russian churches.

Paris Lights Go Out in Midst of Dense Fog; Banks Close and Bourse Ends Trading Early

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Dec. 10.—During a dense fog this morning, which turned day into the blackest night, the lighting system of the central district of Paris suddenly collapsed, forcing all the big banks, including four American institutions, hastily to close their doors and refuse to transact further business. The officials would not take the responsibility for doing business in the dim light of candles and lamps. The greater part of Paris had only emergency illumination for more than an hour.

Greater confusion was experienced at the Paris Stock Exchange. Signal fuses were used to augment lamps and candles, and later two big searchlights played on the excited traders. Sales were impeded, however, and the Bourse had to close its doors at 2:20 P. M., ten minutes earlier than usual.

At least one death was attributable to the fog. A Pole lost his way, walked into the Seine and was drowned.

There was no daylight, strictly speaking, throughout the "day," and Paris had the traditional London aspect.

Air communications with London and twenty continental points ceased. At the Vincennes trotting track, however, the card was run as usual, the winners mysteriously appearing after being lost to view during the entire course.

DECLARES UFA FACES NEW FINANCIAL CRISIS

Berlin Tageblatt Says Company Owes 40,000,000 Marks and $4,000,000 to Paramount.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Dec. 10.—Europe's largest film concern, Ufa, is facing a financial crisis graver than a year ago when the Paramount Company steered it away from the financial rocks by American loans amounting to $4,000,000 and a contract whereby the German firm went under the wings of the American organization, according to the Berliner Tageblatt.

At a directors' meeting today it was decided to reduce the capital to one-third and to reincrease the stock issue to 45,000,000 marks, which will be applied to outstanding obligations. In the face of these troubles no dividends will be declared, though until last night it was rumored that from 3 to 5 per cent. could be announced.

The company's debts are said to amount to 40,000,000 marks in addition to its capital stock and preferred bond issue. To this must be added the $4,000,000 loan raised through Paramount.

Over-optimism in expansion policies and activities, failure to produce films of the high standard compatible with an organization of this magnitude and the inefficiency of the Executive and directors, who used too much latitude in carrying out their individual ideas, are said to be the reasons for the company's poor financial standing.

That there will be a complete shake-up of the Executive Committee is certain with the hope of putting the company on a paying basis. Last year Dr. Bausback was appointed dictator of Ufa's affairs. He was formerly executive of the Deutsches Bank which furnished financial backing to Ufa, but his reforms were unproductive of satisfactory results. During his tenure of office Ufa stocks dropped from 70 per cent. of their par value to 38, and its debt was vastly increased.

Ufa owns or controls 114 theatres, all of them Germany's finest picture houses. Unfavorable contracts closed by Ufa with film distributers are said to have caused the exhibition business heavy losses, though the high Government amusement taxes are blamed as an insurmountable handicap.

The greatest losses, however, seem to have occurred in the production end, several of its larger films having cost upward of 6,000,000 marks each, and which, though successful, have not brought in sufficient revenue to cover the production costs.

There is no danger of Ufa going into bankruptcy, backed as it is by the Deutsches Bank, but it is declared in film circles that should that institution withdraw its support a financial crash would immediately follow.

An American representative of Paramount has said that they are entirely satisfied with their relations with Ufa and are convinced that the ultimate achievements of the German company will justify the confidence placed in it, believing that the present troubles are traceable to mismanagement before Paramount and Metro-Goldwyn took an interest.

LEAGUE INVITES US TO THIRD WORLD PARLEY

GENEVA, Dec. 10.—The League Council this afternoon included the United States in the third international conference, which is to be held next year. This is the conference of the International Relief Union, which is to be convoked in Geneva on July 4 and to which, in addition to all the League States, the United States, Turkey, San Marino, Russia, Monaco, Mexico, Lichtenstein, Iceland, the Hedjaz, Egypt, Ecuador and Afghanistan have been invited. The International Red Cross and the League of Red Cross Societies also have been asked to send delegates in an advisory capacity.

The International Relief Union, it is planned, will provide a general fund from which aid will be given in cases of great calamities, such as floods, earthquakes, fires and cyclones, where immediate relief beyond that which can be given nationally is urgently needed.

A reading of the report brought Herr Stresemann a suggestion that the term "Russia" be corrected to read the "Union of Socialists, Soviet Republics"—the official name established by the Soviet Government. The error, which never before had crept into a League document, was immediately corrected.

BAST'S ACCUSER OUSTED.

Copenhagen Methodist Church Excommunicates Pastor.

COPENHAGEN, Dec. 10 (AP).—The Rev. John V. Ingerslev, principal accuser of Dr. Anton Bast, who recently served three months' imprisonment for misuse of charity funds, has been excommunicated from the Methodist Church of Copenhagen.

This action was taken against him for his "unbrotherly deed" in filing a counter-claim of 137,000 kroner (about $35,000) for expenses in moving from the United States to Denmark and for his dismissal from the ministry, which, he maintained, was due to his opposition to Bishop Bast's administration.

The claim was filed after the Methodist Church of Copenhagen had brought suit against Pastor Ingerslev, claiming the right to expel him from the house belonging to the church organization.

Pastor Ingerslev was awarded 40,000 kroner damages and 8,000 kroner costs by the Superior Court.

Dr. Anton Bast, Methodist Episcopal Bishop of Scandinavia, completed his sentence of three months for misuse of charity funds on Aug. 21. Many friends and sympathizers awaited him outside the gates of the prison in Copenhagen when he was released.

Sentence was passed on Dr. Bast by the Copenhagen court in May, and a subsequent appeal for pardon on the ground that he was suffering from illness and was not able to endure the prison fare was rejected by the Court and the Minister of Justice.

ARMSTRONG FIRM ASKS MORATORIUM

Directors of British Armament Concern Advise Move to Avoid Receivership.

FIVE-YEAR PERIOD SOUGHT

Serious Condition of the Concern Is Laid to Too Wide Expansion in Subsidiary Enterprises.

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Dec. 10.—To avoid falling into the hands of a receiver, the directors of Sir W. G. Armstrong-Whitworth & Co., the big British armament firm, have asked the company's share, debenture and note holders for a five-year moratorium respecting all its prior charges, except the 4 per cent. first mortgage debenture stock. Two million pounds' worth of three-year 5 per cent. notes falling due next April will not be paid off until five years later.

The directors in a circular issued today frankly explain that neither this year nor next can interest on the company's fixed charges possibly be earned in full. A supplementary report has just been presented by two special investigators, Sir Gilbert Garnsey and Frater Taylor, who state that their further survey satisfied them that they underestimated rather than exaggerated the seriousness of the situation in their first report.

The Armstrongs have approximately £10,000,000, equal to the company's total share capital, invested in undertakings foreign to their original business on which no return is being made or likely to be made for some time to come.

Coal Strike the Last Straw.

This condition is the result of efforts to adapt the company's armament works to the production of peace products and to investments in outside businesses and civil engineering contracts. The coal strike was the straw which broke the camel's back.

It will be the company's deliberate aim now to rid itself of losing ventures as soon as possible. If the scheme is approved, it is believed that the remaining secured creditors and holders of guarantee will not take any steps that would compel the debenture holders to end the moratorium and precipitate a receivership. The Bank of England is said to have dealt generously with the company and trade creditors will be satisfied in the ordinary course.

Steel Industry Overhaul Likely.

It is stated that most of the English iron and steel companies will have to submit to a thorough overhaul and will have to pare down their capital commitments.

The first to take the plunge was the Vickers concern, the greatest armament firm of all, which wrote off about £10,000,000 of capital.

The Armstrongs had a weaker cash position and hence have been forced to ask a moratorium.

Two processes, it is declared, will be necessary for the reconstruction of the English iron and steel industry—it will have to undergo a financial Spring cleaning and it will have to adjust itself to meet the altered requirements of the time, including the exhaustion of the supplies of rich iron ore in Britain, which has necessitated the importation of raw material.

Indications are said to point to amalgamation as one of the likeliest solutions of these difficulties.

GERMAN POLICE HALT DUEL.

Student Sword Fight at Bonn Is Stopped and Equipment Confiscated.

BONN, Dec. 10 (AP).—Facial scars among students as a sign of the "warrior bold" are as much in demand in Republican Germany as they were during the reign of the monarchy.

For the first time on record the authorities at Bonn University have taken action against students engaged in fighting "bestimmungsmensuren," or duels, between picked representatives of student corps.

The first fraternities so unfortunate as to be caught in the act were the Arminian and Merovingian of Cologne University. Their members had called, swords in hand, upon their friends, the enemy, the Germanic and Cimbrian fraternities of Bonn University, to do battle.

One fight had waged furiously and ended pleasantly and honorably, with much blood-letting and face-marking. The second was about to begin when the Bonn police got wind of the affair and took the names of the principals and seconds. All the apparatus for duels was confiscated, including that of five fraternities not actually concerned with the duels of the day.

This loss is a serious one to the students, as the apparatus can be replaced only at heavy expense. It includes not only the various types of dueling swords, but marks, bandages, medical chests and surgical instruments sufficient to equip a first-aid post.

PANAMA, Dec. 10.—The bill introduced at the opening of the National Assembly in September providing for a censorship of the press, movies and foreign correspondents passed its final reading today, but has been so modified that it becomes a guarantee of the freedom of the press.

Article 1 says: "Every person may express freely his thought by speech, writing, printing or in any other manner without submission to previous censorship."

Penalty is provided for calumny and injury, but proof of the truth of such statements is a sufficient defense. Officials acts of all public officials may be discussed freely and such officials may not take action for alleged injury without special permission from the President.

WARSAW, Dec. 10.—In recognition of more than two years' work in Poland in establishing one of the first training schools for nurses ever known here, Miss Amelia Greenwald of Alabama and New York was decorated this morning by the Minister of the Interior with the Polish Cross, the highest order.

Miss Greenwald, who was a war nurse, conducting field work under actual fire throughout the war, came to Poland, and, under the most difficult handicaps, succeeded in constructing and organizing a training school, which now is able to look after itself and furnish an increasing number of nurses annually for the hospital in which some of the leading scientists in Poland have been working for years.

The meagre funds with which she worked and the manner in which American women had helped was termed a miracle by the Minister as he bestowed the decoration.

sition, was possible. Naturally, I realized that my first endeavor must be directed to prove that an electric wave could be sent out across the Atlantic and detected on the other side.

"A wireless station was built at Poldhu, in Cornwall, for this purpose. An aerial system was built, supported by a ring of twenty masts, each about 200 feet high, arranged in a circle 200 feet in diameter and covering an area of about an acre.

"By the end of August, 1901, the erection of the masts was nearly completed. And then, unfortunately, a terrific gale swept the Channel and English coast, with the result that one of the legs of the weather topgallant mast cap was broken and the whole construction wrecked.

"Naturally I was extremely disappointed, as, owing to the nature of the coast at Mullion and the special character of the work, some time must elapse before the damage could be repaired. For some days I had visions of my experiment having to be postponed for several months or longer.

"Then I decided it might be possible to make a preliminary trial with a simpler aerial. Therefore, ten of the masts, each 170 feet high, were re-erected. A triangle stay was stretched between the two end masts, and from this triangle stay were suspended sixty almost vertical bare copper wires, the distance between the wires being about one meter at the top. These wires converged at the bottom, making an aerial in the form of a fan.

"In the middle of November I was able with this temporary aerial to obtain signals of such great strength, at what was then my most distant station, Crookhaven, Ireland, that I felt sure they would be detectible at a ten times greater distance.

The First Work in Newfoundland.

"On the 26th of November I sailed from Liverpool on the Allan liner Sardinian, accompanied by my two assistants, G. S. Kemp and P. W. Paget. As it was clearly impossible at that time of year, owing to inclement weather and especially in view of the shortness of the time at our disposal, to erect high masts to support an aerial, I had arranged to have the necessary aerial supported in the air by a small captive balloon, and so we took with us two balloons and six kites.

"We landed at St. John's on Friday, Dec. 6, and the following day, before beginning operations, I visited the Governor, Sir Cavendish Boyle; the Premier, Sir Robert Bond, and other members of the Ministry, who promised me their heartiest cooperation and placed the resources of every department of the Government at my disposal in order to facilitate the work.

"After taking a look at various sites which might prove suitable, I considered the best one was on Signal Hill, a lofty eminence overlooking the port and forming a natural bulwark which protects it from the fury of the Atlantic gales. On top of this hill there is a small plateau some two acres in area, which I thought very suitable for manipulation of either the balloons or kites. On a crag on this plateau rose the new Cabot Memorial Tower, which was designed as a signal station, and close to it there was the old military barracks, which then were used as a hospital. It was in the forum in this building that I set up my apparatus and made preparations for the great experiment.

"On Monday, Dec. 9, I began work on Signal Hill. On Tuesday we flew a kite with 600 feet of aerial as a preliminary test, and on Wednesday we inflated one of the balloons, which made its first ascent during the morning. Its diameter was about fourteen feet, and it contained some 1,000 cubic feet of hydrogen gas, quite sufficient to hold up the aerial, which consisted of wire weighing about ten pounds. Owing, however, to a heavy wind, after a short while the balloon broke away and disappeared. I then came to the conclusion that perhaps the kites would answer better, and on Thursday morning, in spite of a gale, we managed to fly a kite to a height of about 400 feet.

The Critical Moment.

"The critical moment had come, for which the way had been prepared by six years of hard and unremitting work, despite the usual criticisms directed at anything new. I was about to test the truth of my belief.

"In view of the importance of all that was at stake, I had decided not to trust entirely to the usual arrangement of having coherer signals recorded automatically through a relay and Morse instrument on a paper tape, but to use instead a telephone connected to a self-restoring coherer, the human ear being far more sensitive than the recorder. Suddenly, at about half-past twelve, unmistakably three faint little clicks in the telephone corresponding to three dots of the Morse code sounded several times in my ear as I listened intently, but I would not be satisfied without corroboration.

"'Can you hear anything, Mr. Kemp?' I said, handing the telephone to my assistant.

"Kemp heard the same thing as I, and I knew then that I had been absolutely right in my anticipations. Electric waves which were being sent out from Poldhu had traversed the Atlantic serenely ignoring the curvature of the earth which so many doubters considered would be a fatal obstacle, and they were now affecting my receiver in Newfoundland.

"I knew then that the day on which I should be able to send full messages without wires or cables across the Atlantic was not very far distant, and as Dr. Pupin, a celebrated Serbo-American scientist, very rightly said shortly afterward, the faintness of the signals had nothing to do with it.

"Distance had been overcome, and further development of the sending and receiving apparatus was all that was required.

"On the following day signals again were heard, though not quite so distinctly. However, there was no further doubt possible that the experiment had succeeded.

"Following the success of my experiment I was notified on behalf of the Anglo-American Telegraph Company, that as they held a charter giving them the exclusive right to construct and operate stations for telegraphic communication between Newfoundland and places outside the colony, the work upon which I was engaged was a violation of their rights. I was asked to give an immediate undertaking not to proceed with my work and to remove my apparatus or legal proceedings would be taken.

"I was absolutely astounded at this communication, which, however, at least gave satisfactory assurance that one of the great telegraph and cable companies not only believed in but also feared the possibility of wireless transatlantic communication. I will say nothing further on this matter now, and only mention it in order to show why my experiments were cut short on that occasion, and why I was forced to abandon a demonstration which I had intended to give on the following Monday on Signal Hill to the Governor of Newfoundland, Sir Cavendish Boyle, and a number of other gentlemen who were highly interested in the results of my experiments.

"When the reason for my discontinuing my experiments became known I was almost deluged with offers of sites for the erection of experimental and permanent stations. Among others, Mr. Fielding, Finance Minister of the Government of Canada, offered me on behalf of that Government every facility for the location of a station in Nova Scotia, which I decided to accept.

"I arrived in England again on Jan. 26, 1902, and on Feb. 22, I sailed for the United States, en route for Canada, where I was due to sign a final draft of agreement for the erection of a large wireless station at Glace Bay and to put in hand the construction of that station.

"Before leaving I arranged for the Poldhu Station to send out a program of signals for me to receive on the ship during the voyage. On this voyage I was able to receive complete messages up to 1,551 miles, and single letters to 2,099 miles. Thus, within three months of receiving single letters at 1,800 miles, I was receiving complete messages at 1,500 miles.

"I was thus able to prove what I had set out to prove, that wireless communication could satisfactorily be carried out between countries separated by large stretches of ocean. By December, 1902, It was possible to exchange messages at will between the station I had erected at Glace Bay and Poldhu.

"Wireless telegraph communication over long distances was thus proved to be a reality and not a dream.

"Naturally, it is very gratifying for me, after a lapse of twenty-five years to look back upon those experiences and mediate upon the far-reaching effects that followed those early beginnings. It is a pleasing coincidence that almost exactly on the twenty-fifth anniversary I have been able to bring to fruition another far-reaching development in long distance wireless communication in the establishment of short-wave stations, which constitutes practically a revolution in wireless communication."

Asked for his views regarding the possibilities of wireless during the next twenty-five years, Senator Marconi said

"Twenty-five years ago the instruments we had at our disposal were very crude compared to those we have today. We had no valves, no amplifiers, no sensitive super-heterodyne sets, no directional transmitters and receivers, and no means of making continuous waves. All we had for transmitting was the means of making crude damped spark waves, which did not permit of the correct tuning we have today.

"The spanning of great distances now is child's play compared to what it was then. If those who now think nothing of intercepting signals from the other side of the world had to work with the relatively insensitive apparatus I had in Newfoundland, they would find themselves faced with a very different problem.

"During the next twenty-five years there will probably be almost as great developments in the means of obtaining directional wireless transmission and reception as there has been in other directions during the last twenty-five years.

"As to the application of wireless in the future you know I am always averse from entering into the realm of prophecy, but perhaps I might suggest that, apart from the ordinary transmission and reception of wireless messages of which I have spoken, there is a possibility that the transmission of power over moderate distances may be developed, and that television will become an actuality.

"I must leave to your imagination the uses which can be made of these new powers. They will probably be as wonderful as anything of which we have had experience so far."

Honor Bell on Telephone Jubilee.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10 (AP).—The fiftieth anniversary today of the invention of the telephone was set aside at the Smithsonian Institution for the unveiling of a bust of Alexander Graham Bell. The bust was presented by President Walter Gifford of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company. Mrs. Gilbert Grosvenor, daughter of the inventor, was chosen to unveil it and Chief Justice Taft to receive it for the institution.

THIRD ITALIAN SHOT ON FRENCH FRONTIER

Italian Feeling at High Tension and Situation on Border Is Called Dangerous.

FRENCHMAN WAS ASSAILANT

He Escapes on Train Into France, Pursued by Caribinier on an Engine—French Police Help.

PARIS, Dec. 10.—A third shooting affair within five days has taken place at Ventimiglia on the Italian frontier and the state of tension in the town and district is described as dangerous.

Today's victim is again a member of the Carabinieri, who was shot by a fugitive as he escaped across the frontier on a French train. He was followed by the Italian police but eluded both his followers and the French, leaping from the train just after it crossed the frontier and taking refuge in the mountains.

Following in rapid succession the murder of the Fascist, Signor Gavarino, on Sunday night and the discovery of the dead bodies of some Carabinieri at Gummaschino and Gerbi, this affair, which took place last evening, has features which render it more dangerous in the present tense situation.

The murder of Signor Gavarino by Pollastro and others was a purely Italian affair. So was the shooting of the two Carabinieri which is supposed to have been done by Pollastro. Yesterday, however, the murderer was an obvious fugitive seeking to escape into France. He was seen at the international station buying a ticket for Savone, but instead of boarding an Italian train, he boarded one about to start across to this side of the frontier.

A young Carabiniere ordered him to descend and in a scuffle just as the train was starting, the fugitive fired three times, mortally wounding the Carabiniere.

Italian police immediately gave chase on a light engine, but as they crossed the frontier bridge they saw the man leap from the preceding train and scramble into hiding.

They themselves avoided technical infringement of French territory by remaining aboard their engine, while the French unsuccessfully searched the train for the murderer.

This attention to etiquette and the alacrity of the efforts which the French police will undoubtedly make to find the fugitive may prevent the incident being given a political instead of a merely criminal character.

Among the more excitable of Premier Mussolini's followers it is to be feared, however, that it will be represented as another illustration of the manner in which France is harboring not only political but every other kind of criminal who is working against Italy. Even without that, the relations between the two countries are already strained enough.

Italian Police Apologize to French.

Besides the locomotive which crossed the border an Italian police automobile came into France as far as Menton where the occupants went to see the Police Commissary to apologize for trespassing. Passengers in the automobile included the commander of the Carabinieri in Ventimiglia, the Royal Vice Commissioner of the Saint Louis bridge (the boundary bridge) and two Italian policemen in civilian clothes.

The Prefect of the Department issued a communiqué tonight setting forth the details of the two Italian intrusions, minimizing their importance and recording the apologies. I understood that a French customs official at the border authorized the automobile to pass, inasmuch as the occupants were searching for a bandit with ten murders on his hands.

The passengers on the locomotive were the Royal Secret Service Commissioner in Ventimiglia, his assistant, six detectives in Mufti and sixteen uniformed carabiniers. With the Italians was the French Special Commissary of Menton who had a mission in Ventimille where Pollastro's latest crimes were committed.

None of the passengers on the locomotive landed on the Menton station platform in order to prevent possible incidents with the French, and after a few minutes the locomotive returned home. So did the automobile and its passengers.

Before leaving, however, they were able to ascertain that Pollastro was not in the Menton station and not aboard the train on which he was believed to have taken passage.

At noon today the assistant station master at Ventimille discovered a bomb near a switch only twenty yards from a locomotive shed. The bomb was a cylinder eight centimeters in diameter and twelve centimeters long. It is thought to have been placed near the station by a confederate of Pollastro.

3 SPANISH GENERALS TO STAND TRIAL SOON

Life Reclusion Is Asked for Weyler and Others, but Royal Pardon Is Expected.

ST. JEAN DE LUX, Dec. 10.—Generals Weyler and Aguilera, who led the plot against Premier Primo de Rivera and his Government last June, will be tried soon by a military court, it was said today.

The penalty asked for both by the Government is military reclusion for life. The same penalty was also asked for General Batet on the same charge of rebellion.

The three Generals have already paid fines of 200,000 pesetas, 125,000 pesetas, and 3,000 pesetas, respectively, which the Government will distribute among the poor on Christmas Eve.

The defendants' counsel protest against the trial by military courts subsequent to the paying of these fines, saying that no precedents exist in the history of Spanish justice. General Weyler's counsel, his son, Lieut. Col. Don Fernando, asks for his father, as a militia prince and as a possessor of the Golden Fleece, trial only by the King and Government. The dispositions of the royal order lay down such a procedure. None of the military defendants have civilian counsel.

The defendants hold that they owe obedience to a constitutional government and it is the Government and not they who are guilty of breaking the Constitution and the laws of Spain.

The trial of the officers begins on Jan. 10 or 12.

Whatever penalty may be inflicted, royal pardon is expected, as it is believed that the King and his Premier only wish to make an example. The case will be tried in the Senate assembly room under the President of the Military Supreme Court of Justice, General Claguer.

REICHSTAG VOTES CHRISTMAS GIFTS

MARX FACES NEW DANGER

Government May Be Beaten Over a Speech by a Deputy Attacking the Socialists.

BERLIN, Dec. 10.—A Christmas spirit prevailed in the Reichstag today. Civil service employes were granted Christmas presents amounting from 20 to 21 per cent. of a month's pay, to be given as soon as possible in order that they may do their shopping early. Bachelors were awarded from 30 to 60 marks, while the gifts to the married ranged from 50 to 80 marks with five marks for each child. War cripples were also remembered, receiving 25 per cent. extra December pension.

Dr. Reinhold asked for this Government measure to be tacked on the extraordinary budget and to be acted on without delay, and the Deputies placed the matter on the order of the day, passing it immediately.

Dr. Reinhold's interruption came while the Reichstag was considering the Communists' motion for lack of confidence in Dr. Kulz, Minister of the Interior, on account of the recent passage of the law creating a Board of Censorship, who are empowered to suppress printed matter which they consider trashy or indecent.

The Socialists, while not approving this law, announced that they would declare their policy toward the Government on the third reading of the supplementary budget bill and withheld their vote.

Though the Nationalists voted for passage of the censorship bill, they also withheld their vote on the lack of confidence motion following their policy of not openly supporting the little coalition.

The Communists and the reactionary Voelkisch were the only ones who arose in support of the Radicals lack of confidence motion, which was voted down by the Government parties.

The Socialists issued a statement that they are not holding the People's Party responsible for the statement made by Herr Scholz, one of its Reichstag Deputies, that the Nationalists are more welcome in the Government than the Socialists, but the danger of a Government crisis seems growing steadily.

The Socialists will bring a lack-of-confidence motion against the entire Cabinet on the third reading of the Supplementary Budget bill, which is predicted to take place about next Friday. That they are backed by the Communists and ultra-reactionary Voelkisch is taken for granted.

The fate of the Government then depends on the Nationalists, since the Government parties have insufficient mandates to overcome the three opposing parties.

In Nationalist circles there is a report that only Dr. Stresemann's return from Geneva with a signal victory for Germany will spur them into supporting the Government, and, should the Foreign Minister return empty-handed, they are certain to withhold their vote, which would spell the defeat of the little coalition.

Deputy Scholz defended his utterances against the Socialists on the ground that Chancellor Marx had made that party extravagant promises which neither the Government parties nor Nationalists can countenance, after which the People's Party retracted their apology made to the Socialists and announced their intention to stand back of Scholz.

As in the case of the fall of the Luther Cabinet through a petty interparty quarrel on the question of the colors of the national flag, so the Marx Government is threatened through a party quarrel on account of a Deputy's speech. This fact has caused an American economist passing through Berlin to remark that it was a pity the progress of the Reich should be impaired on account of minor matters when the Parliament was able to agree on the big political and economic problems facing them during their reconstruction period.

POLICE ARE BAFFLED BY CHRISTIE MYSTERY

British Search Vainly for a Week for a Clue to American-Born Writer's Disappearance.

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Dec. 10.—Though it is a whole week since she disappeared, there is still no clue tonight as to the whereabouts of Mrs. Agatha Christie, the American-born writer of English detectives stories.

The country around Newlands Corner, where her car was found on Saturday morning, has been exhaustively searched by hundreds of police and volunteer helpers, and inquiries have been made far afield without success.

The Chief Constable of Guildford visited the Lion Hotel of that town today to inquire about a man and woman from Kent who stayed there after their arrival in a red limousine.

The Chief Constable afterwards said he was satisfied that the woman could not be Mrs. Christie. The police now discredit the statement that she and her car were seen near Newlands Corner on the night of his disappearance. All witnesses who saw the car have been interrogated and there is little doubt that the woman is not Mrs. Christie. No reliable witness has seen her since the moment she left her house in Sunningdale a week ago.

A great deal of interest was excited by the revelation today that before leaving her home Mrs. Christie wrote three letters.

The first was to her secretary. The police thought it had been destroyed, but it has been found and handed to them. Its most significant passage was: "I must get away. I cannot stay here in Sunningdale much longer."

The second letter was to Mrs. Christie's brother-in-law at Woolwich. This letter has been destroyed.

The third letter was addressed to Colonel Christie himself and was unposted. Colonel Christie refused to reveal its contents, stating it was a personal note written evidently before his wife decided to go away.

MANHOLE LID BLOWS UP WITH WOMAN ON IT

She Is Badly Hurt—Two Others Injured as More Covers Go Up at 22d St. and 7th Av.

Mildred Connelly, 40 years old, of 363 West Twenty-second Street, was taken to Bellevue Hospital last evening with a broken leg, lacerations and possibly internal injuries received when a manhole cover upon which she was standing at the corner of Twenty-second Street and Seventh Avenue blew up. Robert Craig, 38 years old, of 507 West Street, and Dr. Charles Kay, who owns a drug store on the corner, were slightly injured by the explosion.

In all, three manhole covers went up with a loud report. Miss Connelly was standing on one, Mr. Craig had just crossed another and the third came down near a window of the drug store owned by Dr. Kay. The accident occurred shortly before 7 o'clock and the street was crowded. Reserves of the West Thirtieth Street Station had difficulty in maintaining order.

Fire apparatus, the police emergency truck and wagons from the gas and electric companies were called, as well as two New York Hospital ambulances. Miss Connelly's condition was said last night to be critical.

It was said by the police that due to the ice on the streets, the vents on the manhole covers had become clogged, preventing escape of gas.

PREDICTS DOWNFALL OF CALLES REGIME

TELLS OF DRAMATIC ESCAPE

Lawyer Says American Intervention Is Not Sought—Declares Church Persecution Is Increasing.

Rene Capistran Garza, Vice President of the National League for Religious Liberty, an organization of Catholic laymen in Mexico, in an interview at the Waldorf yesterday predicted the early downfall of the Calles Government, and asked for American support of the league's program for the protection of religious and property rights. He said that the league was composed of 2,000,000 Catholic men and women, although its members had to keep their membership secret and their leaders had to flee the country or go into hiding to escape persecution by the Government soldiery.

Mr. Garza intimated his belief that there would be an "economic revolution" in Mexico soon and that President Calles would find it "convenient" to leave the country.

"Do you mean a bloodless revolution?" he was asked.

To a question as to when he expected to return to Mexico, Mr. Garza made a quick motion with his forefinger across his throat, answering: "When I desire to commit suicide."

Tells of Assassins' Plot.

Mr. Garza asserted that persecution of Catholics by the Calles Government was growing worse. He told how he and his family escaped from Mexico last August. After he had been arrested and freed on bond, charged with sedition and rebellion for anti-Calles articles he had written for El Universal in Mexico City, Mr. Garza was warned by a friendly Catholic policeman that Government soldiers intended to assassinate him.

Sending a messenger to warn his mother, wife and 2-year-old son to flee, Mr. Garza went to a friend's house, where he remained for two days and nights. He dyed his hair and obtained an artificial moustache. One night he walked twenty-five miles outside of Mexico City and boarded a train for Queratero, 200 miles north. Staying there several days, he removed his moustache and dyed his hair again. A friend engaged a Pullman drawing room, and Mr. Garza motored to another station near Queratero in order to catch the train for Laredo, Texas. His family followed him two weeks later.

Mr. Garza is 30 years old and is a graduate of the public schools and the National University in Mexico City. He organized the Catholic youth movement in Mexico ten years ago, and has practiced the professions of law and journalism in Mexico City for several years. About a year ago he helped organize the League of Religious Liberty.

Outlines League's Program.

The League's program, given out by Mr. Garza, follows:

1. Religious liberty, based upon absolute independence of Church and State.
2. Liberty of education, based on the principles of natural law and the rights that parents have for the education of their children. Broad development of popular education without restriction for the functioning of private schools.
3. Liberty of press, with restrictions imposed only by the moral and social order.
4. Suppression of the President's power to expel from the country—without trial—foreign subjects who should be considered as pernicious.
5. Recognition of the inalienable principles of private property by the State; private property cannot be occupied without the agreement of the owner, unless in case of public utility by due process of law and previous indemnification. In all cases the nation must respect rights acquired in accordance with previous laws.
6. The "ejidos" (common land) given by previous Governments shall be respected. The former owners must be compensated for the land taken from them, according to just valuation. The new possessors shall receive legal titles for the land given to them with the condition that they observe the principles imposed by justice according to the system of private property.
7. Mexicans by birth or by naturalization and Mexican corporations have the right to acquire property or lands, waters and its accessions, and also to obtain concessions for the exploitations of mines, waters and combustibles in Mexico. Foreigners will have identical rights in accordance with the law concerning the matter and with international treaties.
8. Equitable legislation based on the principles of harmony and coexistence of social classes, on the protection of labor and capital rights and on the accomplishments of their reciprocal duties.
9. Due respect to all international obligations.

Says Workers Oppose Calles.

Mr. Garza said this was the program which, in the form of a petition signed by 4,000,000 of the 15,000,000 inhabitants of Mexico, was recently rejected by "the red Congress of Calles." He asserted that the Mexican people as a whole were against "the red minority of Calles." According to Mr. Garza, the commercial boycott called by the anti-Calles forces last Summer had been a complete success, bringing about such a great reduction in revenue from taxation that the Government must soon collapse. He declared that the majority of Mexican workmen were against President Calles, although, he said, the were forced to belong to the Crom, the Calles labor organization, in order to find work.

The League did not wish the United States to intervene in Mexico, Mr. Garza said, because even talk of intervention had strengthened President Calles. What the League wanted of this country, he continued, was to withdraw its support from "the Calles tyranny that oppresses us."

Mr. Garza said that the League had nothing to do with the reported Huerta revolutionary movement.

FOR GENEROSITY TO MEXICO

Carleton Be Is Speaks at Civic Club on Land Laws There.

An appeal to the United States Government to use its great power "generously, nobly and high-mindedly" toward the Mexican Government in its effort to establish the Mexican Constitution was made by Carleton Beals, a director of an English school in Mexico City, at a meeting of the New York Chapter of the League for Industrial Democracy at the Civic Club, 18 East Tenth Street, last night. Mr. Beals has just arrived from Mexico after a brief stop in Washington.

He said of the land and oil laws that any attempt at social readjustment in Mexico is apt to cause difficulties to individuals.

"But the Mexican Government cannot hold back the social development of its people," he continued. "It cannot do much if it leaves 99 per cent. of its people without property, nor can it build up a nation unless it controls the resources of the country. It must receive the opportunity, then, to educate its people and to instil in them a spirit of independence."

Questioned about the existence of an economic boycott in Mexico, Mr. Beals said that it did not prevail in Mexico City, but that one in the outlying districts had been about 50 per cent. effective.

HALT IN OIL LAW RUMORED IN MEXICO

Three-Month Suspension Will Be Used to Revise It, Report in the Capital Says.

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 10.—A report is abroad here to the effect that the time limit within which oil companies must comply with the new regulations or forfeit title to the properties affected by the regulations will be extended for three months. The time limit set for applying for "confirmatory" concessions was Dec. 31.

The oil and land laws, over the alleged retroactive and confiscatory character of which a controversy has arisen between Mexico and the United States, were to go into affect next month. It is said that during the three-month extension the Mexican Government will revise the oil regulations.

Officials of American oil companies here say they have received no instructions from their home offices and have no intention of complying with the law unless ordered by their American headquarters to do so.

A report from San Antonio, Texas, quoting Manuel Calero as saying that all companies would comply with the regulations, is taken here to refer only to the Huasteca and other Doheny companies now under Standard Oil control.

Señor Calero, who is counsel for the Huasteca company, has sent a statement to the press here saying that the Huasteca company will obey the regulations.

Emphatic denial that all American oil companies have agreed to comply with the Mexican property laws, which become effective on Jan. 1, was made yesterday by F. H. Wickett, Chairman of the Pan-American Petroleum and Transport Company, who said:

"There has been called to my attention this morning a statement alleged to have been made by Manuel Calero to The San Antonio Light and carried by The Associated Press, to the effect that all oil companies operating in Mexico will comply with the provisions of the Mexican Alien Property laws, which become effective on Jan. 1, 1927.

"Mr. Calero is not the legal representative in Mexico for oil companies other than the Huasteca Petroleum Company, and for that reason he certainly did not have the authority to make such a statement."

SENATE BACKS CALLES IN DISPUTE WITH US

Resolution Lauds His 'Just and Patriotic Defense' of Mexico's Sovereignty.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 10.—The Senate yesterday passed a resolution expressing approval of the stand of President Calles in his "just and patriotic defense of the sovereignty of Mexico" in the controversy between Mexico and the United States.

Senator Mauel Carpio declared that history showed that on many occasions the rights of Mexico had been affected by the material interests of the United States. American capitalists, he asserted, always had taken action against those they considered rebels because they would not submit to the wishes of the United States and against those who were unwilling to accept the moral protectorate of America over Mexico.

The action of the Government in recognizing Dr. Sacasa as President of Nicaragua was well taken Señor Carpio declared. Foreign Minister Saenz should be congratulated for his fearless work, he added.

The oil men desired to impose their policies on Mexico through high officials of the United States, the Senator charged.

Senator José Castillo Torres declared that for many years Mexico had been compelled to fight against the imperialistic tendency of the United States. Referring to the present situation over the alien land and oil laws, he said:

"In this violent situation Mexicans are obliged to unite their effort to save the country. Although the hidden forces directing the situation are complicated, yet it cannot be denied that the American people are opposed to the development of Mexico."

"It is now being debated whether Mexico is a free country that may legislate according to its rights and sovereignty. For this reason the Senate is united and has put aside its small differences in order to back the Administration."

CHIDES REPUBLICANS ON SEEKING SHIPSTEAD

Senator Harrison Says They Need Minnesota Dentist Since Toothache They Got in November.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—Republican Senators were chided by Senator Harrison, Democrat, of Mississippi, in the Senate this afternoon, for their efforts to get Senator Shipstead, the Farmer-Labor member from Minnesota, and Senator Frazier, Radical, of North Dakota, to assist them in organizing the Senate in the next Congress. The Mississippi Senator poked some fun at President Coolidge also.

Reciting the ejection of Senators Frazier, Ladd, La Follette and Brookhart from the regular organization two years ago and the determined stand the old line Republicans took against them then, Mr. Harrison added:

"But why are you so solicitous now about the Senator from North Dakota and the distinguished dental doctor from Minnesota?

"You have had the political toothache ever since November," he added, "and you are applying to the Minnesota doctor to cure your pain."

He told the Republicans that while they would have a majority of one with Mr. Shipstead, they did not actually need him, because if he went over to the Democrats the Republicans still had Vice President Dawes as a deciding vote.

"But some say," he remarked, with a malicious smile, "that the Vice President cannot be depended upon to get here in time for a vote."

$2,000,000 for 'Indoor-Outdoor' Playgrounds To Be Sought to Keep Children Off Streets

"Indoor-outdoor" playgrounds for the children of New York, each six stories tall, with facilities for many recreations to keep children away from the physical dangers of street traffic, were planned yesterday by the Executive Committee of Recreation Terraces, which, it was announced, will start a campaign soon to raise $2,000,000 for the first of these projects on the lower east or west side.

George McAneny, Chairman of the committee, was authorized by the other members to appoint a subcommittee of three persons to make a survey for the location of the enterprise while $500,000 was being raised to buy a site.

Mr. McAneny said that the first "indoor-outdoor" playground would be a demonstration project and that if it were found successful would be followed by others in various sections of the city. He said it would be "on the whole" a philanthropic undertaking, and that admission fees would be charged for participation in only a few of the recreations offered.

Plans for the building were made by the late Bertram Grosvenor Goodhue just before his death. The first building will be, in a measure, a memorial to him. Its construction will be supervised by Charles Downing Lay of 101 Park Avenue, who collaborated with Mr. Goodhue.

The proposed building will occupy a space 200 by 300 feet. It will provide outside terraces and playground space of 101,561 square feet, with inside space of 137,361 square feet, making a total area of 226,842 square feet, more than five times the ground area, with capacity for 6,000 persons.

The building will be a series of five terraces, without inside stairways, but with ramps leading to each level. There will be stores on the ground floor to take care of the operation cost. On the other floors there will be swings, see-saws and playground equipment for small children, a large auditorium, dance hall, three swimming pools with dressing rooms, a gymnasium, bowling alley, a billiard room and handball courts.

Those now on the committee are Dr. William J. O'Shea, Superintendent of Schools; Henry H. Curran, former Commissioner of Immigration; Hatcher Hughes, William P. Earle Jr., Schuyler N. Warren Jr., Joseph P. Chamberlain, Daniel L. Turner, Colonel W. G. Wilgus, Geoffrey Parsons and Dr. Haven Emerson, Charles D. Lay, Miss Madeline Stevens and Miss Lulu Morton of the Parks and Playgrounds Association of New York.

The Chairman was authorized to appoint a Treasurer. Alexander Williams was made director for the drive.

ASKS TRADE SCHOOL FOR WESTCHESTER

AND POSSIBLY FARM SCHOOL

Conference at Yonkers Votes to Present Plan to Supervisors—Backs Part-Time Education.

The creation of a Board of Vocational Education for Westchester County to establish a county vocational school for boys and girls and determine if Westchester needs a county agricultural school will be requested of the Westchester County Board of Supervisors by the Westchester County People's Educational Association, which held its sixth annual conference in the new Bejamin Franklin High School in Yonkers yesterday.

The conference was attended by school officials of the county, as well as those interested in education. The speakers included Dr. David Snedden of Teachers College, Columbia University; Oliver J. Morelock, Superintendent of Schools of Essex County, N. J.; A. K. Getman, Supervisor of Agricultural Education for the State of New York; James Garrity, former State Governor of Rotary Clubs for Boys' Work for New York State, and John Y. LeVan, business representative of the Westchester County Sheet Metal Workers.

Mr. Morelock said that, because the opportunities for boys to get trade knowledge and trade practice outside of vocational schools were growing fewer each year and because the demand for skilled artisans and mechanics was increasing, New Jersey established vocational schools. He outlined the method by which the schools worked and advocated the county school because school districts were for the most part too small and too weak financially to support their own schools.

Dr. Snedden, outlining reasons why Westchester County should be organized as an administrative unit for vocational education, said that the county embraced not only four cities of medium size but also many smaller communities which by themselves possessed population or resources equal to the needs of a local school for particular vocations and that there were some types of vocational education, among them being automobile repair, printing and gardening, for which even Yonkers or other large cities were not large enough to justify separate schools.

PRINCETON BIOLOGIST DEFENDS THE COMPLEX

Prof. Conklin Denies Theory Is 'Fantastic' or Merely an Excuse to Do Wrong.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Dec. 10.—Professor Edwin G. Conklin, head of the biology department at Princeton, takes issue with the remarks of Dean Charles R. Brown of the Yale Divinity School, who recently branded complexes as "fantastic theories" and "just excuses to do wrong."

In an interview today in The Daily Princetonian, Professor Conklin says, "I think that the truth here, as in many cases, lies in the middle way, neither in extreme fatalism nor in extreme freedom. We all know perfectly well that we are not free to do everything that we would like to do, and on the other hand we know that we can to a certain extent control our own behavior.

"To say that men do wrong because they want to and for no other reason contains a number of undefined and unanalyzed ideas. For example, what is here meant by 'wrong'? Does it imply that an act which seems wrong to Dean Brown must seem wrong to every other human being and that man who perform that act do it from a perverse desire to do the thing which they themselves depreciate?

"Civilized societies recognize that human beings are not usually responsible. Children are not held accountable in the same degree as grown persons and insanity may be accepted as a plea for mercy even in murder. Indeed, no two human beings are ever equally responsible and a course of action which may be perfectly easy for one person may be absolutely impossible for another."

BUCHAREST, Dec. 10.—A rumor current here is that King Ferdinand has been advised to go to Paris to have a radium treatment carried on more efficaciously at the Curie Institute than is possible at the Royal Palace here. The King is said to be undecided yet.

In this connection it is pointed out that were Ferdinand to go to Paris he would be able to see Carol there and, therefore, the question of the ex-Crown Prince's returning to Bucharest to see his father on account of his illness need not arise.

TAKE M'DERMOTT TO MELLETT GARAGE

PRISONER BANTERS GUARDS

CANTON, Ohio, Dec. 10 (AP).—Patrick Eugene McDermott today stood at the garage door before which Don R. Mellett, Canton's crusading auditor, was shot down by ambushed assassins, and watched the jury selected to try him for the murder examine the scene of the slaying.

Guarded by deputy sheriffs, he saw the jurors retrace the path over which Mellett walked to his death, heard the court bailiffs point out the bushes and the telephone pole behind which the gangsters were ambushed and heard the jury ask questions in return. This apparently did not affect McDermott, the alleged underworld hireling. He joked with his guards and commented banteringly about the proceedings.

Three women and ten men compose the jury of thirteen impaneled today. Not until 107 veniremen had been examined was a jury suitable to both the State and defense chosen.

After the visit to the former Mellett home court was recessed until Monday morning. At that time Coroner T. C. McQuate will go on the stand to present his evidence.

After the second special venire responded in court today, completion of the jury came quickly. Shortly before the noon recess the special venire of forty was summoned, when the original venire of sixty-two had been exhausted. Out of the second venire the first juror examined was selected to complete the panel. Immediately the twelve were sworn and the selection of a thirteenth or alternate juror was begun. Three veniremen were excused for cause, and then Mrs. Ida Willigmann, housewife, was seated.

The McDermott brothers, Tom and Bernard, definitely aligned themselves with "Pat's" defense today. Another family council was held at the defense table in the court room during a short recess, and the result, though unannounced, was apparently satisfactory to all three brothers. It was Tom and Bernard who surrendered "Pat" to the authorities, after a three months' search throughout the country had failed to discover his hiding place.

"My opening statement to the jury will be short," Prosecutor C. H. McClintock said. "I will not reveal specifically what the State is going to prove. First I plan to put Coroner McQuate on the stand. Shortly after that, I expect to call Mrs. Mellett, the publisher's widow, to tell her story."

PARIS, Dec. 10.—Plans for the American Legion's peaceful invasion of France next September received a fresh impetus today with the arrival in Paris of General Albert Greenlaw of Augusta, Me., who has come to assume direction of the monumental work of providing food, lodging and amusement for 30,000 of the members of the American Expeditionary Forces and their families.

STRIKERS TESTIFY POLICE ARE BRUTAL

Inspector Hears Statements of Men and Women Paper Box Workers.

TO CONTINUE INVESTIGATION

Final Report for Commissioner—Accused Officers Deny They Were Rough With Pickets.

Charges that policemen have been brutal in their treatment of striking paper-box workers were heard yesterday in the Beach Street Police Station by Police Inspector Thomas P. Cummings of the First Inspection District, in which many of the box factories are situated. Strikers and the accused policemen appeared and told their stories, and then Inspector Cummings announced that he would continue his investigation and report his findings to Police Commissioner McLaughlin.

The accused policemen are Captain Daniel Mangin and Patrolmen Thomas Elliott, Thomas Maddigan and Price. All but Mangin were present.

The paper-box workers have been on strike for ten weeks. Herman Freeman, who attended the hearing as a representative of the Greater New York Paper Box Manufacturers' Association, said the strike was not for wages, which average from $18 to $30 a week, but for recognition of the workers' union.

Affidavits of fourteen men and girls, who alleged that the police had interfered with them illegally in their picketing and in several cases had clubbed them, were presented, and Inspector Cummings heard several girls and men who appeared personally with charges of abuse.

Jacob Arkin of 218 Watkins Street, Brooklyn, said he was on picket duty near Houston and Green Streets on Oct. 12 when a police automobile containing Captain Mangin, a sergeant and two patrolmen stopped at the curb. The policemen jumped out and attacked him, he said, and the Captain followed them and struck him in the mouth, knocking out three teeth.

Virginia Dessoules of 475 West Broadway, Kate Levy of 323 East Sixty-second Street and Wanda Jasinka of 235 Monroe Street said a patrolman had threatened them with a revolver when they were on picket near Green and Houston Streets and had chased away three children playing there by waving his revolver at them. They failed to identify any of the policemen named. Ruth Sharoff of 249 South First Street said she had been hit on the back by Patrolman Price at Twelfth Street and Third Avenue. Charles Santratello of 4,027 Sixty-seventh Street, Winfield, L. I., testified that a policeman had assaulted him on Nov. 24.

The accused policemen all denied having roughed the pickets and said they only had obeyed orders by keeping the sidewalks clear and the pickets moving.

Henry T. Hunt, counsel for the American Civil Liberties Union, which first brought the charges of the strikers to the attention of the city authorities, said after the hearing that he had been much impressed by its impartiality and that he had every confidence that the Inspector's report would be based on the evidence and the law.

Inspector Cummings said the Police Department would not tolerate brutality or unfairness in the conduct of the police in connection with the strike.

CONFESSES BUSINESS FRAUD

D. W. Van Keuren, Head of Bankrupt Firm, Gets Two-Year Sentence.

Dewitt W. Van Keuren, who was President of the bankrupt firm of D. W. Van Keuren Company, dealers in automobile supplies, pleaded guilty yesterday before Federal Judge John C. Knox, to an indictment charging use of the mails to defraud. The Van Keuren concern was made a defendant in bankruptcy proceedings last May. It developed that the firm had been in existence only about a year, and owed about $100,000 to various firms.

Maxwell S. Mattuck, of counsel for the National Association of Credit Men, investigated the failure and produced evidence that resulted in the indictment. Others named in the bill were Jerome J. Rafferty of Newark, N. J., financial manager of the company, and William C. Maier, its secretary. Both Rafferty and Maier pleaded guilty some months ago. Rafferty was sentenced to the Atlanta Penitentiary for a year and a day; Maier received a suspended sentence. Van Keuren was sentenced to two years in the Atlanta Penitentiary and five years on parole. The term is to be delayed until Monday to enable the defendant to put his affairs in order.

is seemingly the only method apparently available for financing the proposed construction; therefore, the present discussion is based upon it.

Fare Mandatory at First.

"By the terms of the law, a 5-cent fare is mandatory for the first three years of the system's operation. Cost of the service is not allowed to figure in fixing the rate of fare, much less return upon the investment. For an initial three-year period the new city system cannot charge more than a nickel a ride. In analyzing the results we are not called upon to conjecture, for the Board of Transportation has already made the following frank computation of its losses:

"1. Cost per passenger for first three years of operation, 9.34 cents.

"2. Deficit for first three-year period, $61,995,800.

"3. Cost per passenger for first ten years of operation, 7.42 cents.

"4. Deficit for first ten-year period, $164,216,000.

"According to Controller Berry, the deficit, now paid by taxes to meet the carrying charges upon the city's present non-earning investment in existing rapid transit lines, is $13,845,000 a year. Such deficit will aggregate for the eight years to the end of 1923 estimated as the end of the first three years of the new system's operation, the sum of $110,760,000.

"This, added to the new system deficit (Item 2 above), will give aggregate losses to the amount of $172,755,800 for the period ended 1933, all to be made up by taxes.

"At the end of the first three-year period of operation the law drops the 5-cent fare as a direct mandate and orders the city to charge such an amount for service as will make the system self-sustaining. While seemingly willing to authorize deficits of millions for three years, the legislators did not dare to go further at the time.

"What will happen, however, if the 5-cent fare continues to be maintained after 1933 by some evasion of the law, or else by its modification? Such evasion or modification is contemplated as a possibility, for the Board of Transportation, as required by statute, has figured out the deficits for the first ten years on the basis of a 5-cent fare.

"The board's own figures (Item 4) show this amount to be $164,216,000; if to such sum is added the $206,675,000 for the present $13,845,000 annual deficit on the city's non-earning rapid transit investment, New York's losses on its present existing and proposed subways, to be made up by taxes, will have reached the enormous sum of $371,891,600 for the period 1926 to 1940, inclusive."

Concluding his arguments Mr. Dahl said:

"It is not only taxpayers, however, that are menaced by a headlong transit policy. The very credit of the city possibly may be threatened. True, it is the richest city in the world, but even the wealthiest community can come to financial grief upon the rocks of unsound and impractical economics.

"A policy of expenditures greater than receipts cannot be continued indefinitely, nor will mere paring of annual budgets avert the disaster that must inevitably follow in the wake of 'frozen credits' and mounting deficits for the carrying charges."

$50,000 AWARDED TO MISS CALDWELL

Pittsburgh Jury Holds That Hubbard Broke His Promise to Wed Former Revue Actress.

VERDICT IS COMPROMISE

All Amounts Suggested in Deliberations Since Thursday Were Added, Then Divided by Twelve.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Dec. 10.—Fifty thousand dollars damages for her wounded heart was awarded by a jury to Miss Anne Caldwell, actress, and soloist, in her $500,000 breach of promise suit against John W. Hubbard, wealthy shovel manufacturer.

Neither the plaintiff nor the defendant was in court when Judge Thomson received the verdict. Attorney Rody P. Marshall, of counsel for the defense, said he would make a motion for a new trial if his client permitted. Attorney Earl F. Reed of the law firm of Thorp, Bostwick, Stewart & Reed, expected to meet any move in that direction. Mr. Marshall said he was astounded at the amount awarded.

It is reported that the jurors stood 11 to 1 for an award of $150,000 to $200,000 for several hours. According to one story, when they reached the tenth ballot without agreement it was decided to add the demands of all seven and divide by twelve. The $50,000 verdict is said to have resulted thus.

Hubbard's Next Step Uncertain.

"Will you accept the verdict?" Mr. Hubbard was asked in his office this afternoon.

"I cannot answer that question until after I have consulted with my counsel, Oliver K. Eaton, Rody P. Marshall and others in the case. I am holding a conference with them today. I will not be able to say just what will be done until we have discussed the matter."

Mr. Hubbard admitted that he feels the situation keenly. When asked for his views on the subject he hesitated somewhat, then said:

"When I was informed that unless I settled the case some of my friends would be brought into it through letters, it aroused my ire. I just let my temper get away with my judgment. It has been most embarrassing to me. You may rest assured that I feel the situation keenly. I made the fight I did as a matter of principle."

Attorneys Await Client's Decision.

Mr. Hubbard would not indicate if he would sanction the filing of an application for a new trial. None of his counsel would say what would be done. After the verdict was read in court, Mr. Marshall said that he would apply for a new trial if his client would sanction it.

Miss Caldwell said the "vindication" pleased her most. She said she had made no plans for the future.

"The stage is an interesting life; Broadway is a thrilling adventure," she said. "I may go back, who knows? I am vindicated; that means more than all the money in the world."

"Oh Mamma," were her first words. "I was worried so.

"Now I can pay off the $2,000 mortgage on the old homestead. I am going back to my folks and try, in a way, to make amends by putting a little sunshine into their lives and live down the humiliation to which I have been subjected."

Asked if she had any definite plans, she sighed wearily and said:

"Yes, rest. Just a few days of nothing but rest. This has been a heartbreaking ordeal. No one in the world can know what I have gone through in vindicating myself."

"Well, you will no doubt have plenty of theatrical offers after all the publicity," she was told.

"I suppose so," she replied. "I don't know. I guess people do."

Believes Charges Are Refuted.

"Now people will not believe that I am the terrible girl Mr. Hubbard painted me," she said of the jury's verdict. "They will not believe that I lived in cabarets every night and that I was a really bad girl, as they tried to make me out. If people could only understand the temptations that girls go through in this world they would not be too ready to criticise us."

The jury, which for more than a week heard the affairs of Miss Caldwell and Mr. Hubbard, went out of their way to specifically state in their verdict:

"We, the jury, find that a contract of marriage was made."

The damages for breach of that contract, they agreed, after thirteen hours of deliberation, was $50,000, but the majority of the jurors, it was reported, favored a verdict between $100,000 and $200,000.

It is unusual for a jury to state in a verdict that a contract of marriage existed. In most such cases they let that implication be drawn from the awarding of damages.

The verdict was a surprise to the counsel for Mr. Hubbard, who had anticipated a verdict favoring their client.

Greets Mother in Sister's Home.

Miss Caldwell, after receiving the verdict, spent several hours in conference with her counsel and then went to the home of her sister, who resides here. There she greeted her mother.

Miss Caldwell left Pittsburgh tonight with her mother "to rest and forget." They are due in Philadelphia early tomorrow morning. Mrs. Caldwell planned to go to the family home, a mile from New London in Chester County. Miss Caldwell will go to New York to get her belongings and then return to New London, where she will remain for a time.

REMICK & CO. WINS SUIT AGAINST RADIO STATION

WGY Enjoined From Broadcasting Copyrighted Song Played Outside of Studio.

Jerome H. Remick & Co., music publishers, received an award of $250 damages, counsel fees of $1,000, and an injunction against further infringement of copyrights in a suit against the General Electric Company, owner of Station WGY at Schenectady, by a decision of Federal Judge Thomas D. Thacher, made public yesterday. The publishers charged in their suit that Station WGY had broadcast the song "Somebody's Wrong" from the New Kenmore Hotel at Albany, and also charged that the hotel orchestra used the song without authorization of the copyright owner.

This is the first time that a broadcasting station has been sued for transmission of music from a source outside of the studio and not under control of the station. Stations have been sued for music broadcast from their own studios without authorization of the copyright owners.

Judge Thacher ruled that although the "defendant did not participate in the rendition of the musical production except by affording others the opportunity to hear it," this constituted a "contributory infringement."

Judge Thacher made the comparison of a person leaving a window open so that those passing in the street might hear music within to the action of the broadcaster. "Such is not the case of the broadcaster," he said, "equipped with instruments animated by electricity constantly furnished, who throughout the performance of the orchestra picks up each note, translates it into electrical energy, and transmits it to persons within a radius of several hundred miles so that they may hear the original sound. . . . The acts of the broadcaster are found in the reactions of his instruments, constantly animated and controlled by himself, and those acts are quite as continuous and infinitely more complex than the playing of the selection by the orchestra."

The $250 damage is the amount fixed by statute. Nathan Burkan was attorney for the music publishers and Charles Neave and Merrell E. Clark for the broadcasting company. Mr. Neave said last night that an appeal would probably be made.

SEES BROTHER ESCAPE AS WEIGHT RETARDS HIM

Firemen rescued Abraham Negran, 46 years old, a dress manufacturer of 475 Broadway, last night from a window on the sixth floor of the building while the third, fourth and fifth floors were ablaze.

Negran, who weighs about 200 pounds, was with his brother, Biros, of the firm of Negran Brothers, in the building when the fire started from some undetermined cause on the third floor. They ran to the stairs and found the hall filled with smoke. They started to climb onto a window ledge adjoining the building at 46 Mercer Street, but found that the fire had spread to it.

Biros grasped a bolt of cloth, tied one end of it to a desk, threw the bolt out the window and swung himself down to the fifth floor window at 477 Broadway, next door. He kicked out a pane of glass and shouted to Abraham to join him.

But his brother refused. He shouted that he was too heavy, that the improvised rope might break and that he would risk the fire.

Biros ran down the stairs of 477 Broadway and begged for help. Meanwhile, passersby had turned in an alarm and firemen who had arrived had turned in another. While some of the firemen were checking the flames in the two buildings on Broadway and Mercer Street, men of Engine Company 8 and Truck Company 20, under the direction of Captain Newman, threw up a ladder to Abraham. Then they carried him to his brother.

The failure of two water towers to work properly impeded the checking of the flames, which, however, were confined to the third, fourth and fifth floors. The fire started in the left of the United Comb Company and got a good start on celluloid. Traffic on Broadway at that point was held up for two hours.

SILK MILLS RAZED BY $1,000,000 FIRE

Group of Paterson Buildings, Housing 40 Manufacturers, Is Destroyed.

INCENDIARISM IS HINTED

Mysterious Explosions During Blaze Arouse Suspicion—Fireman Is Injured.

Special to The New York Times.

PATERSON, N. J., Dec. 10.—The old Van Kirk mills, a series of two and three story brick buildings occupied by forty silk manufacturers, were destroyed by fire here tonight. The damage was estimated at between $750,000 and $1,000,000, and because of a number of explosions during the blaze Fire Chief Thomas Coyle started an investigation to learn if the fire was of incendiary origin.

The mills were at East Railway and Kentucky Avenues, in the southern section of the city. The fire was discovered by a night watchman employed in the Colt Piece Dye Works, across the street, shortly after 6 o'clock. In a short time a general alarm was turned in and every fire company in the city was sent to the spot, but by that time the flames had made such headway that it was impossible to save the buildings, which were completely burned out.

Arsene Lunnis, a fireman of Company 7, was severely burned on both hands when a burst of flame followed an explosion while he was holding the nozzle of a hose near a window. He was taken to the Paterson General Hospital.

Mrs. Dinah Botti, 64 years old, of 160 East Railway Avenue, adjoining the mills, refused to leave her home after it had been ignited until she could collect her belongings, and she was forcibly removed from the building by a half dozen citizens.

The Wellwood Silk Company and Altshuler Brothers were the two largest manufactories in the mills. The others were two small factories employing from six to twenty looms.

The cause of the fire was undetermined. It was burning in the centre of the group of buildings when the firemen arrived, but the explosions occurred frequently in various parts of the different structures, leading the policemen and firemen to believe some one might have started the blaze.

Plead for Hebrew Union College.

The Jews of New York were urged last night to rally to the support of Hebrew Union College of Cincinnati, designated as America's "centre of Jewish learning," at a rally in Temple Israel, held under the auspices of the New York Committee on Synagogue and School Extension of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations. This meeting, at which Dr. Jonah B. Wise, rabbi of Central Synagogue; Henry M. Toch, and Rabbi Maurice Harris spoke, was the first of a series to be held this month to stir New York's interest in prepetuating Judaism in America.

HURLEY'S FIRST FICTION TAKES DIG AT FANATICS

Former Head of Shipping Board Tells in New Novel About Super-Government.

From bossing the United States Shipping Board to fiction is a long road, but Edward N. Hurley, Chairman of the board and President of the Emergency Fleet Corporation during the war, has made it. He has become an author. Not that that is anything new to Mr. Hurley, for he has published two books, but this is the first time he has let his imagination run riot and turned out what he hopes is literary as well as instructive and interesting.

Mr. Hurley's new book is to come out in January. It is a study of present-day society and Government put in the form of fiction, so that it won't hurt quite so much. Mr. Hurley is frank as to his motive.

"You know the public is apt to be shocked by the impact of a new idea," he said. "It has often been said that new ideas are apt to prove painful. What I tell about in the book is based on my own investigations and experiences. The American people are suffering from super-government. Some of our laws have been dictated by a fanatical crowd which terrorizes our lawmakers and tries to make the American people act and live according to a code which has no basis, either in justice or American ideals. I have tried to make this plain and to show the danger of it."

THRONG MOURNS McKINLEY.

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Dec. 10 (AP).—Officials of the State and nation were present today at the funeral of United States Senator William B. McKinley. The services were held in the First Presbyterian Church, to which the Senator had been carried as a baby to hear his father's first sermon in Champaign. The Rev. Dr. B. J. Brinkerne, present pastor, delivered the eulogy, saying that memories of an exemplary life, throughout which Mr. McKinley had observed the counsel of his minister-father, would constitute the greatest monument to his memory.

Dr. William M. Hudson, President of Blackburn College of Carbondale, Ill., which Mr. McKinley had befriended, and Dr. Walter Malone of the McKinley Memorial Presbyterian Church also spoke.

Thousands who could not get into the church stood outside and heard the services broadcast by loudspeakers.

Besides State officials, a Congressional delegation of thirty-three, business associates and delegates from charitable institutions benefited by Mr. McKinley's public gifts, and men and women from humble walks of life were at the services.

Colleagues of Mr. McKinley present included Senators Deneen, Robinson of Arkansas, Moses, Overman, McNary, Fletcher, Shortridge, Ashurst, Weller, Broussard, Fess, Harris, Ernst, Stephenson and Tyson.

More than seventy motor cars took mourners and officials guests to the cemetery. The coffin was covered with roses and Scotch heather.

During the services work in offices, stores and factories was suspended.

COUNT SALM DENIES DEAL WITH ROGERS

No Truth in Reports of $500,000 Settlement of Suit Against His Wife, He Declares.

DEFENSE LAWYERS SILENT

Goodstein Says His Client Will Not Go Abroad to Seek Witnesses to Prove Fitness to Care for Son.

Count Ludwig Salm denied yesterday that he had agreed to accept $500,000 from Colonel H. H. Rogers, wealthy oil man, to drop his suit for separation from his wife, the former Millicent Rogers, and leave the country. Lawyers representing the Count, the Countess and her father continued silent.

The Count spent the day in the privacy of his quarters at the Gladstone Hotel, 114 East Fifty-second Street. He would see no reporters and when reached by telephone said: "My lawyers tell me I should give no interview, so I am very sorry. I cannot say anything."

"Don't you want to deny the reports that you have accepted a settlement outside of court?"

"Oh, yes, yes, absolutely. There isn't any truth that I have taken money at all," replied the Count. "But my lawyer advises me not to talk."

"Have you seen your son today?" he was asked. The Count is suing for custody of his two-year-old son, Peter, as well as for separation.

"No, I didn't get around," replied the Count. "He has a bad cold, poor child. Really, I can't say anything more."

Peter lives with the Countess at her father's house at 11 East Sixty-fourth Street, where it is said they are "not at home."

Albert Conway, attorney for the Countess, and Adrian Larkin, the Colonel's lawyer, believed to have acted as intermediaries in the agreement, said they had no statements to make.

"Is the Count leaving for Europe?" Herman B. Goodstein, the Count's lawyer, was asked.

"I have no comment to make," he replied.

It was then suggested the Count might be leaving for Europe to gather witnesses to testify to his moral responsibility and to his financial ability to care for his son. Mr. Goodstein had said such witnesses were necessary as his grounds for asking adjournment to Jan. 17 of the proceedings before Supreme Court Justice Aaron J. Levy.

"No, no, no," said Mr. Goodstein. "He will remain in New York till his case is settled."

Twin Brothers Held as Robbers.

Jose and Emanuel Hermandez, twin brothers, 34 years old, a waiter and an electrician, respectively, of 256 West Fifty-third Street and 81 West 103d Street, were arrested yesterday on information in an anonymous letter and charged with the hold-up and robbery of an I. T. R. change booth at the Brooklyn Bridge Station from which $177 was taken on Nov. 24. They denied the charge.

DIAZ RULE RECOGNIZED.

Nicaraguan Consul Says Other Nations Followed Our Example.

Lauresno Zelaya, Consul General of Nicaragua in New York, announced yesterday that following the recognition by the United States of the new Diaz Government in Nicaragua similar action had been taken by the Governments of Great Britain, Colombia, Panama and "several others" and that "more are being reported to him daily."

Señor Zelaya said this recognition was an indication of the approval of the majority of the world for the conservative victory in the administration of Nicaraguan affairs. President Diaz, he said, was a business man and his Administration "will be favorable for the financial and commercial stability of the republic as well as for the prosperity and security of foreign property holders."

both the person and the work of such civilian, and all other civilians coming in contact with prisoners, be immediately inaugurated, to the end that these potential channels for the smuggling of contraband to the inmates be sealed.

4. We recommend that the District Attorney prepare and introduce to the coming session of the Legislature for enactment such measures as would serve to make a violation of the rules and regulations of the Department of Correction by its employes punishable as a crime, where such violation may reasonably be regarded as a menace to the public safety.

Urge Relief of Congestion.

5. The dangerous and unhealthy congestion in the city prisons at the present time is so great as to necessitate in hundreds of instances the placing of two prisoners in one cell. This congestion should be relieved as speedily as possible. We recommend to that end that the proper public authorities adopt all necessary steps to expedite the construction of the new penal institutions which have been designed for Rikers Island. We regard that idleness among prison inmates is one of the most prolific hatcheries of crime. Hence, we urge that suitable provision be made in such institutions for furnishing useful occupation to the inmates thereof.

6. We find that many of the members of the custodial forces of the city prisons accept steady private employment outside of their public or departmental hours of service. In our opinion, the efficiency of such employes for the public service is seriously impaired thereby. We recommend that such private employment be forbidden.

7. We find that in some of the largest and most important of the penal institutions in the Department of Correction, their electrical and other mechanical equipment is, owing to lack of personnel, operated by some of the inmates. We recommend that all work of this nature be entrusted to civil employes, duly qualified therefor.

8. Evidence has been presented to us respecting the laxity and dereliction of various keepers of the Tombs Prison at the time of the attempted escape hereinabove referred to. We recommend that such evidence be submitted to the Commissioner of Correction, to the end that charges may be preferred against such keepers; and in the event of their conviction thereon, we urge the imposition of the most drastic penalty within the power of such Commissioner to inflict.

9. We desire to call special attention in this presentment to the zeal, courage and loyalty of the various keepers and police officers whose prompt action, in the face of grave personal danger, was responsible for the failure of the attempted escape above referred to, and we commend their conduct to the cognizance of their superior officers.

Knabe
Acknowledged the World's Best Piano

MORIZ ROSENTHAL
First Recital of Season
Sunday Afternoon, Dec. 12th

"My experience with the Knabe pianos was a case of love at first hearing. The popularity your piano enjoys makes it superfluous to dwell on its general merits. But I cannot refrain from pointing out its wonderfully ringing and singing tone in the treble, especially in the section which I call 'the dangerous zone', and which asserts itself in the Knabe with astounding power and crystalline purity.

"Shall I dwell on its wonderful action which fulfills the most exacting demands, especially in quick repetitions on the same key and which, in connection with the marvelous sonority of your instrument, allows the artist to bring out all shades, gradations and tints from the softest whisper to the most thunderous climaxes. Rather let me thank you for your superb pianos and allow me to assure you that I treasure them as offsprings of the most elevated American art of piano building."

Doheny Says He Never Had Any Misgivings About His $100,000 Cash Loan to Fa

master General New, who had been a colleague in the Senate and also in the Harding Cabinet, declared his confidence in Mr. Fall. The other witness who did so was Charles N. Bassett, a banker of El Paso, Texas.

Other witnesses today were J. M. Danziger, former Vice President of the Pan-American Petroleum and Export Company; J. C. Anderson, President; Secretary Wilbur and Harry P. Blackby, an accountant of the Pan-American Petroleum and Transport Company.

Henry B. Moffett and Dr. George Otis Smith, both of the Geological Survey, were the concluding witnesses, called by Mr. Hogan, with the exception of character witnesses for Mr. Doheny. One of these was the Rev. James Whitcomb Brougher of Los Angeles, President of the Northern Baptist Convention. The second was W. M. Garland of Los Angeles.

ROBERTS BEGINS QUESTIONS.

Beginning his cross-examination of Mr. Doheny, Mr. Roberts inquired to some extent into the past business activities of the witness, especially those of the Pan-American Petroleum and Transport Company, the lessee of the Elk Hills naval oil reserve, and also the company which obtained the Pearl Harbor Fuel Depot contract. All of the stock of the California company, Mr. Doheny explained, was owned by the Pan-American, which was the company operating in the Tamaulipas (Mexico) fields.

Mr. Doheny said he was familiar with the estimates as to oil content of the Elk Hills reserve. He testified as to various leasing transactions prior to 1922, one of them involving the offset wells which Secretary Denby authorized for the purpose of protecting the Elk Hills reserve from drainage by interests whose holdings were outside of but adjoined the naval reservation.

"I take it," said Mr. Roberts, "that before you made the contract and lease of Dec. 11, 1922 (Elk Hills lease) you made some calculations or estimates as to what the thing involved by way of expense and by way of profit?"

"At that time, no, sir," replied Mr. Doheny.

Q.—And, as I understand it, you had not then any estimates before you, when that thing was made? A.—Of the values of the property?

Q.—Yes. A.—No, sir.

Q.—And of the expenditures? A.—No, sir.

Q.—I think you have said, Mr. Doheny, that the lease of Dec. 11 you made with the idea of profit? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—In other words, it was a business transaction? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—I understand you to say that if you drilled up the whole of that territory, the wells ought to be about one to ten acres? A.—If it were all worth drilling, yes, sir.

Q.—And that is spacing them about 660 feet apart each way, is it not? A.—Not necessarily, Mr. Roberts. That might mean drilling them very close along the border, if there happened to be a bonanza region along the border, so as to protect the drainage from the border, and then allowing for a larger area on the inland, where they did not require protection.

Q.—Generally speaking, however, in the territory that is not right along the firing line, so to speak, about 660 feet apart is the way you spaced them? A.—Something like that, yes, sir.

Q.—Did you make any calculations before you went into that lease as to the possible differences in royalty rate between the standard Interior Department royalties and the royalties that were suggested as a compromise? A.—No, sir; I did not make any calculation of it at all.

Q.—At the time that that lease was made, I gather from your memorandum that your company had already some 5,000,000 or nearly 6,000,000 barrels of storage on the Atlantic Coast, and that you were then engaged in increasing the amount of that storage. A.—Yes, sir.

Market Low at That Time.

"That storage was scattered around at different points on the Atlantic Coast and in different amounts?" asked Mr. Roberts.

"It was placed at different seaports," said Mr. Doheny.

"I understand you did not drill because if you had produced oil there in the first place, the market was low at that time, was it not?"

"Yes, sir," replied the witness.

"And it was very inadvisable to drill immediately for that reason?"

"I presume so. Yes, sir," was the reply.

Q.—That was in your mind, was it not? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—And also you did not want to drill and produce that oil until you had your own pipe line in, and until you had your own refinery to handle this. Is that not right? A.—That is true.

Q.—So that up to the time of the appointment of the receivers for the property, there was comparatively little drilling on the reserves? A.—Not very much.

Q.—At the time the receivers were appointed I think there were perhaps six or seven wells in production, perhaps eight or nine, I am not sure of the number, and they were producing about 170,000 barrels a month, were they not? A.—I don't remember as to that. That information could be given with exactness by Mr. Anderson, but I would not know.

Q.—Are you familiar with the amount of investment that there was in these wells? My recollection is that the figure was about a million dollars in those wells. A.—I do not know what the amount is. I really do not keep track of the detailed costs of those transactions.

"I understood you to say yesterday," said Mr. Roberts, "that you had some talk with Mr. Fall about his resigning from the Interior Department."

"Not any talk about it. He merely mentioned it to me as one of the happenings of his career," Mr. Doheny replied.

"Is it not a fact that you had no knowledge about when he would resign?"

"I had knowledge as to when he intended to resign; when he first spoke to me about it."

"What knowledge was that?"

"He said he intended to resign at the end of the first year; the 4th of March, 1922."

"Mr. Doheny, did you testify before the Senate committee that you did not know when he would resign, and never discussed with him when he would resign?" asked counsel.

"I don't remember that I testified to that," replied Mr. Doheny.

"Senator Pitman—'Well, you had in mind employing him and his repaying this note out of his employment?'

"Mr. Doheny—'Yes, sir.'

"Senator Pitman—'And he had talked to you about resigning from the job of Secretary of the Interior?'

"Mr. Doheny—'Yes, sir. But I did not know how soon he would retire; whether he would stay his term out or not. We never discussed the length of time that he would remain in the Interior Department.'"

Q.—Did you so testify? A.—If it is in the record, I certainly did.

Q.—Now, with that in mind, will you say whether you did ever discuss with Secretary Fall the time when he would retire? A.—I am quite sure that Secretary Fall never discussed his affairs with me at all. He merely mentioned to me that he expected to resign on the 4th of March, 1922. That date had already passed, of course, and I did not know whether he had made up his mind to resign on the next 23d of March or not, so that the first date was fast in my mind. The remainder of it I know nothing about, just as I told Senator Pitman.

Did Not Tell All He Knew.

"In other words, you did not know whether he was going to stay or would resign before his term ran out?" asked Mr. Roberts.

"Well, I did know, but I was not telling Senator Pitman everything I knew. I was not very polite to Senator Pitman because he was not polite to me," said Mr. Doheny.

"But you were under oath at that time?"

"I was."

Q.—And you were purporting to tell the facts, were you not? A.—Yes, sir. I was telling the facts as well as I knew them.

Q.—Therefore, the facts, as well as you knew that at that time, were that you did not know whether he intended to resign or not? A.—No. I could not tell what was in Mr. Fall's mind from time to time. He might change it, you know.

Q.—You said several times in your Senate testimony, as I understand your testimony, that you realized that there were suspicions created about this $100,000 transaction? A.—Yes, sir, since the Senate investigation committee had taken cognizance of it.

Q.—Of course, you realized that a loan of $100,000 to a Cabinet officer by a gentleman who was having contractual relations with the Interior Department would create suspicion, if known, did you not? A.—No, sir; I had not any idea of it until that Senate committee commenced to investigate about it.

Q.—In other words, do I understand you that you would have felt there was no reason why you should not tell anybody you had loaned $100,000 to Secretary Fall? A.—None whatever.

Q.—And you would not have had the slightest compunction about making it entirely public at any time? A.—No, sir. That was how the Senate committee came to know about it, because I had no compunctions about it.

Q.—Was it not because Price McKinney had been subpoenaed and Price McKinney knew about it? A.—I did not know that Price McKinney knew about it.

Questioned on Loan Publicity.

"Was it not because the Senate committee was getting such facts that the thing would likely become public any way?" asked Mr. Roberts.

"I did not know the facts the Senate committee was getting after I went West," said Mr. Doheny.

"I thought you testified you had read about Senator Fall's letters to the committee and about these investigations that showed that Mr. Fall had spent $100,000."

"I read about his interview down in Florida," was the reply.

"I understood you to testify before the Senate committee that you did not remember why you sent this down in cash, and that you could not remember whether Fall asked you to do so or whether it was your own idea to do it in order that there might be no suspicion," said Mr. Roberts.

"I so testified," Mr. Doheny answered.

Q.—At Page 1164 of this record, did not this occur: "Senator Stanfield: 'Did it not occur to you at the time you were making this loan to Mr. Fall that if the public should become cognizant of the fact you were making such a loan you might be misjudged or Mr. Fall might be misjudged, and did that not prompt you to send the money to Mr. Fall in cash rather than transmit it through the banks, as in the ordinary course of business?'

"Mr. Doheny: 'I am not quite certain whether I was prompted by any opinion of my own or whether I did it at the request of Senator Fall. Of course, I might have been influenced by some such thought.'" Did you so testify? A.—I testified so, yes, sir.

Q.—Mr. Doheny, did you have any accounts at banks other than Blair & Co. in New York? A.—I had some substantial accounts in one bank in Los Angeles, I believe.

Q.—Any in New York? A.—No, sir, I don't think so.

Q.—I understand you to say you were a partner in that large banking house of Blair & Co.? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—Of course, there would not have been the slightest difficulty for you to ask Blair & Co. to wire a Washington bank the money to Secretary Fall's credit, would there? A.—Not at all, No, sir.

Q.—That would have been a safer way to get the money to Washington, would it not? A.—It might have been.

Q.—Secretary Fall could have gotten the cash from a Washington bank on your telegraphic order through Blair & Co., could he not? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—Were you familiar with the fact that your son and another gentleman came down with the money? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—I suppose that was a precaution, as they were carrying a large amount of money? A.—Mr. Plunkett always traveled with my son wherever he went. He was sort of a personal secretary.

Admits Cash Plan Was Unusual.

"You are, of course, with your business connections and knowledge of business, acquainted with the fact that it is very unusual to send a draft or to send telegraphic advices where cash is to be delivered in another city?" asked Mr. Roberts.

"That has not been customary with most of our shipments of money. They have been largely to Mexico," said Mr. Doheny.

"Of course, where you send American currency to Mexico, there are difficulties about sending checks, and so on. You then have to send the cash, do you not?"

"Yes, sir."

"But there is no such difficulty between New York and Washington?"

"No, sir," replied the witness.

Q.—Of course, you recognize that if the money had been transferred in that way, there would have been a record made of the transfer. A.—That is right.

Q.—Whereas, in the plan that you did follow, no record was made which showed any connection of yours with the money. A.—That may be so, yes. The facts are as they are.

"Did it occur to you that if Senator Fall should carry $100,000 in cash 2,000 miles to El Paso or to Texas, that was a long way to carry that sum of cash, in currency?"

"It might be considered so."

"Did you make any record of this transaction on your books of account, Mr. Doheny?"

"The only record that I made is the record on our own bank books," said the witness.

"Of course, there is no record on your bank book, because your son drew the check."

"Except on the bank book of the bank I am interested in, Blair & Co.," said the witness.

"Of course, the books show that they paid out $100,000 to your son on Nov. 30, do they not?" asked Mr. Roberts.

"Yes, sir," was the reply.

Q.—It shows it was paid out of the account of your son and his wife. A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—That is not, of course, an account in any book with you? A.—No.

Q.—I say either in your own bank or in your own private books? A.—No, sir.

Q.—Naturally your son made a record of the fact that he had drawn $100,000, in his checkbook, as he testified. A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—But that would be a record in his bankbook, would it not? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—You do not know that there is any identifying entry there to show that that money went to Mr. Fall, do you? A.—I don't know whether there is or not.

Q.—You have never seen any record, either in his books or yours, that showed that the money went to Secretary Fall, have you? A.—I don't know whether I have or not.

Insists Matter Was Personal.

"May I ask you if there was any reason why you sent your son with the money rather than somebody else?" asked Mr. Roberts.

"Because I would rather trust my son to take money than anybody else, and I do not usually send other messengers with money that way, anyway."

"You say you do not usually send messengers out with money that way?"

"No."

"When you send cash to Mexico you do not send it by your son, do you?"

"No, sir. I send it by trusted agents of the company down there."

"Do I gather from you that there was no one else with whom you would care to trust $100,000 in cash in New York except your son?"

"Oh, yes, there was," said Mr. Doheny.

Q.—Your son, of course, knew Mr. Fall very well? A.—He knew him very well, yes, sir.

Q.—You and your family had lived at the Wardman Park Hotel, where Secretary Fall was at that time living? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—And, therefore, no comment would be raised about your son going in there to see Secretary Fall? A.—That did not occur to me.

Q.—You say it did not occur to you? A.—That did not occur to me. That might be true, though, nevertheless.

Q.—Can you tell me any reason why you chose your son rather than one of the other trusted messengers? A.—Because he was my most trusted agent, and this was a personal transaction: one that he was interested in.

Q.—Was it because it was a confidential transaction? A.—No, not necessarily confidential. It was a personal transaction of some importance, and I was to get a note in return for the money. I sent my most trusted agent, whom I was endeavoring at that time to work into every phase of the business of handling the fortune that I expected sometime or other he would handle all of.

Q.—Of course, it would not give him any particular education in handling your fortune to have him take $100,000 to Washington, would it? A.—Yes, sir, even if he had been held up on the way he would have learned something. He would have had something in experience.

Q.—He would have had a very serious experience if he had been held up, would he not? A.—Yes.

Q.—You say you were to get a note for this money? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—And you sent your son because you were to get a note? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—You had absolute confidence in Secretary Fall, had you not? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—No trouble about his mailing you a note, was there? A.—No.

Q.—You would expect, if he told you he was going to give you a note, that he would mail it to you? A.—I would, yes, sir.

Carried Note in His Wallet.

"And there was therefore no need that your son should be there so that he could make sure and absolutely certain that he would get the note the day he would turn over the money, was there?" asked counsel.

"Well, perhaps there might not have been any need of that. I am admitting that there really was no need for it," replied Mr. Doheny.

Q.—Well, Mr. Doheny, you have, I believe, several deposit boxes or places of safe keeping in New York for your papers, have you not? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—I understand you to say that when the note came back you put it in your wallet? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—And carried it there for some three weeks? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—Had you been to your safe deposit box in the meantime? A.—Mr. Roberts, I have had safety deposit boxes in banks for twenty-five years, and in Los Angeles banks and in the——

Q.—In the Equitable Building, New York? A.—In the Equitable Building, the Guaranty Trust Company Bank—every big trust company that has banks try to get us to buy safety deposit boxes there and we usually do rent them. I have never gone into a safety deposit box in my whole life, never have opened a safety deposit box in my whole life.

Q.—You mean you sent somebody else to do it? A.—Yes, my wife usually does it. She is usually with me, or I send Mr. Sands, my personal representative, or my son. I never do.

Q.—Did you send anybody to this box between Nov. 30 and Dec. 20, 1921? A.—No.

Q.—Are you sure you sent no one to any box for any purse? A.—I don't remember.

"Did you count Mr. Fall's obligation as of worth and value when you got it?" asked Mr. Roberts.

"Yes, sir," said Mr. Doheny.

"And is it your habit to carry $100,000 notes around in a wallet?"

"Well, if I choose to do so."

"Why did you—was it your idea to take a demand note?"

"I don't remember now whether that was my idea or his. I think it was his idea to give me a demand note. One that I could if I at any time—well, that is my idea. You are asking my opinion of what his opinion was. I don't——

Q.—No, I asked you if that was your idea, to take a demand note? A.—No, it was not my idea.

Q.—That is the answer, and the first time you knew that it was to be a demand note was when you saw it when it came back? A.—I didn't even remember whether he told me he would give me a demand note. He might have told me—if you want me to tell you what he told me, I don't know whether that is good testimony or not.

Q.—Well, Mr. Doheny, if he had made it payable in one year, two years or three years that would have been entirely satisfactory to you? A.—Yes.

Q.—You didn't want to press him for the money? A.—No.

Q.—And a demand note made it possible for you to call on him for the money at any time? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—And that might embarrass him if you did? A.—Yes, sir.

TELLS OF TEARING NOTE.

"And the only reason you tore the note, as I understand it, is that you did not want to embarrass him?" Mr. Roberts inquired.

"No; so that strangers would not exercise the option that I had myself," replied Mr. Doheny. "When he gave me the demand he put trust in me that I could call upon him to pay the note when I believed he could pay. Now, I didn't want entire strangers to exercise that option, to bring pressure upon him to pay it."

Q.—Did you ever discuss with Mr. Fall whether he would repay this note, or when? A.—Why, he told me, when he asked for the loan, he would pay it either out of proceeds of the ranch, profits of the ranch or from the sale of the ranch or some other way.

Q.—When did you learn Mr. Fall was not the owner of these two ranches? A.—I never have learned that, up to this date.

Q.—Why, you produced here yesterday a certificate of stock and said you understand his home ranch and the new ranch, the Harris ranch, he had bought had been turned over to a corporation. A.—Oh, well, I call that his—I still call it his ranch, as you have been in the habit of speaking of my leases as the Doheny lease and the Doheny contract, when I never made the contract; so I speak about Fall's ranches as Fall's ranches, although they belong to the Tres Ritos Cattle Company.

Q.—Well, when did you learn that they belong to the Tres Ritos Cattle Company? A.—I think I learned that after this Senate investigation.

Q.—And did you inquire what the capitalization of it was? A.—No, sir.

"You spoke yesterday about there being a mortgage on that ranch. When did you learn that there had been a mortgage put on it?"

"I learned it during the proceedings in this court room during the trial here," said Mr. Doheny.

"Yes, sir."

"This stock certificate seems to show that the total capital stock of the Tres Ritos Land Cattle Company is $10,000, divided into 100 shares."

"Yes, sir."

Q.—And therefore the par value of the stock that is represented by this certificate is three thousand? A.—Three thousand three hundred and thirty-three dollars.

Q.—Three thousand three hundred and thirty-three dollars? A.—That is right.

Q.—And this certificate bears date the 20th of May, 1922? A.—Yes, sir.

Mentions Loan Made to Obregon.

"I have called upon him for services, but not for professional services—not for paid services," continued Mr. Doheny. "I have called upon him for advice, as I might any man who was well posted on the subject that I was dealing with. Secretary Fall really was the one who negotiated for me the loan with General Obregon that saved the situation in Mexico, much to the disgust of a great many Americans now who own property down there."

Q.—Well, Mr. Doheny, did I understand you to say that you did not discuss payment of this loan with Secretary Fall when it was made, when the loan was made? A.—No, sir.

Q.—Have you discussed the payment of it with him since. A.—No, sir.

Q.—I understand you to say that you did not take security at the time you made the loan? A.—Oh, only his word and his note.

Q.—That is what I meant. That is, his mere promise to pay, that is not— A.—Well, and that is as good as his bond to me as long as Senator Fall is alive.

Says Fall Discussed Repayment.

"What did you say to him about not wanting security?" asked Mr. Roberts.

"Well, I told him that I would take it if he thought it was best, and I took it."

"And that was in 1925?"

"Yes."

"Up to that time had he paid either principal or interest on the loan?" asked Mr. Roberts.

"No, sir," said the witness.

"Up to that time had there been any discussion either by him or by you of his payment of the loan?"

"He once in a while deprecated to me that circumstances were such that he could not make a payment on it."

"Now, can you fix at all the time when any such conversation took place?"

"I cannot, no, sir. I didn't make any record of them."

Q.—You were in this civil trial at Los Angeles, were you not? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—And you knew that there was matter of comment that nothing had been given by way of security and nothing paid on the loan, didn't you? A.—Well, I thought then as I think now, that I didn't care what kind of a comment there was made on it.

"Things were as they were and comment did not bother me at all," Mr. Doheny continued, and there was a trace of anger in his voice.

"And you were called as a witness there and took your privilege against self-crimination?"

"Yes."

"If you thought there was nothing in the transaction that could in any wise criminate you, why didn't you speak up there?" Mr. Roberts asked.

Mr. Hogan was on his feet before the witness could answer. He declared that Mr. Roberts could not make a weapon out of a constitutional privilege.

"It is a shield," exclaimed Mr. Hogan. "And it has been said over and over again that when a man stands on it, it cannot be made a weapon against him."

Justice Hoehling did not see the matter in the same light as Mr. Hogan and overruled the objection. He told Mr. Roberts to proceed. The question was repeated.

"I did not say," replied Mr. Doheny, "that there was anything in the transaction that might in any way criminate me. I don't remember saying that. I think I stated that there was nothing in the transaction that could ——."

"That could criminate you, is that right?" Mr. Roberts interrupted.

"At any rate," Mr. Roberts continued, "you refused to testify, did you not?"

"Yes, sir," replied Mr. Doheny.

"And placed your refusal to testify on the ground that the Constitution gave you that right against possible crimination? Didn't you?"

"Against possible crimination under certain charges that were made against me, I presume."

Denies Seeking Fall Favor.

"Now, Mr. Doheny, did you not realize that this payment made to Secretary Fall would tend to make him more favorable toward you in any matter where he had a discretion to exercise as an officer of the Government?" asked Mr. Roberts.

"I did not realize that at the time I gave it to him because he could not be more favorable toward me than he had been before."

Q.—Mr. Doheny, after Nov. 30, 1921 [date of the $100,000 transaction], have you, directly or indirectly, paid any money to Secretary Fall or for his account? A.—I think I have.

Q.—How much? A.—Five thousand dollars.

Q.—You mean to this trial? A.—Yes, sir.

Before Mr. Roberts could frame his next question Mr. Hogan entered an objection to this line of testimony, arguing that it was Mr. Doheny's privilege to loan or advance to Fall anything he wanted, "on account of the expenses here or on any other account."

Justice Hoehling suggested that Mr. Roberts ask the witness if he had any other financial transactions other than the one of $100,000 prior to Dec. 11, 1922, which was the date of the Elk Hills lease, and Mr. Doheny answered he had not.

Next Mr. Roberts asked Mr. Doheny if he had any financial transactions with Fall after Dec. 11, 1922, and up to the time of Mr. Fall's resignation, from the Harding Cabinet, in March, 1923, and again the answer was in the negative.

"Since he left the Cabinet," continued Mr. Roberts, "have you had any financial transactions with Mr. Fall whereby you advanced money directly or indirectly to him for his account other than the one you have just mentioned here?"

Switches to Pearl Harbor.

Again Mr. Hogan was ready with an objection, and Justice Hoehling asked Mr. Roberts to pass the question, explaining that he would rule on it later in the day. Mr. Roberts then switched to the Pearl Harbor phase of the case.

"Mr. Doheny," he said, "I did not get quite clear from you when you were talking with Secretary Fall about this Pearl Harbor tankage, did I understand you to say that that was late in October or early in November, 1921?"

"It was some time around about that time."

Q.—Where was that conference held? A.—I am trying to place it. I think it was in Washington.

Q.—Do you have any memory of the conference? A.—No, I have no exact remembrance about it.

Q.—Well, now, you have testified you did have the conference, and that the matter was discussed. If you remember that, can you not remember where you were when you discussed it? A.—There were so many happenings, Mr. Roberts, I can remember neither dates nor places, except the results. I often remember only the results and nothing about the details that led to results.

"Well, now, what was it that Secretary Fall said to you and what did you say to him on the subject?" Mr. Roberts asked.

"I think I said to him—if you want what he said to me first—I don't know exactly what he said to me, except that he said that there was some idea of building storage at Pearl Harbor," said Mr. Doheny. "And that he thought the naval method of constructing tanks was so expensive that he ought to get from some company that was in the habit of building a large amount of them—that was in the habit of building a large amount of storage, the cost of building commercial tankage. Mr. Fall had known that our companies had built in Mexico something over 100 155,000-barrel tanks in a phenomenally short time, and he wished to get from me the estimate of commercial cost of building tanks for the navy. And I told him that I would try and get it for him."

Q.—Did he not say anything about how they were to be paid for? A.—Yes; he said something about that.

Q.—What did he say on that subject. A.—He said that the tanks would have to be paid for by the use of crude oil from Reserve No. 1 and Reserve No. 2.

Q.—Then you put in train, as I understand it, to find out how much this thing would cost? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—And you sent him your letter of Nov. 28, 1921—may I have the original of that letter, Mr. Holland? This photostat is hard to read. This is Nov. 28—Government Exhibit No. 18. Well, I shall have to use the photostat. This is the letter that Mr. Hogan showed you yesterday (handing paper to witness)? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—Signed by you? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—You have the letter in mind? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—You said that this was intended by you as a mere estimate of cost, to inform somebody, to inform the Government, what anybody would probably have to lay out for this kind of thing? A.—Did I say that?

Q.—I understood you to say so. If you did not, I am perhaps misquoting you. What did you say on the subject? A.—I say that this letter is just what it reads. I think the letter is better evidence of what it means than any meaning I can give to it right now.

Q.—I am trying to get what was in your mind when you wrote the letter. A.—I was trying to get for Secretary Fall the information he asked me for.

Said Letter Was a Proposal.

"That is what I thought that you had said, that it was a mere letter to give the Secretary information as to cost. Is that right?

"Yes, sir."

"In other words, that was not a suggestion that you were prepared to do this work?"

"It was a suggestion," said Mr. Doheny.

The letter was the one Mr. Doheny wrote Mr. Fall, in which he estimated the cost of the Pearl Harbor tankage, the field cost of crude oil and the cost of fuel oil delivered at Pearl Harbor, the construction features and so on. The letter was placed in evidence last week by the Government.

"Had you," resumed Mr. Roberts, "at this time had any talk with Captain Robison about doing this work at cost?"

"No, sir," was the reply.

Q.—Where, in this bid, or estimate, was any profit figure? A.—I suppose this is not a bid; this is only an estimate. This is not a proposition to take it; it is only just saying if we were to do it. I was telling him some of the inevitable things that would have to be covered. The other things would have to be met in negotiations.

Q.—You say, do you not, that it would require a return to us in royalty crude valued at so much? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—And do you also cover the figuration of interest on your investment, do you not? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—Had you talked with Secretary Fall about doing this work at cost if you got further leases? A.—No, sir.

Q.—You had talked nothing at all to Secretary Fall about further leases on this reserve? A.—No, sir, except—well, I never talked to Secretary Fall about any further leases on the reserve at any time.

Q.—Exactly, what did you refer to when you spoke of the naval reserve in this letter, No. 1? A.—No. 1 and No. 2?

Q.—Did you turn a copy of this letter over to anybody to use in negotiation with the department? A.—I think that I may have turned a copy over to Mr. Cotter.

"Did I not understand you to say yesterday that at the time you wrote that letter you looked upon the matter as a commercial proposition for your company?"

"Yes, sir, so far as this——"

"And the commercial advantages that your company might expect to have out of it were what?"

"It would be the royalty oil," said Mr. Doheny.

Q.—And anything else? A.—Not that I know of.

Q.—When, if at all, did you meet Mr. Fall in 1921? A.—I do not remember meeting Secretary Fall in the Summer of 1921.

Q.—Did you not, in the Summer of 1921, explain to Secretary Fall that royalties you were paying on that strip of leases were too high? A.—That has been the common expression in here, to use the word "me" with reference to this subject. Joe Cotter and others represented our company. I do not know whether it was Mr. Anderson or Mr. Cotter—I presume it was Mr. Cotter, he together with some representative of the Midway Company complained that those royalties were too high. As for myself, I do not know what the wells were doing or what the royalties were. Mr. Anderson was the one who attended to this. He was President and general manager of the company, and upon his shoulders rested the responsibility of success or failure of every enterprise we went into. I did not take any part in that 55 per cent. royalty; but he went ahead with Mr. Mergenheimer or some such name, somebody here in Washington, who was interested in it because of adjoining property, and they wanted to make a joint protest to get it lowered.

Other Matters on His Mind.

"Mr. Finney refused to lower the royalty and wrote this letter which said that we were getting relief leases, as they have been called, in return for that," continued Mr. Doheny. "That is about all the information I have got with regard to that.

"I was not giving very much attention at that time to these propositions, nor did I until after the Senate inquiry. I had too many other matters of very great importance on my mind that were in trouble. They were not matters that were going along quietly, but they were in a turmoil in an adjacent country with a Government that is still hostile to Americans in that country. I had all those matters on my mind of companies whose wells were bringing in 250,000 barrels of oil a day.

"That was the proposition that was troubling my mind to an extent that caused me to make over 30,000 miles by railroad during a year. So I do not know the dates that I wrote to this man or that man, or I do not know the people I met, and therefore I do not know what I said to them. I know what the results were, because the results were there to show for themselves."

Q.—Mr. Doheny, did you not personally, either by word or by letter, prior to the end of July, 1921, protest to Secretary Fall with regard to the royalties on that strip section? A.—I did not personally. I do not remember whether I did by letter or not.

Q.—I am not now speaking of Mr. Cotter's or Mr. Anderson's call at the Interior Department in November, 1921, which has been testified to here, but am referring to you personally and to a conference or letter to Secretary Fall on the subject prior to the 28th of July, 1921. A.—I may possibly have written such a letter if it is in the files here. I do not remember about it.

Q.—I understood you to say that having in mind your letter of Nov. 28, you expected as a commercial proposition to be interested in this Pearl Harbor storage. A.—No, I did not say that. I said we had no expectations.

Q.—You had no expectations? A.—But that we were placing ourselves in a position of being in line to make a bid if there was such a proposition offered to people to build that storage.

QUESTIONED ON 'WAR SCARE.'

"Now then, I understand that you had a conference with Admiral Robison, the date of which you did not fix exactly, except that it was before Dec. 20, 1921?" said Mr. Roberts.

"Yes, sir," said Mr. Doheny.

"And that conference, I understand, was in Washington?"

"Yes, I think that it was at the Admiral's office," said Mr. Doheny.

Q.—In the Navy Building in Washington? A.—The Navy Building in Washington.

Q.—And I understand you to say that you discussed there with Admiral Robison the situation on the Pacific Ocean? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—And Admiral Robison impressed upon you the importance of these storage tanks? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—And you said you would make a bid, or at least your company would make a bid, and it would be at cost, or without personal profit to you, some such phrase as that? A.—With all disregard of profit. I do not remember my exact words.

Q.—Did Admiral Robison say to you that he had taken this matter up with Congress? A.—No, sir.

Q.—Did he say to you that he had taken it up with any public official? A.—He said that he had taken it up with the Secretary of the Navy and with the Navy Board. In the course of his talk he told me about everybody from whom he got the information that he was conveying to me, which includes the entire personnel of the Navy, it seemed to me like. I do not remember now the names of the different boards of strategy and of war, and so forth, but he mentioned them to me.

Roberts Insisted on Tankage.

"Did he say what kind of tankage would be required?" asked counsel.

"Yes, sir; he said that it would be required as rapidly as it could be built. He said the specifications, of course, had not been gotten up yet. I do not remember his telling me about the specifications," Mr. Doheny answered.

Q.—Did he say it would be navy specification tankage? A.—I do not remember as to that.

Q.—You do not? It would be different from commercial tankage? A.—I do not remember that he stated that.

Q.—How quick could commercial tankage have been gotten there, Mr. Doheny? A.—A commercial tankage could not have been gotten there probably any faster than the other tankage, they all had to go by steamer. It might have been prepared a little bit quicker.

Q.—Mr. Doheny, when was your recollection refreshed as to the time of this first conference with Robison on this subject? A.—I do not know just when.

Q.—You remember your testimony on the subject before the Senate committee, do you not? A.—No, sir.

"Senator Walsh of Montana—'When did the negotiations commence which eventuated in the contract of April 25, 1922?'

"Mr. Doheny—'I do not know. I think they commenced along in February. I was not so familiar with them. It was when we were requested to make a bid. It might have been as late as March, 1922.'

"Senator Walsh—'There is some evidence here to the effect that the negotiations for this contract and the negotiations for the Sinclair contract ran along together.'

"Mr. Doheny—'Well, that is not true. I do not think they did, Senator, notwithstanding the testimony here, as I remember the situation.'

"Senator Walsh—'If I remember correctly Senator Fall gave testimony substantially to that effect.'

"Mr. Doheny—'I still want to insist that there were no negotiations on our part; that we simply put in our bids when the request for bids came out.'"

Q.—Did you so testify? A.—That is true.

Q.—And did you not testify on page 1,085 of this record:

"Mr. Doheny—'I still want to insist that I did not know anything at all about this Pearl Harbor contract until some time along in January, February or March, 1922—that is, as to the Pearl Harbor contract, I am speaking of now.'"

Discovered Some Inaccuracies.

"Did you so testify?" continued Mr. Roberts.

"I did," replied Mr. Doheny.

"When did you learn, if you have learned, that your testimony was wrong in that respect?"

"Well, I have discovered that it was inaccurate by various things," said the witness.

"Well, how?" asked Mr. Roberts.

"Well, in the first place, we left New York on the 19th or 20th of December to go West, and I am quite convinced now from various things that have happened that the meeting with Admiral Robison was before that.

"Mr. Doheny, you were, according to Mrs. Doheny's testimony, back in New York on Jan. 28, and remained there for some time."

"Jan. 28; yes, sir."

"So that it was possible for Admiral Robison to have come to New York to see you in the latter part of January and early February?"

"I think he may have come later to see me. I still seem to have it in my mind that I saw him later in January than the time that I saw him in December."

Q.—Mr. Doheny, do you remember discussing any other matter with Admiral Robison at that time? A.—If I did, it was something of very small importance as compared with the principal subject of our conversation.

Q.—Do you remember Admiral Robison telling you at this conference that there had been raised doubts of the legality of the project and he feared that there would not be bids? A.—I do not remember. He might have done it at that or some later——

Q.—Have you any memory of Robison communicating to you that there were grave doubts raised as to the legality of the project by oil companies? A.—I do not. I do not recall at this moment.

Q.—You do not recall having heard anything on that subject prior to April 25, 1922? A.—No, I do not.

Q.—And Admiral Robison did not tell you that he was talking to you because he feared he could not get bids for the reason that people had raised doubts as to the legality? A.—I do not know. He may have stated that. I have not got that in my mind.

Q.—You do not remember a conversation with Admiral Robison at or about that time concerning the Pearl Harbor project and offsetting? A.—We may have talked of that.

Finally Recalls Conversations.

"You do not remember it?" persisted Mr. Roberts.

"I think that I do, now that you have mentioned it. It may be that the memory comes to me from something that happened here yesterday," said Mr. Doheny.

"Is it not the fact, Mr. Doheny, that at or about Dec. 13 or 14 you had had some talk with Admiral Robison about what was the best way to offset on the borders of the reserve?"

"Yes, sir, I think so."

"Is it not a fact that there was discussion between Admiral Robison and you on the same date as the question of proper drilling of those reserves? Is that the fact?"

"No, sir," said Mr. Doheny.

Q.—Is it not a fact that Admiral Robison never discussed with you his anxiety to get a bid until late in January or February, 1922, and that at that time he told you the reports from the California companies about the illegality of the proposition made him doubt if others would bid? A.—No, sir.

Q.—Is it not a fact that Admiral Robison in late January or early February reported to you what Mr. Bain had found out on the Pacific Coast with regard to it and asked you if you still intended to bid? A.—No, sir, not that I remember.

Q.—Mr. Doheny, I ask you about the preferential right in the contract of April 25, 1922. I understood you to say yesterday that you never paid any attention to that matter? A.—That is true.

Q.—Did you not in your statement to the Senate committee refer to that preferential rate as the consideration which the Government gave you in return for your doing the Pearl Harbor work at cost? A.—I may have done that.

Q.—Did you understand that was the fact all along? A.—That was the fact.

Says No Profit Was Expected.

"That the preferential right was given in consideration that you would not charge a profit on the Pearl Harbor job?" asked Mr. Roberts.

"I don't know that that was the fact," witness replied.

"The preferential right, I understood, was given because we made a lower bid in consideration of the Government giving us the preferential right. There is a difference between the straight A bid and the B bid; and the difference between the A bid and the B bid was the difference in that preferential right."

"Did you understand that the bid involved a profit to your company?"

"No," said Mr. Doheny.

Q.—Not that the A bid did? A.—No; I didn't understand that either of them involved any profit to our company.

Q.—Now, I understand in the Senate committee hearing, in a statement you had prepared and read there, you spoke of the bid as a considerable saving to the Government in the actual cost of the construction under the contract, and a recompense to the Pan-American Petroleum and Transport Company for such waiver of profits by giving it an opportunity later on to extend its petroleum business in California through the acquisition of additional oil territory whenever the navy might be disposed to make additional contracts for the development of its reserves. Did you not so state? A.—I presume I did.

Q.—And therefore you did have in mind that this would give your company an opportunity to extend its oil business in this California field whenever the Government decided to drill up this land? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—And you knew that at the time the contract was entered into? A.—No, sir; I knew nothing at all about the bid when the contract was entered into.

Q.—You were desirous in 1921 and 1922 to enlarge your business by getting additional leases? A.—We always are.

Q.—And you were familiar with this large area in Naval Reserve No. 1? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—Known it for years? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—And it was the most eligible territory for your company to get in Southern California at that time? A.—I don't know, it may have been.

Q.—Well, was it? A.—No, there was a beautiful——

Q.—You say no? A.—No, if you want particulars so as to verify that, there is a beautiful piece of territory taken up in the last five or six years that was open at that time.

Q.—Known at that time? A.—Open at that time, known to be possible oil territory.

Q.—Possible oil territory? A.—Yes; as well as the reserve was known to be possible oil territory.

Hazy About Preferential Rights.

"Now, do you know the terms of the Dec. 11 contract?"

"Yes, sir."

"You knew that the Dec. 11 contract referred to the preferential right as a reason for making it?" asked Mr. Roberts.

"Yes, sir."

"You knew when you were negotiating on Dec. 11 contract and lease that it was the preferential right on which you were relying to get these leases?"

"I took very little part in it," said Mr. Doheny.

"I am not asking you that."

"I didn't know what a great deal of it meant. I didn't know and I don't know yet what the preferential right had to do with the contract and lease of Dec. 11," Mr. Doheny continued.

Q.—Did you not say before the Senate committee, page 1062 of the record of this trial (reading), "The lease on Naval Reserve No. 1 was the direct outgrowth of the contract which the Pan-American Petroleum and Transport Company made with the navy as a result of competitive bids," by which you were referring to the April 25 contract? A.—Yes, sir.

Q. (continuing reading)—"In which that company was the lowest bidder, for the construction of certain storage facilities and the furnishing of fuel oil at Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, and in the absence of that contract the lease would never have been executed." A.—That is true.

Q.—That you knew at the time the lease was executed? A.—Oh, I didn't know that the contract of Dec. 11 was made as a result of any preferential right. I thought the contract of Dec. 11 and the lease of Dec. 11 were supplemental. It was part of the same contract, a supplemental contract made with us because we were on the job—on the ground, doing the job, and doing it satisfactorily for the navy, and because we occupied the unenviable on enviable position of being able to furnish the navy the large contingent they had wanted on the Atlantic Coast.

Q.—Is it not a fact, Mr. Doheny, that, as Dr. Bain testified, the preferential right was discussed at the first meeting at which you were present, to discuss the December contracts? A.—I don't remember.

Did Not Make Up the Lists.

"You don't remember that at all?"

"No, sir," said Mr. Doheny.

"You said, I think, you were familiar with the letter of Nov. 29, in which the navy requested this additional storage?" asked Mr. Roberts. "Are you familiar with it?"

"No, not the letter."

"What did you mean in your memorandum when you said: 'Is the assurance that certain designated lands situated in Naval Reserve No. 1 should, when leased, be leased to the company establishing such an enterprise?' Will you tell me where, anywhere in the memorandum except in such lists any lands are mentioned?" (handing paper to witness).

"They probably contemplated the attachment of such a list as that."

"Is it not a fact that these lists were made up in your company of alternative areas to be leased?"

"They probably were, but I didn't make them up."

"Well, did you make up this memorandum?"

"Yes; I made up the memorandum."

Q.—And when you made up the memorandum and referred "to the following lands" did you have somebody in your office make up the areas? A.—No; I made up the memorandum together with Mr. Anderson and Mr. Cotter, and I don't remember now how the list came to be placed in there.

Q.—Mr. Doheny, you have said something about the use of your tankers for the conveyance of oil to Pearl Harbor? A.—Did I say "my"?

Q.—I mean your company when I say yours— A.—I am usually very particular about calling a thing mine or the company's. I do not think, during all my business career, I have denominated anything mine that did not belong 100 per cent. to me.

Q.—I will try to be careful about that. A.—It doesn't make any difference, only I did not wanted to be misquoted before the Court and jury.

Q.—Now, the tankers that were to be used were intended to carry oil to Pearl Harbor, were they not? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—And you expected to make a profit out of it? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—And in that sense the contract of April 25 did involve a profit? A.—To the steamship department.

Q.—And did you expect to handle the royalty oil to make a profit? A.—We expected to handle the royalty oil in some way.

Q.—To make a profit? A.—I think, however, Mr. Anderson and Mr. Cotter did make a proposition to Mr. McLaughlin of the Associated Company to take the oil off our hands.

Q.—And did Mr. McLaughlin insist on paying more? A.—No, Mr. McLaughlin was not making a bid at all at that time.

Q.—At what time? A.—When they put in a bid. I understood Mr. Cotter to say that they offered Mr. McLaughlin the oil at the price we were getting.

Associated Was to Pay Premium.

"Now, have you knowledge as to when the contract which bears date April 22, 1922, was negotiated?"

"This was negotiated after that," said Mr. Doheny.

"It must have been negotiated between April 22 and May 2, was it not?"

"Yes, sir."

"And you knew the Associated agreed to pay a premium of 15 cents per barrel?"

"Yes, sir."

"And you know the profit on that was over $700,000?"

"I know the difference between the price we took it at and that they took it was over $700,000. How much of it was in overhead I don't know," said Mr. Doheny.

Q.—As a matter of fact, they had a pipe line in there. Did they not? A.—I don't know. I think they had.

Q.—Did they not take the oil on your account; the delivery was made direct to them? A.—Well, they had a pipe line into Naval Reserve No. 1 and had been taking that oil for a long while.

Q.—You were interrogated yesterday about a letter that had been written by Dr. Bain to Mr. Fall and shown to you by Mr. Cotter, and I believe you said it was destroyed, and I understood you to say that the letter was destroyed because you said you did not require any help from the Government; you had a contract and could take care of yourself; is that right? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—Was that letter the first intimation that you had of any supposed illegality of this contract? A.—No, sir.

Q.—When was the first intimation that you had? A.—I think it was about the time that the bids were made.

Q.—Before or after? A.—After the bids were made.

Q.—How did you get that information, by telegram? A.—I don't know, it was in the air some place; bruited about, just gossip.

Q.—You had been in Mexico previously? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—During the most of March and April? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—I think you said you made two trips there during that period? A.—Yes, sir.

Bain Urged Doheny's Views.

"Two trips?" continued Mr. Roberts.

"I am not sure whether the one was after April 15, or before," said Mr. Doheny.

"And were you in New York between April 15 and April 16?" asked Mr. Roberts.

"I am not sure."

"I think Mrs. Doheny said you arrived in New York April 16, and left on the 19th for Mexico City?"

"Then we were in New York."

Q.—Now, you had not heard of any alleged illegality in this contract up to that time? Up to April 1? A.—I don't remember that I did.

Q.—In this letter Dr. Bain says: (Roberts, reading a letter from Bain to Fall).

"There is, however, another phase of it. None of us want Mr. Doheny to get into trouble, and I take it we will want to do anything we can to make it easy for him. I have been told that there was a definite proposal to have one of the smaller oil companies go into court and fight this contract with a view to getting a decision as to the right of the department to make such a bargain. This proposal was not carried through. Mr. Storey tells me that he objected to it, as he felt that it would embarrass the department and would give support to the trouble makers in Congress.

"He professes to be anxious and willing to do anything he can to help the department to carry out its plans, but to be in the awkward position of having an opinion from his attorney which might be quoted against him in case the matter ever came up. Out of all this has come the suggestion repeatedly that the opinion of the Attorney General be obtained as to the legality of the contract. I realize the objections to asking such an opinion, but I have thought it proper to let you know the difficulties that are being raised here so that you might reconsider the matter and decide as to whether you might not properly ask the Attorney General to put in writing what I have understood was his informal and verbal expression of opinion favorable to the action the department has taken.

"I am not certain that Mr. Doheny cares, but Mr. Cotter will see him tomorrow and if it does seem to them important I am giving Mr. Cotter this letter to show you, so that you may know what I have found out here."

No Investment Yet Made.

"What letter is that?" interrupted Mr. Doheny.

"The letter of May 12, 1922, from Dr. Bain to Mr. Fall, routed as I understand this correspondence through you to Mr. Cotter," Mr. Roberts explained.

"You had not at that time," continued Mr. Roberts, "made any investment in the Pearl Harbor job, had you?"

"No. I do not think we had. We had made an engagement."

Q.—You had engaged Mr. Gano Dunn in the matter? A.—Yes, sir; and Admiral Robison.

Q.—You had not engaged Admiral Robison? A.—No, sir, we had made an engagement with him to carry out this project.

Q.—Therefore, whether the Attorney General said it was legal or illegal, you proposed to carry it out. Is that right? A.—I think that regardless of those charges of illegality we proposed to carry it out; no legal or illegal, but regardless of the charges made by those people, because we knew the source of the charges, and knew they were behind the charges. If you would like to have it, I would be perfectly willing to explain what that remark means.

Q.—Did Mr. Fall tell you what the objections were to the contract? A.—No, sir.

Q.—Did Mr. Fall tell you of any objections he had to taking the opinion of the Attorney General in this matter? A.—No, sir.

Q.—Did Admiral Robison tell you of any objection he had? A.—No, sir.

Q.—Did Dr. Bain tell you of any objections he had? A.—No, sir.

Q.—It would have been a tremendous strength to you to have had the ... would it not? A.—No, sir.

Q.—You realize that? A.—No, sir.

for competitive bids on that, at San Pedro, Signal oil, and that sometimes your company bid, and sometimes not? A.—We have bid every time.

Q.—You have not always been the low bidder? A.—We took the contract every time that came, when there was a big scoop made under us. We took it at 10 per cent. below the market price every time.

Q.—Do you say you took it every year except one? A.—Every time except one. That is my understanding. This time we were more than 10 per cent. under the market price; nearly 20 per cent. under the market price.

Q.—Were you advised by Secretary Fall who were the other stockholders in that land and cattle company? A.—No, sir.

Q.—Have you ever inquired who the other stockholders are? A.—I have not. I believe it is his family.

Q.—You have never asked? A.—No, sir.

Q.—Have you ever attended a meeting of the corporation? A.—No, sir.

Q.—Have you ever had notice of any meeting? A.—No, sir.

Q.—Do you know who the directors are? A.—No.

Q.—Do you know who the officers are? A.—I don't know anything at all about it.

Q.—You are quite sure that Secretary Fall never told you who were the other owners of stock in the corporation? A.—No, sir; he never told me.

Q.—And you never asked? A.—I never asked.

Says $200,000,000 Was Needed.

In reply to Mr. Roberts, Mr. Doheny repeated his testimony of yesterday that to drill up the whole of that reserve and to get refinery facilities, pipe line facilities, roads and water and whatever else was necessary for the development of a tract like that would involve an investment of $200,000,000.

Q.—In your opinion, that investment you had a right to expect, would bring back a profit of $100,000,000? A.—I thought that in the course of time it ought to bring back to you, sir.

Q.—In doing that sort of thing you do not invest the $200,000,000 all at first, do you? A.—No, sir.

Q.—You invest it from time to time as you drill the wells? A.—Yes, sir. I had that in mind.

Q.—And you get your capital back from it, also? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—And then have your profit over and above that, don't you? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—That is what you meant by "profit," that you would get back your investment and have a profit of $100,000,000? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—In other words, in developing a territory like that, you develop it, as you have said over a period of thirty or forty years. You drill a string of wells and they show a certain capital investment. As the oil comes out of them, the oil constitutes the capital return of the well and shows you a profit over and above? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—And then you go to another development? A.—Well, you don't always amortize the entire expense on one section before you begin to work in another.

Q.—Quite right. In other words, amortization of capital, which for me is quite a technical name that you have got to use, substantially means that you have got to get your capital back out of your oil that you get out of your wells or if you spend it you take out of the oil, you would never get your capital back? A.—That is right.

Redirect Examination Brief.

That ended Mr. Roberts's examination and Mr. Hogan began his redirect examination. It was quite brief.

Q.—Mr. Doheny, Mr. Roberts asked you with regard to what you said when you were called as a witness in the civil trial of the suit between the United States and the Pan-American Petroleum and Transport Company in Los Angeles. You called you to the witness stand in Los Angeles? A.—The Government.

Q.—And do you recall now just exactly the words you used to the Judge there? A.—No, sir.

Q.—Would you be able to do so if you had the record before you? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—Now, Mr. Doheny, in the record of the Los Angeles trial, I ask you to read to the Court and jury just what you did say when the Government called you to the witness stand. I call your attention to Page 1[illegible].

Mr. Doheny read his testimony from that page, as follows:

May it please your Honor, since this case and the two indictments have been presented personally in the District Court of the District of Columbia, charging offenses based upon the exact transaction now involved in this suit. There indictments are now pending.

I intend to meet the charges at Washington when this case was tried, but counsel for the Government objected and it was ruled otherwise. In view of the pendency of those indictments, I assert that I am not guilty of having violated any law or of having committed any moral principle, and that I am innocent of being vindicated when I go my day in court in Washington. Upon the advice of counsel, I decline to testify in this case, on the ground that any evidence I may give as to the transaction here involved may be used against me at Washington and might tend to incriminate me.

I have been advised by my counsel that the Constitution of the United States will enable the attorneys for the Government now doing in the trial at Washington what has been done here today, namely, calling me to the witness stand, and that my being called here by the attorneys for the Government is an attempt to violate my constitutional rights, and to do by indirection that which the highest law of this country would not permit to be done directly.

How Mr. Hogan Interposed.

Q.—You were asked by Mr. Roberts with reference to your understanding of the amount of the Pan-American Petroleum and Transport Company is required by the Dec. 11 contract to keep in storage during the period mentioned in that contract. Is it, or is it not, your understanding that at any time during the fifteen years the company can let its supply go below 3,000,000 barrels? A.—Not under the contract of Dec. 11.

Doheny Retires Smiling.

This ended Mr. Doheny's ordeal. He was smiling as he left the stand. Mr. Hogan shook his hand and told him he had done very well. Mrs. Doheny and young Mr. Doheny also indicated they thought he had made a good witness.

J. M. Danziger, former Vice President of the Pan-American Petroleum and Transport Company and assistant to its President, testified that he had advised Mr. Doheny against going into the Pearl Harbor project, "because it was apparent that the company was going in on a basis where it would make no profit."

Mr. Doheny, he said, "had pounded the table" at a later date, when informed that Mr. Danziger and other officials had said it "was an unwise piece of business" and also commented "that it did not make a damn bit of difference what anybody said." Mr. Danziger declared Mr. Doheny at no time mentioned to him anything about a lease or a preferential right.

J. C. Anderson, President and General Manager of the Pan-American Petroleum Company, said he first heard of the Pearl Harbor project when informed by Mr. Doheny the latter part of December, 1921. He told of seeing Dr. H. Foster Bain, Director of the Bureau of Mines, in Los Angeles early in 1922. A letter of March 8, 1922, to Mr. Anderson from J. J. Cotter, who was representing the Pan-American Company in some of the negotiations at Washington, was here introduced. It professed to tell what the Navy Department wanted and sought advice as to whether the company would consider making a bid.

"As you know," it concluded, "Mr. Doheny is away, but is expected back here early in April, and I hope you will let me have your views as soon as you possibly can so that we may have the benefit of them when he takes the matter up on his arrival here."

A letter from Mr. Anderson in his reply thereto spoke of the proposed deal as "rather complicated" and added:

"I am inclined to think our company better off without contract unless firm agreements are obtained making purchase of fuel, selling of crude and agreement that ratio of fuel and crude will be maintained during life of this contract."

Preferential Right Not Revealed.

Mr. Anderson testified today that at the time his company had no fuel oil, He said that before receiving a copy of the contract of April 25, 1922, he had no knowledge of a preferential right to future leases in naval reserve No. 1, and that it had not been discussed. He told of plans he had made in the early Fall of 1922 for stabilizing oil conditions in Southern California. This involved construction of a pipe line from the naval reserve to tidewater, a distance of 140 miles.

"We would transport the navy's oil free of charge," said Mr. Anderson, "build a refinery through which we would run the navy's oil, build 1,000,000 barrels of storage which the navy could use free of charge; construct a dock at tidewater where the navy could bunker its ships at cost, provided the navy would lease certain lands in reserve No. 1."

Mr. Anderson continued that Mr. Doheny was in Alaska when this plan was being made. On his return Mr. Doheny said he was going East and would take the matter up with Admiral Robison. Mr. Anderson stated that later he asked Mr. Doheny how the plan was getting on, and received the reply that "Admiral Robison wanted a great deal more than the plan called for."

Discusses Washington Talks.

Mr. Anderson then recited the events that transpired during negotiations and conferences over the matter at Washington.

"Did Mr. Fall attend any of those conferences?" Mr. Roberts asked.

"No, sir," replied Mr. Anderson.

Q.—Did Mr. Denby attend any of them? A.—No, sir.

Q.—Did you at any time while you were here late in November or early in December, 1922, see Mr. Fall? A.—I saw Mr. Fall one time.

Q.—Where? A.—At the Wardman Park Hotel.

Q.—Where? I mean in whose apartment? A.—One evening Mr. and Mrs. Doheny, Mrs. Anderson and myself had dinner with Mr. and Mrs. Fall in their apartment.

Q.—Did you have any talk with Mr. Fall at all, or was anything mentioned about the naval reserves that evening? A.—After dinner Mr. Fall said to me, "I understand that you have been talking to Ambrose about leasing a portion of the naval reserve at one-eighth royalty." I said, "Yes." Mr. Fall said, "There would never be any of the naval reserve lands leased at any one-eighth royalty." And he was very snappy about it.

Q.—What? A.—He was very snappy about it.

Q.—Was anything more said about it? A.—No, not a word.

Q.—From that time on did you see Mr. Fall at all in connection with these negotiations you were taking part in? A.—No, sir.

Mr. Anderson said the conferences in the Bureau of Mines were held two or three times a day for about ten days. Admiral Robison was "holding out for high royalties," but Mr. Anderson said he could not agree to them.

Q.—Did you come to an agreement on that? A.—With Admiral Robison?

Q.—Yes, sir. A.—No, sir.

Q.—What did you say to him on that subject? A.—We had a little scrap and I told Admiral Robison that he was too hard-boiled. We broke off negotiations.

Q.—And after you broke off negotiations did you tell anybody about having broken off negotiations, anybody connected with your company? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—Who? A.—Mr. Doheny.

Says Doheny Finally Accepted.

Mr. Anderson said he told Mr. Doheny that he would "much rather lose the lease than accept the royalties, that the other obligations we entered into were too much risk; the Naval Reserve was an unknown quantity and I would much rather pass up the lease and the contract." Mr. Doheny finally said, the witness continued, that he would accept the royalties, and dictated a letter.

Q.—What did you say when he dictated that letter? A.—That made me mad and I told Mr. Doheny that he was the boss; that if he wanted to pay the Government those kinds of royalties to go ahead and do it.

Q.—At any time while this was going on was Mr. Fall present? A.—No, sir.

Q.—At any time, to your knowledge, while those royalties were being considered, did Mr. Fall see Mr. Doheny, or did Mr. Doheny see Mr. Fall? A.—No, sir. Not to the best of my knowledge.

Mr. Anderson produced figures showing, during the time the Pan-American operated under the June 5 and Dec. 11 leases, how much oil was produced. He said that under the lease of Dec. 11, 1922, oil sales amounted to 1,988,384.86 barrels. The Government received in royalty 488,454.62 barrels, or 24.04 per cent. royalty. The amount in dollars was $1,481,758.23, and the Government royalty was $297,893.38.

"Now," Mr. Anderson continued, "the sales of gas and gasoline from this same property amounted to 189,186.87, which the Government received 26,646.88, making a total of both oil and gas and gasoline in dollars of $1,670,922.73, of which the Government received $413,930.24."

Q.—Now let me have the June 5 lease. You gave us the Dec. 11 lease. A.—To March 23, 1924.

Q.—Now give us the June 5 lease prior to the time it was consolidated. A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—That is up to July 23, 1924? A.—Oil sales in barrels, 353,090.84. Of this the Government received in royalty 81,880.92 barrels, or 24.38 per cent. royalty.

Q.—The royalty is 24.38 per cent? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—Now give it to us in dollars. A.—In dollars, $306,317.63, of which the Government received in royalties $73,857.30. Sales of gas and gasoline, $43,356.56, of which the Government received $2,803.44. This makes a total of both oil and gas and gasoline sales of $348,674.19, of which the Government received in royalties $76,660.74.

Q.—Have you the combined figures of the Dec. 11 and June 5 leases? A.—Yes, I have them combined.

Q.—Give them to us. A.—Total oil sales?

Q.—Give them in barrels. A.—In barrels, 2,203,475 barrels, of which the Government received in royalty 568,145.54 barrels, or 25.78 per cent. royalty.

Q.—Give it to me in dollars. A.—In dollars, $1,787,073.84; royalty, $461,250.66; gas and gasoline sales, $282,652.18; royalty, $29,240.26; making a total of $2,019,726.97, of which the Government received $490,890.95.

Government Spent Nothing.

Mr. Hogan then inquired what the Government spent in connection with the operations which produced that oil, gas and gasoline.

"Not a cent," responded the witness.

Q.—What were the total receipts stated in dollars? A.—The total receipts were $2,019,726.97.

Q.—What were the expenditures of the Pan-American Company in that development and operation?

Here Mr. Roberts objected, but the Court permitted an answer and Mr. Hogan resumed.

Q.—Tell us the expenditures by the Pan-American Company under those leases. A.—$1,279,013.80, leaving a balance between receipts and expenditures of $740,583.17.

Q.—Of which the Government received how much? A.—Of which the Government received $490,890.98 as against the Pan-American share of $249,983.19.

On cross-examination Mr. Roberts asked Mr. Anderson to tell of his conferences at Wasmington in November, 1922.

"You saw Admiral Robison?" asked Mr. Roberts.

"Yes, sir," said Mr. Anderson.

Q.—And Admiral Robison told you the Japanese situation was serious and he and the navy wanted more storage at Pearl Harbor? A.—He did.

Q.—Is that right? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—He said that he wanted it as quickly as possible? A.—He said he wanted it right away.

Q.—Right away? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—Did he say that the matter had been taken up with Congress? A.—No, I don't think he mentioned anything about Congress.

Q.—He did not mention anybody else, did he, in that connection? A.—Yes, he did. He said that his plan—no—that Secretary Denby had approved his and the board's plans.

Q.—For more storage? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—Did he tell you that the plans for the original 1,500,000 barrels of storage had been on the General Board's plan for years before? A.—I didn't talk with him about that.

The court adjourned until 9:30 o'clock tomorrow morning.

John McCormack, the singer, arrived in Washington tonight from New York to appear tomorrow at the trial as a character witness for Mr. Doheny, with whom he has been on terms of friendship for a dozen years.

DAVIS URGES CHANGE IN ARMY PROMOTION

Advocates 4 Per Cent. Turnover Annually to End Blockade by World War Officers.

WOULD RETIRE 421 YEARLY

Secretary of War Also Recommends New Distribution of Rank in Report to Congress.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—Confronted with the problem of relieving the plight of 5,800 World War army officers, faced with the prospect of a career in subordinate grades, Secretary Davis today recommended to Congress that the present regulation governing retirement of officers be amended so as to speed retirement and thus create more vacancies in higher grades.

The report submitted to Congress was drawn up by a committee consisting of the Assistant Secretary of War and the Chief of Staff, in conformity with Congressional authority. It revealed that these 5,800 officers, about half the present personnel of the regular army, received their commissions between November, 1918, and November, 1918.

An annual uniform turnover of not less than 4 per cent. in commissioned personnel, instead of the prospective irregular flow of officers into and from the active list, was recommended in the report. This could be accomplished by full utilization of existing means for the removal of officers from the active list by employing supplementary means.

This would include the retirement of brigadier generals and colonels commissioned in non-combatant branches upon reaching the age of 61 years or completing thirty-seven years of commissioned service. The present requirement is compulsory retirement at 64 for all officers. Under the new plan colonels commissioned in combatant branches would go on the retired list at the age of 60 or after completing thirty-five years of commissioned service.

Should the proposed changes not bring the annual attrition of 4 per cent., the recommendations suggest selective removals from the active list, in the discretion of the President, either upon or without application from officers.

These selections would be first among lieutenant colonels more than 57 years of age or with more than thirty years of commissioned service; second, majors more than 52 years of age or with more than twenty-five years of commissioned service; third, captains more than 47 years of age or with more than twenty years of commissioned service, and fourth, officers in any grade with more than eight years of commissioned service.

ELOPE FOR SIMPLE WEDDING

Couple Married in Port Chester Will Have Second Ceremony.

Mrs. Henry J. Schnitzer of 310 West Eighty-sixth Street announced yesterday the marriage of her daughter, Blanche Harryette Schnitzer, to Charles Appelbaum of Fordham, on Dec. 4, thereby disclosing an elopement undertaken to avoid an elaborate wedding ceremony.

The bride is a graduate of both Wellesley College and Columbia, and the bridegroom of Columbia. She is studying for a doctorate in economics at Columbia. He was a football player at college and is now in the bond and investment business. He is a son of Mrs. Sonia Appelbaum.

Mr. Appelbaum and Miss Schnitzer met a few weeks ago in Paris, where she was with her family. On Dec. 4 they said they were doing to a dance, but they drove to Port Chester, found a justice of the peace and were married, the justice's wife and the taxicab driver acting as witnesses. They had made plans for a wedding in the Christmas holidays, but at Mrs. Schnitzer's request they will have a second ceremony at the Ethical Culture Society, of which the bride is a member. This will be performed on next Monday by Dr. John Lovejoy Elliott in the society's meeting house at Central Park West and Sixty-fourth Street.

JUDGMENT AGAINST MAGUIRE

A judgment for $3,400 was filed in the Supreme Court yesterday against William Anthony Maguire, playwright, in the suit brought by Helen Neary for an accounting of an alleged partnership between them made in 1920 for the production of plays written by Mr. Maguire. She alleged that they produced one play, "Stand From Under," which caused a loss of $12,000, and that after 1920 Maguire wrote a number of other plays, two of which, "Six Cylinder Love" and "Kid Boots," were financially successful, but he refused to deliver the plays to the partnership to be produced. She asserted that this caused a loss of $700,000 to the partnership.

While the case was on trial Maguire agreed to settle for $4,400 as his share of the losses sustained by the production of "Stand From Under," and also agreed that if he failed to pay any instalment due the plaintiff was to recover $5,400. He paid $2,000 and then defaulted, for which reason judgment is entered for the balance.

FIRE KILLS DOCTOR IN BED.

Dr. Waitzfelder, 73, Probably Dropped Lighted Cigarette.

While smoking in bed, according to the police, Dr. Edward Waitzfelder, 73 years old, was burned to death in his apartment at 27 West Ninety-fifth Street early yesterday morning. The flames communicated to the window frames and when firemen of Engine Company 76, answering a still alarm, reached the scene they quickly extinguished the blaze and found the burned body of the doctor.

Dr. Grahm of the Knickerbocker Hospital said it was possible that Dr. Waitzfelder had suffered a heart attack, which caused him to drop a lighted cigarette among the bedclothes. J. E. Tietzel, who lives in the apartment above the doctor's, smelled smoke at about 5 o'clock yesterday morning and sent in the alarm. The fire did little damage to the doctor's rooms.

Dr. Waitzefelder, who was graduated from Bellevue Medical School in the class of 1873 and from New York University, has a sister, Miss Florence Waitzefelder, living in France, the police were told.

POVERTY BARS ARMY FROM MANOEUVRES

Wilbur Cancels Plan for Playing War Game With Navy Next May.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10 (AP).—Secretary Wilbur was formally notified today by Secretary Davis that the army could not take part in the proposed joint manoeuvres next May on the New England coast because of the expense involved.

Available appropriations cannot be stretched, the War Department has decided, to provide the necessary $25,000 minimum cost of even minor war games.

The plan for the proposed joint manoeuvres was devised last year after Congress had provided for the navy a sufficient fuel appropriation to permit the fleet to come from the Pacific into the Atlantic during 1927. Originally it was expected that the fleet would reach the scene of the manoeuvres after next July 1 and the War Department prepared to ask the Budget Bureau to approve a special fund to allow a large scale war game, with National guard, organized reserves and army aircraft taking part.

Navy plans, however, required the fleet to reach the scene in May and the War Department directed Major Gen. Preston Brown, commanding the First Corps Area at Boston, to confer with Admiral C. F. Hughes, Commander-in-Chief of the United States fleet, to determine if a limited scope "minor" joint maneouvre at the earlier date would be possible.

General Brown has reported it would cost at least $25,000 and probably much more for transportation of troops and supplies, lease of camp sites and other items, if the games were to be on a scale that would be of any value as a military study.

Examination of available funds at the War Department failed to find money to cover this cost, and Secretary Davis yesterday ordered the authorization for the army's share in the manoeuvres canceled.

SNEDEKER DECLARED HAVERSTRAW MAYOR

Appellate Decision Ousts Stalter After Eight Months' Tie-Up of Village Affairs.

Special to The New York Times.

HAVERSTRAW, N. Y., Dec. 10.—A bitter legal fight for the possession of the office of Mayor of Haverstraw which has continued since last March was terminated today by a decision of the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court naming Everett Snedeker as Mayor, instead of Ralph P. Stalter. The Court's decision reversed that of Supreme Court Justice Arthur S. Tompkins at Nyack some weeks ago.

Official business in Haverstraw, which has a population of 12,000, has been at a standstill while the matter was being threshed out in the courts. Policemen and street cleaners have gone without their pay, necessary sewerage construction work has been halted, and the banks have refused to honor checks drawn on the village's account by either of the contestants.

The dispute began when Mayor Patrick J. Lynch resigned in March after it had been called to his attention that he was not a taxpayer of the village. The Board of Aldermen elected Snedeker to succeed him. Stalter, who ran 100 votes behind Lynch in the previous election, contended that he was entitled to the office since Snedeker had not been a candidate.

Attorney General Albert Ottinger sent an assistant to plead Stalter's case before Justice Tompkins, who upheld Stalter, and he was Mayor for several weeks until the decision was reversed today.

NEW PREMIER IN DENMARK.

Madsen-Mygdal, Liberal, Accepts Post When Coalition Effort Fails.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

COPENHAGEN, Dec. 10.—M. Madsen-Mygdal is the new Prime Minister of Denmark. Attempts to form a coalition Government having failed because the Socialists refused to participate, M. Neergaard, former Prime Minister, sounded the Conservatives and Radicals on their attitude towards a Liberal Government, and received favorable replies. M. Neergaard thereupon informed the King of his position, and advised the monarch to send for M. Madsen-Mygdal as the Liberal leader best suited to form a Government. The King acted on his advice, and this afternoon M. Madsen-Mygdal accepted the invitation.

M. Madsen-Mygdal is an agricultural expert and landowner. He was Minister of Agriculture for four years. His free-trade principles may create a conflict with the Conservatives, and it is difficult to predict how long his Government will last.

FERTILIZER FIRMS DECIDE NOT TO FIGHT

Most of 39 Named in Anti-Trust Case to Plead Nolo Contendere in Baltimore Court.

HAVE STOPPED PRACTICES

Companies Accused Make 85 Per Cent. of Product Manufactured in This Country.

BALTIMORE, Dec. 10 (AP).—Probability that most of the thirty-nine fertilizer companies against whom anti-trust proceedings were filed by the Department of Justice, in Federal District Court here today, will not contest was indicated tonight in a formal statement of counsel. The companies, doing business chiefly in the South, and producing about 6,500,000 tons, or 85 per cent. of the fertilizer manufactured annually in the United States, are accused of negotiation of agreements to lessen competition and of manipulation of freight rates.

The Government's complaint, signed by William J. Donovan and Mary G. Connor, assistants to the Attorney General, and United States Attorney W. W. Woodcock, was filed by Mr. Woodcock.

It charged specifically that during three years preceding May 1, 1926, the defendant companies carried on their trade "pursuant to an understanding and agreement between all of said corporate defendants to lessen in essential respects competition among themselves as to terms and conditions of sale," and agreed upon the use of "certain ports as exclusive basing points, and of including freight rates from said ports in prices."

In a formal statement counsel for certain firms named said the "companies concerned have voluntarily cooperated" in the Government's investigation, which has been under way for a year.

Assurance had been given, the statement said, that the industry "may obtain the cooperation of the Government in working out a lawful code of trade, which will eliminate many trade abuses, which are expressions of excessive, unrestrained and ruinous competition."

Companies named in the Government's proceeding and the State in which they are incorporated are:

American Agricultural Chemical Company, Connecticut.
Armour Fertilizer Works, New Jersey.
Adair and McCarthy Brothers, Inc., Georgia.
Baugh & Sons Co., Baltimore City, Md.
Carolina Phosphate and Fertilizer Company, North Carolina.

HUNTS FATHER 7 YEARS TO KILL HIM, GUN FAILS

Young Frenchman's Search for Parent Who Deserted Family Ends in Newark.

The seven-year quest of a son for his father that he might slay him ended last night in Newark when the revolver which Joseph Tanga aimed at Francois Tanga missed fire.

The aged man ran screaming from his home and when police entered the house Joseph again tried to fire the weapon. At the observation ward of City Hospital, the younger Tanga told police, according to the Associated Press, that he, the oldest of three brothers, and his mother were deserted in Marseilles, France, in 1902 by his father, who took the other two sons with him.

After the war young Tanga's search began and after sailing the sea on merchantmen for seven years he learned, three weeks ago while on shore leave in Quebec, that his father was in Newark.

He was held for immigration authorities.

A. P. MOORE AT TOWN HALL.

Former Ambassador to Spain Tells of Differences in Countries.

Alexander P. Moore, who was United States Ambassador to Spain, lectured last night in the Town Hall, 123 West Forty-third Street, on "Romantic Spain and Practical America," under the auspices of the League for Political Education. Three hundred persons heard him discuss the customs of Spain and contrast them with those of the United States.

"There are no flappers in Spain, and people are always courteous," Mr. Moore said. "A young lady is never allowed to leave her home without a duenna, even in broad daylight. The political situation in Spain, I believe, is wrong, because the people of the country do not rule by majority, as they do in this country. The bloc system, with twenty-eight different parties, prevents this, and a minority may rule and not a majority.

"I happened to be Ambassador to Spain when Blasco Ibáñes, the Spanish author, made his attacks on King Alfonso. In his reply the King said he wondered whether the papers in the United States would give Ibáñez so much space if Ibáñez had had something good to say about his country and the King. He added that he would like to see the remainder of the Spanish people take advantage of commercialism like Ibáñez."

CATHOLIC RELIEF BILL BACKED BY PRIMATE

Archbishop of Canterbury Tells the Lords, However, That Some Disabilities Must Continue.

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Dec. 10.—The House of Lords gave its second reading to the Roman Catholic Relief bill. The Archbishop of Canterbury stated that all such distinctions and anomalies as those cited in the bill should be removed, as also all obsolete statutes which, though inoperative, established by their mere existence the evil principle of disregarded law.

Differences or disabilities between Catholics and English Churchmen must, however, continue to exist, he said.

The Act of Succession, which barred Catholics from the throne, from becoming a Lord Chancellor or presenting nominees to Church of England livings, must stand.

There must also remain, said the Archbishop, a general though vague difference, as long as the spirit of the Papacy maintained a complexion which clashed with the English spirit, because historical memories could not be obliterated.

LORD SWINFEN BEST MAN

In the chapel of the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church yesterday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock Miss Dorothy Alexander Heinlein, daughter of former State Senator Joseph Charles Heinlein and Mrs. Heinlein of Bridgeport, Ohio, was married to Cecil Desmond Bernard Harmsworth of London, who is a nephew of the late Lord Northcliffe and a nephew of Lord Rothermere. He is the son of Cecil Bishop Harmsworth, former member of Parliament and Under Secretary of Foreign Affairs and British member of the Council of the League of Nations, and Mrs. Harmsworth. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. Henry Howard in the presence of relatives and a few intimate friends.

The bride, who was escorted by her father, wore a gown of ivory satin finished with a long train of satin that fell from the waist. Her veil of tulle was arranged with a coronet of rose point lace fastened to the coiffure at the back of the head with a narrow bandeau of orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of white orchids and lilies of the valley.

Miss Elizabeth Otis of this city was maid of honor and the bridesmaids were the Misses Daphne Harmsworth, sister of the bridegroom; Eleanor Wood, Mary Virginia Heinlein, sister of the bride, and Ruth Anthony. All wore gowns of beige crepe, also large dark brown felt and velvet hats. They carried bouquets of roses and oak leaves.

MARY GARDEN DENIES SHE PLANS OWN TROUPE

Prima Donna Calls Rumors to That Effect 'Preposterous'—To Give Recital Here.

Renewed rumors that Mary Garden, prima donna of the Chicago Grand Opera Company, was planning to organize her own company and present opera in New York were denied spiritedly last night both by Miss Garden and her manager, Charles L. Wagner of 511 Fifth Avenue.

Miss Garden, who is stopping at the Ritz-Carlton, intends to spend about fifteen days in New York. She will give a recital next Sunday afternoon at the home of James Speyer, 1,058 Fifth Avenue, in aid of the New York Women's League for Animals, of which the late Mrs. Speyer, long a friend of the opera star, was a leading sponsor.

"It's preposterous," said Miss Garden last evening of the rumor that she intended once more to manage a company and present "Trilby" among other things. "I'm not going to manage a company. It's the last thing I would ever do. And as for 'Trilby,' it isn't at all suited to music."

Miss Garden's denial was a reiteration of a statement she made in Chicago last month, just after her return from Europe, when she was asked if she intended to tour the country at the head of her own company.

RIPLEY TO CONTINUE FIGHT FOR PUBLICITY

Economist Invokes Authority of Federal Trade Commission Over Corporations.

WOULD PROTECT INVESTORS

Talks at Conference at Columbia—Dr. E. B. Behrens Praises American Labor Policies.

Professor William Z. Ripley of Harvard announced in an address at Columbia University last night that he intended to continue his fight to compel corporations doing a national business to give full and standardized publicity under Federal regulation to their statements of earnings, assets, liabilities, &c., for the protection of investors, despite the opposition which his campaign had aroused.

Saying that persons who had "slapped him on the back" and told him to "go ahead" in his fight against non-voting stock had turned against him after he had brought to light the dormant power of the Federal Trade Commission to compel interstate corporations to give full publicity to their accounts, Professor Ripley continued:

"I found myself walking down a long, broad road in a cloud of dust—all alone."

This drew laughter from his audience, which broke into applause when he added:

"But let me tell you that I intend to keep on walking down that road to the very end, even if I have to continue all alone."

Asserting that no decision of the United States Supreme Court had yet affected the Federal Trade Commission's power in the field of corporate publicity, Professor Ripley went on:

"Even the coal and steel cases now being argued will not touch the point I'm trying to make—that there is a function of Federal Government which merely seeks to educate corporate opinion, to steer it along sound lines, just as we enforce publicity on our banks and steam carriers which do a national business."

Professor Ripley's address, under the title of "The Improvement of Coporate Morale," was part of a conference on "Changes in Social and Economic Thought and Practice in the Last Quarter Century," held in the McMillin Academic Theatre, Broadway and 116th Street, by the Institute of Arts and Sciences of Columbia.

Another speaker was Dr. E. Beddington Behrens of London University, a member of the permanent staff of the League of Nations, who is spending a year in the United States to study banking. Speaking on "Trade Unions and Political Power," he said:

"We in England have been following Dr. Ripley's attempt to remedy the abuses of company law in the United States with close attention. If he succeeds he will be doing a great good for similar situations in other countries."

Dr. Behrens credited the late Samuel Gompers's policy of keeping the trade unions out of politics with "a great deal of the prosperity which the United States now enjoys." He said this policy had prevented the "terrible class war between capital and labor which has sprung up in European countries." He also gave credit to an enlightened policy regarding wages and hours on the part of American employers for a wider distribution of wealth in this country than in Europe.

"The United States may learn much from Europe," he went on, "but Europe has more to learn from America in the management of industry."

Dr. Anna Garlin Spencer spoke on "The Consumer's Responsibility." Professor Samuel McCune Lindsay of Columbia presided.

Splendid Ark of the Covenant Made in London for California

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Dec. 10.—An Ark of the Covenant, which is declared to be more splendid than the original described in Exodus, has been constructed by two London artists for Temple Emmanuel in San Francisco. It will be sent next week to California.

The ark has been completed after many months of work by Frank Ingerson and George Dennison. It follows in general the specifications given in the Bible. It is nine feet high and weights 3,000 pounds and is made with bronze doors decorated with jewels and gold in mystic designs.

The coloring is scarlet, gold, blue, white and purple. Among the symbols on the ark are the Star of David, the tree of life, the pomegranate, the passion vine, a lion and a lamb and the tablets of the law.

MOSCOW ART THEATRE GETS A CHALLENGE

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MOSCOW, Dec. 10.—Stanislawski's famous art theatre has been challenged in its own territory by Meyerhold, whose revolutionary slant is in strong contrast to Stanislawski's classicism. Last night Meyerhold produced Gogol's celebrated classic "Revisor"—"District Inspector"—which formerly was a feature of the art theatre's repertory. Enormous interest had been aroused here in Meyerhold's production, which had been in preparation for upward of a year, because it was known that it was intended to "modernize" Gogol to a startling degree.

The first-night audience included every one in Moscow with a claim to literary or artistic appreciation, and tickets had been at a premium for weeks. It got the anticipated sensation—and shock.

"It's like jazzing 'Hamlet,' a leading critic told THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent during the third entr'acte. "I don't deny there is artistic merit and pungent ingenuity in Meyerhold's production, but in the case of 'Revisor' it almost seems blasphemy. Gogol is the greatest master of expression of the body and soul of the Russian people. No one has the right to distort his play, changing words and scenes and interpolating and omitting in this wholesale fashion. The excesses of movie adaptations are pale compared with this performance."

The Soviet poet-laureate on Demyan Ryedni publishes a sarcastic quatrain in Izvestia wherein he blames Meyerhold for using his outstanding talent to mutilate and pervert Gogol's masterpiece. But it is significant that last night's proletarian public in the cheaper seats of the theatre enthusiastically applauded the slapstick buffoonery which Meyerhold substituted for Stanislawski's dignified—one might almost say stilted—production of this old-fashioned comedy.

The popular taste cared nothing for tradition, but keenly appreciated the topical aptness of Gogol's plot, wherein a dissolute student is mistaken by a set of grafting officials in a small country town for a Government inspector and entertains with wine, women and song until the final disaster, when the real inspector arrives.

A similar incident was reported in the press a few days ago from a town near Odessa, where an individual who was believed to be the agent of the grain commission, "borrowed" 500 rubles from the uneasy local representatives of different purchasing departments.

The crowd, too, at the theatre did not in the least object to the increased coarseness of the satire on the morals of czarist officials. Even the harshest critics admitted the high quality of the acting and the lively and striking mise en scene.

TOSCANINI TO LEAVE SCALA, MILAN HEARS

Mascagni, Noted Composer, Is Mentioned as Successor to the Conductor.

MILAN, Italy, Dec. 10 (AP).—It was reported here today that Arturo Toscanini is to resign as director and conductor of the Scala Opera. Pietro Mascagni, noted Italian composer, is mentioned as his successor.

There has been considerable uncertainty in recent months concerning the plans of Toscanini. Last May he announced that he would vacate temporarily the post of orchestra director of the Scala Opera to obtain a rest, but he denied rumors that his resignation was imminent. In midsummer there was a report that he was planning to sail in October to conduct orchestras in American cities, but this trip never materialized. Still later it was reported in musical circles in Rome that he was to become director of the Costanzi Opera there, which, it was said, would replace the Scala Opera as Italy's most important lyrical theatre.

Mascagni, composer of "Cavalleria Rusticana" and other operas, denied last September a report that he had arranged to go to the United States to conduct his operas and had then broken the agreement by refusing to sail at the last minute. Not only did he not sign any contract providing for such a visit, he said, but he had rejected the conditions proposed. He did not intend to visit the United States until he received a contract in keeping with what he considered "worthy artistic conditions."

'THE SILVER CORD' TO OPEN

The Theatre Guild will inaugurate its repertory policy at the John Golden Theatre on Monday, Dec. 20, with the production of the Sidney Howard play, "The Silver Cord." That attraction will be given all Christmas week, while on the following Monday "Ned McCobb's Daughter," the current production at the Golden, will be played. "The Silver Cord" will again come into the schedule on Jan. 3, and these weekly changes will continue indefinitely thereafter.

The Guild Theatre will begin its repertory program on Jan. 3 when the Jacques Copeau version and production of "The Brothers Karamazov" will open. The following week "Pygmalion" will be acted, and after that the Shaw comedy and the Dostoievsky play will alternate.

NIKOLAI ORLOFF PLAYS.

Pianist, as Soloist, Again Makes an Excellent Impression.

The concert given by the New York Symphony Orchestra, Walter Damrosch, conductor, last night in Carnegie Hall presented as soloist the pianist who had already made an excellent impression in recital in this city, Nikolai Orloff. Mr. Orloff played the Chopin concerto in F minor, a work which is somewhat old-fashioned today, but which demands the highest qualities of the pianist.

Mr. Orloff's brilliant technical equipment would naturally suit him well for the first and the last movements of the concerto, which he played with authority and with virtuoso spirit. The slow movement is a movement which asks less of the pianist's fingers than it asks of his imagination and poetic feeling. In this movement Mr. Orloff was fully adequate to the character of the music, and his reception by the audience showed that he had made an excellent impression.

The orchestral numbers were Beethoven's Fifth Symphony and Deems Taylor's Suite, "Through the Looking Glass," which Mr. Damrosch conducted in his customary manner.

MARGARET DENEKE PLEASES

Margaret Deneke of Lady Margaret Hall, Oxford University, England, gave her only New York lecture-recital yesterday afternoon at the Junior League, 133 East Sixty-first Street. This was the last of a series of forty-four recitals which Miss Deneke has been giving at Harvard, the Library of Congress, Washington, D. C.; Bryn Mawr, Vassar, Radcliffe, Wellesley, Holyoke and many other educational centres.

Miss Deneke, who was a pupil of Eugenia Schumann, the youngest daughter of Robert Schumann, gave an interesting and illuminating lecture on the composer's "Carnaval"; she played the important themes, explaining their meaning and their genesis, and was warmly applauded for her pianistic ability. The proceeds of the whole of Miss Deneke's tour will go to Lady Margaret Hall, which is in need of funds.

Miss Deneke, who is sailing home on the Berengaria, will return to America in October, 1927.

BARNARD GIVES 3 PLAYS.

"Wigs and Cues" Acts Lord Dunsany Drama "King Argimenes."

"Wigs and Cues," the Barnard College dramatic society, presented two one-act plays and one two-act play last night in Milbank Hall as its annual Fall production. The plays will be given again this evening. Members of the society have directed the rehearsals, superintended the staging and arranged the music and costumes, while twenty-five other members take the various parts in the three casts.

The first play, "Boccacio's Untold Tale," by Harry Kemp, which is laid in Florence in the fourteenth century, has a cast of five and has been directed by Miss Janet Owen, who also played the part of Florio. Miss Marguerite Loud directed the second play, "Rococo," by Granville Barker, a modern vehicle with a cast of six. "King Argimenes and the Unknown Warrior," a two-act play by Lord Dunsany, laid in an ancient mythical country, has a cast of fifteen and was directed by Miss Helen Deutsch.

"Wigs and Cues" gives only two productions a year, one in the Fall and the other in the Spring.

BRITISHERS GIVE A REVUE.

Sixteen Students in a Lively Performance, "The Mixed Grill."

The broadest of broad English accents, with occasional "h's" dropped and a few added for good measure, featured the annual British Empire Revue presented last night by sixty persons at the International House, 124th Street and Riverside Drive. Members of the cast, which was directed by F. Fraser Bond, were students from Great Britain and Ireland, Canada, Australasia, South Africa and other parts of the British Empire. The show will be repeated tonight.

The revue, which was called a "Mixed Grill," was done in the English manner, with folk songs and modern jazz, pantomime, monologues, solo dancing, numerous sketches, divertissements, a chorus number and a grand finale. A unique effect of bursting rockets was secured in the finale, when the sixty participants sang the "Star Spangled Banner."

Joseph Gingold, Violinist, in Debut.

Joseph Gingold gave a first recital as violinist last evening at Aeolian Hall, none the worse for a young man's understandable diffidence at his début and showing a certain quiet force that promised his future growth as an artist. He was perhaps too much preoccupied as yet with technical matters, at a cost of lightness and contrast in Sinding's A minor suite, which began his program. With Harry Kaufman's help at the piano he played a concerto of Vieuxtemps in D. Minor, Achron's "Moods," two "show pieces" by Ries and Wieniawski and several popular arrangements by Kreisler and Auer, the last named being the former master of his own teacher, Graffman.

Hunter Students Give a Play.

The Italian Circle of Hunter College presented its annual play in English last night in the college chapel. It was Carlo Coldoni's "O, Honorable Maid!" translated by Professor Clara Byrnes, dramatic director of the Italian Club, which, despite handicaps, has been presenting with success plays in both Italian and English.

HELD IN WANT AD. CASE.

Man Accused by Girl Who Sought Job Is Remanded to Grand Jury.

Charged with attempted criminal assault and with placing false and misleading advertisements in The World, Emanuel Garden, 27 years old, a plumbing contractor of 384 Eighth Avenue, was held in $5,000 bail yesterday for the action of the Grand Jury following a hearing before Magistrate George W. Simpson in Jefferson Market Court. Irene Handleman of 1,467 Fifty-third Street, Brooklyn, was the complainant.

Garden was arraigned yesterday morning on a short affidavit when Miss Handleman refused to sign a complaint against him. In the afternoon, however, she signed the complaint, after Assistant District Attorney Louis Wasser had told Magistrate Simpson he believed she was being intimidated, and declared it was her duty to prosecute Garden in order to safeguard thousands of other women who answer newspaper advertisements.

Miss Handleman charged Garden attempted to attack her when she went to his shop last Monday to apply for a position in answer to an advertisement in the newspaper.

Several character witnesses appeared in Garden's behalf, among them his attorney, Saul Wlodaver, who said he had known the defendant as an honorable business man for several years. Magistrate Simpson, announcing his decision, said that he had known the newspaper to be a clean one for thirty years, adding that it was founded with lofty purpose in the interest of the public.

"If Garden is guilt of the alleged attack," he said, "he also is guilty of publishing false and misleading advertisements in a newspaper upon which thousands depend for access to employers, who they have a right to expect will prove respectable."

YALE THEATRE HAS A GALA OPENING

"The Patriarch," a Play Written and Acted by Students, Is Given.

GOLDEN TO PRODUCE WORK

Characters True to Type Among Southern Mountaineers—Four More Performances.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Dec. 10.—Yale's new University Theatre was dedicated tonight with the first of five performances, and at the end of the performance it was announced by George Pierce Baker, director of the University's Department of the Drama, that the play which the very distinguished invited audience had just seen had been sold to John Golden for production within a year in New York. The play, "The Patriarch," is by Boyd M. Smith, and the production of it, from script to scenery to acting, was the work of the students of the University Department of the Drama, while the supervising was the work of the Faculty of that department. Thus the first practical and complete modern theatre which is an integral part of an American university is launched upon its career with obviously practical results.

There was no doubt about the interest of the audience in the play, and there was no doubt of a general impression that the acting of the student actors, though uneven and at times none too sure, was above the level which might have been expected. There was no doubt either that before the play reaches Broadway it will need considerable revision and rewriting and that the author, in spite of real grasp of theme of some audacity, did not altogether succeed in giving that theme adequate technical expression.

Thanks Donor, E. S. Harkness.

Professor Baker in the speech which followed the performance, recalled the fact that it was just 350 years since English actors had first found a home in a theatre of their own in London and thanked Edward S. Harkness, donor of the theatre, for enabling the Yale actors to enjoy the like privilege. There was also a rhymed prologue by Lee Wilson Dodd.

Among the most distinguished audience, which included President Angell and the members of the corporation, as well as the officers and professors of the university, were Mr. Harkness, not only donor of the theatre but of the endowment of the department of drama; C. H. Blackall, architect of the theatre; Horace Howard Furness, editor of the Variorum edition of Shakespeare, and James Gamble Rogers, architect of the Harkness quadrangle. Besides Mr. Golden there were present Winthrop Ames, Professor William Lyon Phelps, Austin Strong, Edward Knoblock, Allan Davis of Pittsburgh, Philip Barry, Maurice Wertheim of the Theatre Guild, Grant Mitchell, C. Macauley Pope, Mr. and Mrs. Bancel La Farge, Mr. and Mrs. Louis M. Isaacs, Elizabeth A. McFadden, Sidney Howard and William Barry.

The play itself is woven of the native substance of the race that inhabits our Southern Appalachian Mountains—that last stronghold of the Puritans of the strictest sect, the last refuge of that strange breed of Anglo-Saxon stock which, following Calvin and John Knox, took over the Old Testament as the grim guide of their life and the God of the Jews as their Jehovah also—but made over into an image of justice more stern than any but a Northern race could set up as the awful Court of Last Resort.

In those mountains the law of man, as administered in his worldly courts, had been in the beginning left behind. Thus that law lost the sanction of customary enforcement. When it came again, it came as invader from the lowlands, a strange law and distrusted, putting the stamp of crime on actions, which in the minds of the mountaineers were blameless or praiseworthy, like distilling whisky from corn, or killing a homicidal enemy.

Not that Mr. Smith's play deals with moonshiners or feudists. Neither is mentioned. But the state of mind which enables feudists and moonshiners to persist in the state of mind upon which the action is conditioned—the state of mind which administers the high justice, the middle and the low by local authority, delegated direct from God Himself.

Concerns Two Brothers.

The story concerns the two sons of the Patriarch, a strong man and just, master in his own house and ruling elder of the clan. His own father was a gentleman and a scholar bred in the lowlands at William and Mary College. The respect of learning and the knowledge of good books which had been his he had passed on, and his son had passed it on to the grandsons. Yet the mountains held them all, and the creed of the mountaineers was theirs.

There was a woman, a mountain girl, who had been away in the city for her learning—to New York itself—and was untamed by either city or mountains. "The Wildcat," they called her. The younger brother loved her and was to marry her—so it was agreed before she went away. But when she came back, she was resolved to have the elder brother and went after him the shortest way. When he would not be his brother's supplanter, she worked on the jealousy of the boy who loved her to slay his brother. When the deed was done, and confessed, what was to be done?

The Crux of the Drama.

There is the crux of the drama. The father who does not believe in the courts of law does not question the Law—the law of the Old Testament, the law which demands an eye for an eye and a life for a life. He himself is the Patriarch who is the voice of that law—God's law. So he becomes his own son's judge and executioner. That is Mr. Smith's stark tragedy.

Perhaps no father in those mountains, where the Old Testament rules as it never ruled in Judea, ever did in actual fact put one son to death for the murder of another. Yet nobody who knows those mountains and the mountain breed may doubt that the spirit of the father is the spirit of that mountain folk, so sufficient to itself and so strangely bound by a Nordic version of an Oriental religion.

Boyd Smith is himself a West Virginia mountaineer, and, though he has studied at Harvard and at Yale, as well as at the university of his native State, though he has been an actor and directed college dramatics, though he makes his bow as a playwright under auspices partly academic, he knows his own people.

Whatever may be thought of driving tragedy to such extremes, it must be said for him that he has kept the people in the tragedy true to type and to fact, and made the whole sequence of events not only logical but plausible by creating the authentic atmosphere—the only authentic atmosphere in which such a thing could occur in the western world in our century.

The Cast.

As has been hinted, the tragedy lost a great deal in the execution because the author put too great a strain on the student actors. It was, in fact, a strain which even the best professional actors would have found it hard to bear. The characters in the play were distributed as follows: Abner Gaunt, the father, Herbert J. Biberman; Joe Gaunt, the youngest son, Herschel V. Williams Jr.; Lem Gaunt, the elder son, E. Warren Hymer, and Sarah Gaunt, the mother, Katherine T. Clugston. Jeff Tanner, the girl's father, was played by Andrew N. Lytle, whose performance perhaps showed most promise, and the girl, Leah Tanner, was played by Gretchen H. Steiner. Scenery, lighting and costumes were adequate.

NEW AMERICAN PLAY IS QUITE FANTASTIC

A new American play was added to the list of productions sponsored by Richard Boleslavsky's repertory organization, the American Laboratory Theatre, last night when "The Trumpet Shall Sound" was given its initial production at the playhouse's headquarters in East Fifty-eighth Street. Mr. Wilder is a novelist, best known for "The Cabala," a book which, one gathers, caused not a little waltzing in certain of the town's thoroughfares. It seems hardly likely that such definite indications of approval will follow the production of the play.

"The Trumpet Shall Sound" furnishes a rather murky evening among the better known symbols. It is more or less a rehash—and one concocted without any highly piquant sauces—of other works of the kind, from Ibsen to Sutton Vane, with a stop-over to break the jump at Jerome K. Jerome. Laid in the Washington Square mansion of the New York of the '70s, it assumes the customary kindly, benevolent and tolerant attitude to erring humanity, showing on its canvas a whole panorama of petty human frailties contrasted against a background of the sympathy and understanding of the faintly haloed central figure.

The group is assembled by the circumstance that the servants of the household let out rooms in the mansion while the master is away. A motley, ragtag, bobtail assemblage foregathers, each with his or her petty faults and vices. There is, of course, a woman of the streets; there are, among the others, a sea captain who has "got religion," a wealthy Swedish matron who goes through life pretending to be a pauper, and a lunatic pyromaniac. The master returns, possibly as the Spirit of Fire Commissioner Dorman, just when the lunatic is about to burn the place down. On the unexpected visit of the owner, the young servant girl whose idea it was to rent out the house to provide money and lodgings for a swaggering young sailor whom she loves, finds that his affection for her is of the ephemeral sort and kills herself. The others plead their various cases and receive their portions of divine counsel and sympathy from the person of whose absence they have been taking advantage.

Last night was chiefly distinguished for one occurrence—a luminous, almost transcendental and vital performance on the part of a comely young woman by the name of Helen Coburn, who played the servant girl. It was a portrayal as fine and true as it was unexpected. It was not altogether acting, either: Miss Coburn at times was actually living the part and she made credible the somewhat fantastic things she had to do. The rest of the playing ranged from diluted Broadway to undiluted Little Theatre, although Anne Schmidt, Blanch Tancock, Walter Duggan and Erna Obermyer were competent enough to merit specific mention.

"The Trumpet Shall Sound" will be acted on Monday, Wednesday and Thursday nights, alternating with "The Straw Hat" and "Twelfth Night."

Give a French Opera Recital.

Charlotte Lund, assisted by N. Val Pavey, pianist and baritone, gave a French opera recital before an audience of 500, including members of the French Opéra Comique, at a meeting of the National Opera Club of America at the Waldorf yesterday.

Miss Lund's program was made up of arias from the works of Debussy, Massenet, Delibes, Bizet, Charpentier, Thomas, Ravel and Saint-Saëns. It included the "Oasis" duet from "Thais," which proved to be a very popular number with the large audience, and selections from "Carmen," "Mignon" and "Samson et Delila."

THEATRICAL NOTES.

The first official board meeting of the new directorate of the Actors' Theatre will be held on Monday afternoon with Guthrie McClintic in charge. Paul Turner, Augustin Duncan, Helen Freeman, Dorothy Earle and Sam Wren have been appointed by Mr. McClintic to serve on the Executive Committee.

Jessie Matthews, Herbert Mundin, Hazel Wynne and Sunday Wilshin of the "Chariot Revue" will arrive on the Majestic on Dec. 28 to appear in the new edition of the Earl Carroll "Vanities," opening Jan. 3.

"The Black Cockatoo," a play by Samuel Ruskin Golding, is scheduled to open in New York on Jan. 3 after an out-of-town tour during the week of Dec. 20. James Crane, Anne Forrest, Beatrice Morosco and George Le Guerre are in the company.

A comedy by Dorothy Donnelly will be placed in rehearsal in January by the Shuberts. William Hodge will direct it.

Walter Connolly has replaced G. Pat Collins in the cast of "It Is Love," now in rehearsal.

The performance of "Aladdin" scheduled for Christmas Day at the Children's Saturday Morning Theatre in the Princess Theatre has been canceled. Matinees of the play are announced for Dec. 27, 28, 29 and 31.

Fiske O'Hara and Sissle and Blake have been secured as vaudeville attractions by the Loew Circuit.

The second of a series of three Sunday night performances under the auspices of John Murray Anderson and Robert Milton will be given at their theatre, 128 East Fifty-eighth Street, tomorrow evening.

The League of Women of Washington Square College, New York University, will produce "Gaities," a musical revue, on Dec. 20 and 21 in aid of the Judson Health Centre.

A lecture on "The Influence of Irish Drama" will be given at the School of Irish Studies, 6 East Twelfth Street, tomorrow evening.

Russell Janney will soon produce "Ballyhoo," a comedy of carnival life by Kate Horton. Another "Ballyhoo," by J. K. Nicholson, is in preparation by Charles L. Wagner, and is said to have much the same background. In the cast of Mr. Janney's production will be Minna Gombell, Louise Carter, Morgan Wallace, Eric Dressler, Kathryne Givney, W. H. Post and Hugh O'Connell.

SOREL IN 'LE DEMI-MONDE.'

Her Repertoire for Next Week Includes "Le Aventuriere."

Cecile Sorel and her company from the Comédie Française appeared in "Le Demi-Monde" of Alexander Dumas, fils, in their French repertory season at the Cosmopolitan Theatre last night. Mme. Sorel has presented the play here before. At both performances today the company will be seen in "Maitresse de Roi."

Instead of acting "Le Misanthrope" for the first half of next week, as previously announced, Mme. Sorel will appear in that play at the Monday night and Wednesday matinee performances. On Tuesday night she will be seen again in "Maitresse de Roi," and Wednesday night she will act "La Dane Aux Camelias." "Le Adventuriere" will be presented on Thursday night, "Maitresse de Roi" on Friday and Saturday nights and "Le Misanthrope" at the Saturday matinee.

Sue Over Nobile's Lecture English.

Davenport, Ia., Dec. 10 (AP).—The American Business Club of Davenport, which sponsored a lecture here Monday night by General Umberto Nobile, the Italian aviator who flew over the North Pole, today filed suit for $1,800 against the Lee Keedick Company of New York, his booking agency. The club charges false and fraudulent representation, contending that General Nobile was unable to express himself in English and could not make himself understood by the audience.

TITTA RUFFO HAILED ON RETURN IN 'THE JEST'

Titta Ruffo's return to the Metropolitan last night was made the occasion for this season's restoration of "La Cena delle Beffe," the opera contrived by Umberto Giordano from the internationally famous play of "The Jest." There were handclaps of recognition for the baritone as he made his reentrance in the Lionel Barrymore rôle. Through the four short acts his admirers again shouted their bravos at the curtain calls.

Mr. Ruffo was in goodly volume of voice and, as at the opera's American premiere last January, he was well cast in a part calling for robust action, broad gesture and general dominating character as the half-crazed perpetrator of the fratricidal jest.

Mr. Gigli and Mme. Alda sang the second-act love scene as they had last Winter. Miss Dalossy had her moment as the loyal girl friend of the Renaissance romance. Mr. Bada, always adept in characterization, stepped once more into one of his rarer impersonations of the genial instead of the grotesque.

But two of the original figures showed change, Mr. Didur being replaced by Schuetzendorf and Miss Alcock by Mary Bonetti. Others again were the Misses Anthony and Wakefield, Messrs. d'Angelo, Reschiglian, Picco, Paltrinieri and Altglass, and Mr. Serafin conducted.

Giordano's opera has hardly mellowed or grown in musical value with the passing of a year. It seemed still a turgid setting of Sem Benelli's skillful "short-hand" version of his own play. Dramatically the story moved as before through swift shadow pictures of tapestried beauty in Mr. Urban's superb scenic investiture.

The opera holds its traits in common with Giordano's equally theatric and thinly drawn "Fedora." They stand in contrast with his earlier "Siberia," of one Hammerstein's Manhattan season, that was nearer, in turn, to the "Andrea Chenier," known to New York since the last years of Colonel Mapleson, a generation ago.

It was, perhaps, Mr. Gatti-Casazza's aim to emphasize Giordano's long span of operatic activity which placed his first and latest operas on this stage on successive evenings. A coming holiday dullness and the daily threatening weather combined to dampen popular enthusiasm, if such existed, for "La Cena" and for Thursday's "Chenier." Not a few subscribers' seats were sold on the Curb for half price on both nights.

"The Jest" was followed in generous double bill last evening by Stravinsky's one-act fairy play, "Le Rossignol," again with the Misses Talley, Bourskaya, Lerch and Wakefield; Messrs. Tedesco, Didur, d'Angelo and Wolfe, and Mr. Serafin at the baton.

THE WORLD COURT REPUBLICAN.

If ever the ironies and inconsistencies of party politics were more sharply illustrated than in conferring the Woodrow Wilson award upon ELIHU ROOT, it would be hard to say when and how. Of the propriety of the award itself not even the most captious can have a doubt. It is a fitting recognition of the work done by Mr. ROOT for international peace in and through the World Court. Only by means of his ingenious and statesmanlike plan—a plan suggested to him, as he has stated, by the compromises which made the Constitution of the United States accepted—was it possible to establish the World Court at all, under the auspices of the League of Nations. In those labors he might well have asserted that he was acting as the most loyal member of his political party. For the settlement of disputes between nations by means of an international judicial tribunal had long been the most orthodox Republican doctrine. Party platform after party platform had called for such a project and pledged devotion to it. When Republicans, owing to the exigencies of a Presidential campaign, blent with the most petty personal animosities, turned their back on the League of Nations, it was the World Court which they offered as their sufficient and favored substitute.

In spite of all this record, when the World Court became actual and began to function usefully, what did we see? We saw leading Republicans denouncing it as an invention of our enemies, designed to trap us. The Republican Chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee of the Senate vowed implacable war upon it. Other Republican Senators helped to fasten upon the resolution for adherence to the World Court reservations designed to be offensive to the other members. Yet a Republican Administration has declared these reservations to be necessary and unchangeable, and without them the Republican President has recently said that he sees no prospect whatever of our entering the World Court at all. In his message to Congress this week he passed over the entire subject without a word.

This is more than the inconsistency of the Republican Party; it is its humiliation. Here is a deserved and distinguished honor bestowed upon a man whom it is customary and justified to refer to as the most eminent of living Republicans for his wisdom, flexible ability and notable public service. Yet the honor to him cannot fail to seem a reproach to his recreant party. The World Court is a living and working organization. It is the very kind of tribunal for which Republicans professed to be thirsting. Now they will have neither part nor lot in it. This falseness to party pledges cannot fail to be brought home by the Wilson prize so worthily given to Mr. ROOT. He might paraphrase the old saying of the French King and call out to his fellow-Republicans: "Hang yourselves, for "there is glorious adjudication going "on at Geneva and you were not "there."

THRIFT AND PROSPERITY.

Last July the savings of the American people entrusted to all classes of banks were very nearly twenty-five billion dollars. This was an increase of more than one and a half billions over the preceding year, and represented a savings rate of $211 per head of the population. The amount of life insurance outstanding today, according to Mr. HUGHES's statement before the Association of Life Insurance Presidents, is seventy-eight billion dollars. This would indicate that the American family of four and a half persons is protected against adversity by an average savings fund of $900 and insurance policies to the amount of $2,800. The increase in the number of savings depositors during the last fiscal year was about 3,000,000. The insurance companies are adding to their invested assets at the rate of a billion dollars a year. The figures offer pertinent comment on how the American people is utilizing its unparalleled prosperity. Obviously not all wages and profits are spent as fast as they are earned.

Nevertheless, there are figures which do suggest a certain degree of justification for counsels of warning. Although savings during the last fiscal year were greater by $1,562,000,000 than for the preceding year, that year showed a greater increase by $400,000,000 over its predecessor. The gain in 1926 over 1925 was only $100,000,000 greater than the gain in 1924 over 1923. The thrift instinct would thus appear to be slackening up a bit. The very considerable savings in the income taxes for the last two years did not all go into the passbooks. It may be that as good times persist people grow a little less afraid of the future. In 1924 the memories of 1921 were still vivid. Deflation hardships are now two years further away in the background. Possibly, too, we see in operation the effects of the instalment buying habit whose extraordinary development is of the last two or three years.

A HIGH-PLACED HERETIC.

Demonstrating the unsoundness of the theory that American loans to foreigners cause a competition injurious to the United States, Secretary MELLON says:

> Money which puts a nation on its feet through the stabilization of its currency, or which increases the productiveness of industry or trade in a foreign country, enlarges the earning capacity of the people and increases their buying power and thus stimulates world trade as a whole. In this trade America has a great share. For our manufacturers we have the protection of the tariff, and for those for whom the tariff does not give complete protection, particularly the farmer, we should encourage the purchasing power of other countries so that there will be a greater demand for American products.

It is distressing to amateurs of the sincere milk of American protection to read these sentences. To Pittsburgh, if anywhere, they should be able to look for sound doctrine. Mr. MELLON's is tainted with heretical pravity. The more you sell and the less you buy abroad, the better for the country. Foreign trade is or should be a one-sided arrangement. Can it be for the benefit of the United States that it should be flooded with pauper-made goods? What becomes of American wages and American standards of living if "abroad" is thus pampered? Do we want any more empty dinner-pails? But the expression of these sorrows may be left to the American Protective League. Our humbler object is to notice the complete surrender to the farm-relief cohorts which Mr. MELLON's indiscretion or confession implies.

Farm representatives from many States have just been saying, what farm organizations and their advocates among the politicians have long been saying, that farmers must have a protection equal to that of the manufacturers, or there will be trouble. The equalized protection thus sought comes, whatever it is called, to something like the McNary-Haugen proposal. The admission made by Mr. MELLON might seem more appropriate to a member, say, of Mr. LOWDEN's Cabinet than of Mr. COOLIDGE's. In the absence of any further evidence of conversion, it is better to take this concession to the imperfectly protected farmer as one of those temporary aberrations from the faith from which even the greatest saints have not been exempt.

ACCIDENTS IN AVIATION.

In Great Britain, as in the United States, there are too many fatal accidents in the military air services. In this country it has been shown that the use of obsolete war planes accounted for a large percentage of casualties. The British Air Force has lost eighty-three officers and men this year. In the House of Commons on Thursday the Prime Minister said that all possible precautions were being taken. But last week Sir SAMUEL HOARE, Secretary of State for Air, admitted that 32 per cent. of the accidents occurred when machines constructed before 1917 were used; and Admiral SUETER asserted that of more than fifty squadrons in the Royal Air Service twenty-three were equipped with old machines that were unsafe to fly. Yet Sir SAMUEL HOARE, in a speech at Birmingham made on the day when the House of Commons wanted to know why the death list in the Air Forces was so large, declared that pilots had "the most severe and intensive training," while their planes were "subjected to a more constant "and drastic inspection than the ma"chines and engines of any other "country." This was begging the question, for if pilots are called upon to fly with antiquated equipment there will be heavy casualties. England is passing through an agitation like that led by Colonel WILLIAM MITCHELL in this country a year ago. The consequence of the clamor he made was that the Morrow investigation followed, resulting in a program of aeronautical legislation and the Air Commerce act.

When the military air services, which are supposed to be under a rigid discipline and to be subject to regulation in everything that has to do with flying, have a shocking casualty list, confidence in commercial aviation seems to be misplaced. But statistics show that improved airplanes, carefully inspected and flown by competent pilots, whether they are in the military service or in postoffice or civil employment, are a comparatively safe means of conveyance. Captain H. D. CAMPBELL of the United States Marine Corps flew 839 hours and 50 minutes in the year ending June 30, 1926, without an accident. In five years he has flown 2,404 hours (more than one hundred days) without a serious mishap. It is apparent that in driving an automobile in congested street traffic for the same period the hazard would have been greater. In 1925 United States mail pilots flew 2,560,000 miles: there were only two fatal accidents. In what is called "gypsy" flying—that is to say, unregulated flying in machines not inspected—the number of accidents is disquieting. On the other hand, private airplane operators have made 258,762 flights in this country and covered 5,396,672 miles without a fatality. There have been two very bad accidents this year in civil "air transport" in England. In one case seven persons lost their lives, in the other three. The service was the French Air Union, which offers trans-Channel trips. In twenty-one months ending Oct. 2 British air liners carried 25,000 passengers and flew nearly 2,000,000 miles "without a "single mishap to either passengers or "crews."

When President COOLIDGE, in submitting to Congress the annual report of the National Advisory Committee of Aeronautics, says he believes that "the American aviation program is "sound in principle and when carried "into effect will go far toward making "America first in the development of "aircraft for military and civil pur"poses," he is not unduly optimistic. He realizes that "it will take time to "accomplish results under the Air "Commerce act and the approved five-"year aircraft building programs of "the army and navy." Hitherto the military services have not always had the best airplanes that money could buy; in fact, many of them were of the war period and unfit. Civilian aviation has not been regulated at all, nor has the Government until now been in a position to lend a helping hand or to exercise authority over pilots and the machines they operated. The Air Commerce act will blaze the way to a system of commercial aviation efficient and reasonably safe.

ALASKA.

Alaska is carrying on, according to the report of the new Governor, GEORGE A. PARKS. It is not the Alaska of Klondike lure and gaunt prospector, of Soapy Smith or JACK LONDON, of gold-dust sweepings on the barroom floor. The real riches of the Territory are revealed as salmon, herring and forests. The old placer miner is giving way to the corporation financing large dredging operations. Reindeer roam the tundra, but they are destined for the stock yards, not the sleighs of Santa Claus.

The Alaska Railroad, that great white elephant of the North, is still worrying along with a deficit of over a million dollars a year. But the deficit is less than before, and the railroad is doing its bit at opening up the Territory. Trade is not what it was when war days first boomed the copper mines and later stimulated abnormally the fisheries. But it is picking up. Even the curve of gold production, which touched bottom in 1924, has gone up again. Only the lowe. Yukon and the valley of the Kuskokwim are in bad shape. Here the fisheries had been so depleted under the old régime of wanton exploitation that they were in danger of vanishing utterly, and the Government had to step in and prohibit commercial fishing for a time. Immediately population dwindled, steamboats stopped running, traders closed out their stores. "The reopening of "the fisheries even to a limited extent "would immeasurably improve eco"nomic conditions in this district," says Governor PARKS.

Settlers have learned that salmon are more to be desired than gold, or nature, if left to herself, will replenish a fishery, but never a mine. The trouble has been that nature was not left to herself. The salmon were fast disappearing when Secretary HOOVER took hold two years ago, and with the support of Congress set about establishing effective conservation. Measures had to be strict at first, and somebody had to suffer; the Yukon seems to have been especially hard hit. But already conservation is bearing fruit. Over $28,000,000 worth of salmon alone was shipped out of Alaska last year, composing about half of the entire exports of the Territory.

Governor PARKS does not complain of Alaska's lot as some of his predecessors allowed themselves to do. His report is refreshingly free from the conspiracy complex. Governor BONE used to complain that Alaska's "stagnation" was due to academic treatment. "Conservation policies entailed a blight," President HARDING's visit in 1923 effectually exploded that myth. He went to Alaska rather under the spell of ex-Secretary FALL and his friends, who had spread abroad the notion that it was time to call a halt to the policy of drastic conservation. Mr. HARDING changed his mind. "I had a wrong impression," he said frankly on his return. "The Alaskan "people find little to grieve about in "the restrictive policies of the Federal "Government; they do not wish their "natural wealth sacrificed in a vain "attempt to defeat the laws of eco"nomics."

PROFESSIONAL STANDARDS.

The tributes of representatives of the professions of teaching, medicine, pharmacy, dentistry, optometry, nursing, engineering and architecture to Dr. AUGUSTUS S. DOWNING, Deputy Commissioner of Education of this State, at a dinner on Thursday night, invite attention to the progress which has been made in raising the standards in these professions, or in lifting mere occupations into professional rank. Professor GEORGE HERBERT PALMER of Harvard University, in answering some years ago the question, "What is a profession?", said that it is the attitude of mind which distinguishes a trade from a profession; that is, whether those engaged in an occupation worked primarily for pay, whether they worked as individuals or as members of a great brotherhood. But even so, it is necessary to guard the profession against those who would enter from avaricious motive or practice selfishly under the guise of membership in an order which thinks of giving rather than getting, or would advance themselves rather than their profession.

The State Education Department has been particularly helpful to the professions by giving them support in prescribing and maintaining standards. This is notably illustrated in the field of medicine. The service began in the effort "to weed out" commercial and meretricious medical schools. Inspection of all the medical schools in the United States and Canada was a first step. This led to a requirement of annual registration of schools, which resulted eventually in the raising of the standards of many schools and the elimination of those that could not meet them. Educational requirements for admission to the study of medicine were increased till at least two years of collegiate work, including specified sciences, became a general prerequisite. Only last year a further step was taken—long urged but long and stoutly resisted by some—that of requiring by law the annual registration of physicians with the State Board of Medical Examiners. It was stated at the time the Governor signed the bill making this mandatory that it would "put about 2,500 quacks out of business in this State." The registrations this year fall so far short of the total estimated number of "doctors" as to give evidence of the need and the effectiveness of the law.

What has been done in the field of medicine has been also done with varying requirements in other fields, as dentistry, pharmacy, &c. Schools of low standard have been eliminated by refusing their graduates admission to examinations for license. Impostors have been discovered as a result of yearly registration. The public has been protected, especially in matters of health. Of late, registration has been extended to engineers, architects and public accountants. Dr. DOWNING has, through his persistent effort, had a large part in achieving these reforms and advances and has deserved the recognition which the professions have given him.

There is only one of the professions (besides the ministry), it may be noted in this connection, whose standards of admission to study and of license are not prescribed and maintained under the direction of the University of the State of New York. That is the profession of law. In the current discussion of the qualifications of candidates for admission to that profession, it may be asked whether the academic and professional standards may not also be determined as in the field of medicine, the officers of the State Education Department being assisted in this function by a State Board of Law Examiners.

UNITING IMMIGRANT FAMILIES.

With the purpose of still further humanizing the Immigration law, the Secretary of Labor recommends in his annual report that not only wives but husbands and dependent fathers and mothers of American citizens be classed as non-quota immigrants, and that the age limit for their children be raised so as to cover all minors, instead of, as at present, being limited to those 18 years of age or under. Furthermore, he suggests that within the quota limits special preference be given to children and other immediate relatives of aliens already resident in the United States. He also asks that unused quotas be carried over into the subsequent year, and that an additional 5,000 be allowed to take care of exceptional instances.

These measures are urged for humanitarian reasons. They would help to unite families, and so would lessen the hardships which occasionally arise in the administration of the 1924 law. Most of the abuses so patent in the temporary acts that preceded this permanent law have been corrected. Instances of injustice are now fortunately rare. But even if the proposed changes are put into effect, there are difficulties in the way of families which do not migrate entire at the same time. It is a common practice for the father, sometimes accompanied by his oldest children, to come to this country and establish himself before he brings over his wife and younger children. He sometimes has difficulty in getting his family within the quota when he is ready to have them come. The Secretary of Labor has therefore proposed that some sort of family visa be issued, good for a longer period than the ordinary visas, which would entitle the members not sailing with the father to follow him within a stated period.

The demand has been made by opponents of restriction that all minor children be placed outside the quotas. This would amount, in effect, to admitting families on the visas of the parents alone. It would increase the total immigration two to three fold, as the quota restrictions would apply only to persons over 21 years of age instead of, as at present, to all members of immigrant families. It is doubtful if the country is yet prepared to admit such a radical change in the immigration policy, which would bring us possibly as many as a half million immigrants from the quota-restricted countries each year. The proposal of the Secretary of Labor to give families special preference within the quotas would seem to be the most practical and humane solution within reach.

It will probably be impossible so to amend the immigration laws as to eliminate all cases of hardship. In order to deal with exceptions it may be advisable to grant to the Secretary of Labor, or to some board under his jurisdiction, even greater discretionary powers than at present exist. The cases in which they might have to be used would be so rare as to present but few dangers.

AN IMPERSONAL CHRISTMAS.

The timing of the appeal for the Hundred Neediest Cases was deliberate made for the end of the year and near the Christmastide. The aim was to enlist the spirit of good-will and human brotherhood which is associated with that period. It is naturally desired that as much as possible of the Christmas feeling should enter into the contributions in aid of those who, through no fault of their own, are in dire need. But there is, after all, a difference between gifts to them and the ordinary interchange of presents between friends. There is no visit in person by the givers to these unfortunates. They simply know that help has come to them from kind hearts. There is no one to whom they can make their grateful acknowledgments direct. For them it is, therefore, a sort of impersonal Christmas that brings relief, but no one would say that it is any the less touching or beautiful for that reason. Since it is the thoughtfulness and outflow of emotion behind the gift which count most, it is in a way fitting that thanks should be expressed to no particular person, but to the idea itself of the kindly sympathy which seeks to make itself helpful without individual recognition.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

In Justice to Tombstone.

The fair name of Tombstone, Ariz., is no longer to be smirched if the account of conditions there in the early '80s given by a former Sheriff is true also of other decades. He admits that the boys were quick on the trigger, but insists that they limited their slaughter.

This is almost too much of a blow at a sacred tradition of Wild West literature to be endured without reproof. Arizona in the '80s was notoriously "wild." Have we not innumerable novels that bear witness to it? Furthermore, Tombstone in particular was famed for its "characters." To this the Sheriff himself unconsciously testifies, for he tells of a resident who had developed a fancy for red-striped shirts and had issued a warning that any one remarking about it would be shot. His partner, returning from the range in innocence of this challenge, inquired whence the shirt came and was killed with the question unanswered.

This is in the best tradition, and yet the Sheriff insists that Tombstone was not "wild." Bosh! He is unkind. He judges by the standards of California mining camps of forty years ago, whereas we think in terms of our well-known "effete East." Perhaps the bandits of Chicago would more nearly conform to his definition.

Prevention of Rabies.

A few years ago the mention of a mad dog was enough to throw a neighborhood into hysterics. Perhaps not many persons believed in the efficacy of a madstone, but a kind of superstition hung about the whole subject of rabies. No one could tell exactly how the victim of a dog bite might be affected, and suggestions for curing him were just as vague. A merit of this situation was the fact that fear bred of uncertainty drove people to try every method, including the scientific anti-rabic treatment which prevents the development of the disease in all cases except one-half of 1 per cent.

Apparently there has been a strong reaction from the old feeling of blind terror. The Department of Health reports a disturbing increase in the number of rabid dogs in New York City and in the number of people bitten. But only about half of those attacked by the animals have applied for the anti-rabic treatment. This is an unusual and not a desirable turn for an increase in knowledge to take. Those bitten seem to feel that if the disease develops the doctors can cure them and no lasting damage will be done.

It should be known that the treatment is not a curative, but a prophylactic treatment. After rabies has developed it has no value, and in all cases where a bite is inflicted by a suspected dog it should be given at once. Bites anywhere about the head are especially dangerous, because the tendency to infection is increased.

The Catalina Sea Derby.

Professional long-distance swimming promises to be a remunerative occupation. In January for the Catalina Channel "sea derby"—sea marathon would seem to be more apt—prizes amounting to $40,000 will be offered. Originally there was to be one of $25,000 to the winner, but Mrs. ELIZABETH CORSON objected that no woman would have a chance.

Thereupon $15,000 was added, to be given to the first woman to finish. If a woman proved to be the winner there would be no second money. The entry of a woman, perhaps several women, is thus assured.

The arrangement is all that the gentler sex could desire. After GERTRUDE EDERLE swam the English Channel in record time, mere man came quickly to the front and asserted his supremacy. Twice Miss EDERLE's time was beaten. But there were no affidavits from disinterested spectators. Carpers in England have pointed this out. So in the future Channel swims will be under surveillance and be recognized as official.

The Catalina "sea derby" may bring about an English Channel annual race. Swimming regattas have long been popular in England along the coast. The regatta at the Hoe in Plymouth draws its thousands. There are races for all ages, amateur and professional, and from a hundred yards to a mile or more. An English Channel race might well be made an annual fixture. Records would undoubtedly tumble, and the nationality of the champion might frequently change.

A New Phase of the White Man's Burden.

It is not recorded that the recent Imperial Conference in London gave much thought to the Charleston as a menace to the British Commonwealth. Yet Christian churches in South Africa are protesting against the indulgence of white men in knock-kneed choreography, on the ground that it undermines white prestige among the natives. The Charleston has been traced back to the prohibited native dances in the African jungle, and the heathen in his blindness cannot understand why what is good enough for the European is not good enough for him.

Long before the Charleston and its antecedent wriggles, crawls, trots and hugs the peoples of the East were puzzled by the white man's ballroom exercises. The Oriental dignitary could not understand why white men should go to the trouble of dancing when they could hire other people to dance for them, as the custom is in the East. And as ballroom fashions approximated to primitive Oriental types, wonder was mixed with contempt.

The Caucasian's dances in the presence of the lower breeds are part of a problem intensified by the movies. London has been giving serious imperial consideration to the demoralizing effects on Indian public opinion of Western civilization as summarized by Hollywood. Western man in the pursuit of joy has long given up bothering about what his neighbors will say; his white neighbors are similarly engaged. But the white man is now asked to ponder on what the colored neighbors may be saying.

REGULATING PEDESTRIANS.

Suggestion That Parking by Walkers Also Be Prohibited.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

While we are so necessarily regulating vehicular traffic, why don't we reduce congestion by regulating pedestrians?

If a car is parked in a crowded street its driver is ticketed and fined. If thousands of people are parked all over the sidewalks—as they are—especially when traffic is heaviest in the theatre district at night, hundreds of people are delayed—yet there seems to be no remedy. If two or more persons may block the sidewalk during the conversation, why may not two or more drivers do the same thing on the roadway?

The crossing of a street, at busy times, when traffic stops, is akin to a football rush—two opposing armies trying to occupy the same space at the same time, to the discomfort of all and loss of temper of many. Why not insist that pedestrians shall keep to the right?

If we are to have white lines to indicate the proper course for cars, why not white lines on the sidewalks and at crossings, and a law to compel walkers to keep to the right? "Keep to the right," properly presented to the people, with information about time-saving and other advantages, ought to become popular. If it did not the matter is of sufficient importance to warrant legislation.

The pinching of traffic at corners is another nuisance and dangerous custom. It hinders the car which has a legitimate right of way and slows up traffic.

Perhaps there is only one remedy—a definite signal system for pedestrians, too, with definite penalties for infraction. S. A. M.

AT THE COMING OF YULE.

We must think of our future, said she,
As soon as she'd promised to marry me;
And continued with that admonition
On many occasions to harry me.
But her principal int'rest in thrift
Sans the shade of a possible doubt lay
In the scattered occasions when I
Was proposing some personal outlay!

Believing that sauce for the gander
Is sauce for the goose quite as truthfully,
I have frowned on Drusilla's disbursements
Consistently, bravely, unruthfully.
But now when Old Christmas approaches
I suspect 'twill be very unpleasant
If, thinking so much of our futrure,
I don't give some thought to her present!

MEXICAN DISCOURTESY.

Source of Irritation Seen in the Handling of Informal Relations.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Francis B. Sayre's arguments on his premises are sound, but it is quite apparent that he is not in possession of the basic facts controlling the attitude of the State Department toward the present Government of Mexico. It is true that the question of the laws of Mexico are being protested, but there are deeper reasons for the existing friction which have not been published.

The exchange of notes over the oil, land and religious laws is for purposes of the record only. What really disturbs the friendly relationship that should exist between two sovereign States is the lack of ordinary courtesy displayed by the Mexican Government in its informal relations with the State Department. The fact that the Secretary of State has sent a "bushel basket full of notes," which have remained unanswered or were brusquely replied to by Mexico, is the primary cause of the trouble. These notes and informal memoranda have been sent on account of the many individual cases of persecution of American citizens at the hands of Mexican officials. The policy of the Department of State has been to treat individual cases with Mexico informally, awaiting the time when the official case against the Mexican Government was developing along legal lines.

If our Government has been at fault in its handling of the Mexican situation it has been because it was unwilling to dignify individual cases by formal protest, and endeavored instead to solve the whole problem without reference to the merits of the separate items, which have now accumulated to an indigestible mass. It is perhaps unfortunate that the United States has elected to handle the whole problem at once rather than to settle a case at a time, but having embarked on the broader policy there is no other recourse than to ultimatums, in which our people must support our Government whole-heartedly.

I am unwilling to believe that the people of the United States have become so soft as to be unwilling to fight for a principle. In these days we hear a great deal about peace and the necessity of "turning the other cheek." That is indeed a noble attitude which can well be practiced by all individuals. But the function of a Government is to protect its citizens. For this reason we have police to protect the community; we have courts to protect one individual from another; we have sanitary departments to protect the people from epidemics and disease; we have an army and navy to protect the country from invasion of its property and rights. The Government should have no other duty than the protection of the individual while he goes about his daily affairs. This protection by the Government within its jurisdiction is one of force and law and not of peaceful persuasion. In the relations between nations international law requires every Government to so comport its relations with every other Government that diplomatic exchange will suffice to settle problems as they arise, but when diplomacy fails as a means of settling disputes resort must be had to ultimatums and force.

In its relations with the United States the Mexican Government has failed to show itself amenable to diplomatic suggestions, and has brought about a condition where resort must be had to other means in defense of what is right and just. The great difficulty in treating with Mexico has been to actually catch her in legal blunders, for the injustices to which foreigners have been subjected in Mexico have always been shrouded in a form of legality, which appeared on its face perfectly proper but which common-sense and right-eousness find contrary to the dictates of civilization and international law.

We have had enough of this "peace at any price" idea, which, if unchallenged, will lead to destruction. Let us have a revival of that old American spirit which is willing to fight for principle and stand firm at all costs.

HOWARD T. OLIVER.

New York, Dec. 9, 1926.

The Law Students' Side.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have read with a great deal of interest Mr. Fordham's opinion, and also the subsequent articles of prominent lawyers on the subject of fitness of candidates for admission to the bar. May I at this time voice my opinion, as one who expects to be called before the Character Committee in the near future?

I am a graduate of the Maxwell Training School for Teachers and have taught in the public schools for the last two years. Two of the most important examinations that a young man must pass before being admitted to the teaching profession are those in oral English and general fitness. These two examinations parallel the character and cultural requirements for admission to the bar. They differ in one important respect, and therein lies the trouble. In the pedagogical field students are not compelled to study for two years and then find out that because of their poor use of English or because of their questioned character they cannot become teachers. They are examined before entering the training school for any speech defects that might hinder them from accomplishing their purpose, and reports are submitted to them every six months as to their character. Hence, on the passing of the final examinations there is nothing to hinder them from becoming members of their chosen profession.

The thought was expressed by Representative Martin C. Ansorge that "the time to examine candidates for the legal profession as to cultural and ethical qualifications is before they enter law school, and not after they have spent years in preparation for the bar. It is manifestly unfair to turn down an applicant who has spent years in study because, perchance, he may not come up to certain ethical and cultural requirements."

Warning to "DX Fiends."

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Symptoms of the plague have crept into THE TIMES columns. I refer to the letters relating to radiomania. Unless the hundreds suffering from this disease are warned calamity will result.

Owners of outfits often are bitten by a microbe found only in radio-electrical mechanisms. This germ causes a megalo-egoic complex which brings death by starvation to its victims.

May I warn radio fans that the uncontrollable desire to receive from distant stations is the first symptom of dread disorder? It will grow on them, unless they combat it tooth and nail, and in the end their loving families will find their fleshless corpses some dawn beside their receivers.

Radio "distance bugs" are those who ruin reception for sane persons who want to hear the good local music. They make their sets "howl" and "bloop." They are a menace in themselves. G. S. B.

THE BUDGET.

Comparisons Which Cast Doubt on the Extent of Economies.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The Federal budget resembles a large telephone directory. Dealing with a scant two years of our national existence, it requires over thirteen hundred pages. We must not forget, however, that the budget is a monument to economy.

We are apt to think of this huge volume as the work of General H. M. Lord, Director of the Bureau of the Budget. That appears to be a misconception. A certain orderly arrangement of the statistics and the differences exhibited by a comparison with earlier prophecies betray the guiding hand of the Secretary of the Treasury.

The routine expenses of our Government are grouped in the Treasury reports as "General Expenditures." All are subject to intelligent estimate. They include the cost of maintaining the great departments, commissions and the District of Columbia. The approximate total spent in 1925 was $1,837,000,000. The Bureau of the Budget in July, 1924, forecast as to expenditure of $1,978,000,000. The message gave the expected total as $1,[illegible],000,000. The 1925 results seem to have had a psychological effect upon the General, for his 1926 estimate was $1,763,000,000. The message raised it to $1,831,000,000. The amount actually spent was $1,827,000,000. The General's 1927 prediction is $1,867,000,000. The message has raised it to $1,[illegible],000,000.

The Bureau of the Budget is one of our best mediums of economical publicity. But do the results warrant the expense? We note, rather sadly, that the bureau itself spent $189,400 in 1925 against $136,208 in 1924. The President has said: "I regard a good budget as among the noblest monuments of virtue." The July forecasts do not seem to have achieved the standard of excellence worthy of perpetuation.

The budget message contains the usual estimate of the total of taxes derived from the customs and internal revenue. Before we can consider it intelligently we must look at the totals for previous years:

1923	$4,[illegible]
1925	3,[illegible]

We are at once conscious of a slight average increase in the total of national taxation during Mr. Coolidge's term of office. While the direct taxation of the individual has been reduced to an extent which makes estimation almost painless, we are likely to get the increase in corporation income taxes from 10 per cent. to 13½ per cent. of two years ago. The corporations are now paying about one-half of the total income tax collected. The President expects the total revenue from taxation in 1927 to be $[illegible],000,000 at the existing rates. A month ago it looked as if Mr. Coolidge, after three years of preparatory economy, was at last going to reduce taxation. The message leaves the decision to Congress, with a recital of the lugubrious circumstances implying the need for the most extreme caution. The lack of good faith is to be imputed to the President for the failure of his previous efforts. His fairy godmother, prosperity, has overwhelmed him. Some taxes have been reduced, but the total yield has increased.

The next portion of the message is devoted to the purely routine "General Expenditures." These expenses are almost all entirely within the control of the Administration. Here should be the very abode of economy. The outlays for national defense, limited during the war, did not return to a normal until 1926. To obtain a fair comparison with previous years we must eliminate the expenses of the War and Navy Departments. Beginning with the first year after the war ended, the results are as follows:

1922	1,[illegible]
1923	1,[illegible]
1924	1,[illegible]
1925	1,[illegible]

Comparing the average expenditures of the years 1920 to 1923 with those of 1924 to 1926, we find that Mr. Coolidge has spent about 96½ cents on regular expenses, as compared to each dollar spent by his predecessors for similar purposes since the war ended. If we include the message estimate for 1927, $1,215,677,000, he will have spent slightly more than 100 cents on the dollar. This may be a highly creditable showing, but those huge cuts in the regular expenses of our Government, the subject of so much glowing campaign oratory, are mere figments of the heated political imagination. The well-advertised savings have been offset by increases elsewhere. The taxpayer is in the position of the well-known Italian fruit vendor who complained that what he made on the oranges he lost on the banan'.

That reductions have been obtained in the cost of national defense is undeniable, but it would have been an absolute impossibility to maintain the army and navy on a war footing during a period of profound peace. Economies of this description are compulsory.

1924	$3,[illegible]
1925	3,[illegible]
1927	3,[illegible]

The 1927 surplus, without tax reduction, is estimated at $383,000,000. If income taxes are reduced by $[illegible],000,000, a slight diminution in prosperity might create a deficit. We need not worry about that. Our moral effort to uphold the sanctity of international obligations has a substantial cash value. Last year Europe paid us $[illegible],000,000 in interest alone. These payments were used for national debt reduction, but there is no reason why future payments should not be devoted to other uses.

The budget reeks of prosperity. Tax reduction, slightly dubious, is to be a political issue. Economy is of the negative variety. CHARLES [illegible].

British Income Tax Claims.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

May I draw the attention of [illegible] readers to the fact that British income tax claims for the financial year 1926-27, which is the first year for which they may be preferred, must be definitely lodged with the Inland Revenue authorities here by April 5 next? After that date these claims will become statute-barred.

PASHITCH IS DEAD, STRICKEN IN CRISIS

Veteran Yugoslav Statesman, Called by King, Collapses as He Consults Party.

BELGRADE IS IN MOURNING

Death, as He Was Expected to Lead Nation in New Albanian Trouble, Shocks the People.

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia, Dec. 10.—Nikola P. Pashitch, the "grand old man of Serbia," who with a few brief interruptions had been Premier of Serbia and Yugoslavia for the past twenty years, died in his home here at 9 o'clock this morning, as he neared his eighty-first birthday. Death came so suddenly as to cause consternation in view of the serious situation created by the Italian-Albanian treaty.

M. Pashitch was about to take the helm again in the crisis, as he invariably did in times of serious internal or external trouble. After Premier Uzunovitch failed to form a new Cabinet, King Alexander yesterday afternoon called M. Pashitch to the Royal Palace. M. Pashitch seemed in his usual health when he answered reporters' queries after the audience by saying:

"It has never been my custom to report my conversations with his Majesty."

Last night he conferred with members of the Radical Party, which he founded and had made the dominant party in the country. At 10 o'clock last night M. Pashitch said he felt ill and retired, his friends, members of the Cabinet and other of his political adherents gathering at the bedside and remaining there through the night. Despite all the efforts of the physicians he sank rapidly, apparently suffering a stroke of paralysis on the right side of the brain. He became unconscious at 4 o'clock, remaining so until death.

Cabinet Meeting Is Called.

Premier Uzunovitch, who is continuing to administer the country during the Ministerial crisis, immediately called an urgent meeting of the Cabinet, which lasted three hours, with results not yet known.

It is certain M. Pashitch will receive a State funeral with the greatest pomp. All the newspapers are publishing special editions paying glowing tributes to the veteran statesman and all parties mourn his loss.

To the Radical Party especially it assumes the proportions of a catastrophe. The dissensions within the party after causing M. Pashitch's resignation as Premier in April have grown to a point threatening its dominant position in the country. Only the tremendous personal prestige of M. Pashitch had prevented a serious split since then, and the Radicals are now fearful that the struggle of his lieutenants to succeed him as the party leader will disrupt the party.

M. Pashitch was ill last Summer of gallstones, but took the cure at Carlsbad, returning to political life in Belgrade recently seemingly in restored health. He was remarkably well preserved for his age, weathering well every attack of nature and even the wound he sustained at the age of [illegible] when an attempt was made to assassinate him. His vitality became proverbial. It amused him to tell opponents and lieutenants who frequently thought he could not possibly live much longer by remarking that he expected to reach 100.

King Visits Pashitch's Home.

King Alexander, accompanied by Prince Paul, today visited the Pashitch home to express his sympathy to the family. The King was deeply affected and stood for ten minutes near the body, his eyes full of tears, and after leaving the room returned once again to where M. Pashitch's body lay.

On his return to the palace the King announced that all consultations regarding the Ministerial crisis would be postponed for two days, despite the serious character of the internal and foreign situation. Black flags were hung everywhere in Belgrade, even before public mourning was proclaimed. All amusement halls and private balls have been suspended until after the funeral, which will probably be Monday or Tuesday.

As M. Pashitch was a volunteer fifty years ago, he will receive a military funeral. The Radical Party has circularized all its provincial branches asking that deputations be sent to the funeral.

According to the latest details of M. Pashitch's last illness, he fell sick after eating a supper of only cheese and milk. Physicians came immediately, finding an artery broken and the blood rushing to the brain, causing paralysis. The physicians tried to stem the blood pressure on the brain by bleeding, which afforded the patient relief during a part of the night. While they were consulting in the morning M. Pashitch's daughter rushed to them with the news that he was suddenly sinking and they found him with life almost extinct, dying a few moments later.

In Politics for Fifty-three Years.

M. Pashitch during his fifty-three years of political life had a most checkered career. He was born the son of a merchant in a village near the Bulgarian frontier and spent much of his youth in that country, and by some was said to have been really of Bulgarian origin.

While studying engineering with a Government scholarship in Zurich, Switzerland, he became associated with Russian Nihilists, becoming the boon companion of the celebrated Anarchist Bakunin.

He returned to Serbia in 1873 intent on establishing a revolutionary Socialist State and soon founded the Radical Party, which was then all that its name now mistakenly implies. Elected a Deputy five years later, King Milan twice refused to recognize the House's choice of him as Speaker. Later M. Pashitch, by fleeing to Austria, escaped the death sentence for the uprising he helped to foment. All others were amnestied except M. Pashitch, who returned from exile in triumph when King Milan abdicated in favor of King Alexander.

He became Premier first in 1891, then went to Russia as Serbian Minister, where he gained the Czar's protection for his country and incidentally for himself. When he returned he was imprisoned for nine months for lèse-majesté. Soon after his release he was rearrested and charged with conspiring against the King's life. Thanks to the intervention of Russia, he escaped with five years' imprisonment, later changed into banishment.

Helped Present Dynasty to Throne.

After King Alexander's assassination in 1903 M. Pashitch helped to establish the present Karageorgevitch dynasty on the Serbian throne, becoming its Prime Minister in 1906. Since then under his guidance the small kingdom of Serbia has through the Balkan and World wars trebled its size and is now larger than Austria, whose inveterate enemy M. Pashitch always had been.

Known as "The Old Fox of the Balkans," M. Pashitch was instrumental in creating the Balkan Alliance which triumphed over Turkey. Premier at the time of the Sarajevo assassination, he had been accused since the war of foreknowledge of the crime—an accusation which he finally denied last Spring. It was M. Pashitch who answered the Austrian ultimatum and who represented Serbia at the Paris Peace Conference.

Since the war, with the exception of eight months, he had continuously been Premier of Yugoslavia until April. During this troubled period he completely defeated the Croatian separatist republican movement under Stephan Raditch, brought M. Raditch into his Cabinet and greatly consolidated both the kingdom and the throne.

A favorite story the Serbians tell is that M. Pashitch, when he left Zurich as an architect engineer, forgot to put a stairway in the first house he built. As a state builder, however, it is the verdict of most observers, including those who have condemned his methods as unscrupulous, that M. Pashitch succeeded remarkably well despite the obstacles and difficulties, greater in many respects than other Balkan countries faced.

Last March, on the application of her son, the New York Supreme Court appointed the Bank of New York and Trust Company a committee of her American property, which amounted to about $1,500,000. The application was based on a decree of the English courts declaring Mrs. Winthrop incompetent because of senility, which had led her to believe she was being persecuted by her maid.

Reuben Brooks.

He combined merchandising and organ-playing as a young man. Then Isaac Stanwold of Gloucester stepped by accident on a pile of damp fish skins and alighted on the fact that they contained glue. Brooks, with William N. LePage, formed a company to manufacture the product and after overcoming several snags in the form of patents, built up a company which shipped its product all over the world.

Curtiss. The next highest-priced single object was a Rhode Island block-front mahogany chest of drawers, a collector's piece, having the narrow beading characteristic of the Rhode Island type. J. H. STEINHARDT, RICH MERCHANT, DIES

SLEPT ON PARK BENCHES

Took Rival as a Partner and Was Owner of a $15,000,000-a-Year Produce Business at End.

Joseph H. Steinhardt, who rose from a pushcart peddler's lot to the presidency and sole ownership of the produce firm of Steinhardt & Kelly, doing an annual business of $15,000,000, died yesterday morning of heart disease at his residence, 1,010 Fifth Avenue, at the age of 62. He leaves a widow and four children. Funeral services will be held at the house at 10 A. M. tomorrow.

Mr. Steinhardt was born in Tauberbischopsheim, Germany, where his father and mother had a small shoe and leather store. Wonderful tales reached the family of the fortunes to be gathered in the United States, and at 13 the boy crossed the ocean to obtain his share. His start in the new country was not auspicious. A relative with whom he boarded put him out of the house because of a boyish prank, and the fortune-hunter found himself in the streets of New York with a capital of twenty-five cents and an English vocabulary of twenty-five words.

Helped by Steve Brodie.

Park benches were his beds for many nights. Thanks to the intervention of the late Steve Brodie, bridge jumper, young Steinhardt was able to pierce the newsboy monopoly on Park Row and make a few pennies selling papers. A newspaper editor for whom he had run an errand gave him a night job on condition that he would go to school and get an education. The arrangement didn't work out well, and he lost the job. All sorts of trivial and temporary ways of earning the price of food and lodging he tried, with no sign of getting a foothold.

One morning, after a twenty-four hour forced fast, Joseph was asked by a truckman at a fruit pier if he would like to make a quarter rolling barrels of apples. When he had rolled the lot, he asked for the quarter and received instead this offer:

"You can have a bag of apples or a swift kick. Which do you want?"

He took the apples, and in the bag was the secret of his millions. He ate five of the apples during the day and sold the rest from door to door for 50 cents. This he invested in bananas and sold them just as easily.

A Lucky Strike.

"I've struck it. This is the way," he decided, and from that way he never afterward deviated. His capital grew and at the first chance he bought a pushcart. That was a great day for him. He sallied forth proudly and at once got into a row with a rival pushcart peddler named Kelly, who claimed prior and exclusive rights to sell in the neighborhood Steinhardt had chosen. Day after day the German and the Irishman abused each other until the former suddenly suggested: "Let's cut this out and be partners." Thus was created the firm of Steinhardt & Kelly.

The men continued partners until the death of Kelly a few years ago. The handshake over the pushcart was the only contract they ever needed. Mr. Steinhardt was always opposed to signing contracts, making the only exception in his life to satisfy a friend's whim.

How the Business Grew.

The partners started their joint business with a horse and wagon, developed a house-to-house trade with families, added hotels, and finally a step of great importance—gained entrance to the business of supplying ships. With the expansion of their affairs the horse and wagon, of course, changed to warehouses and trucks.

Mr. Steinhardt was one of the chief figures in the opening up of the fruit and vegetable growing regions of the West and Northwest. In 1924 he told an interviewer: "Each year, to some two hundred-odd new fruit growers I advance $4,000,000 and pay the railroads $2,500,000 in freight charges and the telegraph companies $60,000 in tolls."

C. N. WHITEHEAD DEAD; RAILROAD PRESIDENT

Head of Missouri-Kansas-Texas System Victim of a Nervous Breakdown.

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 10 (AP).—C. N. Whitehead, President of the Missouri-Kansas-Texas Railroad, who suffered a nervous breakdown last October, died in a hospital here this morning, aged 48. Mr. Whitehead went to Florida some time ago to try to regain his health, but returned here recently and entered St. Luke's Hospital.

Mr. Whitehead's death came as a surprise to his friends in the financial district, many of whom believed him to be in good health. He was one of the youngest railroad presidents in the country. His successor probably will be one of the Missouri-Kansas-Texas Vice Presidents, it was said yesterday in railroad circles.

Leonor F. Loree controls the property and has pending before the Interstate Commerce Commission a petition for permission to lease it to the Kansas City Southern. He probably will choose the new president within a few weeks.

Mr. Whitehead succeeded Charles F. Schaff as President on the latter's retirement last May. Except for the first three years, he had spent his entire career in the service of the road. He was born in Princeton, Ill., and educated in the public schools there. His father was a railroad man and the boy got a job at fourteen as a messenger in the freight office of the St. Louis Southwestern at Cairo, Ill.

The family moved to Texas soon afterward, and in 1895 Mr. Whitehead began his long association with the M.-K.-T. PORTER—At a meeting of the Clearing House Committee of the New York Clearing House Association, held this day, the following minute was adopted by a rising vote:

The Clearing House Committee records with profound regret the death of William Henry Porter, a member of the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co., and for many years an outstanding figure among the bankers of this city.

Mr. Porter, whose first experience in banking was obtained as a young man in the Fifth Avenue Bank, was successively cashier and Vice President of the Chase National Bank and Vice President and President of the Chemical National Bank.

He was called upon to occupy many positions of trust and responsibility, and in them all he displayed the ability, tireless industry and whole-hearted devotion to duty which were among his marked characteristics.

He was identified with the Clearing House for a number of years, serving it in various capacities—Secretary in 1895-96, member of the Committee on Admissions 1903-04, Clearing House Committee 1905-06 and Chairman of that committee in 1906, President of the association 1909-10; and in all his relations with the Clearing House he exemplified its best traditions of unselfish service.

Faithful to every trust, kind and considerate in all the relations of life, he won the respect and affection of all who were associated with him. Those who knew him best esteemed him most highly.

On behalf of the association, the Clearing House Committee begs to tender to the family of Mr. Porter and to his business associates its deep sympathy in the heavy loss which they have sustained.

Next-to-the-last Christmas Shopping Saturday

From the Founder's Writings

It Is Not the Dash in Starting a Race

—but the steady step straight along that promises best the winning of the prize.

Body and soul must go together to reach the goal.

There are always rainbows of some kind ahead, and whatever the weather, all weathers are good to those who are determined to win out.

If your actions do not coincide with your professions your talk counts for little.

Every square foot of these buildings and their contents must ring true to what we claim for it.

SPEEDY AID IS URGED FOR NEEDIEST CASES

$57,782 NOW IN THE FUND

More Than $200,000 More Is Required if Relief Is to Equal That of Last Year.

TWO $500 GIFTS RECEIVED

Donors Send Messages of Cheer to City's Unfortunates as Help Goes to Them.

Contributions for the neediest cases fell off yesterday. The total of $7,887.74 was little more than half that of the preceding day.

A great flood of contributions is needed between now and Christmas to insure relief on last year's scale to New York's most afflicted families. The contributions yesterday increased the total to $57,782.74. More than $200,000 is needed to equal last year's total of $260,998.26, which provided for 345 cases.

The cases for which help is asked are the most distressed that are known to the great charitable organizations cooperating in the appeal. Families will be saved from absolute starvation in any case, but full relief cannot be given unless the response to this appeal continues to be generous.

The relief that is meant is not a feast followed by a famine, but steady, persevering assistance, meeting all the needs of the afflicted family and aiming at its complete rehabilitation. The unfortunates are fed, clothed and housed. The sick are cared for. Latent earning capacity is developed. Not only are their immediate needs met, but destitute families are aided and encouraged in every way in working out their own future.

In one case long hospital or sanitarium care must be given to the father, mother or child. In another case, the relief must begin with a long rest for an overworked, worn-out mother. Widows and children, weakened and emaciated from months or years of undernourishment, are provided with proper food in ample quantities. Families living in overcrowded, dark, insanitary quarters, are moved to better surroundings. In two cases, for instance, widows and children are living in huts on city dumps. Decent places to live in will be provided for them.

Best Treatment Provided.

Careful diagnosis is made and skillful treatment given in the case of every patient among the neediest cases. Some must have operations immediately. Others require prolonged medical attention. Through preventive medicine neglected children get a chance to grow up strong and well. Decayed teeth are filled. Eye troubles are corrected by treatment or glasses. Adenoids and diseased tonsils are removed by specialists. Braces, crutches or special shoes are provided for cripples from poliomyelitis, hip disease and other ailments. The sunshine treatment and special diets are provided for children threatened with tuberculosis.

The future of each family is never lost sight of. The blind are taught trades at schools for the blind. Men who, weakened by disease, can no longer do heavy physical labor, are re-educated in occupations suitable for them. Sons and daughters who are growing up are taught trades so that they can begin earning the best possible wages, as soon as they are old enough to be permitted by law to leave school. Self-respect and independence are encouraged in every possible way, and pauperization is avoided.

In some cases boys and girls in orphan asylums are praying to be allowed to return to their mothers and sisters and brothers. Contributions to the neediest cases will grant their prayers. In other cases mothers and children, bereft and penniless, are aghast at the danger that they may have to be parted. To feed and shelter the little ones it may be necessary to take them away from a devoted but sick or overworked mother and place them in institutions. No greater tragedy can befall a mother whose life is wrapped up in her children. No greater cruelty can be inflicted on a child. Many heart-breaking separations, now impending, can be averted by contributions.

Help the Neediest of All.

The six charitable organizations are now doing all that is possible with their limited means. They cannot provide adequately for the vast amount of poverty and destitution that exists in a city of 6,000,000 people. The cases for which this appeal is made are the neediest of all. One after another the most pitiful cases will be relieved as contributions come in. As each of these cases is provided for the burden on the means of the charitable organizations is lessened and they will be able to help other cases more adequately.

The neediest cases speak for themselves. The only appeal is through the publication of their stories. Help must come to them from readers whose hearts are touched. There is no personal solicitation. Offers of benefit performances and of the donation of personal services have been made by generous friends of the neediest cases, but have been declined, to avoid any change in the character of the appeal. Its success in the past has been due to the compassion and pity which have been aroused by the tragic stories.

The neediest cases have won personal friends and benefactors whose interest never dies. The public is enlightened concerning distress which is too easily lost sight of. The modern war on poverty is dramatically pictured, and new backers and helpers are brought to the support of the great charitable organizations which are systematically waging this war.

Every cent of every contribution buys the necessaries of life for the neediest cases. There is no deduction of any kind. The administration work and personal service is furnished by the charitable organizations. One hundred per cent. of every contribution buys food, fuel, clothing, shelter, medical attention and other essentials.

Cheers Afflicted Homes.

There is a Christmas atmosphere about gifts for the neediest cases. Santa Claus is no myth here. Contributions send him into the saddest and most afflicted homes in New York with gifts of immeasurable value. His pack does not contain the usual assortment of Christmas gifts. It has no toys and luxuries and pretty remembrances. But it contains life for those in danger of dying from neglect and anxiety, homes for mothers and children in danger of losing them, a renewal of family life and love for children in orphan asylums, health and hope, and a chance for the future.

Checks should be made out to the Hundred Neediest Cases Fund and sent to THE NEW YORK TIMES, or to one of the six societies aiding the cases.

Forty-two contributions were made yesterday in memory of dear ones.

A check from Bernon S. Prentice, head of the American committee which sponsored the Amundsen-Ellsworth flight over the North Pole, was received yesterday with the following letter:

New York, Dec. 9, 1926.

Hundred Neediest Cases Fund:

Enclosed find my check for $500 for this fund, which I am delighted to give. I think it is one of the best ways of expressing charitable help that I know of, and especially fitting at this time of the year. I am, very truly yours,

BERNON S. PRENTICE.

C. M. Keyes, President of the Curtiss Airplane and Motor Company, Inc., sent a contribution of $500.

One contribution of $450 was made simply "In Memory." One of $50 was made in memory of the late Judge Julius M. Mayer. Mrs. Jerome J. Hanauer gave $250 and David Magie $300.

Contributors of $100 included Tessa Kosta, the light opera star; Brig. Gen. Herbert S. Wolfe, "The Sunnybank Collies," Phillip Medecus, Mr. and Mrs. Gay E. Milius, Anne Potter Lage, Henry Ittleson, Seneca D. Eldredge, Albert I. Drayton, J. Harper Erwin 3d, Olivia J. Norris, Mrs. Norbert Licht, Mrs. Azelia W. Steele, Mr. and Mrs. Adolph B. Lichtenstein and Warren B. Nash.

Makes Her Christmas Happier.

The check sent by Miss Kosta was accompanied by the following letter:

New York City, Dec. 10, 1926.

Again my Christmas will be made happier in knowing that my contribution (the enclosed check for $100), has, in some small way, helped to alleviate the burden of Cases 4, 14 and 98. May the fund far exceed its expectations is the sinceer wish of

TESSA KOSTA.

One of yesterday's contributions came from England. This was $25, sent by Second Lieutenant C. E. Saltzman, C. E., U. S. A., from Magdalen College, Oxford. Contributions for the Neediest Cases have been received this year from Austria, Italy, France, Honduras and now from England.

A contribution from Mary M. Adelman of Madison, N. J., came with the following letter:

Dec. 8, 1926.

Hundred Neediest Cases Fund:

I am 7 years old. I have saved $13.20 for Christmas presents. When my daddy told me about the Needy Cases, I said "Here goes"; so here it is. Now please hurry and buy some bread and jam for all the 100 cases.

MARY M. ADELMAN.

A contribution of $25 was made to the neediest cases by a charitable organization. "The Sisterhood of the Temple of the Covenant, through the Rose Goldstein Emergency Fund, ministers to the city's neediest all year round, and so considers it a privilege to contribute its mite to the 100 neediest cases," wrote Frances Arnheim, Chairman of the Goldstein Emergency Fund of the Sisterhood. Other organization contributions were received from the Girls' Friendship Club and the Girls' Thursday Bridge Club.

Messages From Contributors.

Carrie L. Lease—Enclosed please find my check for the neediest cases; $10 for Baby Ben, Case 68, in loving memory of my Uncle Ben, a great physician who loved to help little children, and $5 for Case 33, in loving memory of my mother and in realization of what it means to have failing eyes.

Rita and Jean—Enclosed find check for $10 toward the Neediest Cases Fund. Hope our little will help to make some unfortunate child happy.

Sue Wray, Closter, N. J.—From a little girl, 6 years old, who has everything to make her happy, including good health. Please place the check to Case 44 for little Jane, who is ill. May her Christmas be bright this year.

Mrs. A. E. S.—I am enclosing herewith my check for $10, which I should like applied to fund for Case 7 in the name of little Jane.

E. S.—If my contribution consisted of thousands I would be the happiest woman but unfortunately the enclosed is the best that I am able to give.

M. W.—Enclosed please find my contribution to the Hundred Neediest Cases Fund, $1, with the best of wishes for health and happiness to all.

Mrs. John H. Capstick—Kindly apply two sisters' checks, enclosed here, to Case 79, Two Sisters, for whom we have the tenderest sympathy.

Harriette Holbrook—Please use the enclosed for Case 8, which appeals especially to me. If one could only give to all, the cases are so heart-breaking.

Mrs. Paul Coster—Please find enclosed check for $5 to be given to Case 8, a pitiful one indeed. Wish I could have made it $500 to the most wonderful charity.

G. M. S.—Enclosed find my check for $3 to go toward the Hundred Neediest Cases. It always gives me great pleasure to do my bit to bring cheer and comfort to some worthy family.

Anonymous—Please find check for $10 for the Hundred Neediest Cases. I wish it were ten times as much. Your presentation of the cases makes me feel helpless before so much sorrow and want. Please acknowledge this "In Memory of a Little Boy."

Find Pleasure in Giving.

Anna K. Simonds—Please accept this check from a high school girl who takes a great deal of pleasure in sending to such a worthy cause.

Betty Farintosh—I am indeed grateful for the pleasure and privilege of again contributing even in a small degree to the Hundred Neediest Cases. How I wish that I could have donated an infinitely larger amount. I would like the enclosed little sum to be used for Case 96, though it is difficult to choose between them, each being so pathetic.

Anonymous—I am a visitor to your city from the Far West. The noble work you are doing for the Hundred Neediest Cases appeals to me very strongly and I take pleasure in adding my little mite to the good cause. Case 22 seems very pathetic, but you use the money as you think most fit.

Mrs. N. V. Lansing, Evanston, Ill.—Enclosing my check "the widow's mite" for the One Hundred Neediest Cases. Case 7 appeals to me, a potato in rags for a doll, too pitiful and heart-breaking.

Seneca D. Eldredge—I take pleasure in enclosing herewith my check for $100 for the 1926 Hundred Neediest Cases. I want to congratulate you on this very worthy charity and hope that this year's contributions will pass all previous records.

Margaret C. McKee—Enclosed please find my check for $5 to add to your fund for the Hundred Neediest Cases. The work you are doing is truly worthy and I only wish my contribution could be larger. Success to you in meeting last year's quota.

Joseph T. Pacetti, St. Augustine, Fla.—I am enclosing you $20 for the Hundred Neediest Cases. You can apply it where it will do the most good. I am a long way off and we have some poor here, but we do not have the rigors of the cold, and your appeal certainly must touch the hearts of those of us who live in a climate of sunshine.

Mrs. C. W. Dunn—This is such an intelligent and forceful way of bringing the neediest cases to the attention of the public. I do hope that all their direst problems will be solved for at least another year.

All Cases Are Pitiable.

Barbara Kates—This is my contribution to the worthiest cause I know of. I haven't very much to give and like to feel that my little bit goes where it does the most good. Please apply this to Case 29, which makes a desperate appeal to my sympathies. This is "In Memory of Little Ella."

Lily J. Freeman—Enclosed please find two checks, one from my father and one from myself, for the Hundred Neediest Cases. It is indeed a pleasure to be allowed to contribute once again toward this beautiful Christmas work, and I am positive we derive as much pleasure from doing so as the ones do who receive it. The cases are all so pitiable it is hard to decide on any one.

A. Julian Pilgram—The sending of this small contribution toward the fund has become one of my annual Christmas pleasures, and I look forward to doing so each year. I thank you for the privilege and trust that as usual the amount will go "over the top."

A. J. C. A., Port Chester, N. Y.—It is always a pleasure to contribute to the Hundred Neediest Cases and I am enclosing my check with all good wishes for this splendid work.

The following are cases whose needs have not yet been met:

CASE 97.

Four Hollow-Eyed Children and a Father With a Weak Heart.

When the husband became an invalid from heart attacks the wife sought to support the family by going out to sew on fur. A doctor, calling on the heart patient, noticed that the four children were thin and hollow-eyed. The mother's earnings could not buy the necessities of life. Charles, 14, runs errands after school, and in a year will be permitted by law to go to work. The other children are Nicholas, 10; Louis, 8, and John, 4. The father and mother have always been industrious and independent; it is a tragedy to them to have to ask for help.

Case attested and administered free of cost by the Association for Improving the Condition of the Poor, 105 East Twenty-second Street. (Telephone Gramercy 7040.)

CASE 94.

This Girl of 15 Is the Only Wage Earner in a Family of Seven.

Catherine, 15, is the only wage earner. She works in a lace factory and earns $12 a week, but this does not go far when there are seven mouths to be fed. The father, who had always been a hard-working man, is a hopeless invalid at the age of 38. A stroke left him with a paralyzed left side and a crippled heart. The other children are Julia, 14; Beatrice, 11; Angelina, 4, and John, 9. Catherine cannot win her battle without help.

Amount needed, $1,000.

CASE 96.

Two Parentless Boys Who Have Never Known Kindness.

Junior, 9, and Harold, 11, have shifted for themselves so long that they have developed a fighting spirit and are mistrustful of everybody. They have never known the gentler side of life, a father's companionship and a mother's love. Rough men, quarreling and drinking, were familiar sights to them. One night, that will long be a grim memory to them, uniformed men took their father away. He died in jail. Their mother gave up utterly and the boys were deserted. They are at the age when every step counts. With help they may become good citizens. Without the help they may go as their father went. Boarding, care and schooling are necessary to give them a new start in life.

Amount needed, $800.

Case attested and administered free of cost by the State Charities Aid Association, 105 East Twenty-second Street. (Telephone Gramercy 1454.)

CASE 87.

A Mother Risks Her Life That Her Three Sons Might Have Food.

Last year Jennie, 16, died of tuberculosis. The physician had said months before that she was undernourished. The mother sewed most of the day and far into the night to earn the money for better food and care for the girl, but it did not save her. This year the mother is working harder than ever. She has her three boys still to feed: Alex, 13; Jim, 11, and George, 9. They are undernourished, too. The doctor has told her that she will kill herself if she keeps on at her present pace. She is threatened with a serious breakdown, possibly tuberculosis. Help is necessary to maintain the home and let the mother rest.

Amount needed, $1,300.

CASE 59.

Her Husband Is Dying and Their Four Children Are Hungry.

"My husband is dangerously ill," wrote Mrs. Thomas. "I am four months behind in my rent and we have insufficient food. I don't know what we are going to do if you cannot help us." A welfare worker found the family in a small bare lodging on the top floor of an old three-story frame tenement. Neighbors had just taken up a collection to pay the family's gas bill. There was no food in the house. Ellen was at a clothing factory, where she works from 9 to 6 to earn $12 a week. William, 8, and Morton, 7, were at school. The father, virtually a dying man, was at home with the three-year-old child, Helen. He had been in a tuberculosis sanatorium, but he gave up his chance to recover in order to return home and try to help when he learned what straits his wife and children were in. Their immediate wants have been met, but they must have further aid.

Amount needed, $350.

Case attested and administered free of cost by the Brooklyn Bureau of Charities, 69 Schermerhorn Street, Brooklyn. (Telephone Triangle 0710.)

CASE 47.

Her Husband Is Dying and Her Son Is Paralyzed.

Victor had infantile paralysis when he was 9 months old. He is 9 years old now and is almost totally paralyzed on the left side. He has just enough control over his left foot to brace it at an odd angle as he shuffles along. He cannot play with other boys. But Victor's future is only one of the problems of his family. His father, a machinist, is dying in a tuberculosis hospital. Donald, 7, suffered a broken arm and is just recovering. The mother, an energetic woman, has tried to provide for them by opening a candy booth with the help of a distant relative. She works night and day, but her earnings can be reckoned in pennies. As a last resort, when everything else failed, she appealed for charity.

Amount needed, $300.

CASE 65.

A Crippled Father and His Helpless Family of Five.

Frederick was born three months ago in a bare room in the basement of an old frame tenement. There was little preparation for his coming. His father was in the hospital and his brothers and sisters were half-starved and in rags. Clothing was provided for the baby by members of a near-by church. Frederick's father was a skilled workman, a polisher of ornamental brasses. One day he made a false movement, and an emery wheel cut deep into his arm. It severed a nerve and left the arm half paralyzed. He received $200 in compensation, but was never able to return to his trade. He became a plasterer's helper. A falling scaffold struck his back. He recovered, but both injuries developed after-effects. A cancer on the arm resulted from one, tuberculosis of the spine from the other. His arm was amputated. His back is in a plaster cast. The mother, in the time she has remaining after looking after her family, earns about $3 a week finishing coats. Louis, the oldest boy, is 14, but is only in the fifth grade, having been held back by physical handicaps. In spite of his lack of education he will soon go to work to help support the family. Ruth is 8, and Thelma is 3. Ruth is in the first grade and is self-conscious about her worn and ill-fitting clothes. Frederick, in spite of the environment that he was born into, is a promising baby. The family cannot go on without help.

Amount needed, $850.

CASE 25.

A Father in Jail, a Mother and Five Children Who Hunger.

"I am in very bad need," she wrote. Her husband had just been sent to prison. Her heart was so weak that she could do only very light work. Her five children were hungry. She had told her plight to the Judge who sentenced her husband. He told her to go to the charitable society, but she borrowed a stamp and wrote a letter because she did not have the money for carfare. The visitor found the woman shrinking and timid. Since her husband's arrest every knock at the door had made her jump. She and her children were stunned by the disgrace that had befallen them, for they had always thought their father the best of men. The older boy, John, 13, is in Junior High. Jennie is in 7A, and Joseph in 6A. The others are Ellen, 6, and Mary, 4. The three school children had left home that morning without breakfast. Little Ellen and Mary that day had had only sweet cakes that a neighbor gave them for lunch. Their eyes shone and they ate eagerly when food was provided. The father, a mechanic, has an indeterminate sentence for receiving stolen goods. They all believe that he yielded to the temptation only because much sickness had left them without savings.

Amount needed, $940.

Help Is Asked to Provide For an Abandoned Child

CASE 14—A Waif Deserted by Her Parents in the Shanties.

The family lived in one room in a shanty. Helen never had a toy—nor even enough to eat. Rags were her only clothes and at times she nearly froze. Her sister did die of the cold. Then, one day, her father and mother left Helen with strangers without saying good-bye. Her second home was a shanty where traffic in whisky went on. She spent nights of terror because of the shouting and the fighting. At last she was rescued, and, for the first time in her life, she is receiving good care and training. In spite of her tragic childhood she is a promising child, now 6 years old. She has a speech defect that must be corrected. Help is needed to continue her under the care of a good mother who boards her.

Amount needed, $400.

LEOPOLD LOSES MOTOR LICENSE

Barred From Driving or Having Chauffeur Operate a Car Which He Owns.

BAN IS FOR SIX MONTHS

But Harnett Has Power to Continue It—Hearing Showed Fatal Accident Was Due to Recklessness.

Commissioner Charles A. Harnett of the Bureau of Motor Vehicles not only revoked the driving license of James M. Leopold Jr., yesterday, but also revoked the two certificates of registration for automobiles issued in Leopold's name, so that the latter no longer is entitled to drive himself, or to have a car of his ownership operated by a chauffeur.

The Commissioner's ruling is the result of the fight that has been made by George A. Spiegelberg, brother of Frederick Spiegelberg, who was killed when Leopold crashed his car into a tree on a New Jersey road on Nov. 7, 1925, to have Leopold debarred from driving. At the end of six months, under the law, Leopold may apply again for a license, but the granting of it will be discretionary with the Commissioner. Leopold is a broker, a member of the firm of J. M. Leopold & Co., and lives at 417 Park Avenue.

Commissioner Harnett acted upon the report of Deputy Commissioner John P. Hennessey, who was brought here from Syracuse especially to preside at the rehearing of the case. The results of two previous hearings had been in favor of Leopold. It developed at the last hearing that Leopold had been convicted three times of violations of the law and that subsequently in each case he had denied such convictions in applying for a new license.

George Spiegelberg had contended that he held no personal animosity against Leopold because of the death of his brother, but that he felt the young broker was not a fit person to operate a car. Leopold was informed last evening of the decision of the Commissioner.

In his report Deputy Commissioner Hennessey relates the facts of the accident and the subsequent suspension of Leopold's license, its reissuance and details of the two hearings, with the decision in each case, pointing out that witnesses who were available had not been called. It makes the point, too, that the criminal prosecution for manslaughter in New Jersey was dropped because the family of Mr. Spiegelberg did not press the case.

Recalls Harnett's Moves.

He recalls that Commissioner Harnett reviewed the evidence and ordered a new hearing, and then discussed the sections of the Motor Vehicle law which apply to the case. The record to Commissioner Harnett continues:

The following facts were established by the evidence in this case:

First: That James M. Leopold was convicted in 1912, in the State of New Jersey, for operating an automobile without a license.

Second: That he was convicted in New York on April 10, 1923, for speeding and fined $25.

Third: That he was convicted in New York on Aug. 28, 1923, for operating a motor vehicle at the rate of forty miles an hour, speeding in violation of the Highway law, and that he was fined $50 for this offense.

Fourth: That he was convicted in August, 1924, in the State of New Jersey, for the crime of reckless driving.

That notwithstanding Mr. Leopold was convicted on April 10, 1923, of speeding and fined $25, he filed an application for a renewal of his operator's license for the license year 1923-24, and therein denied said conviction. In reply to question No. 1, "Have you been convicted of any crime or any violation of the Motor Vehicle law or any offense, traffic, or otherwise, since July 1, 1922?" he answered "No." This application was signed and sworn to by Leopold on May 16, 1923. His answer to Question No. 1 was false and untrue and in my opinion constituted a false statement in an application for a license in violation of Section 290-7 of the Highway law.

Leopold's False Statements.

In the same language Mr. Hennessey deals with the two succeeding instances in which Leopold, having been convicted, made a false statement in that regard when again applying for the license. He continues:

Other questions in said applications asking information regarding said offenses remained unanswered. No satisfactory explanation of these false statements in the renewal applications has been made by Mr. Leopold. He testified that having paid the fine for each violation, he believed that the payment wiped out the offense; that it was not wrong for him to give a negative answer to Question No. 1, relating to convictions, as he believed the payment of the fines cleared his record of the convictions. He apparently was of opinion that the answering of questions in an application for a license was an unimportant detail which did not require serious thought or consideration. The Commission of Motor Vehicles cannot accept his explanation and must hold him responsible and accountable for his answers.

Mr. Hennessey then goes on to give a detailed description of the accident, drawn from the testimony, saying that Leopold was driving more than fifty miles an hour, though he had been asked by his guests to go slow; that the road was wet and the traffic was heavy; that for some reason, when Leopold started to get back into line, the car skidded, he lost control and the car went into the ditch, tipped, righted itself and continued on into the tree, Spiegelberg apparently being thrown out. He emphasizes the fact that there was no evidence to support a contention that Leopold was intoxicated, and then continues:

"From the foregoing statement of the evidence the conclusion is inevitable that this accident happened by reason of the careless and reckless manner in which Mr. Leopold operated his car."

Commissioner Harnett when asked specifically about whether Leopold was barred from using his own car, with a chauffeur, replied:

"Yes, he is debarred. If he were a poor man and not able to afford a chauffeur he would not be able to ride after his license to drive was revoked. I see no reason why there should be any distinction made. If the action taken in this case serves to make drivers a little more careful and should serve to save even one life, I shall be gratified."

INTERVENES TO END LONG CLOAK STRIKE

Sigman Calls Meeting Sunday to Seek Way to Stop Struggle Led by Communists.

SAYS STRIKERS ARE FRANTIC

Hyman Asserts Lockout Against 300 Shops Is a Failure—Again Charges Deal to Break Strike.

The International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union intervened in the cloakmakers' strike of twenty-five weeks yesterday when its President, Morris Sigman, announced that the International Union would take steps to stop the "bloody tragedy into which Communist adventurers and their followers have led thousands of prostrate cloakmakers."

Mr. Sigman announced he had called a meeting of the Executive Board of the International Union for Sunday afternoon after he had listened to the frantic appeals of scores of disheartened strikers who wanted the strike stopped.

The offices of the International Union, 3 West Sixteenth Street, were crowded all day by striking cloakmakers begging its officers to take a hand and settle the struggle so they could go back to work, according to Mr. Sigman.

Louis Hyman, general manager of the Joint Board of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, leader of the strike, issued a statement in which he maintained that the lockout declared by the American Cloak and Suit Sub-Manufacturers Association against 300 shops which have settled with the strikers was a "complete failure," and that the only shops closed on Friday were those visited by "strong arm gangs." He also charged there was a conspiracy between "the Sigman Right Wing elements in the union and the Sub-Manufacturers' Association to break the strike."

Samuel O. Beskind, President of the American Cloak and Suit Manufacturers' Association, announced last night that members of the association had unanimously approved a complete shut-down until the association received the same agreement as has been signed with part of the industry. The Executive Committee of the association will meet Monday night to determine when and how membership shops are to be reopened.

Morris Lederfind, 22 years old, of 91 Sheriff Street, and Joseph Weiss, 23, of 814 Kelly Street, the Bronx, were held without bail by Magistrate George W. Simpson in Jefferson Market Court, on charges of felonious assault in connection with the stabbing of Abraham Cohen, 27, of 2,115 Washington Avenue, the Bronx, a non-striking cloakmaker, who is in a serious condition in Bellevue Hospital.

Isidor Newman, 28, of 22 Pitt Street, was released by Magistrate Simpson after it had been shown that Newman was arrested by mistake when he was defending the plant of the S. & R. Garment Company of 109 West Twenty-sixth Street, on Dec. 1, when it was invaded by a crowd of strikers. The police arrested a number of strikers and also Newman, who was flourishing a pistol.

BLUE LAW TO CLOSE A TOWN ON SUNDAY

Even Auto Filling Stations Will Come Under Ban in Irvington, N. J.

Special to The New York Times.

IRVINGTON, N. J., Dec. 10.—Even gasoline stations will be closed here on Sunday in a return to the strictest enforcement of the old State blue laws incorporated in the Vice and Immorality act of 1854. Only shops dispensing milk and newspapers will be legally in operation, although Public Safety Director Harry J. Stanley has said there will be no interference with taxis and buses.

The blue law order followed the complaint of the Fabian Theatre Corporation, fined for five Sundays on which it gave performances in its local theatres. The theatre interests, in protest, pointed out twenty-eight gasoline service stations which were also violating the law by being open. Their owners were consequently fined $2 apiece.

Assemblyman Ernest Biro, counsel for the theatres, said he did not want a closed Sunday, but he did not believe in closing one business and not closing another.

LEEDS NOT AFTER DIVORCE.

He and Bride Both Deny He Contemplates Paris Proceedings.

William B. Leeds, who married the Princess Xenia of Russia, denied last night a report from London that he intended to seek a divorce in Paris. Mr. Leeds will sail today on the Munson liner Munamar for a two weeks' visit to Nassau in the Bahamas. Mrs. Leeds will not accompany him as she desires to be in the city when her stepfather, the former Prince Christopher of Greece, arrives here next week. Mr. Leeds's mother married Prince Christopher after the death of her first husband. She died in London about three years ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Leeds are staying at the Ritz-Carlton, and yesterday the secretaries of both denied that there was any truth to the rumors that had been circulated regarding a separation or contemplated divorce.

22 PADLOCKS ASKED AS HOLIDAYS NEAR

REPLIES DUE IN 20 DAYS

Thus, Places Which Choose to Fight Closing May Not Be Reached Till After Jan. 1.

MORE COMPLAINTS SOON

Agents Say Higher Class Resorts Avoid the Law by Allowing Patrons to Bring Liquor.

New Year's Eve celebrations may be just a little less wet in some sections as a result of the filing yesterday by United States Attorney Emory R. Buckner's assistants of twenty-two complaints in padlock actions, alleging violations of the prohibition law.

It was explained at the Federal Building that the proceedings could not be described as a Christmas gift from Mr. Buckner, as each resort complained against has twenty days in which to answer. Those which may decided to fight the charges may not be reached until after Jan. 1, 1927.

Prohibition Administrator Chester P. Mills cooperated with the United States Attorney's office in obtaining evidence and at prohibition headquarters, 1 Park Avenue, it was said that the twenty-two places named are only part of the total number of alleged drinking places to be proceeded against soon.

Although only a small squad of prohibition agents devotes its attention to speak-easies, and although Mr. Buckner has repeatedly held it is his policy to go after the larger places, the resorts complained against yesterday, if they are guilty of selling liquor, would belong in the speak-easy class.

Prohibition agents said that the higher class places in many instances have been avoiding the law by letting patrons bring their own liquors. Such places, it was said, in spite of this make huge profits by heavy couvert charges and by demanding breath-taking prices for ginger ale, mineral water and other high-ball ingredients.

The places against which complaints were filed yesterday include:

Club Arthur, 273 West 122d Street, restaurant.

Joseph Cotora, 529 First Avenue, soft drinks.

Antonio Peppi, 364 East 204th Street, the Bronx, soft drinks.

"John" Fay (first name said to be fictitious), 240 East Forty-first Street, soft drinks.

Nathaniel King, 7 East 132d Street, soft drinks.

Frank Schwartz, 197 Third Avenue, delicatessen.

James O'Brien, 322 East Twenty-third Street, soft drinks.

Joseph Bonvento, 75 Cortlandt Street, Tarrytown, N. Y., groceries.

Following the usual custom, those places complained against which consent to padlocks without going into court probably will be closed for six months or less, while those which fight and are found guilty will be padlocked for one year each and personal injunctions will be issued against their owners.

MRS. BUDLONG LOSES PLEA FOR CHILDREN

Superior Court Dismisses Guardianship Action at Newport and Scores Her Personal Appeal.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, R. I., Dec. 10.—Mrs. Jessie Margaret Budlong lost another attempt to gain legal guardianship over her two minor children, John and Milton, in Superior Court here today. Judge Herbert Carpenter dismissed an appeal from a decision of the Probate Court that it had no jurisdiction to act on Mrs. Budlong's petition for guardianship.

Addressing Mrs. Budlong, who is still without an attorney and has been active in her own behalf in court, the Judge said:

"I realize that you drew the reasons of appeal yourself; they show it. Any lawyer will tell you there is nothing in them."

The case came up on Mr. Budlong's motion to dismiss the appeal of his wife. His counsel argued that she had shown no reason for the appointment of another guardian, Mr. Budlong having already received custody of the two boys by a previous order of the Superior Court.

All of the points raised by Mrs. Budlong, counsel contended, were already before the State Supreme Court. Judge Carpenter concurred and informed Mrs. Budlong that her rights already were amply protected by the Supreme Court.

Mrs. Budlong said that she had never had a hearing, but the Court said that she had and could not make this claim.

Thomas Clark Freed in Killing.

Because of lack of evidence Thomas Clark, 19 years old, of 70 East 123d Street, accused of killing Mrs. Emily Kuittinan at Madison Avenue and 125th Street on Nov. 25, was discharged yesterday by Magistrate Harry A. Gordon in the Homicide Court. Mrs. Kuittinan, who lived at 115 East 126th Street, told the police, while she was in the Harlem Hospital, that she believed Clark to have been her assailant because she had objected to his courtship of her daughter.

Liss and Marks Cleared of Theft.

Because of lack of evidence, Magistrate Henry M. R. Goodman, in Essex Market Court, discharged yesterday Moe Liss of 71 Ross Street, Brooklyn, and Martin Marks of 132 West Forty-fifth Street. The men were arrested a few days ago charged with complicity in the theft of $144,000 in jewels from the shop of Samuel Kandel, 98 Essex Street, last March 14.

Jamaica Kid Knocked Out in Third Round by Delaney, Who Retains World's Title

DELANEY KNOCKS OUT JAMAICA KID IN 3D

NEGRO FLOORED SIX TIMES

Battle Is Fought One Flight Up in Armory Before a Capacity Crowd of 5,000.

CHAMPION MAKES WEIGHT

Scales 172½, but Challenger Is Forced to Reduce 5 Pounds During the Afternoon.

By JAMES P. DAWSON.

Special to The New York Times.

WATERBURY, Conn., Dec. 10.—Jack Delaney, world's light-heavyweight champion, knocked out Jamaica Kid, New York negro, in the third round of their scheduled fifteen-round battle here tonight before a capacity crowd of 5,000 which jammed the State armory.

The negro challenger crumpled under a savage barrage of right-hand drives and uppercuts to the jaw, after the third round had progressed 1 minute 13 2-5 seconds. Referee Young Jack McAuliffe, himself an old-time boxer, stopped the battle after the Kid had been floored six times, raising Delaney's right glove aloft in victory and dispensing with the formality of a count.

The battle was not even a respectable workout for the champion, and may have its unfavorable aftermath for Delaney. To many at the ringside it appeared the titleholder injured his right hand when he floored the Kid for the fourth knockdown of the battle. Driving over a right to the jaw, Delaney acted as if he hurt his deadly right. Manager Pete Reilly, however, declared after the battle that Delaney came out of the affair without injury.

Challenger Is Outclassed.

The Kid didn't belong in the same ring with the champion. This was manifest from the start. Not a single clean or effective blow did the challenger land during the abbreviated battle, although he did manage to make some menacing gestures and some savage lunges.

Delaney, in his first ring battle since he beat Paul Berlenbach for the title in Brooklyn last Summer, showed up in superb shape and was impressive, even though the Kid was a sorry opponent. The champion was fast on his feet, fast with his hands and deadly accurate with his left hooks and rights, although he was not called upon to extend himself at any time.

Delaney contented himself with outboxing his rival for the first two rounds. The champion, proceeding cautiously, speared the Jamaica Kid with flashing left hooks and left jabs as the negro lunged in wild and awkward.

With the third round, however, Delaney seemed to set out in earnest, for with the first punch, a right to the body, the champion hurt his rival. Then Delaney ripped a savage left hook to the body and the Kid went down. Arising without a count, the Kid stuck his jaw in the way of a right and was sent to the canvas again. He got up without a count, only to be driven down for the third time with a right to the jaw. This time he fell in a neutral corner and, clasping Delaney about the legs, almost pulled the champion down with him. The negro got up at the count of six.

Puts Over Finishing Blow.

Delaney danced about and then, measuring his man, sent the Kid down for a count of eight with another right to the jaw. The Jamaica Kid got up and made a wild swing for the champion only to miss and fall in a heap. He was on his feet in an instant, but the fight was over, for Delaney drove another right to the jaw and when the Kid went down this time Referee McAuliffe didn't even trouble to count.

The fight was unique in more ways than one. To begin with, it was, after a fashion, something of a private battle, if the attendance is to be compared with the attendances at other modern ring title struggles. The encounter was held in an armory building, one flight up, and the scene recalled nothing so much as the New Polo A. A. or the Olympic Club, organizations which were active in Frawley law boxing days in New York a generation back. The place had a churchlike balcony on one end, but for the rest the seats were on the flat of the drill shed floor, save for two elevated rows on two sides of the arena.

The place has a capacity of 5,000 and was almost filled to its limit when the principals in the first bout entered the ring. By the time Delaney and Jamaica Kid got under way the arena held all it could. Then, too, it was the cheapest world's title battle of recent years, the maximum charge being $5 and the admission fee $2.

Delaney made the weight without difficulty, contrary to report. The champion scaled 172½ pounds at 2 o'clock, but Jamaica Kid was five pounds above the notch, or at 180 pounds, when he weighed in. Thomas G. Donahue, Connecticut's one-man Boxing Commission, gave the negro battler two and one-half hours to discard the extra weight, and at 4:30 o'clock, Jamaica Kid returned to the scales after a session in a Turkish bath steam room and his weight was attested at 175 pounds.

Bretonnel in Draw.

Fred Bretonnel, French lightweight, and Tony Travers of New Haven were the principals in the semi-final scheduled for eight rounds, the bout ending in a draw. Bretonnel weighed 137¼ pounds and Travers 140¾ pounds.

Bretonnel launched a vicious attack with the opening gong and forced his rival around the ring. An overhand right cut a gash on Travers's left eyelid and the blood flowed freely before the bell ended the round. In the second session the battlers opened with a sharp rally in which the New Havenite out-hit his rival and through the rest of the round Travers showed to advantage, rocknig Bretonnel on the ropes with a left and right to the jaw at the bell.

The French lad was the aggressor through the third and fourth rounds, and Bretonnel's aggressive work earned him the honors, although Travers boxed cleverly at times on the defense. In the fifth round Travers boxed well on the defense and upset his rival's attack and in the sixth Travers subjected the French lad to a terrific battering about the face, head and body in a spectacular recovery.

With a sharp left hook Travers drew blood from the bridge of Bretonnel's nose, and with a right he opened a cut under the Frenchman's left eye. In this session the lads slipped out of the ring, Travers on top. Travers continued to batter his opponent in the seventh round and had Bretonnel's left eye almost closed at the bell. Through the eighth session, too, Travers appeared to advantage.

At the final Referee McAuliffe raised the hands of both boxers in a draw decision.

The verdict was not popular with the crowd, which favored a Travers award, but these enthusiasts forgot the good fighting of Bretonnel in the first half of the bout.

A six-round battle between Red Garren and Baby Dahl, rival local featherweights, opened the program. Young Jack McAuliffe, lightweight figher of other days, refereed. This was a bitter struggle between two novices and ended with Dahl, a southpaw, getting the decision.

Vogel Easy Victor.

Sammy Vogel, New York lightweight, faced Clicky Clark, Holyoke junior welterweight, in the second encounter, scheduled for eight rounds. It went its full distance and at the final bell Vogel received a well-earned decision from Referee McAuliffe.

Clark was nothing more than a punching bag for the New York lad. The New York fighter started bombarding his rival with both hands from the first bell and didn't once let up.

Clark, covered with blood from a flow which started with the first exchange in which Vogel did all the hitting, tried desperately throughout the eight rounds with wide left hooks or savage right swings, but invariably missed. He opened a cut under Vogel's right eye in the seventh round with a left hook, but this was one of the decidedly few clean punches Clark landed in the eight rounds.

For the greater part of the affair the Holyoke lad, when he was not plunging and tearing blindly around the ring, was receiving battering. Vogel weighed 138 pounds and Clark 140.

A. A. U. to Allow Wide to Run Here Despite Ban on Visitors

Despite the fact that the A. A. U. recently announced it would not sanction any athletic tours in this country by foreign athletes until after the 1928 Olympics, it ruled yesterday that Edwin Wide, famous Swedish runner, would be permitted to compete here when he arrives next month. An exception to the rule, it was explained by Secretary Rubien, was made because Wide was not visiting this country for athletic purposes, but to make an educational tour of six months at the expense of his country. "Under the circumstances," said Mr. Rubien, "we feel that if Wide desires to compete in any of our meets he will be welcome."

STORY OF THE BATTLE TOLD ROUND BY ROUND

Delaney's Weight Announced as 172½, While Jamaica Kid Tips Scale at 175.

Special to The New York Times.

WATERBURY, Conn., Dec. 10.—Delaney was the first to enter the ring and was wildly applauded by the crowd, which filled the arena. He sat in his corner attended by Trainer Doc Casey while awaiting the arrival of the Jamaica Kid. The negro challenger aroused only mild curiosity when he entered.

Delaney weighed 172½ pounds and Jamaica Kid 175 pounds. Young McAuliffe was the referee.

The story of the battle follows:

First Round.

Delaney danced around pawing with the left. Kid swung a wild left to the head and Delaney went close. Delaney put two lefts to the head and Kid countered with a left to the head. Delaney put a left to the face and then Kid rushed wildly. Delaney straightened him with a right uppercut to the chin and again Kid rushed furiously. Delaney jabbed a left to the face and Kid backed away. In close, Delaney ripped a right uppercut to face. Delaney ripped another short right to chin and followed with a left hook to the face. The Kid accidentally blocked a left for the body and they were clinched at the bell.

Second Round.

Delaney skimmed the face with a snappy left, and Jamaica Kid put a long left to the head. Delaney hooked a smacking left to the face and they clinched. Delaney drove a left to the body and they clinched. The champion ripped a short right to the face and Jamaica Kid hooked a wild left to face. Delaney stepped close with a right to the body. They clinched. Delaney hooked a left to the ear and in a clinch clubbed his right to the head and body. Delaney drove a short right to the body and then stepped in with a snappy right which grazed the jaw and made Jamaica Kid hold. A left hook to the face made Jamaica Kid fall into a clinch. Jamaica Kid hooked a left to the face and they clinched. On the ropes Delaney drove several rights and lefts to the face. Delaney met Jamaica Kid's rush with a right uppercut. They were sparring at the bell.

Third Round.

Jamaica Kid started menacingly, then Delaney hooked a right to the body. Jamaica Kid went down under a left to the body, but arose without a count. A right to the jaw sent him down for the second time, but he was right up again. Another right put Jamaica Kid down for the count of six. He went down under a right uppercut to the chin, delivered as he rushed in, head down. As he fell Jamaica Kid's right leg doubled under him. He remained motionless for the count of eight, then arose. He lunged at Delaney, missed with a right and fell. He got up immediately, only to be met with another right to the jaw, and when he went down this time Referee McAuliffe stopped the bout, raising Delaney's hand in victory. The round lasted 1 minute 13 2-5 seconds.

LATZO HURT, MUST REST.

Cut Over Eye in Simonich Bout Endangers Baker Match.

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., Dec. 10 (AP).—A cut over the right eye received in the fourth round of his bout with Joe Simonich at Newark last Wednesday night will force Pete Latzó, welterweight champion, into idleness again for a few weeks.

This was made known today at the office of Boxing Commissioner Harry Farrell after the champion had waited four hours for the Commissioner and physicians to arrive to examine the injured eye. The examination was requested by Latzo to satisfy local promoters of a bout here next Tuesday night, when the champion was to have met Sergeant Sammy Baker of New York.

BOARD IS IN FAVOR OF WELTER SERIES

GARDEN TO GET CONTESTS

Matchmaker McMahon Seeking to Sign Men—Commission Is After Speculators.

The State Athletic Commission yesterday recommended to Jess McMahon, Madison Square Garden matchmaker, that he arrange two welterweight elimination bouts with the view of bringing out beyond dispute the foremost challenger for the world's title now held by Pete Latzo. Mushy Callahan, Coast boxer, and Joe Dundee of Baltimore, were suggested for one of the bouts, and for the other Willie Harmon, local fighter, and Eddie Roberts, the California boy who sprang a sensation last week by stopping Joe Dundee in a round.

McMahon announced after the meeting he would at once start negotiations for the matches. If his present plans materialize he will put on these two fights at the Garden soon after the new year and then match the winners. The victor of that fight would then be signed to meet Latzo for the world's championship.

The action of the board was prompted by another visit from Harmon, who sought once more to have the commission accept his challenge and $2,500 forfeit. The board, however, ruled it could not choose any one arbitrarily.

The commission yesterday also decided to make another attack upon ticket speculators, who have been reported to have shown considerable activity recently in buying up general admission tickets to boxing shows. A rule was adopted that in the future general admission tickets for all shows must not be put on sale until the night of the show. Also purchasers of such tickets must pass into the arena immediately after buying the pasteboards.

The board also approved the heavyweight show which will be held in Madison Square Garden on Dec. 22 for the benefit of the United Swedish Societies of New York. Harry Persson and Jim Maloney are appearing in the main bout. The commission gave sanction to Matchmaker McMahon to charge a top price of $10 for the show.

RIVAL BOXERS HURT IN FALL FROM RING

DANBURY, Conn., Dec. 10 (AP).—Morgan Seymour, 20, of Carmel, N. Y., known in amateur boxing circles as Jack Riley, received a probable fracture at the base of the skull and is on the danger list at the local hospital as the result of a fall through the ropes in the third and final round of a bout here under the auspices of the Connecticut A. A. U. His opponent, Frankie Pasquance, of this place, received injuries to his back.

Seymour apparently had the better of the fight, and Pasquance adopted the expedient of dropping to the floor and then rushing. In one of these rushes both went through the ropes into the audience, and it is believed that Seymour's head struck a chair.

By ALLISON DANZIG.

The race for the honors in the metropolitan Class B squash tennis championship found the leaders maintaining their positions last night as the Yale and Columbia Clubs, the New York A. C. and the Interfraternity Club added to their long string of victories. The Yale Club, defeating the Gramercy team at 5—3 on the latter's courts, won its eighth successive victory and holds its place at the top of the team standing.

The Columbia University Club and the New York A. C. remained in a tie for second place by winning, respectively, from Princeton Club and the Crescent A. C., while the Interfraternity Club held to fourth place by defeating the Harvard Club. Columbia dropped only one of seven matches to Princeton and that one went to three games, while the Crescents were able to get only two matches from the New York A. C. and one of the two was won by default.

Bob Cahill's Interfraternity team scored an impressive victory in defeating Harvard at 5—2. Every one of the matches was a bitter struggle, six of them going to three games. The seventh match, the lead-off struggle between Milton Baron of Interfraternity and C. F. Fuller, went to only two games but it was one of the finest engagements of the season. Baron turned in an amazing performance when he pulled out the opening game after trailing at 1—11.

Hanging on grimly, the Interfraternity star, who defeated G. M. Rushmore in the Princeton invitation, played Fuller to a standstill while he drew up on even terms and set a game of 5 at 13-all. Then the score went to 4-all and for ten hands the two men engaged in a hair-raising struggle for the deciding point without either being able to score until finally Fuller was hit by the ball from Baron's racquet. The second game went more easily at 15—8.

MISS WILLS GREETS 'RIVAL.'

Meets Mlle. Lenglen, and Both Doubt They Will Play Each Other.

OAKLAND, Cal., Dec. 10 (AP).—Miss Helen Wills made an informal call yesterday upon Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen. It was the first time they had met since the French tennis star arrived in America to start her professional tour.

They exchanged conventional courtesies and each reiterated that she would be "delighted" to meet the other in a tennis match if such could be arranged. Each expressed extreme doubt that the amateur standing of the one and the professional standing of the other could be reconciled.

WALKER BOUT DEAL WAITS.

Manager of Flowers Holds Conference With McMahon.

There were no new developments yesterday in the proposed return meeting between Mickey Walker, the new middleweight champion, and Tiger Flowers. Walk Miller, manager of the dethroned titleholder, held a brief conference with Matchmaker McMahon regarding the possibilities of holding the match in the Garden some time in March, but no details were announced.

MAN WITH DAGGER BEATS EPEE EXPERT

Major Gen. Harbord Sees Cabijos Conquer Nunes, 10 Touches to 7.

CONTEST FAST AND CLOSE

Score Is Even at Start, but Exponent of the Shorter Weapon Finally Gains Advantage.

One of the largest fencing galleries of the season, including Major Gen. James G. Harboard, saw an unusual contest, one of the features of the third annual fencing exhibition of the J. Sanford Saltus Fencing Club, held in the club rooms last night. This was a duel of the dagger against the épée. Spectators said not in many years had they seen the two weapons pitted against each other in this city.

Professor Marcel Cabijos, maitre d'armes at the J. Sanford Saltus Club and also instructor at Vassar, wielded the dagger, while Leo Nunes of the New York Athletic Club, national épée and sabre champion, attacked with the épée. The exhibition was decided in favor of the dagger, 10 touches to 7.

Those present were treated to a highly thrilling exhibition which took on all the marks of a genuine contest, so fast did the play of the two weapons become. Cabijos's efforts with the dagger, only about a foot long, were centred on getting inside the dancing point of Nunes's épée, at least thirty-five inches in length. Nunes, not only a master of fence but also one of the most agile of the fencers in this country, was outdone in the first set-to by Cabijos and suffered the first touch. Later he evened the score. The attack went on with increasing activity on both sides until Cabijos gained the final advantage.

A little later Cabijos was a participant in another very interesting exhibition. He opposed John Allaire, Vice President of the Saltus Club and a figure in fencing circles for many years. The bout was with the épée and, being an exhibition, was not scored. However, there were many in the gallery who counted as many touches for the veteran Allaire as were scored by Professor Cabijos.

Twelve bouts in all made up the program. The contests were with foil, épée and sabre, besides the dagger. The contestants included many of the most prominent fencing figures in the country.

Besides Nunes, others were: John Dimond, U. S. M. A., a member of the 1924 Olympic team; Lieutenant George Calnan, U. S. N., also a member of the Olympic team and the present national foil champion; Joseph Vince of the N. Y. A. C., Rene Pero of the Fencers Club, Albert Strauss Jr., of the J. Sanford Saltus Club and also a member of the last Olympic team; and Professor Martin Capdevielle, another maitre d'armes at the J. Sanford Saltus Club.

STONEHAM DENIES JENNINGS CHARGES

Giant President Asserts Club Did Not Desert Assistant Manager in His Illness.

ALWAYS KEPT HIS JOB OPEN

But Does Not Deny He Was Off Payroll—Says McGraw, Representing Club, Kept in Touch With Him.

By JAMES R. HARRISON.

In reply to the charges of Hughey Jennings that officials of the Giants had deserted him in his "hour of need" and had cut him off the payroll after his sickness last Spring, President Charles A. Stoneham made public yesterday a statement which attempted to disprove Jennings's accusations.

Mr. Stoneham gave out copies of letters which showed that as late as Oct. 26 of this year the Giants had offered Jennings's job of assistant manager back to him.

There is no denial, however, that Jennings was cut off the payroll last season, although Mr. Stoneham adds that "it has always been the policy of our organization to treat every one with the utmost consideration, and we thoroughly believe that we treated Mr. Jennings in that manner."

By way of denying Jennings's charge that the owners of the Giants "absolutely deserted me," President Stoneham declares that "Mr. McGraw, who, under the arrangements with the organization, represents our club in its relations with the players and coaches, has kept in close touch with Mr. Jennings and has endeavored to express our great solicitations as to his welfare."

Stoneham's Statement.

The complete statement follows:

We greatly regret the attitude taken by Mr. Jennings. If he feels that he has been neglected we assure him that such neglect was not intentional. During all of Mr. Jennings's illness the management of the New York Base Ball Club kept in touch with Mr. Jennings through Mr. McGraw. Mr. Jennings's position with the club was always kept open.

On Jan. 11, 1926, we sent Mr. Jennings a contract for the year 1926, which he returned signed and at the same time wrote Mr. Tierney as follows:

"Enclosed find signed contract; delay caused by slight cold.

"Hoping the contracts are coming in fast—of course, all signed.

"Don't know what date I will start for Florida. Will arrange for transportation from this end.

"Very truly yours,
"HUGHEY JENNINGS."

On Feb. 1, 1926, Mr. Jennings wrote:

"My condition is such that my physician orders me to take a complete rest; will not allow me to go out for some time and says will be most unwise for me to report early for the Spring training. I will keep you posted as to my condition and will report just as soon as I recover my strength."

In the meantime the services of Roger Bresnahan were engaged for the Spring training trip, still keeping Mr. Jennings's position open for him. Unfortunately, Mr. Jennings's health prevented him from reporting at any time during the year.

Still Kept Job Open.

On Oct. 26 of this year we wrote Mr. Jennings as follows:

"This letter is written by the New York club to offer you your old position as assistant manager to the Giants for the coming season. The reason we are writing you this early in this matter is to satisfy Roger Bresnahan. He tells me he has other propositions offered him, if we do not want him. An early reply to this letter will be appreciated.

"Hoping that you are continuing to improve in health."

Arrangements with Mr. Bresnahan were delayed in order to enable Mr. Jennings to determine in his own mind whether or not his health was such as to permit him to rejoin our club.

It has always been the policy of our organization to treat every one with the utmost consideration, and we thoroughly believe that we treated Mr. Jennings in that manner. From the time his health failed him up to the present time the option and opportunity were always with him to take back his old position. Mr. McGraw, who, under the arrangements with the organization, represents our club in its relations with the players and coaches, has kept in close touch with Mr. Jennings and has endeavored to express our great solicitations as to his welfare. If Mr. Jennings feels slighted we can say no more than that we are very sorry.

Seats in Stand Are Removed So N. Y. U. Runners Can Train

Undaunted by the lack of a gymnasium and the snow-covered track on Ohio Field, the track athletes of New York University have been using a novel training track, due to the ingenuity of Coach Emil Von Elling. After the recent snow fall Von Elling looked around for some roof or other structure on which to construct a running track. He fixed upon the Ohio Field permanent grandstand and converted it into two 110-yard straightaways. This he accomplished by removing two rows of seats the length of the stand on two different levels.

HOPPE WINS TWICE, LEADS 3,000-1,482

Willie Hoppe again displayed sensational form yesterday to overwhelm Kinrey Matsuyama, the national junior champion, in the ninth and tenth blocks of their 3,600-point 18.2 billiard match at the Strand Academy. Hoppe raced far into the lead in the afternoon block, which he won by the score of 300 to 99, and he handed Matsuyama even more convincing trouncing in the evening encounter, 300 to 32.

So brilliantly was Hoppe playing that he required only four innings in the afternoon game and three in the evening. He averaged 85 5-7 points for the day, which is 22 points better than his average for the entire match.

Matsuyama never had a chance to get started. In the third inning of the afternoon session he managed to run 73, but outside of this one flash the best he could do was 16. In the seven innings Hoppe went over the century mark four times. However, for the first time of the engagement Hoppe failed to reach the 200 mark.

Hoppe now has a grand total of 3,000 to 1,482 for Matsuyama. Hoppe has required 47 innings, to 43 for Matsuyama. The grand averages are 63 39-47 for Hoppe, to 34 20-43 for Matsuyama.

To partially offset this, however, Hoppe finished his afternoon block with a run of 106 and then continued in the evening clash with a run of 132. His lead was never in danger, and Matsuyama could not get within striking distance.

The score by innings:

AFTERNOON BLOCK.

Hoppe	108	78	8	106	—300
Matsuyama	15	2	73	9	— 99

EVENING BLOCK.

Hoppe	132	4	164	—300

GREENLEAF INCREASES LEAD

Wins Two More Blocks From Hueston in Match—Has Run of 77.

Ralph Greenleaf won two more blocks from Tommy Hueston in their eight-block pocket billiard match at Dwyer's Broadway Academy last night, by defeating his rival, 125 to 26 and 113 to 64. The world's champion now has five straight wins to his credit, as he has triumphed in every block of the match.

In the afternoon session, which required only nine innings, Greenleaf had a high run of 77, while the best Hueston could run was 12. In the evening encounter, which lasted seven innings, Greenleaf had a high run of 41, to 33 for his opponent. The grand total now stands 625 for Greenleaf, to 391 for Hueston. Play will be continued this afternoon and evening. The block which was not played on Thursday will probably be played on Monday.

SCHAEFER MAY FACE HOPPE.

Will Play Next Week If He Can Change Sailing Date.

Young Jake Schaefer, world's 18.1 balkline champion, who plans to leave for Europe next week, may meet Willie Hoppe, challenger for the world's 18.2 balkline crown, in a special 18.2 match before sailing, it was disclosed yesterday. Charles S. Kline of the Strand is negotiating for the match and in the event Schaefer can arrange to sail on Friday instead of Wednesday he will meet Hoppe at the Strand next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday in a 2,400-point exhibition.

Monty Munn Signs for Bout.

Matchmaker McMahon announced yesterday he had signed Monty Munn to appear in the heavyweight show at the Garden on Dec. 22. He will meet either Knute Hansen or Arthur DeKuh.

The New Utrecht High hockey team gained an undisputed lead in the P. S. A. L. hockey tournament by defeating the Boys' High sextet, 4 to 0, at the Brooklyn Ice Palace last night. In the other tournament encounter Stuyvesant and Morris battled to a 1-1 tie.

By winning last night New Utrecht surged ahead of Jamaica High, which had caught up with it last week to gain a tie for first place. Stuyvesant lost an opportunity of moving into a tie for second place by being held to a deadlock.

In the New Utrecht-Boys' High game the stellar playing of the New Utrecht forwards was responsible for the victory. With Ryan tallying two of the goals and Richardson and Revson accounting for the other two, New Utrecht easily triumphed. Boys' High's defense proved strong in the first half, but continual assaults enabled the New Utrecht combination to sweep past the Boys' goalkeeper for four tallies.

In the Stuyvesant-Morris engagement Stuyvesant registered the first goal when Maloney netted the disk shortly after the start. An offensive drive by Morris in the middle of the second period tied the score, Rogers [illegible] the rubber past the goalkeeper.

Thrills Abound at Garden as Bike Race Goes Into Final Day

BIKE TEAMS WHIRL INTO FINAL HOURS

All of the Fourteen Teams That Started Still in the Race Despite Bad Spills.

LINARI'S GAMENESS SCORES

Crowd Gives Rider Great Cheer as He Resumes After Spill—Mayor Is Present.

When the six-day bike race entered its last twenty-four hours of pedaling at 11 o'clock last night three teams were tied for the lead and there were four other combinations close enough on their heels to be highly respected as contenders for the prize that will go to the winner tonight.

Winter and Stockholm, who held undisputed possession of first place until the afternoon session; Goosens and Stockelynch, who caught up with the leaders during the afternoon, and McNamara and Linari, who made it a triple tie by some frenzied riding in the face of adversity, were the pacesetters.

One lap behind was the team of Georgetti and Belloni. Two laps behind were Wambst and Lacquehay, and four laps to the bad were two teams, Coles and Garrison and Petri and Lands.

The courageous riding of Reggie McNamara and Pietro Linari stood out. The latter went down in a spill and was forced out of competition for forty minutes. No sooner had he returned than the other leaders sensed an opportunity to gain on their injured rival. They succeeded in lapping the field three times but McNamara and Linari went right along with them and held their place.

It was a mad, wild, delirious scramble in which seventeen laps in all were stolen. Five teams stole three laps each. They were Stockholm and Winter, Goosens and Stockelynch, Linari and McNamara, Georgetti and Belloni, and Wambst and Lacquehay.

Georgetti Makes a Drive.

Midnight found the teams holding a steady pace, but one minute after there was a different sight. Georgetti and Belloni went out to catch up with the three leaders and that started a general discussion as to supremacy which lasted for nearly half an hour.

Georgetti and Belloni caught up with the leaders, but when they tried to overtake them they found sterner opposition. In the second half of the jam McNamara and Linari, Stockholm and Winter and Goosens and Stockelynch swung along with the Italians, and when it was over all four teams were tied for the lead.

Petri and Lands gained two laps during the turbulent traffic conditions and moved up to three laps back of the head of the column. Walker and Bellman also gained two laps and the combination of Garrison and Coles stole one. Ten laps in all were stolen, making thirty-nine stolen during the evening session.

Crowd's Enthusiasm Keeps Up.

Another enthusiastic throng filled the Garden for the evening session and though the long grind was nearing the conclusion of the fifth day without a halt the crowd's excitement kept up to a high pitch and the cheers roared out unabated.

One of the features of the race was the fact that every team which started last Sunday night was still pedaling around the board-banked saucer. In view of the number of spills, many of them apparently serious, this record was the more remarkable. Hardly a single rider was free of bruises and scratches to which patches and bandages attested, but they rode on seemingly tireless in their quest for the final honor.

The pace was steady, with only sporadic bursts from a team here and there until nearly 9 o'clock. The first sign of animation during the evening was a sudden outbreak from Wyndsau and Coburn, who lapped the field once and then kept right on pedaling to lap it again. On the latter circuit they carried two teams with them, Walker and Beckman and Coles and Garrison.

None of these three teams belonged up with the leaders and their progress toward the front wasn't enough to put them among the dangerous contenders.

The first change among the leaders came after a spirited dash that started in the fourth sprint when McNamara dashed out from the pack and after ten minutes of hard riding lapped the field and went into a tie for first place with Stockholm and Winter and Goosens and Stockelynch.

Winter and Stockholm were making an energetic effort to hold their position and the black pursuit still lacked something like half a lap of overtaking them when Walker went down and the furore subsided temporarily. The lap was awarded over the entire field, however.

Linari Takes a Bad Spill.

Almost immediately after Stockholm and Winter made a great bid to gain back the lap they had lost to McNamara and Linari and had half accomplished their task when Linari went down in a bad spill and had to be carried from the track. It was a bad break for the Winter-Stockholm combination, as they had not been fully lapped in the previous jam when an accident caused them to forfeit the remaining distance and they had to give up a half lap gained by this upset.

It looked for a while as though it was a worse break for the team of McNamara and Linari, however, and the crowd waited with tense interest to see whether the latter would be able to return to the track or whether the team, tied at the time for first place, would be forced to withdraw.

Mayor Walker entered during the cessation of hostilities and was greeted with a loud and enthusiastic outburst, but it was as a whisper in a boiler factory compared to the cheers that swelled to the high ceiling and echoed against the walls when Linari reappeared on the track.

The accident occurred at 9:35 and the rider was under treatment for more than half an hour. He suffered a contusion of the left shoulder and a badly bruised knee, but courageously returned to his place to the delight of the crowd and the relief of his partner, the iron man. It was the fourth time that Linari had been down in a spill and the bandage that was draped around his knees, arms, shoulders, ankles, elbows and wrists would have covered King Tut in all his glory.

Stockholm-Winter Creep Up.

The leaders were more closely bunched than they had been for several days when the evening session started. During the afternoon there was some fast and furious riding by the entire troupe and as a result Stockholm and Winter, who had forged to the front in the early hours of the morning, were sharing the leadership with Goosens and Stockelynch. This latter pair picked up three laps on the pace-setters.

Only one lap behind the head of the column rode the persistent Georgetti and Belloni and the team of McNamara and Linari, who twenty-four hours before had been sharing the front position.

Two laps behind the leaders were three teams, constantly threatening to put forth a spurt and come up with the van.

They were McBeath and Grimm, who followed their sensational riding of Thursday night with some more of the same variety yesterday afternoon; Petri and Lands, who never have dropped far behind and have furnished constant and consistent opposition for the leaders, whoever they might be, and the team of Wambst and Lacquehay, who were far in the ruck, ten laps behind, twenty-four hours before but by dint of determined riding had closed the gap substantially.

Bello and Hill were three laps behind in a section of their own and still to be considered as contenders. The rest of the field was strung out from five to sixteen laps in the rear of the leaders. The most consistent team in the race has been Goullet and Spencer. They are still last.

The results of last night's sprints follow:

First—Spencer, Dinale, Taylor, Wynsdau.

Second—Petri, Georgetti, Coburn, Walker.

Third—Garrison, Grimm, Spencer, Belloni.

Fourth—Coles, McBeath, Bello, Goullet.

Fifth—Bello, Lands, Grimm, Linari.

Sixth—Coles, Hanley, Georgetti, Linari.

Seventh—McNamara, Wambst, Garrison, Dinale.

Eighth—Belloni, Winter, Stockelynch, Wambst.

Ninth—Dinale, Georgetti, Garrison, Beckman.

Tenth—Linari, Stockholm, Spencer, Belloni.

BUD TAYLOR WITHDRAWS.

Garden Matchmaker Seek. New Opponent for Canzoneri.

Bud Taylor, Terre Haute bantamweight and recognized by the Illinois Boxing Commission as the world's champion, notified Matchmaker Jess McMahon yesterday that he would be unable to go through with his engagement in Madison Square Garden next Friday night owing to an eye affliction which will necessitate an immediate operation. Taylor was to have fought Tony Canzoneri, Brooklyn boxer, in the feature event of an elimination bantamweight tournament, consisting of four ten-round bouts.

McMahon immediately set to work securing a substitute, but up to the time he was ready to close his office for the day the Garden had not yet closed negotiations. Chick Suggs, New Bedford negro bantam, and Bushey Graham of Utica were among those being considered by McMahon as likely opponents for Canzoneri.

PLATT WINS TROPHY IN CHRISTMAS GOLF

IS OFF TO A GOOD START

Drives Further Than Rival and Pitches Well, but Is Excelled in Approach Putting.

By WILLIAM D. RICHARDSON.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Dec. 10.—J. Wood Platt, Philadelphia golf star, who won the qualifying prize in the Jess W. Sweetser Christmas Seal tournament, added a second trophy to his collection today when he defeated his fellow-townsman, Fred W. Knight, in the final round at the Seaview Golf Club, the margin being 2 and 1.

An outstanding favorite for the Caldwell silver salvor, emblematic of victory in the first sixteen, after his remarkable round of 73 to win the Bobby Jones Cup for low qualifying score, Platt rode into the final round by defeating Thomas B. Wooton of Atlantic City by 4 and 3 in the semi-final round this morning. Knight, former North and South amateur champion, advanced at the expense of F. A. Burton, Rockaway Hunting Club representative, whom he defeated by 2 and 1.

Although forced to travel to the seventeenth hole before he was able to accept Knight's congratulations, Platt appeared to be riding in the whip seat from start to finish of the final match, which was watched by a fair-sized gallery, which was fully repaid for its exertions.

Platt's Pitches Better.

He enjoyed a tremendous advantage in length over Knight, who is not a long hitter and who had considerable trouble keeping his wooden club shots straight. Furthermore, he was more accurate with his pitches, and what prolonged the match was his erratic putting and the really remarkable approach putting that Knight did throughout the match.

When the two finalists met the conditions of the course were nothing short of marvelous, considering the time of the year. The fairways and greens had thawed out so that pitching and holding the greens was not only possible but paid dividends in the way of rewarding skillful employment of mashies and mashie-niblicks. Furthermore the weather had moderated to such an extent that spectators were able to watch the match under as comfortable conditions as are experienced in the metropolitan district in late April and October.

Platt completely dominated the match from the first hole, which he won with a par 4 to the fourteenth. He was 3 up at the turn, where his card showed a 38, only one stroke over par and four over even 4's, when the match ended. Knight on the other hand took 41 for the first nine holes, but improved on the last nine, which he played a stroke less than Platt.

The tenth hole was halved in 4's, as was the short eleventh, although Platt should have won it for he reached the green on his tee shot, while Knight's drive hit a tree. Here again had putting was costly for Platt, who took three to hole out from the edge. He aided his drive playing the twelfth and then put his second shot into the woods and that hole was halved in 5's. Then a poor approach enabled Knight to gain a half on the thirteenth.

The first hole that Knight won was the fourteenth, where he got a 4 against a 5 for Platt, who took three putts. That reduced Platt's advantage to two holes and another disappeared when Knight laid a bunker shot dead for a 3 on the 200-yard fifteenth.

Knight Slices Drive.

Only one down and three to play, Knight brought on his own ruin when he sliced his drive into a ditch at the sixteenth, which Platt won, and a half at the seventeenth clinched the match for him.

The cards with par for the course:

Out—Par	4	6	5	4	4	4	3	5	5—37
Platt	4	5	6	4	3	4	4	4	4—38
Knight	5	5	6	4	3	5	4	4	5—41
In—Par	4	3	4	4	3	4	3	5	5—37—71

ANNUAL SEAL TOURNEY IS PLAN OF GOLFERS

They Form Organization With View of Holiday Benefit Play in Every District.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Dec. 10.—Plans for a nation-wide movement to enli the aid of golfers in the fight that the National Tuberculosis Association is waging were made during the Christmas Seal tournament, which came to a close at the Seaview Golf Club at Absecon today.

Clarence H. Geist, founder of the Seaview Club and donor of the course and clubhouse facilities for the Jess W. Sweetser Christmas Seal Tournament, was made Chairman of a golf committee which will meet in Philadelphia on Jan. 4 to work out the details of a national organization which will cooperate with the National Tuberculosis Association in stimulating the financial and moral support of golfers throughout the country in the war that is being carried on against the disease.

Serving with Chairman Geist on the preliminary committee are Mrs. McLeod Thompson of Atlantic City, Findlay S. Douglas, Vice President of the United States Golf Association of New York; Howard W. Perrin of Philadelphia, A. W. Tillinghast of New York, Mrs. French Emmons of Atlantic City and Joseph L. Bailey of Philadelphia. This golf committee will meet with representatives of the National Tuberculosis Association and name a general committee to carry on the work by organizing Christmas Seal tournaments in every golfing centre in America and by devising other methods for raising a golfers' fund to supplement that which the National Tuberculosis organization raises each year through the sale of seals.

Just what plans will be worked out for the coming year will not be known until after the Philadelphia meeting. One that created the most favorable response at the dinner attended by visiting golfers, officials of the National Tuberculosis Association and workers for the 1926 Christmas Seal tournament was made by Mr. Perrin. He suggested that inasmuch as there are between four and six million golfers in the United States; a plea for each one to donate one golf ball yearly would not be likely to fall on deaf ears.

Former Commander J. H. Klein of the navy, who is Chairman of the New York City committee of the National Tuberculosis Association, then proposed that golfers not only be requested to send in golf balls, which will be stamped with the double cross insignia and distributed, but that they be asked to send the balls wrapped in one-dollar bills. So great was the enthusiasm over the suggestion that immediately a large bowl was filled with dollar-wrapped golf balls, the first to contribute being Mr. Geist.

It is probable that an effort will be made by the national organization at the January meeting to promote this contribution idea everywhere through the various State, city and district branches that the N. T. A. has working under its direction. The Christmas Seal tournament idea will also be enlarged. Not only will there be another tournament for New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania golfers at Seaview next year, but similar tournaments will be staged also in a number of sections.

Mr. Douglas, a member of the Metropolitan Association as well as the National, has promised to bring the plans before each of these organizations when they next meet and endeavor to secure their cooperation. Speakers at the dinner were Mr. Geist, who offered the Seaview Club for next year's tournament, Dr. Lindsay L. Williams, managing director of the National Tuberculosis Association, and Basil G. Eaves, campaign director; Messrs. Douglas, Klein and Perrin and Mrs. Thompson, who has been one of the leading workers on behalf of the tournament.

N. Y. U. FRESHMEN SCORE.

Beat James Madison Five in Closing Minute, 25 to 22.

New York University's freshman team defeated the James Madison five at the Madison Court yesterday afternoon by the score of 25 to 22. The Madison team, which is rated as one of the strongest in Brooklyn scholastic circles, battled valiantly against the Purple yearlings, and, though never in the lead, managed to keep the issue in doubt until the final whistle.

The Violet freshmen, facing a strong offense, were never more than three points ahead, and at half time were content to rest with the score tied at 12 all. The game was not won until the final few minutes, when, with the score 21 to 20, Riley caged two goals to raise the Violet total to 25.

New Stance to Stop Golfers Walking With Foot Turned In

LONDON, Dec. 10 (AP).—If British athletes are to wrest supremacy from America, science must be applied to sport, says Dr. Robert Blakoe, English physiologist. He says the modern style of attacking the golf ball is all wrong. He has developed a theory of play that is revolutionary. The chief feature is that there shall be no movement of the feet in playing any stroke. Both feet must be planted firmly on the ground. Full use of all waist and trunk muscles shall be employed, instead of making the arms do most of the work. The orthodox method of driving, he says, causes overdevelopment of some muscles, underdevelopment of others, and makes the golfer walk with his left foot turned in.

MEHLHORN LEADS IN $5,000 TOURNEY

Scores Par 72 for First 18 Holes of 72-Hole Open Event at Del Monte, Cal.

TWO ARE TIED FOR SECOND

Al Espinosa and Martin Each One Stroke Behind Leader—Five Grouped With 74s.

Special to The New York Times.

DEL MONTE, CAL., Dec. 10.—Playing the best golf he has shown since the injury to his hand more than four months ago, Bill Mehlhorn of Chicago turned in a par equaling card of 72 over the Seaside Pebble Beach course today to lead a field of 160 starters in the first round of the Monterey Peninsula $5,000 open tournament, the first of the big money events in California.

One shot behind Mehlhorn were Al Espinosa of Chicago and Hutt Martin of Los Angeles. Five others had 74, these being Bobby Cruickshank of New York, Willie Hunter, former British amateur champion; Curley Hueston of Seattle, George Martin of Long Beach, Cal., and George Kerrigan of San Francisco.

Mehlhorn was out of competitive golf for more than a month as a result of an accident on Aug. 4, the day before the Canadian open at Montreal, when he lost the first joint of his right forefinger, which was caught in the jam of a dresser drawer against which he fell. He has played in two competitions since then, but his hand bothered him so much he was not up to his usual form.

Mehlhorn's Game Steady.

Today Mehlhorn played steady golf all the way. He went out in 34, with three putts on the ninth.

Play in general today was mediocre and the scores were surprisingly high, although the weather conditions were favorable. There was a fairly stiff breeze blowing over the links, which has sight of its eighteen holes touching the Pacific Ocean. Most of the competitors found the greens a bit too slippery for them to putt well.

Among the scores that were surprisingly high were an 85 taken by H. Chandler Egan of Medford, Ore., formerly national amateur champion and successor this year to George Von Elm as holder of the California amateur title, and an 84 by Ed Dudley, young star from Oklahoma City.

A bad finish gave George Von Elm a 76. The national amateur champion had two pars left for a 73, but he took three putts on the short seventeenth and took a 7 on the eighteenth as the result of overplaying the green on his third shot.

Cyril Walker of Leonia, N. J., former national open champion, started badly, 6 and 5, and then had sixteen straight par holes. Johnny Golden of North Jersey also totaled 75.

Brady Has a 76.

Among the stars who were higher were Mike Brady, 76; Joe Turnesa, 77; Johnny Farrell, 77, and Leo Diegel, 78.

Only the first sixty-four and ties will stay in after the second round tomorrow. The final thirty-six holes will be played Sunday.

CAROLINA GOLF FINAL TO MRS. CHAPMAN

PINEHURST, N. C., Dec. 10.—Mrs. John D. Chapman of Greenwich, Conn., again won the women's Carolina golf tournament here today when, in a considerable upset, she conquered the brilliant young Miss Dorothy Doyle of the Torresdale Club, Philadelphia, on the nineteenth hole.

Mrs. Chapman won the first hole after Miss Doyle misplayed. This really decided the match, for the Philadelphia girl, nervous, again misplayed the hole later on the play-off. Mrs. Chapman carefully avoided all traps during the round, her short game standing up marvelously well. The long-driving Miss Doyle was yards ahead of her opponent off the tees, but was unable to keep within the bounds of the course.

The cards:

Out—
Mrs. Chapman	5	5	5	5	5	3	4	5	5	—42
Miss Doyle	6	5	5	4	6	5	5	4	5	—45
In—
Mrs. Chapman	6	3	5	4	6	6	5	6	4	—45—87
Miss Doyle	5	3	5	5	5	5	4	7	4	—43—88

In the final of the second division Mrs. H. H. Rackham of Detroit defeated Mrs. George A. Magoon of Pittsburgh by the margin of 1 up, after leading by 4 holes at the turn.

Victory Is Scored by Massillon at New Orleans

MASSILLON FIRST ON HEAVY TRACK

Durnell Colt, 3 to 5 Choice, Runs Under Wraps All the Way at New Orleans.

FOUR RACES TO FAVORITES

Talent Enjoys Third Successful Day in Row—McCoy Thrown but Unhurt After 5½ Furlong Dash.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 10.—Following a night of rain there was a very heavy track at Jefferson Park this afternoon and the mudlarks were in their element. This was the case in the Burnside Purse, an allowance race for all ages over the mile course, which was won by C. E. Durnell's three-year-old colt Massillon, a son of Light Brigade and Medaena which is at home in almost any kind of going and has run some of his best races in the mud. Massillon looked like the outstanding bet of the day. He was the medium of a heavy play, the money rolling in for him until he was at 3 to 5, paying only $3.20 in the mutuels for each $2 ticket. D. Smith had the mount on the winner, which ran the mile in the slow time of 1:43 3-5 under 109 pounds.

With only one scratched out seven went to the post for the Burnside Purse. Massillon had the post position on the rail and Smith broke him on top when the barrier snapped on a good start. Massillon opened a good lead at once and was never in danger of defeat. Smith having him under wraps all the way. He was easing at the end to win by five lengths over F. M. Grabner's Henry Sommers. The battle was for the place between the latter and Glenning. Henry Sommers ran a game race and just lasted to take second money by a head.

Four Races to Favorites.

Despite the change in track conditions the horses continued to run well to form, making three successful days in a row for the players. Four of the seven first choices came home in front, including the winner of the afternoon feature. Two of them, however, were at odds on.

A 1-to-2 favorite was well beaten in the claiming race at a mile and a furlong when Little Ammie finished out of the money. This veteran and usually consistent mare ran far below her usual form under a poor ride by Barnett and her failure burned up a lot of the public's money.

The winner was A. M. Jacobus's Rock View gelding Ticker, which ran a fine race to get up to a head victory in an exciting finish. Off slowly, he was forced to take the overland route and just got up to grab the money from the Woodlawn Stable's veteran gelding Grass Tree. W. M. Cain's Bob Spalding made the pace for a mile and then weakened, finishing third.

Palatine Lad Beaten.

The favorite failed, however, in the dash of five and a half [illegible] maiden two-year-olds. C. Ferraro's Allumeur gelding Palatine Lad finishing third in a field of eight juveniles. He had never run in the mud before, but the players made him the choice, backing him to 13 to 5. He ran a good race, but had more than his share of hard luck. To cap it all he was crowded after the finish line had been passed and came down, throwing McCoy heavily. The boy was able to get to his feet and walk to the stand to weigh in. The winner of this event was the Fair Acre Farm's Upstart, a colt that has had considerable experience in this kind of going and seemed very much at home in it this afternoon.

Upstart was the well-played second choice in a field of eight and paid $8.60 in the mutuels. Connelly took this son of Upset into an early lead, forced the pace with him and held him to his work to win in a drive by a half length from D. Harding's Rim, which had the same margin over Palatine Lad. B. C. Bunbury's Jenny's Dream ran out after having shown in front and killed whatever chances she might have had of winning. It was her first appearance under colors.

GATES OPEN TODAY AT HAVANA TRACK

Inaugural Handicap Tops Card Which Will Usher in 90-Day Meeting.

BUD FISHER HAS ENTRY

His St. John and Bud Bud Named for Oriental Park Feature, Which Draws Field of Nine.

Special to The New York Times.

HAVANA, Dec. 10.—A seven-race program will usher in the thirteenth Winter meeting at the Oriental Park race course tomorrow afternoon with the Inaugural Handicap for thoroughbreds of all ages the feature. The meeting, which will be held under the supervision of the Havana-American Jockey Club in which John McEntee Bowman, prominent New York sportsman has a large interest, is scheduled to run for ninety days.

The Inaugural Handicap, to be run at five furlongs with a purse of $1,200 offered, has drawn an overnight entry of nine. Among those are St. John and Bud Bud in the stable of Bud Fisher, while J. A. Parsons, whose stable is the largest he has ever assembled here, has named Seth's Hope and Carom. Adria has been asked to carry top weight of the field, an impost of 112 pounds.

About 700 thoroughbreds are quartered here. In addition to the Fisher and Parsons strings, there are horses here to be campaigned by Guy Bedwell, son of the veteran turfman, H. G. Bedwell, the National Stable, supported by President Machado, Cuban Chief Executive; the Rosario Stable, another Cuban-owned establishment, and Kenneth K. Karrick, who will race his own horses, as well as those which will run under the silks of John McEntee Bowman.

Clarence Buxton, who, with his brother, Happy Buxton, has campaigned on the Eastern tracks, is reported to be planning to bring his string of thoroughbreds here from Florida.

ACTIVE SWIM YEAR ARRANGED BY N. Y. A. C.

Three Noted Stars Recruited by Club to Lead Squad for the Winter Season.

The Swimming Committee of the New York A. C. completed plans for the indoor season at a meeting yesterday, and Joseph A. Ruddy, veteran water polo ace and manager of the team, stated at its conclusion that he expected the Mercury Foot watermen to enjoy the most active and successful Winter of competition they have experienced in a decade.

Three noted stars lately have been recruited by the local organization. They are Alberto Zorilla, all-around champion of Argentina; George Fissler, winner of a long string of metropolitan title tests and Charles Lambert, formerly of the University of Iowa, a topnocher in conference ranks last year.

Norman Ball, William Wright, Charles Laforge, Leo Giebel, Howard Soule, George Dahm and other able contestants augmented the foregoing trio.

According to Ruddy at least a relay quartet and a water polo team will be sent to Chicago for the National A. A. U. senior championships and this will enable the relay men, probably Zorilla, Fissler, Ball and Wright, to take part in the individual classics also.

Meanwhile, the New York A. C. will hold open water carnivals in the home pool monthly, starting with the coming Wednesday, besides pitting its teams against rivals in several dual meets and a number of water polo matches under international and collegiate rules. Already the Montclair A. C., Yale, Princeton, Annapolis, Columbia and C. C. N. Y. are booked for engagements, while games with other clubs and colleges are being negotiated for.

N. Y. U. SWIM DATES OUT.

Violet Opens 8-Meet Schedule Jan. 7 Against Union College.

The schedule for the New York University swimming team was announced yesterday by Francis P. Wall, Director of Intramural Athletics, and shows that the Violet swimmers will engage in eight meets between the first of the year and the end of the season in March. Only one home meet is scheduled, that with Williams on Feb. 4, to be held in the Bronx Union Y. M. C. A. pool.

Union opens the Violet season on Jan. 7. Then follow meets with R. P. I., Swarthmore, Lafayette and the Army. This latter meet is scheduled for Jan. 29 and will precede the Williams contest. A meet is tentatively scheduled for Fordham for Feb. 11. The season will end with the C. C. N. Y. meet on March 4.

The schedule:

Jan. 7, Union at Union; 8, R. P. I. at R. P. I.; 14, Swarthmore at Swarthmore; 15, Lafayette at Lafayette; 29, Army at West Point.

Feb. 4, Williams at Bronx Union Y. M. C. A.; 11, Fordham (tentative) at Fordham. March 4, C. C. N. Y. at C. C. N. Y.

SOCCER TITLE AT STAKE.

Thomas Jefferson and Erasmus Meet for City Title Today.

Thomas Jefferson High School and Erasmus Hall High School will meet on the soccer pitch at Hawthorne Field in Brooklyn this afternoon at 2:30 to decide the public school championship of Greater New York. The field was cleared of snow two days ago and should be in good shape for the game this afternoon.

Both rival teams have shown excellent form throughout the season and should put up the hardest kind of a battle. Both use a fast and accurate passing game, keep the ball low and head with direction. In view of the fact that the two teams seem evenly matched, a great game certainly should result. If Erasmus is a little faster on the offense, this is offset by the tighter defense of Thomas Jefferson. It appears from the past records of the two elevens that the scoring will be low this afternoon, but the action fast and thrilling.

Columbia Wrestlers Busy Today.

The Columbia Varsity wrestling team will clash with the Alumni matmen in the Columbia gymnasium this afternoon. The varsity will be without the services of Captain Mike Sesit, who still is on the injured list.

FORDHAM SWIMMERS BEAT CITY COLLEGE

Capture Hard-Fought Meet by 35-27 in Lavender Pool Before Capacity Crowd.

FARLEY SAVES THE DAY

Wins Two Races and Then, as Anchor Man, Takes Relay Event That Decides Engagement.

The Fordham University swimming team defeated the C. C. N. Y. swimmers, 35 to 27, in the Lavender pool last night. A capacity crowd of 600 saw one of the closest meets ever held in the City College pool start the swimming season for both institutions. The events consisted of six races and the relay, which was the final event. The score was tied at 27 to 27 at the end of the six races and Fordham won the meet by capturing the relay and the eight points the victory carried with it.

Joe Farley, Maroon captain, was the hero of the meet. He won two of the six races in remarkably fast time and then swam an anchor leg on the relay that snatched victory from C. C. N. Y. and gave it to Fordham.

Farley Wins Relay.

Farley has yet to lose a race in collegiate competition, but seemed to be leading a hopeless cause when he slipped into the water for the last leg of the relay. Each of the three previous Fordham men had covered their fifty yards in good time, but had trailed the Lavender swimmers, who were out to take the race and the meet. Herman had a four-yard lead on Farley, but the Maroon captain gave a thrilling exhibition, overtaking his opponent a few feet from the finish and touching home ahead by inches. The time for the relay was 1:50 3-5.

In the 440-yard swim Farley made a show of his field and won by a lap and a half in 5:43 3-5. Barkin of C. C. N. Y. was second. However, it remained for the 100-yard dash for Farley to show a greater spurt. In this race he was the winner by eleven yards in a race of only 100 yards. His time was 0:58 2-5. Leo of Fordham was second.

La Forge Is Victor.

Charles La Forge of Fordham gained vengeance on Bernie Epstein of C. C. N. Y. in the 200-yard breast-stroke race. Last year Epstein won this race from La Forge. Last night the men swam as a team for most of the course, until a great spurt at the finish by La Forge gave him the victory.

C. C. N. Y. gained most of its points in the fancy dive and 150-yard backstroke events. The Lavender placed first and second in both events. Chester won the former with 84 points and Boyce, the latter in 2:02 1-5. In a water polo game after the swimming races, the Lavender sophomores defeated the freshmen, 25 to 0.

The summaries:

50-Yard Swim—Won by Leo, Fordham; Gretch, C. C. N. Y., second; Herman, C. C. N. Y., third. Time—0:27.

440-Yard Swim—Won by Farley, Fordham; Barkin, C. C. N. Y., second; Adams, Fordham, third. Time—5:43 3-5.

YALE SWIM SQUAD TO FACE CANADIANS

Meet With College Champions of Dominion Wednesday a Feature of Schedule.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Dec. 10.—The Yale varsity swimming and water polo schedules, released tonight by Manager George F. Scherer, include two innovations in the booking of Georgia Tech and the Canadian intercollegiate champions. No Southern swimming team has yet appeared at Yale, and the intersectional meet here March 14 will be an event of keen interest.

The Canadian intercollegiate champions, who will swim here next Wednesday evening, will present a team which will contend for the first time with the Eastern intercollegiate titleholders.

Yale has been unable to arrange the usual two meets with Princeton, but has definitely scheduled one which counts for the Intercollegiate Swimming Association title and another tentatively. It is hoped here that the second may also count toward the college championship.

Yale holds practically all the intercollegiate records at present, and it is believed that some will fall tomorrow night in the opening meet of the season, with the Eli alumni team, headed by Jimmy Bronson, captain and record-breaking sensation last year.

The varsity and freshman schedules:

YALE SPIRIT WANING, SAYS ALUMNI WEEKLY

Continuation of Amateur Traditions Needed in Football Editorial Declares.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Dec. 10.—If the old Yale spirit is going out of football and other college athletics, they should be reformed, the Yale Alumni Weekly said today editorially. The weekly added that amateurism appears to be fading at Yale and that Yale needs a continuation of the amateur traditions that gave Yale so many victories.

The weekly said:

"The university wants its athletics handled so that as many graduates get into them as possible and the graduates want its teams so coached as to carry on the traditions of taking as many scalps as possible from Princeton and Harvard.

"But there is a more fundamental element in it than mere victories, agreeable as they are. There is the Yale spirit, concerning which a good many orators have had their say in the past and we hope will in the future. If this is going out of any one of our sports because conditions are not right to keep it, then we want to do something about it. In football, for instance, what made for Yale spirit in the past was cooperation—the getting together of unpaid graduate players, the team and the undergraduates—to the single end of a common self sacrifice to win the final games. Nothing else counted.

"It is a fair question whether conditions today are tending to maintain this tradition. The coaching is done by a small group under a salaried head coach; the older players are certainly not, to the extent that they successfully used to be, in the picture; the undergraduates have no opportunity to get interested in and hence behind the team because of secret practice. Secondly, if there was anything in the traditional Yale football that made for success, it was the fact that there was a Yale school of football in which the older players had a part and which continually fed in the youngest players to take their places in a nonending procession. It was in this manner that a tradition was built up which, more than anything else, made for success."

Flynn St. Bonaventure Captain.

C. C. N. Y. in Mat Meet Tonight.

The City College wrestling team will engage Brooklyn Poly tonight in the Engineer's gymnasium in their annual meet. Last year the Lavender grapplers won from Poly for the first time in five years by a 12 to 8 score.

Roepke, Penn State Halfback Who Broke Jaw, to Be Captain

Special to The New York Times.

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., Dec. 10.—The election of John P. Roepke, Penn State halfback, to lead the Nittany Lion 1927 team, was announced here today. Roepke is a Jersey City boy, having prepared at the Dickinson High School there. He broke into the varsity backfield as a sophomore two years ago and this Fall was the triple threat of the Lion machine. A broken cheekbone kept him on the bench for five weeks and when he returned to action in the Bucknell and Pitt games he was forced to wear a specially constructed headguard.

COLUMBIA QUINTET IN OPENER TONIGHT

Three Veterans on Team Which Will Clash With St. John's College Combination.

The Columbia basketball season opens tonight at 8 o'clock with Coach Dan Meenan's five facing St. John's College in the Lion gymnasium.

Last season, which was their first as basketball coaches at Columbia, Meenan and Paul Mooney, his assistant, developed a championship team. Two regulars, Al Mannheim, captain and centre, and Red Laub, forward, have been lost by graduation, as has Ray Kirchmeyer, veteran substitute. The squad still lacks full strength, as Mount Norris and Jerry Brady, substitutes last season, are ineligible until next semester.

Captain Jack Lorch, Jack Rothenfeld and Bill Madden, three veterans, will form the nucleus of the team taking the floor tonight. Lorch and Madden have been assigned to their regular guard positions, while Rothenfeld is again at forward. Ed Courtney, substitute centre two years ago but unable to play last season because of illness, will probably be first choice for the tap-off position. Fred Rieger has been used at the other forward post in practice.

The Columbia mentors have been handicapped by the absence of a large number of capable substitutes, and as a result Madden and Rieger, who have been practicing only since the close of the football season, will have to be called on.

The line-up:

COLUMBIA. ST. JOHN'S.
Rothenfeld ........L.F........ Seifert
Rieger ........R.F........ Flanagan
Courtney ....C........ Freeman
Madden ........L.G........ Schulman
Lorch ........R.G........ Feeney

Albany was outplayed from the start and seldom was able to get past the defense of the heavier Manhattan team. The guarding of the New York quintet was a feature of the contest. Albany was held to 10 points in the first half, while Manhattan rolled up 23 and then sent in a team of second string players in the second half.

Captain Cohalan and Hayes of Manhattan starred for the victors. Each caged five goals from the field, while Hayes added another point from the foul line. Eccles and Kantz were outstanding for Albany. Manhattan will play the Williams College team in Williamstown tomorrow night.

TWO OF 15 SPORTS PAID WAY AT PENN

TOTAL INCOME $558,692.87

Clear Balance for Financial Year Is $217,410.53—Baseball Deficit Is $14,271.

Out of a list of fifteen sports fostered by the University of Pennsylvania from September, 1925, to June, 1926, only two were self-supporting. The gross receipts from the fifteen competitive sports encouraged by the Council on Athletics, the report shows, totaled $558,692.87. The expenditures were $341,282.34, leaving a net profit of $217,410.53. The financial statement was issued by the University Council on Athletics.

Again it was football which proved the big financial asset, for the receipts were $495,783.77. The other paying sport was basketball, which drew $23,784.50 and showed a profit of $2,392.66. The profit from football was $314,956.27. The receipts for 1925-26 did not reach the record Pennsylvania total for 1924-25, when the receipts mounted to $757,032.52, with football alone drawing $658,913.76. The net profits for 1924-25 were $231,056.

The thirteen other sports lost varying amounts, the greatest being sustained by the crew, which cost $39,779, while the receipts were only $1,310, a net loss of $38,469.

Baseball Less Heavy.

The failure of baseball to make a better financial showing also proved a disappointment, the report indicates. Baseball drew $7,174 and cost $21,445, which shows a loss of $14,271.

It was announced that approximately 2,000 students took part in the fifteen sports, with separate schedules and coaches for each branch. In addition to the students actively engaged on varsity teams, the Council of Athletics also has sports facilities for the entire student body. There also is the upkeep of five extra practice fields, of Franklin Field stadium, the care of the tennis courts and the building of the new $1,000,000 indoor stadium.

Track also proved rather costly. The gate receipts were $24,408 and the cost $32,939, a loss of $8,530. Swimming, tennis, wrestling, soccer and gymnastics also were among the costly sports. The records show that the third heaviest loser was soccer, which had a net loss of $9,000.

List of Sport Revenues.

The financial statement for 1925-26, as announced by the Council on Athletics, follows:

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Advance in Stocks Continues, Bonds Strong—Money 4½%, Franc Slightly Lower.

Prices continued as a rule to advance on the Stock Exchange yesterday. There were a few net declines, some of them in shares which led in the recent strength; but the predominant movement was upward and both railway and industrial stocks scored advances running in some cases to 5 points or more. With the industrial shares, closing prices were in many cases considerably below the highest; the railway shares, however, rather generally held their earlier gains. The bond market maintained the strength which it has displayed pretty much throughout the week, with one of the French Republic dollar bonds going above the year's previous high price.

The advance in stocks appeared to be based on general principles. The only incident of the news that might have affected values was the report on the United States Steel Corporation's unfilled tonnage at the end of November. This was highly favorable if measured alone by what the trade had expected; for the week's earlier predictions were for an increase of 100,000 tons or less for the month, whereas the actual figures show a gain of 123,786. If the variations of these "forward orders" were any longer a true barometer of the industrial situation, it would have to be pointed out that even this unexpectedly large addition brings the total increase since Aug. 31 to only 265,111 tons, whereas the increase in the same period last year was 1,068,974. The total amount reported, 3,807,447 tons, is in fact very much the smallest shown at the end of any November since 1914; it compares with 4,250,542 even in November, 1921, when trade was still in a state of profound depression, with 7,128,330 on Nov. 30, 1919, and with 11,058,542 at the same date in 1916.

But every one is now aware that comparison of advance orders on steel producers' books is of economic significance only as showing the progress of what has come to be known as the "hand-to-mouth buying policy." Considered from that viewpoint, however, the present low figure as contrasted with the same date in other years is itself a favorable sign. It occurs at a time when consumption is extremely high (though less than a year ago); it means that the large output is going promptly into industrial use, and it does its part in explaining, as Mr. Mellon and Mr. Hoover have officially pointed out, why the huge general trade now in progress can be conducted with no strain on credit and without a ripple in the money market.

Yesterday's further downward reaction in the franc canceled all of the rapid appreciation from the early low price of Wednesday, but the market closed only a trifle under Thursday's closing. In some respects, these spasmodic upward and downward movements must be more trying to French merchants than a sustained advance to a higher level. To that they could accommodate their business; but the highly speculative fluctuations of the week can hardly fail to have thrown them into the bewilderment and perplexity which surrounded the New York importing merchant when the "Gold Exchange" was in its prime during 1869.

After the habit of the mercantile community, the week-end reviews lay rather more stress on the "cold snap" and the early snowfall as an influence in trade than on larger underlying considerations. Yet the reports to the agencies are pretty consistently cheerful. That there are "large numbers of shoppers in the stores," with the public's "buying power well sustained," will hardly excite surprise on the approach of Christmas season in such a year as this. But survey of the general field convinces at least one of the reviews that "there will not be the commercial reaction which had been apprehended in some quarters during earlier months," and the textile industry is still making good account of itself. For November, indeed, the trade reports that textile sales were 3% per cent. above the month's production, which was large.

U. S. STEEL GAINS IN UNFILLED ORDERS

Increase of 123,786 Tons to Total of 3,807,447 More Than Predicted.

DUE TO RAILROAD BUSINESS

Quantity Is Largest Reported Since April—Contracts for Tinplate Not Included.

Unfilled orders of the United States Steel Corporation as revealed yesterday in the official tonnage statement showed a gain of 123,786 tons, which was a substantially larger amount than had been expected in Wall Street. The business on the corporation's books at the end of November aggregated 3,807,447 tons as compared with 3,683,661 tons at the end of October. The orders on Sept. 30 amounted to 3,593,509 tons and on Aug. 31 to 3,542,335 tons, while the figure for Nov. 30, 1925, was 4,581,780 tons.

The sharp gain in forward business at the end of last month reflects the greatly improved demand for railroad equipment. The improvement represents, in fact, a much better steel business than the most optimistic spokesmen of the industry had predicted. It had been known for several days that the buying of rails and other track equipment was expanding rapidly, but the size of the increase had not been fully apparent.

November	3,807,447	4,581,780	4,031,989
October	3,803,661	4,100,183	3,525,270
September	3,593,509	3,717,297	3,473,780
August	3,542,335	3,512,906	3,289,577
July	3,692,322	3,539,467	3,187,072
June	3,478,641	3,710,458	3,262,506
May	3,649,250	4,049,800	3,628,089
April	3,587,978	4,446,568	4,208,447
March	4,379,935	4,903,564	4,782,807
February	4,616,822	5,284,771	4,912,901
January	4,882,739	5,087,328	4,796,429
	1925.	1924.	1923.
December	5,063,364	4,816,676	4,445,330

Contracts for tinplate closed in November are not included in the figures for the month since the tonnage under these contracts was not placed upon the books and will not be until specifications are presented. This business happens to be an important item of buying at this time. The tonnage included will be distributed over a good part of the year.

Executives in the steel industry are not expecting any noteworthy shift in the buying trend before the end of the year. Many consumers last Summer placed good-sized orders as they faced the possibility of advancing prices and as their stocks had become depleted. Recent surveys have indicated that consumers' stocks have become pretty well exhausted and the producers are looking for an appreciable improvement in demand after the turn of the year.

The total tonnage of 3,807,447 on the books in Nov. 30 was the largest reported since the end of April, when the business amounted to 3,867,976 tons.

NATIONAL SURETY RUMOR.

Rise in Stock Said to Be Due to Coming Capital Increase.

Advance in the price of the stock of the National Surety Company gave rise to reports in Wall Street yesterday that the company would soon announce an increase in capital, carrying valuable subscription rights for stockholders. Stock was quoted at 225 bid, 240 asked in the unlisted securities market yesterday, as against a price of 224-230 earlier in the week.

At the offices of the company it was said that no plan for a capital change was in immediate contemplation. The capital of the company is $10,000,000 and its surplus was reported at $5,574,656 on Dec. 31, 1925, in the latest statement. Total assets then were $35,235,774. In the financial district it is considered likely that plans for a capital increase will be announced at the annual meeting on Jan. 18.

TEXAS BROKERS TO GET FULL TICKER SERVICE

Western Union Will Begin New System Dec. 20—Oklahoma Also to Get Quotations.

Brokers throughout Oklahoma and Texas will receive New York Stock Exchange quotations in full by ticker after Dec. 20, when the Western Union Telegraph Company will inaugurate a new 1,000-mile stock ticker service, covering Dallas, Fort Worth, Houston, Oklahoma City and Tulsa. This latest increment to the already extensive financial communication service of Western Union has been in the process of installation for several months under supervision of H. M. Heffner, general superintendent of the commercial news department.

The system is patterned after the Chicago-Pacific Coast service, which was opened on March 15, 1926, and is in the form of a "drop" from Chicago—that is, the quotations will be transmitted simultaneously on the same wire from Chicago to Dallas and the Pacific Coast cities. Then, with Dallas as an intermediate repeater point, the quotations will be retransmitted to the other cities in the new territory. There are fifty tickers for the initial transmissions, and during the initial period of service some thirty or more brokers in Oklahoma and Texas will receive a facsimile reproduction of the New York Stock Exchange ticker tape fifteen or twenty seconds after it has appeared on the New York exchange. The New York quotations now appear some ten or more seconds later in the Pacific Coast centres.

As the Pacific Coast development made possible the inauguration of the Oklahoma-Texas system, so the Western Union is planning in the near future to extend its service to New Orleans north to Memphis, Birmingham and Atlanta, and possibly Chattanooga and Nashville, it was reported.

At present the Pacific Coast territory receives full New York stock and cotton quotations, New Orleans cotton, Chicago Board of Trade and intermittent New York bond quotations, but during the initial period the Oklahoma-Texas territory will receive only the New York stock quotations. The others are available for ticker service and will be inaugurated when the demand warrants, officials of Western Union said.

BANKS' CHRISTMAS BONUSES

State and Standard Institution Vote Gifts to Employes.

The Board of Directors of the State Bank voted yesterday to give all employes, including officers, a Christmas bonus varying from one month's salary for those connected with the institution for one year to three months' salary for those employed fifteen years or more.

Shareholders of the bank will receive the regular quarterly dividend of 4 per cent. and an initial dividend of $1 a share from the Staban Securities Corporation, an affiliated company.

The Standard Bank declared a bonus of from 2 per cent. to 9 per cent. of the annual salaries of its employes. The distribution will be 2 per cent. of salaries plus 1 per cent. additional for each full year of service. This is in accordance with a policy adopted several years ago in an endeavor to reward employes for long service.

TWO BANKS UNITED MONDAY

Irving and American Exchange Will Open Doors as One.

The merger of the Irving Bank and Trust Company and the American Exchange Bank will take effect at the close of business today, and the doors of their offices will open as one institution on Monday morning.

The consolidation, which was arranged last October, created an institution with resources in excess of $735,000,000. It will be the third largest bank in New York, topped only by the National City and the enlarged Chase National.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

News, Comment and Incident, On the Stock Market and In the Financial Markets.

Operations for the advance were carried on with considerable energy on the New York Stock Exhange yesterday. The advance in the general list was the broadest that has taken place in many weeks. Strength was pronounced in both the railroad and industrial groups. United States Steel common was the market leader during the greater part of the day, although in the subsequent partial reaction its net gain was only ⅝ point. The stock fluctuated between a low of 151 and a high of 152¾, and the turnover was heavy. Chesapeake & Ohio ended the day with a net gain of 2⅝. Atlantic Coast Line was up 3⅜, Chicago & Northwestern 2¼, Chrysler 1, International Harvester 4¾, Lehigh Valley 3⅝, Père Marquette 2⅞, South Porto Rico 6⅝, United States Cast Iron Pipe 3½ and Woolworth 3¾. Declines were not numerous. The market closed irregular, with a few issues which had been strong in the earlier trading showing signs of heaviness.

Odd-Lot Buying.

The increase in odd-lot buying in the last two weeks is estimated to have been approximately 20 per cent. over the preceding two weeks. Many of the leading issues, such as Steel, Baldwin, General Motors and others, are reported to have been in steady demand in odd-lot houses. One unusual development in the market at the present time, and one practically unheard of a few years ago, is the fact that there have been many "odd-lot shorts" in the market and that some of the inquiry for these odd lots at the present time is from small traders who have been short from ten to ninety shares of stock and who are engaged in covering their commitments.

Better Feeling About Motors.

From Wall Street's standpoint, the news from the motor centres has been rather gloomy for a month or so. It recorded a sharp decline in production, for one thing; possibility of heavier competition during the early part of 1927, difficulties in readjustment of new prices, and, finally, a rather serious stocking up of unsold units. The news of the last few days, however, is looked upon as brighter. It has included the taking on of additional men by many prominent companies, an advance in price schedules by at least two of them, heavier buying of raw materials by the big companies, and, finally, gradual dissipation of a previously firmly held conviction that Henry Ford was going to kick over the automotive apple cart within the next few weeks. These bits of news have been seized upon in the financial district not so much as reflecting any considerable change, but rather as straws in the wind pointing to a greater degree of stabilization in the industry in the near future.

Mercantile Stocks Advance.

A sharp advance in some of the mercantile stocks was ascribed yesterday to steady improvement in the holiday trade. Woolworth was the feature of the group, advancing from a low of 189¼ to a high of 193¾ and closing with a net gain of 3¾ points. Montgomery Ward, which was in heavy demand, closed with a net gain of 1 point, while Sears, Roebuck, R. H. Macy and a few others made substantial gains in active trading. Reports reaching Wall Street indicated that the Christmas retail business will approach very closely the largest for all time, if indeed it does not set a new high record.

Common Stocks as Christmas Gifts.

It was pointed out yesterday as a comparatively new development in the stock market that there should be a measurable inquiry at this season of the year for common stocks as Christmas gifts. Bonds have enjoyed this distinction for many years, but in stocks it is something new, and to a large extent it is the wives of Wall Street traders, who are supposed to be familiar with the market, who will be the beneficiaries. It has usually been the case that the purchasers, arranging such Christmas gifts pick out stocks in whose appreciation in market value for the next year or so they have confidence. In a few cases which have come to light the stocks are those in which the donors of the gifts have made a great deal of money this year, without owning outright a single share of the issues.

Breaking New Investment Ground.

The sale of $20,000,000 of bonds by the Port of New York Authority this week demonstrated the sucessful manner in which new investment ground has been broken by this organization. When the Port Authority called for bids from bankers last March on a $14,000,000 bond issue for the construction of bridges linking Staten Island and New Jersey its status furnished something new from an investment angle. The Port Authority is a creation of the States of New York and New Jersey, with the sanction of the United States Government. As an official body it ranks high, but at the same time its securities carry no guarantee by either of the States or the Federal Government, and there is no pledge of Government revenues behind its bonds, which are to be paid off by tolls collected on the properties to be constructed. It was decided to bring out the first bonds with a 4½ per cent. interest coupon, priced at a figure which represented an interest cost of 4¾ per cent. to the Port Authority. These bonds now are selling at more than par. The new issue bears a 4 per cent. coupon, with a cost to the Port Authority of about 4¼ per cent. for the money.

Investment Railway Shares Advance.

With no manifestly dark spots on the railroad outlook, shares of the principal carriers continued their advance yesterday, registering especially good gains in the stocks regarded as investments. The optimism felt in some quarters regarding their future appeared to be based not only on the prospect of earnings but also on the fact that, in speculative Wall Street's opinion, the majority of the roads have not paid out a fair proportion of their earnings to stockholders. If the "regulation policy" continues to be favorable and traffic is up to expectations in 1927, certain observers believe that some extra dividends may be declared or dividends initiated on common stocks now earning several dollars but paying nothing.

Foreign Loans in Demand.

The present strength of foreign bonds, it developed yesterday, is influencing investment houses to hurry along as fast as possible their negotiations for new bond issues from abroad. This was demonstrated last week, when a total of more than $38,000,000 of new foreign bonds was sold to investors, the issues originating in Europe, Canada and South America. Next week will bring to the market a $30,000,000 German utility loan and a loan of from $4,000,000 to $5,000,000 to Bulgaria will be offered soon. All recent issues have been largely oversubscribed. Compared with a year ago, a sharp decline is shown in the yields available on the general run of foreign bonds.

The German Tax on Loans.

With the clearing up of the confusion that existed regarding a tax on foreign loans in Germany bankers here believe the net result will be a reduction in the volume of future German issues and a consequent appreciation in the value of such bonds already sold. No new tax is involved. For several years there has been a 10 per cent. charge against corporate bond issues, but when American bankers arranged with German industries for loans they usually obtained a provision that the borrowers would pay this tax, giving American investors the income without deductions. The German companies put through a system under which they were exempt from this tax on application. The present change means merely that for the present the German Government will refuse such requests, so that either the borrower or the investor must pay the tax.

Permanence in Trusteeship

IN naming a trustee for your estate you will require integrity, experience, judgment and continuity. The last mentioned quality, particularly, calls for the appointment of a trust company, at least as co-trustee.

The Bank of New York and Trust Company is older than the United States Government itself, dating back to 1784. Could more convincing evidence be found of permanence in trusteeship?

For generations to come, if you desire, the careful maintenance of your trust will be assured, if put in the hands of this company.

OPTIMISM FOR 1927 IN BANKING CIRCLES

Only Slight Drop From Record Years of '25 and '26 Likely, Says Journal.

THREE DOUBTFUL FACTORS

Auto Industry, Building and Cotton Situation Show Signs of Improvement, It Is Said.

The United States will close 1926 as the most prosperous year in history, and will enter the new year with unprecedented conditions for continuation of the prosperity wave, according to the current issue of The American Bankers' Association Journal. The general business situation is satisfactory, and banking leaders view the outlook with confidence. Business in 1927 will no doubt be more quiet, it is pointed out, not quite measuring up to the breakneck pace of 1925 and 1926, but it appears now that industry and commerce will run along a settled and highly competitive course.

"Three major factors that have recently been the subject of concern, namely, building operations, the automobile industry and the cotton situation," The Journal declares, "all show signs that they will be able to work out satisfactorily and that such readjustments as may be needed should not affect general business to any serious degree.

New Record in Building.

"In the case of building construction, the decline that had been expected to start this Fall is materializing. Notwithstanding the decline, the current year's total will doubtless exceed that of last year and be the highest on record. Public and quasi-public projects will offset the decline in private construction and maintain the demand for structural steel, cement and other materials and labor, although some branches of the building trades will be unable to shift easily, for example, plasterers, plumbers and interior decorators.

"The second factor in business that is accompanied by a question mark is the motor industry. November and December will see production much curtailed, as is customary in this season of the year. The outlook for the automobile industry, as a whole, is still bright, and reliable authorities, who a few years ago talked of 20,000,000 cars in this country as their goal, have recently revised this figure to 40,000,000 before the saturation point is reached. However, the outlook for many individual units in the industry is not so bright.

"Nevertheless, there are grounds for believing that such readjustments as must eventually be made will take place in an orderly manner. Most companies are in a strong cash position and without heavy debt, as a result of the prosperity they have had for several years; nor is there any depression or serious recession in general business imminent. Ordinary replacements demand, based on average life, is one car annually for every seven in use.

Doubt About Cotton.

"The third question mark in business has been the cotton situation. No demoralization has taken place in the South, as was feared by some people, and many cotton planters will realize a better return from a large crop at low prices than from a short crop at fancy prices. Moreover, the low prices have been a boon to the textile industry, which in recent months has been buying heavily of the staple and seems in a fair way to operate at a profit for the first time in years.

"Exports are moving in large volume to Germany, Great Britain, France, Italy and Japan. If the present large crop at low prices can bring a revival of the mill industry from its state of depression, the Southern farmers will be benefited accordingly. The emergency plans by the Government are proceeding, and cotton finance corporations have been chartered in some of the States to aid the farmers in holding their cotton until prices show improvement."

RAIL CHIEFS CONSERVATIVE.

Hopeful of Gains in Northwest, Seeing Conditions Favorable.

Four railroad Presidents were conservatively optimistic regarding 1927 in statements issued yesterday.

"It is too early to make any definite prediction," said N. L. Howard, President of the Chicago Great Western, "on what next year will bring forth, but indications are that we will do a fair volume of business in the next few months. Industrial companies in our territory are doing a good business."

Carl Gray, head of the Union Pacific, said regarding conditions in the West: "I doubt whether in the West generally there will be as much traffic for the first seven months of the new year as in 1926. After all, however, the story with most Western roads is in the last five months. That is another way of saying that next year's earnings will depend on crops. As to these conditions at this time are favorable."

Ralph Budd, President of the Great Northern, cited the recent extensions by Northwestern lines as important indication of a continuance of the march of progress in the Northwest.

"It is evident," he said, "that the Northwest roads are resuming their interrupted plans. They are picking up the threads where they left off."

M. C. Byers, President of the Western Maryland, expressed confidence that the earnings of his railroad would run well ahead of last year in November and December, and would be in good volume next year.

GOVERNMENT BONDS AT NEW HIGH PRICES

Two Liberty and Two Treasury Issues Make Record in Day of Heavy Buying.

New high records for the year were established in four issues of United States Government bonds yesterday in an unusually broad market. Sales of Liberty and Treasury bonds totaled $1,525,500, which was about double the recent average daily transactions in these securities on the New York Stock Exchange.

Liberty first ¼ per cent. bonds touched their highest at 122.29, while the Liberty second 4¼s sold at 101, Treasury 4s of 1954 at 106.1 and Treasury 3⅜s of 1956 at 102.29. The prices eased off somewhat late in the day, but the close showed net advances ranging from $\frac{1}{32}$ to $\frac{8}{32}$ of a point over the final figures of the previous day.

The activity and advancing prices were considered a direct reflection of the terms of the Treasury's December financing, announced this week. The Government is issuing only $200,000,000 of new certificates to replace $450,000,000 of maturing certificates, and the new issue, bearing interest of only 3¼ per cent., has been heavily oversubscribed in advance. The diminished supply of short-term obligations of the Government, which are in wide demand from corporations, banks and wealthy individuals, upset the balance between supply and demand of the longer term securities.

Including sinking fund purchases of Liberty third 4¼s, there will have been a reduction of 50 per cent. in outstanding short-term issues during 1926, when the December financing is completed. The heaviest buying yesterday was in the issues carrying the earlier maturities.

$70,517,000 BONDS ABSORBED IN WEEK

Foreign Offerings Head List, With South America in First Place.

FEWER PUBLIC UTILITIES

Industrial and Railway Issues Also Less in Quantity—Financing to Come.

New bond offerings in the week ended yesterday totaled $70,517,000, compared with the record-breaking aggregate of $248,517,000 last week and $125,059,000 in the corresponding week of last year. The centre of interest, which had been held recently by the public utility and industrial divisions, shifted to the foreign field, with important issues originating in Europe, South America and Canada.

The offerings, by groups, of this and last week follow:

	This Week.	Last Week.
Foreign	$38,092,000	$15,645,000
State and municipal	14,275,000	15,027,000
Public utility	10,050,000	38,000,000
Industrial	7,100,000	174,850,000
Railroad	1,000,000	4,995,000
Total	$70,517,000	$248,517,000

The Province of Buenos Aires, Argentina, furnished the largest single piece of financing of the week with an issue of $24,121,000 of bonds awarded to a syndicate headed by the First National Corporation of Boston and including many large houses in New York. The proceeds will be applied to liquidation of the floating and short-term indebtedness of the Province, which has a total funded debt of less than $240,000,000 and total wealth estimated in excess of $6,000,000,000. South America was represented also by a $5,171,000 issue of the City of Montevideo. The United Industrial Corporation (Viag) of Germany, which is owned by the German Government and has widely diversified industrial interests, obtained a loan of $6,000,000, while the Province of Manitoba, Canada, floated an issue of $2,800,000.

The largest public utility issue of the week was $6,000,000 bonds of the Virginia Electric and Power Company, and there were several additional offerings in this group. The State of North Carolina, with the sale of $10,000,000 of bonds through a syndicate headed by the First National Bank, led the State and municipal list. Other issues in this class ranged all the way from $50,000 up to $1,650,000, the latter being an obligation of the City of Detroit. Miscellaneous industrial issues and a $1,000,000 railroad offering completed the list.

Important financing is scheduled for the market in the next few days. Dillon, Read & Co. are preparing to offer $30,000,000 of 6½ per cent. bonds of the Berlin Electric Company, awarded after stiff competition by American and European banking interests. The Port of New York Authority on Thursday awarded $20,000,000 of Hudson River bridge bonds to a group headed by the National City Company, and this issue probably will be offered on Monday. A $10,000,000 issue of the Interstate Public Service Company also is scheduled to reach the market next week.

Despite the record-breaking volume of bonds absorbed in the previous week, the investment demand was more than sufficient to take care of all new offerings this week. Bond prices continued upward and new high records were established, both for foreign and domestic securities.

EXCHANGE APPROVES INACTIVE TRADING

Plan Will Be Put Into Effect on Jan. 3—Purpose Is to Expedite Dealings.

180 ISSUES SEGREGATED

Ten Shares to Be Trading Unit—Governing Committee Announces Rules and Official List.

A plan for trading in inactive stocks on the New York Stock Exchange which has been under consideration for some months has been approved by the Governing Committee and will be put into practice Jan. 3, according to an announcement yesterday by Secretary E. V. D. Cox of the Exchange.

More than 180 stock issues in which trading has been so light as to give them the classification of "inactive stocks" have been segregated under the new plan. The purpose in inaugurating new trading rules applicable to such stocks is to expedite dealings in them. The tentative list of such stocks announced some time ago is virtually the same as the official list announced yesterday.

The unit of trading in the stocks on the inactive list is ten shares. Transactions in ten-share lots, on multiples thereof, are to be printed on the stock tape and sheets. The stocks on the inactive list as designated by the Committee on Arrangements are to be removed from the posts to which they are now assigned and located at Post 3, North Wall, and no other stocks are to be dealt in at that post.

"Orders will be filled according to the precedence of bids and offers in the cabinets, said bids and offers to have precedence over all other bids and offers, except that verbal bids and offers may be made, if not in conflict with bids and offers in the cabinets," said the rules made public yesterday. "Such orders may retain their precedence in the month following that in which they were filed, if such orders are confirmed with the specialist at the end of each month, and confirmed by the specialist with the file clerk at the same time. Each card must contain the name of the specialist who is designated to execute the order, and only those cards bearing the name of a member actively engaged in the inactive stock crowd will be received for filing.

"If an order is canceled the card must be removed from the cabinets. Members are responsible for all orders contained on the cabinets bearing their name. Cards containing market and stop orders must be placed in the cabinets. The specialists in the inactive stock crowd shall not be compelled to accept any order, but after an order has been accepted shall execute the same as required by these rules.

"The Committee on Arrangements directs that a specialist, located in the inactive stock crowd, who has accepted an order in a lot of stock of less than ten shares must execute said order upon the next recorded sale, made at the price of said order, or better, the price to be that of said sale plus not more than the following differential in the case of buying orders and less not more than the following differential in the case of selling orders:

"Sales made below $100 a share, 50 cents a share; $100 and above, but under $200, $1 a share; $200 and above, but under $300, $2 a share; $300 and above, but under $400, $3 a share; $400 and above, but under $500, $4 a share; $500 and above, $5 a share.

"A lot of stock of less that 10 shares, sold by a specialist in an inactive stock crowd for his own account shall be delivered on the fourteenth day following the day of contract, unless otherwise directed by the Committee on Arrangements (and unless such day is a holiday or half-holiday, when Section 3 of Chapter III shall apply), and may be delivered on any full business day prior thereto.

"On business for parties not members of the Exchange, including joint account transactions in which a nonmember is interested; and on transactions for partners not members of the Exchange: Selling at less than $100, not less than 20 cents a share; selling at $100 a share and above, but under $200, not less than 25 cents; selling at $200 and over, not less than 30 cents, plus 5 cents a share for each $50 or fraction thereof, beginning at $250.

"On business for members of the Exchange when a principal is not given up, not less than 8 cents a share; on business for members of the Exchange when a principal is given up, not less than 4 cents a share."

Victor Radio Contract to Continue.

Relations between the Radio Corporation of America and the Victor Talking Machine Company will not be changed by the recent acquisition of control in the latter company by bankers, it was said yesterday by General James G. Harbord, President of the Radio Corporation. "We have a contract with the Victor company to supply them sets for their combination cabinets," said General Harbord. "It still has some time to run and we have had no negotiations looking toward changing it."

FINDS PORT AUTHORITY FINANCIAL BASIS FIRM

George S. Silzer Says Sale of $20,000,000 Bridge Bonds Demonstrates Strength.

George S. Silzer, Chairman of the Port of New York Authority and former Governor of New Jersey, declared yesterday that the sale to a banking group headed by the National City Company of an issue of $20,000,000 Hudson River Bridge bonds definitely established the Port Authority on a firm financial basis.

"The competition for the bonds and the flattering bids received surpassed expectations," said Mr. Silzer. "It was only last March that we disposed of our first bond issue for bridge purposes and we thought we were particularly fortunate then to obtain the $14,000,000 required at a net cost to us of 4.77 per cent. Now, less than a year later, we have been able to sell $20,000,000 of bonds at a net cost to us of 4.242 per cent.

"The significance of the price obtained is clear from the fact that while the Port Authority derives its powers from the Legislatures of New York and New Jersey, it has no power to levy taxes or assessments for benefits in any of its undertakings. In all its enterprises it must be able to demonstrate the economic practicability of every phase of the plans and must show that, through earnings, the project will pay its way.

"From the standpoint of the security of this issue, it is important to note that the States of New York and New Jersey will advance jointly the sum of $10,000,000 for this project. The money so provided is in the nature of a 'cushion' for the Port Authority bonds, as the States agree that their claims shall rank subordinate to the first lien bonds issued by the Port Authority."

Funds for the payment of interest and for the amortization of the issue will be obtained from tolls to be collected from the users of the bridge. Expert engineers estimate that net revenues for the year 1932, when it is planned to open the bridge for traffic, should amount to $5,250,000.

MOVEMENT OF GOODS REPORTED DECLINING

Department of Commerce Reviews Business Conditions of First Week of December.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—Check payments for the first week of December were slightly less than in either the preceding week or the corresponding week of 1925, says today's weekly statement of the Department of Commerce on business conditions.

"The distribution of goods, as seen from carloadings, continued to decline seasonally and was less than a year ago," the department commented. "The production of beehive coke and lumber was less and petroleum production was greater than during either the previous week or the same week of last year.

"Receipts of wheat and hogs were less than during either the previous week or the corresponding week of last year. Receipts of cattle at the principal markets, of wool at Boston and of cotton into sight exceeded those recorded for the same week of last year. Exports of wheat and wheat flour also exceeded those of the previous week and of a year ago, while exports of corn declined from both comparative periods.

"Wholesale prices were generally lower during the first week of December than during the previous week and were considerably below the level of last year.

"Loans and discounts of Federal Reserve member banks were higher than at the end of either the preceding week or of the corresponding week of last year. Interest rates on both time and call money were lower than a year ago, cal money rates being slightly higher than, and time-money rates the same as, for the preceding week. Prices of stocks and bonds averaged slightly higher than during either the previous week or the same week of 1925. Business failures were larger than for either previous period."

NEW EXCHANGE FIRMS.

Two Concerns Will Succeed Partnership of Noyes & Jackson.

Announcement was made yesterday of the organization of two new Stock Exchange firms to succeed the present partnership of Noyes & Jackson of New York and Chicago. The business in New York will be conducted under the name of Jackson, Boesel & Co., which will assume the offices of the old firm at 42 Broadway, and will specialize in securities, retaining only one membership on the Chicago Board of Trade.

The business of the Chicago office at 208 South La Salle Street will be carried on under the name of David A. Noyes & Co., and will continue in the commission business in both grains and securities. It will hold seven memberships on the Chicago Board of Trade. Richard E. Boesel will represent Jackson, Boesel & Co. on the New York Stock Exchange and Jones E. Henry will represent the Chicago firm in the same capacity. The present private wire connection between the two offices will be continued.

Jackson, Boesel & Co. will have as active partners William C. Jackson, Albert G. Boesel, Charles H. P. Yallalee, Alfred B. Stoddard, Harry L. Nixon, Samuel Candler Dobbs Jr., Lewis B. Hall Jr. and Richard E. Boesel. David A. Noyes & Co. will have as active partners David A. Noyes, Solomon Sturges, Jones E. Henry, Oliver A. Olmsted, Philip W. Brockhaus, James L. Leahy and James A. Cummins.

BERLIN ELECTRIC EXPANDS.

Building Three New Units With Part of Loan Placed Here.

The Berlin City Electric Company, which has placed a new $20,000,000 issue of twenty-five-year 6½ per cent. sinking fund debentures with Dillon, Read & Co. and associates, will complete two of three new units at its Rummelsburg plant this month. This will increase the company's generating capacity from 221,500 kilowatts to 381,500 kilowatts. When completed in 1927, the third unit will increase capacity 80,000 kilowatts.

Part of the proceeds of the new loan will be used to complete construction of the plant. The balance will be used to liquidate all current indebtedness except about $1,500,000 due next year, and for other purposes. Berlin City Electric leases its properties from the City of Berlin, the lease expiring in 1973. The company is empowered to fix electrical rates adequate to cover expenses, interest, amortization, depreciation and other reserves. On termination of the lease, the city agrees to assume all the company's obligations, including amortization.

RETAIL TRADE LEADS NATION'S BUSINESS

Reviews Find Approach of the Holidays and the Weather Responsible for Rise.

SLACKNESS IN INDUSTRY

Wholesale Trade Is Quieter as a Result of Usual Seasonal Influences.

Retail trade took the lead in the business situation this week due to both the approach of the holidays and the weather. Wholesale trade has been quieter and industry has slackened off further as a result of seasonal influences. The most favorable reports came from the Central West and East, while Southern trade still reflects the low prices reigning for cotton. Bradstreet's says:

"Colder weather, with snow and growth of the holiday buying urge, aided in some areas by the distribution of savings club funds, has pushed retail trade to the front this week. Even at the South, where low-priced cotton still overhangs the entire business situation, there is mention of holiday trade being a factor, although a number of cities report the volume so far as disappointing. Wholesale trade, on the other hand, has tended to contract, except where re-order of fill-in buying is noted. Industry has quieted further, andl building, affected by colder weather or snow, has slowed down, building materials of all kinds reflecting this in a reduced volume of buying.

"More unemployment has been noted in factories where year-end activities are being curtailed. Coal buying has benefited from the severe weather ruling in northern areas. Steel buying has quieted, the easing caused by the approach of year-end inventories not being offset by new buying, except where structural material is needed, or where, as in railway material or equipment, inquiry has increased."

"Reports from most of the principal centres indicate the presence of large numbers of shoppers in the stores, and the public buying power appears to be well sustained," according to Dun's Review. "It is usual for railroad freight traffic to diminish at this time of year and recent weekly returns of car loadings have shown the customary tendency toward decrease. Some of the railroad interests have begun to make additional sizeable inquiries and to place large actual orders for rolling stock and other equipment, and this gives support to the steel industry at a time when demand from most other sources has contracted.

"With the year practically ended, it is evident that there will not be the commercial reaction which had been apprehended in some quarters during earlier months, nor is there a conspicuous weakness in commodity prices generally. The strong financial position of various corporations has been reflected in extra dividends of special distributions to stockholders, and the markets for securities have lately been firmer in the main. Special advices on collections do not show general improvement and in the South some complaints of slow payments are heard. The rise in commercial failures over the totals of a year ago seems moderate when allowance is made for the increased number of firms and individuals in business."

OILS IN UNUSUAL DEMAND.

Wall Street Surprised by Turnover in Low-Priced Issues.

A development which surprised Wall Street yesterday and caused a great deal of surmise as to its meaning was the sudden movement and extraordinarily heavy turnover in low-priced oil shares. One which attracted particular attention was Superior Oil, in which, selling at its best price of the year of about $5 a share, there was a turnover of more than 32,000 shares.

Other low-priced oil issues which were heavily turned over were Amerada, Mid-Continent Petroleum, in which the sales exceeded 18,000, and Phillips Petroleum, in which the turnover was almost 30,000 shares. Standard Oil Company of New Jersey rights were another feature, approximately 70,000 of them being bought and sold.

The guess in Wall Street was that in the case of the low-priced oil issues the annual reports soon to be forthcoming will make a much better showing than previously had been expected. This is due largely to the fact that some of these companies recently have brought in good properties in newly discovered fields.

CHRYSLER EXPORTS RISE.

55% Over 1925, Says President—Hopeful of Spring Trade.

Walter P. Chrysler, President of the Chrysler Corporation, issued a statement yesterday following a directors' meeting, in which he spoke encouragingly of the outlook for 1927.

"There is every indication that our operations will carry through this Winter on a record basis," he said. "Prospects are excellent for a record Spring trade.

"Export business is becoming increasingly important, and now represents about 15 per cent. of the total sales. Its increase over last year is about 55 per cent. Stocks in the hands of dealers are lower than last year. Retail deliveries for November showed 100 per cent. increase over last year's. Retail deliveries for the last five months showed about 33 per cent. increase."

Lays Power Decrease to Holidays.

The decrease in the amount of electric power consumed by the country in November compared with October is explained by lower industrial use on election day and Thanksgiving Day, it was said yesterday by Frank L. Dame, President of the North American Company. October and November figures show that North American customers used more current in those months than at any other time this year. November showed an increase of 11½ per cent. in electrical output over November, 1925, according to Mr. Dame. He expects that December will bring the usual decline in consumption as a result of the holidays.

To Call Owens Bottle Preferred.

William H. Boshart, President of the Owens Bottle Company, announced yesterday that the company would call for redemption at 115 and accrued dividends one-half its 7 per cent. preferred stock. Redemption will be made April 1 and will affect stockholders of record Dec. 20. Owners of preferred will be required to deliver April 1 to the transfer agents one-half their holdings in consideration of the redemption price. There is about $7,900,000 par value of the preferred outstanding, and at 115 per share the amount to be repaid will be $4,500,000.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE.

Small Price Changes the Rule in Quiet Trading—Italian Lire Strong.

Business in the foreign exchanges yesterday by comparison with that of its immediate predecessors was a dull and listless affair. No important changes were registered in any of the Europeans except that in the Italian lire, which continued in good demand and rose some 5 points to 4.36¼ cents.

There was only a narrow movement in the French franc, little of the activity of early week being noted. The final for the franc at 3.91 cents, revealed an overnight loss of 1⅛ points. Sterling regained the small fraction which it lost on Thursday, selling up to $4.84 9-16. Swiss and Spanish descriptions were moderately strong, but the Scandinavians and Holland exchanges quietly irregular.

Brazilian milreis sustained another new low for the year at 11.56 cents, a drop of ⅛ cent from Thursday. Traders attributed the weakness to the lack of definiteness about the announcement for stabilization, the selling coming principally from the Continent. Other Latins with the Easterns were unchanged.

ASSAILS MEDIATORS' RAIL WAGE AWARD

Railway Age Charges Failure of Duty in Withholding Reason for the Decision.

SEES ROADS EMBARRASSED

Declares Large Claims Will Be Pressed as Result of 7½% Wage Advance.

Charges that the neutral arbitrators appointed by the National Board of Mediation to settle the wage demands by railroad conductors and trainmen "failed to perform a manifest duty when they abstained from fully and definitely setting forth the reasons for their decision," which awarded a 7½ per cent. advance in wages to the employes, are made in the current number of The Railway Age, issued today.

"The student of economics, and especially of railway and labor matters," says an editorial in the magazine, "would like to know why the two arbitrators voted for such an unexpectedly large advance.

"No railway officer expected the wage advance awarded to be so large. The engine and train service employes secured an advance of 5 per cent. throughout the country in 1924. The advance now awarded will make the wages of conductors and trainmen of the Eastern railroads even higher than the previous maximum of wages awarded them by the Railroad Labor Board in 1920. The cost of living is much lower now than it was then. Even within the last year commodity prices have declined considerably.

"The arbitrators in this case have rendered an award which will greatly embarrass the railways by causing claims for large advances in wages to be pressed upon them, but owing to their silence regarding their reasons they have contributed nothing toward the solution of the problem of how the benefits of increasing traffic and operating efficiency should be divided among railway employes, railway investors and railway patrons."

NATION'S BIG LEAD IN INSURANCE TOLD

AUTO DEATHS DISTURBING

Surpass in Two Years Number of Our Soldiers Killed in War—75% Due to Law Breaking.

America leads the world in life insurance by so large a margin that comparative figures read yesterday by Fred A. Howland, President of the National Life Insurance Company of Vermont, sounded almost unbelievable to the members of the Association of Life Insurance Presidents, gathered in annual convention at the Hotel Astor.

Mr. Howland spoke at the closing session of the convention, as did Henry S. Nollen, President of the Equitable Life Insurance Co. of Iowa, who brought out that there has been a marked increase in the number of deaths from heart troubles, a decrease in the deaths from tuberculosis and influenza, and a steady gain in the number of deaths from automobile accidents, which is giving the life insurance men grave concern.

Reply to Critics Abroad.

Mr. Howland took occasion to answer criticism that has been made of this country abroad. He said:

"Just now, however, the United States is again in disfavor abroad because of our sordid devotion to things material. We are criticized as lacking in idealism and cultural aims and as wholly absorbed in the making of money.

"Strangely enough, the very industrial development which in part stimulates this criticism is attributed in large part by foreign investigators to the cordial relations between labor and capital and a recognition of the human element in industry and of the rights of the wage-earner peculiar to our country and altogether new.

"Forgotten, apparently, are the millions annually donated here to hospitals, to charities, to the arts, to education and to other altruistic purposes on a scale not remotely approached in any other day or place. Overlooked is our high standard of living for the laborer, warranted not merely by a living wage, but by what has been said to be fast approaching a cultural wage. Our critics forget that higher education in generously supported State institutions and by privately endowed universities and colleges affords opportunity for young men and women in such measure and is embraced by them in such numbers as to admit of no comparison elsewhere.

"But, to my mind, the place that life insurance holds in the economic development of America furnishes one of its most definite claims to enlightened altruism.

Compares Insurance Totals.

Mr. Howland then said that comparative figures for this and other countries had never before been gathered, and that it was with great difficulty they had been gotten together.

"Assembling all our data," he continued, "we are able to estimate with confidence that at the close of 1924 there was life insurance outstanding in the entire world approximating $90,000,000,000. Of this amount, $63,800,000,000, over two-thirds, was held by United States companies and $3,300,000,000, over one-thirtieth, by Canadian companies. The companies of these two American countries together held life insurance amounting to more than $67,000,000,000 or almost three-fourths of the entire life insurance of the world. Companies of the United Kingdom had policies aggregating $9,500,000,000, over one-tenth of the world's amount, while those of Australia and New Zealand, including Government insurance, amounted to $1,800,000,000, 2 per cent. of the whole.

"Combining the companies of these English-speaking nations, there is found over $78,000,000,000 of life insurance protection which was more than five-sixths of all life insurance in force in the world. Japanese companies had on their books an equivalent of $2,400,000,000. Those of the Netherlands had $961,000,000 and of Sweden over $860,000,000. The French and German companies each had over $700,000,000 while those of Switzerland, Denmark and Norway each had nearly $400,000,000. Italian companies, including the government insurance, carried $337,000,000."

Auto Fatalities Cited.

Mr. Nollen's paper dealt with the lessons to be drawn from the vital statistics. He deplored the growth of deaths from automobile accidents, which, as a cause, is parallel with suicide. He said on the point:

"A more dramatically apparent need for personal initiative lies in a reduction of automobile accidents and fatalities. While safety devices and improved industrial conditions have reduced fatalities from accidents in general, what a discreditable record to contemplate that automobile victims have been steadily increasing. More deaths have been caused by the automobile within the period of the last two years in the United States than occurred in action on the battlefront in the great war, among the American troops.

"The steadily rising rate of fatalities caused by motor vehicles has brought them to a point this year when they are more than four times the number of deaths caused by typhoid fever, which has been a matter of general concern for many years. Automobile fatalities are approximately one-fifth of those caused by tuberculosis within the current year; and about two-thirds of the volume of deaths due to influenza. Analysis of statistics of New York State shows that 77 per cent. of automobile accidents occurred in clear weather and over 50 per cent. on straight, level roads. Congested districts, of necessity, compel some degree of mutual adjustment of wills. Out in the wide, open spaces, each selfish impulse finds free play."

"The Safety Council report for 1925 shows that three-fourths of automobile accidents were caused by violation of law and rules of the road. Disregard of right of way, speed and failing to signal are leading offenses. Evidently, law does not work reform. Fatalities result from surrender of control by the driver to the demons of speed and carelessness. Manifestly, the remedy lies wholly in arousing a sense of moral and social responsibility in every individual—pedestrian as well as driver.

"Humanity cannot enjoy the fruits of civilization without paying the price of its increasing complex conditions. That price is subjection of anarchic impulse; its alternative is the penalty of destruction."

M. Albert Linton, Vice President of the Provident Mutual Insurance Company of Philadelphia told of the growth of life insurance in this country in the last twenty years. After asserting that all records will be broken this year, he said that the new life insurance will amount to $15,000,000,000, an increase of $900,000,000 over last year's record-breaking production, and eight times the annual amount purchased twenty years ago.

Half of People Protected.

"The lives of one-half the population are now protected by life insurance to the extent of $80,000,000,000, whereas twenty years ago only one-sixth of the population was so protected with $13,700,000,000," said Mr. Linton. "There are today 58,000,000 life insurance policyholders in the United States, holding 108,000,000 policies. The American people are now putting 3.10 per cent. of their income into life insurance, as compared with 2.09 per cent. twenty years ago."

John W. O'Leary, President of the United States Chamber of Commerce, spoke at the morning session of the great advantages of cooperation in business. Touching on distribution, he said:

"The value of advertising has only been recognized in comparatively recent times. Advertising has been a great boon to sales, but in addition it has rendered a useful function in educating consumers. As purchasers become more educated, the more intelligent and greater will be their demands. Business will profit from this as it will tend toward commercial thrift."

The other speakers at the sessions were Sir Robert A. Falconer, President of the University of Toronto, and Julian Price, President of the Jefferson Standard Life Insurance Company of Greensboro, N. C.

AETNA RECEIVERSHIP ENDED AT LAST

One Hundred Lawyers Engaged in Suits in Last Fifteen Years Are Dead.

HARTFORD, Conn., Dec. 10 (AP).—A hundred lawyers who no longer make pleas before an earthly Court had a part in litigation over the Aetna Indemnity Company's receivership, which was finally terminated by Court order today.

The company was thrown into a receivership because of financial troubles in January, 1911, and suits were begun against it by clients all over the country. The Aetna was the first surety company of Baltimore, the People's Surety Company of New York and the Illinois Surety Company of Chicago followed it within three months.

The final order signed by Judge L. J. Nickerson today discharged J. Birney Tuttle as receiver, whose record shows that a hundred lawyers who contested claims before him are dead. There is not a Judge on the Connecticut Superior Court Bench now who was there when the first suit against the company was tried. There are only two Judges remaining in the State higher courts who had anything to do with the case besides Judge Nickerson and one is the present Chief Justice G. W. Wheeler.

Claims filed against the Aetna Indemnity Company amounted to $1,600,000, but they were reduced by $1,000,000 after Court battles. The receivership paid 51 per cent. on the $600,000 of the allowed claims.

During the receivership 790 orders were passed, the final judgment discharging Receiver Tuttle being the 791st order.

Organized in Hartford by Aetna life Insurance interests, the Aetna Indemnity Company had as its first President the late Robert A. Griffing, who died last month. The late President, Morgan G. Bulkeley of the Aetna Life, turned the Indemnity Company over to the J. P. Morgan interests and its offices were moved to New York.

It then passed into the control of Otton Heinze, and from him to one Rabinowitz, who, after a plunge into frenzied finance under the name of Robin, was sent to Blackwell's Island.

The first receiver was State Insurance Commissioner T. H. MacDonald, who died in 1914, and Mr. Tuttle, his attorney, succeeded him.

TREASURY OFFERING IS OVERSUBSCRIBED

Issue of $200,000,000 in Certificates Brings Bids of $1,096,000,000.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10 (AP).—The Treasury announced tonight the oversubscription by more than five times the $200,000,000 offering of nine months' 3¼ per cent. Treasury certificates of indebtedness. The issue, which was to meet the December quarterly financing announced only last Tuesday, brought approximately $1,096,000,000.

Tax receipts for December and balances on hand, in Secretary Mellon's opinion, will be sufficient, with the latest offering, to meet the retirement on Dec. 15 of about $450,000,000 in maturing certificates and also cover the Government's cash requirements until the March quarter. The 3¼ per cent. certificates mature Sept. 15.

Holders of Treasury certificates maturing next Wednesday were permitted to subscribe to the new issue to the extent of 50 per cent. of their holdings of the maturing certificates, and of these exchange subscriptions about $103,888,000 was received and will be allotted.

CHASE NATIONAL'S CLAIM.

Bank Creditor of Hamilton Manufacturing Co. for $853,112.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., Dec. 10.—The Chase National Bank of New York, with a claim of $835,819 and interest of $17,293, is one of the largest creditors of the Hamilton Manufacturing Company of Lowell, it appears in a report filed today in the Superior Court by Charles F. Rowley, a co-receiver of the company. The total of claims is $1,756,929, with interest of $39,870, making a grand total of $1,796,799.

Among the claims, all of which are on notes, are $735,519 with interest of $14,096, made by the Old Colony Trust Company, and $53,260 made by John P. Wright as trustee for Arthur R. Sharp, former treasurer.

Fageol Motors Earns $69,455.

Net income of the Fageol Motors Company for the third quarter of 1926 was $69,455, after interest and other charges, which is equal, after preferred dividends, to 27 cents a share earned on 200,000 common shares. For the nine months to Sept. 30 the net income was $177,244, or 67 cents a share on the common.

Tire Prices Cut in England.

Reductions in automobile tire prices were announced yesterday by the Dunlop and other leading companies in England. The cuts range from 10 to 20 per cent. This was the third reduction this year. The previous cuts were in April, 10 per cent, and in October, 15 to 20 per cent.

BANK SHARES LEAD IN COUNTER TRADING

Equitable Trust Active Due to Rumors of Merger and $20,000,000 Bond Issue.

UTILITIES REMAIN QUIET

Several Insurance Stocks Show Activity With General Trend of Prices Upward.

The bank shares, after several quiet days, again forged into first position on the over-the-counter market yesterday. Equitable Trust was the most active, its market behavior being generally ascribed to merger rumors and talk of a $20,000,000 bond issue to finance its new building. First National, Chase National, National City, United States Trust, Central Union Trust, and American Exchange-Irving Trust followed Equitable's lead, each scoring gains of several points or more.

Draper Corporation, Merck & Co. preferred, Borden, and Crocker & Wheeler preferred were the features of the industrials group, each of them rising 2 points on the day. Cellulose Products units moved up a point. International Silver continued strong, and good accounts were rendered by Troy Laundry Machine, Columbia Phonograph and Johns-Manville.

Utilities were quiet but steady within a narrow price range, and Mississippi Power & Light was the only gainer, moving up a point for the day. Several insurance stocks came in for action, and the general trend of prices tended upward. Considerable interest was apparent in the chain stores group, although this was confined to demand, and there were few if any price changes. The remainder of the market was quiet throughout the session.

[illegible]GES AN INCREASE IN FEDERAL BANKING

[illegible] of the Currency [illegible] Passage of Bill to [illegible] Shift to State Control.

[illegible] CALAMITY IN DELAY

[illegible] Annual Report States That [illegible] Changes Are Due to National Restrictions.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—Asserting [illegible] national banks now hold only 46 [illegible] cent. of the total commercial re[illegible] of the United States and that [illegible] steps are necessary to place [illegible] banks on equality competitively [illegible] commercial banking institutions [illegible] under State charters, if the [illegible] system is to regain the as[illegible], Controller John W. McIn[illegible] his annual report made public [illegible], pleaded with Congress to pass [illegible] McFadden branch banking bill at [illegible] present session.

A comparison even more unfavorable [illegible] position of the national banking [illegible] was reached, the Controller [illegible] the aggregate resources of [illegible] saving banks were included in [illegible] the computation with those of [illegible] commercial banks not members of [illegible] national system.

As compared with the combined re[illegible] of all State banks, commercial [illegible] savings, he said, the national [illegible] now hold only about 39 per cent. of the banking resources of the nation.

[illegible] House Bill Enactment.

After reviewing the situation at some length, he added:

"The above statements of facts show [illegible] the Federal Government is gradu[illegible] losing its positive and immediate [illegible] over the instrumentalities of [illegible] credit and over the mem[illegible] in the Federal Reserve System. The greater volume of commercial banking has already passed under the [illegible] control of the State Legisla[illegible]. The enactment of the legisla[illegible] now embodied in House Resolution [illegible] would be a step in the direction of the [illegible] of the system of national banks."

That the situation is considered very [illegible] by the Administration is ob[illegible], for President Coolidge in his message urged Congress to pass legis[illegible] placing the national banks on an equality with State banks, and an even more forceful recommendation to [illegible] was made by Secretary Mellon in his annual report.

The statements by Mr. McIntosh gave no details on which the fears of the Government for the serious awakening of the position of the national banking [illegible] were founded.

Action by Congress has been held up by what is known as the Hull amend[illegible] to the McFadden bill, which would deny both to national and to State banks, members of the Federal Reserve System, the future right to have home city branches in any of the twenty-six non-branch banking States which may hereafter permit home city branch banking.

[illegible] Banking System Endangered.

Mr. McIntosh declared that he would consider it no less than a calamity [illegible] banking system" if action was [illegible] because of this fight, and [illegible] with Secretary Mellon in oppo[illegible] the amendment.

"It is regretted," he added, "that I [illegible] now report that from Oct. 17, [illegible] to Oct. 1, 1926, eighty-seven na[illegible] banks went into the State sys[illegible] with aggregate resources of about [illegible]. During the same period [illegible] State banks nationalized, with aggregate resources of about [illegible].

"The steady decline in the relative strength of the national banking sys[illegible] is accounted for by the more rapid growth of commercial banking under [illegible] charter, the total resources of [illegible] commercial banks being at the present time about $29,000,000,000."

Despite the desertions the total re[illegible] of 7,[illegible] national banks on June [illegible] were $25,315,[illegible],000, compared with resources of 8,072 national banks, amounting to $24,350,863,000 on June [illegible], an increase for the fiscal year of $[illegible].

ZINC STOCKS DECREASE.

[illegible] Short Tons Now on Hand—Record Shipment in November.

Stocks of zinc in the hands of American producers on Dec. 1, 1926, totaled [illegible] short tons, as compared with [illegible] tons on Nov. 1 and with 15,600 tons on Oct. 1. Shipments in November aggregated 56,490 tons, the second highest peace-time figure in history, as against 54,769 tons in October and [illegible] tons in August, the peace-time high. For the first eleven months shipments reached 576,463 tons, a monthly average of 52,405, as against a monthly average of 50,237 for the entire year 1925.

Export shipments in November were [illegible] tons, against 4,100 in October; domestic shipments totaled 53,319, against 50,609 in October, the former figure marking the highest monthly domestic shipments in history. Production in November totaled 55,062 tons, against 54,979 in October, while for the eleven months to Nov. 30 the output aggregated 581,649 tons, a monthly average of 52,877 tons, against a monthly average of 49,244 for the full year 1925.

DOME MINES DIRECTOR DIES.

W. S. Edwards Had Been President and in Prospecting Syndicate.

Directors of Dome Mines, Ltd., were informed at the regular quarterly meeting yesterday of the death in Toronto, Ontario, yesterday morning of W. S. Edwards, a director. Mr. Edwards was one of the prospecting syndicate which located Dome Mines in [illegible] and was the first President of the company.

The regular quarterly dividend of 50 cents was announced at the meeting. The directors said that "in view of the improved drilling returns it has been decided to pay the regular dividend, but it is resolved that at the next general stockholders' meeting it will be proposed that future dividends be paid only as warranted by earnings, so that the assurance fund may be conserved for emergencies."

DRY GOODS SALES FAIR.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Dec. 10.—Marshall Field & Co., in their weekly review of the wholesale dry goods trade, say:

"Current wholesale distribution of dry goods was ahead of last week's volume and exceeded that of the same week a year ago. Road sales were less than a week ago and did not quite maintain the figure of the corresponding week last year. There were fewer customers in market than during the same week in 1925. Collections were not quite as good as for the corresponding period last year."

MORE BUSINESS DONE IN WEEK'S WOOL MARKET

Home Trade Not Yet Active, but Foreign Business Is Favorable.

BOSTON, Dec. 10 (AP).—The Commercial Bulletin will say tomorrow:

"The domestic wool market is more buoyant this week and prices are stronger, especially for territory wools of the finer qualities. There has been more business done, although the market is not especially active. Manufacturers are busy, however, on old contracts, particularly on worsted lines, and a fair repeat business is reported.

"The foreign markets have continued generally strong, Australia being notably so, while the Cape and New Zealand have been firm, and South American markets appear to have reached the bottom. London is closing somewhat irregular, due largely to the selection. All together, the foreign markets are showing continued strength.

"There is little change at country points, the sale in Portland, Ore., this week, being substantially on a parity with Boston."

Poor Results at London Sale.

LONDON, Dec. 10 (AP).—At the closing wool sale of the series 7,774 bales were offered, of which 6,000 were sold. There was a poor selection which was slow of sale, with prices generally in buyers' favor.

The auctions closed weak. Compared with the close of the previous sales, fine merinos were 5 per cent., medium 7½, inferiors 10 to 15; crossbreds, par to 5; medium and coarse 5, inferior 7½, slips 5, Puntas and Falkland par to 5 per cent. lower. Capes were quoted 5 to 7½ per cent. lower, but the bulk was bought in.

The home trade bought 44,000, the Continent 48,000 and America 1,000 bales, while a total of 40,500 bales was held over.

Columbia Graphaphone Exchange.

Announcement was made yesterday that J. P. Morgan & Co. will receive deposits of Columbia Phonograph Company, Inc., stock in accordance with a plan whereby four shares of ordinary 10-shilling shares of Columbia Graphaphone Company, Ltd., or $45 a share, will be paid for Columbia Phonograph stock until the close of business on Dec. 18.

FOUR LARGE CONCERNS PAY EXTRA DIVIDENDS

Westinghouse Air Brake, Pratt & Whitney, Warren Bros. and the Singer Company.

Extra dividends were declared yesterday by four widely known corporations. A back payment was made on an accumulation of dividends and in only one case, that of the Chandler-Cleveland Motors Corporation, was there a reduction in the current rate.

The Westinghouse Air Brake Company declared an extra dividend of $1 per share, in addition to the regular quarterly of $1.75. This will bring the total payments for 1926 to $10.50 per share, as compared with $6 per share in 1925.

The Singer Manufacturing Company declared an extra dividend of $1.50 per share as well as the usual quarterly of $2.50.

Pratt & Whitney cleaned up all back dividends on the preferred by declaring a dividend of 4½ per cent. on that stock. This represented 1½ per cent. for the quarter and 3 per cent. on accumulated dividends.

Warren Brothers declared an extra dividend of $1 per share on the common, besides the regular dividend of $1 on that stock. The Torrington Company authorized the payment of a 5 per cent. extra dividend and the regular quarterly disbursement of 3 per cent.

The only unfavorable note in the day's announcements was of the Chandler-Cleveland Motors Corporation, which reduced the dividend rate on the preferred stock by declaring a quarterly dividend of 62½ cents, instead of $1, which has been paid since the old rate was inaugurated on April 1. The stock is entitled to a $4 non-cumulative dividend annually before payment of dividends on the common.

Fred C. Chandler, President said: "The action of the board regarding the dividend is in line with the conservative policy pursued by the Chandler Company since its inception fourteen years ago. At no time in our history has our position in the industry been stronger. We have no bonds or bank loans and own our plant free of all encumbrances, and our cash position is strong and substantial. Our new models are meeting with widespread public approval both at home and abroad, and in the last analysis this indicates that 1927 will be a big Chandler year."

CONTIENTAL BAKING PAYS.

Quarterly of 2% on Preferred and $2 on Class A Common.

Uncertainty as to the dividend plans of the Continental Baking Corporation was removed yesterday when the directors ordered the regular quarterly disbursements of 2 per cent. on the preferred stock, and $2 a share on the Class A common. Both dividends are payable Jan. 1 to stockholders of record Dec. 20.

Five new directors have been added to the board, it was announced. They are Will H. Hays, William C. Potter, President of the Guaranty Trust Company; Robert L. Clarkson, Vice Chairman of the Board of the Chase National Bank, and James N. Jarvie, all of New York, and Elliott C. McDougal of Buffalo.

COTTON PRICES HOLD IN NARROW MARGINS

Weakness at Liverpool Causes Early Selling, but Steadiness Develops Later.

QUIET TRADING DEVELOPS

After an early setback of a few points, cotton prices held within narrow limits yesterday and under a diminished volume of business ended at a loss of 4 to 9 points. Weakness in Liverpool, where near positions declined to within a few points of low levels of the year, caused some selling on the opening, but limited Southern hedging pressure characterized the balance of the session. Daily price-fixing operations for trade account absorbed contracts and developed a steady though extremely quiet market at slightly lower levels than closing prices of Thursday.

The course of trading reflected a decided change when compared with events of last week. Throughout a steady downward movement of about one cent a pound on unusually large transactions, prices failed to rally 5 points over a period of six consecutive days until reaching low records at the opening Saturday. Since then prices have fluctuated nervously on comparatively light trading attended with a falling off in Southern business. This is in part attributed to the smaller daily spot sales in Southern markets, where less cotton has changed hands than before this season. Dealers report a demand mainly for better grades, which are less easy to buy, though low grades are available in quantity at extremely low prices.

The local contract stock has increased to 86,000 bales and the stock in licensed warehouses exceeds 100,000 for the first time since July, 1925. Cotton has been coming to New York for delivery on December contracts, which continued to command a premium of 30 points or more over the January position. Interests having hedges in January are transferring to later months prior to first notice day on the 27th inst.

Week-end figures showed a further sharp increase in the visible supply, which increased 226,000 bales, compared with 108,000 last year, bringing the total world's supply of American cotton to 6,891,000, as against 5,267,000 a year ago. The previous high record was attained in March, 1915, with figures of 5,883,000.

PRICES MOVE UPWARD ON THE CURB MARKET

The optimistic views of Secretary of the Treasury Mellon as to the future prosperity of the country were reflected in the trading in the Curb Market yesterday, when higher prices were the order of the day. There was profit-taking from time to time, but all offerings were absorbed easily.

Utilities were irregular the greater part of the session, but toward the close prices stiffened. Industrials were more active and generally steady, with many individual stocks being forced upward for substantial advances, notably F. W. Woolworth, when issued, which made a new top. Oils were steady or fractionally higher, most of the activity again occurring in the South American issues.

Among domestic bonds the utilities were higher. The remainder of the list, including the foreign group, moved irregularly.

WHEAT IS BEARISH, CLOSES AT A LOSS

Sentiment and News Make for a Decline, December Leading the Way Down.

RUSSIA IN EXPORT TRADE

Corn Rallies, but at the Last Goes Off—Rye Lower in Sympathy With Corn.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Dec. 10.—Bearish sentiment predominated in the wheat trade, and with the news favoring that side a decline of around 2 cents from Thursday's finish was easily attained, with the close at net losses of 1⅛ to 1⅝ cents, with December leading. Locals were good sellers at times, while support came largely from shorts and on buying against bids. Russian exports of 2,472,000 bushels were taken as indicating that that country would cut quite a figure in the world's export trade this season, while Broomhall's Argentine agent raised his estimate on the exportable surplus to 157,000,000 bushels, or 7,000,000 bushels above his previous figures.

Liverpool was 1 to 1¼ pence lower, and Winnipeg was heavy, closing 1⅜ to 1⅝ cents lower, with December there 8¼ cents under Chicago. Buenos Aires lost ½ cent for the day, with weather fine in all sections, although rain was forecast for over the week-end. Local spot basis was unchanged to 2 cents lower, with red Winter showing the decline. Local traders were decidedly bearish on wheat after the close.

Foreign demand for cash wheat has been materially in excess of the quantities given out as sold by the seaboard, one interest there alone disposing of around 4,000,000 bushels Manitobas recently, in addition to which there have been sales by others. A comparison of the actual clearances with the estimates of sales would indicate that the greater part of the grain sold is not being given out. Today's business was finally placed at 500,000 to 600,000 bushels.

Primary arrivals of wheat today were 763,000; week ago, 771,000; last year, 1,330,000. Shipments were 494,000; week ago, 899,000; last year, [illegible].

Local and outside longs were sellers of corn futures, with some stop-loss orders caught on the way down, but trade broadened, and with scattered commission house buying and support from holders of bids a good rally from the inside figure was easily attained, and the finish was at net losses of only ⅜ to ⅝ cent. Country offerings remain small, but the movement of new grain is steadily increasing, and about 75 per cent. of the day's arrivals of 149 cars were from the new crop. Included was a car of new No. 2 white from Kentucky.

WHEAT FUTURES WEAK HERE.

Market Closes 1 Cent to 1¼ Cents Lower After Active Day's Selling.

A more active, but weaker market ruled in wheat futures on the New York Produce Exchange yesterday. Prices declined over the day 1¼ cents to 1⅝ cents a bushel, due to general pressure resulting from weak cables and poor support. Of considerable influence also was the weakness at Chicago.

Large Russian shipments for the week, with raising of the Argentine surplus estimate to 157,000,000 bushels also contributed to the downturn. Reports of good business for export toward the last, however, brought about a slight rally, and prices closed 1 cent to 1¼ cents net lower.

FOR FREE PULP AND PAPER.

New Brunswick Excepts Newsprint, Royal Commission Reports.

OTTAWA, Ont., Dec. 10 (AP).—The Royal Commission on Maritime Claims today called attention of the House of Commons to public opinion in the Province of New Brunswick favoring the free entry to the United States of pulp and paper, with the exception of newsprint.

The commission, headed by Sir Andrew Duncan of London, pointed out that witnesses from the Province attested that a general trade treaty with the United States covering forest products, would greatly benefit the industry.

Attention was also drawn to the request of Canadian fishermen for free entry to the United States of fresh fish and the lowering of the duties on "manufactured" fish.

The report made several definite recommendations for the Eastern Maritime Provinces, among them, preferential freight rates, payments of money grants from the Dominion to the Maritime Provinces approximating $1,400,000, bonuses for steel manufacturing, establishment of coking plants to encourage the use of Nova Scotia coal, and the appointment of a Deputy Minister of the Dominion Government to deal entirely with fisheries.

RUBBER FUTURES ADVANCE.

20 to 40 Point Rise at Close, With 220 Contracts Turned Over.

With a good display of strength in the final half of the session, crude rubber futures advanced yesterday to levels 20 to 40 points higher than Thursday's closing. While the market was for a time in the hands of the trading element, and some short covering was in evidence, the closing inquiry of manufacturers imparted an improved tone and higher level in the afternoon. Business was moderate, 220 contracts in seven positions.

London opened higher, eased off in the early afternoon and then came strong at the close with all positions unchanged on the day. Range of prices for the deliveries traded in on the local exchange follow:

THE WEEK'S PRICE TREND.

Although there were more changes in Dun's list of wholesale commodities prices this week than last, and the declines again exceeded the advances, the margin between the two in the current list is smaller than that of last week. Then, in sixty-six revisions, there were thirty-seven declines, while this week thirty-eight of the seventy-one revisions were downward. Despite the general trend of the list, the changes in the foodstuffs favored the advances, numerically, by nearly two to one.

The following table gives the minimum wholesale prices quoted on selected standard commodities. They are corrected to yesterday, and with them are given comparative prices for last week and the corresponding week a year ago:

Changes in the provisions were fewer than usual, but all of them were downward. None of the listed grades of flour showed change, despite the rise in wheat. Middle Western lard was lower here, but hams and bacon showed no change. At Chicago there were no advances, the only changes being declines in live sheep and live hogs.

Further decline in eggs, resulting from large receipts in this market during the week, featured the week in the dairy products. Near-by fancy eggs dropped 4 cents a dozen, a total decline of 17 cents in the last two weeks, while prime fresh-gathered eggs fell off 5 cents. The only other decline in dairy products was in fresh special cheese, which dropped half a cent. Special held cheese advanced that much, and there was a rise of a cent a pound in extra creamery butter. The last-named continues to be the only dairy item that is higher than last year.

A decline of 50 cents a barrel in fancy apples and a rise in choice dried apricots of the current crop were the only changes in the listed fresh and dried fruits. In the vegetables, yellow split peas were higher, and advances were also seen in cabbage, onions, potatoes and turnips. Despite their rise of 25 cents a barrel, potatoes are still $1.50 under the corresponding level of 1925.

Both No. 7 Rio and No. 4 Santos coffees were lower this week, but there was no accompanying change in teas. Fine granulated sugar went up, as did 96-test raw sugar. Extra fancy molasses advanced. Cloves and black and red peppers were lower in the spice list, with the advances seen in white pepper and Cochin ginger.

Advances in wheat, corn, oats, rye and malting barley occurred in the grain list. Advances in the hides took place in No. 1 buffs and No. 1 extremes, with the only decline indicated in No. 1 calfskins. Leathers were quotably unchanged. Tallow was higher.

The only revision in the listed building materials was a break in No. 1 clear cedar shingles. The lumber list showed advances in basswood and pine "roofers" and declines in No. 1 rough hemlock, birch, chestnut and rough common fir. A rise in copper was the only advance in metals, the declines being shown by antimony, zinc and tin. Both foundry and furnace coke, for prompt shipment, were cheaper.

Of the thirteen changes in the drugs, chemicals, dyestuffs and oils, seven were upward, including a rise of 25 cents a pound in menthol. The only changes in the naval stores were declines in turpentine and resin. Brazilian crude and Eastern rubber declined. The paint list showed declines in dry white lead in oil, American zinc and F. P. R. S. zinc. Other changes included declines in Japanese raw silk and wool and a rise in hops.

In the textiles there was further easing off in several constructions of unfinished cottons and a repricing of one of the leading lines of tickings. Eastern and Southern Spring gingham prices were reaffirmed until April 1. In the burlaps the strength of spot heavyweight and the further weakness in spot lightweight goods were the only features.

SCOUTS RESTRICTION OF CUBA SUGAR CROP

Policy Attributed to Machado Would Be a Failure, Says James H. Post.

The policy of permanent regulation of the Cuban sugar cane crop, indicated in a speech by President Machado of Cuba received here Thursday, would be a failure, it was said yesterday by James H. Post, President of the National Sugar Refining Company, Chairman of the Cuban-American Sugar Company, and an executive of other sugar enterprises.

"It would mean only that the rest of the world would produce and sell so much more sugar," Mr. Post said, "because the consumption of that commodity is increasing about 5 per cent. every year. If Cuba cuts production, the rest of the sugar growing world will be the gainer."

Commenting on President Machado's decision to restrict the coming crop to 4,500,000 tons, Mr. Post said:

"Practically no stocks of sugar are being carried over into the new crop year by refiners. Stocks in the hands of refiners and grocers are small. The old-fashioned housekeeper used to buy sugar by the barrel. Now we buy sugar by the pound. Five pounds is perhaps the average amount of sugar an individual family will carry at any one time. We believe that a crop of 5,000,000 tons of Cuban sugar would not be too large."

Mr. Post said that international action on sugar reduction was impossible. In some quarters of the sugar trade, President Machado's decision to call an international conference on sugar at Havana was interpreted to mean that he would propose international restriction.

GRAIN MEN FACE BIG FINE.

Kellogg Conviction Makes Shippers Liable to $720,000 Penalty.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Dec. 10 (AP).—Richard E. Templeton, Federal Attorney, said today that the conviction of Spencer Kellogg & Sons, Inc., local grain elevator interests, yesterday under the Elkins act placed the Government in a position to assess fines totaling $720,000 against grain shippers in many cities.

A jury found Spencer Kellogg & Sons, Inc. guilty of eleven out of twelve counts in giving rebates and making concessions to shippers who favored their elevators in the Buffalo harbor. The company is liable to a maximum fine of $220,000 and shippers liable to a total of $500,000. Sentence has been deferred pending arguments of counsel next week.

The largest shipping interests affected are in New York, Baltimore, Chicago, Philadelphia and Boston.

Mr. Templeton asserted that the verdict affects the entire grain trade in that it assures certain fixed rates for all concerned. He said the verdict will discourage and prevent discrimination by elevators against some shippers to the benefit of others.

INDIAN WEDS AGED POETESS.

Ojibway Chief in Air Service, 40, Takes Bride of 70.

WILMINGTON, Del., Dec. 10 (AP).—A romance between a 70-year-old poetess and an Ojibway Indian chief, aged 40, culminated in the marriage here on Nov. 27 of Mrs. Mary C. Robbins and Charles V. Williams, graduate of Carlisle Indian School and now in the Army Air Service, it became known today. The Rev. John N. Dougherty, Rector of St. Thomas's Catholic Church, officiated.

Williams is stationed at Langley Field, Virginia, where it is understood the couple will live.

Left $48,000 to Public Charities.

HARTFORD, Conn., Dec. 10 (AP).—The will of Thomas F. Garvan, a former Hartford water and fire Commissioner and a Director and Vice President of P. Garvan, Inc., filed here for probate, directs public bequests of $48,000. The will also provides that substantially one-half of the income from the holdings of the testator in P. Garvan, Inc., is to be divided equally between St. Francis' Hospital and St. Agnes' Home, both of Hartford.

Fire Razes Gale Stalker's Factory.

CORNING, N. Y., Dec. 10 (AP).—Fire of mysterious origin leveled the two main buildings of the H. Sheldon Manufacturing Company in Elkland, Pa., today, causing a loss of over $100,000. Representative Gale H. Stalker of Elmira and his brother, O. C. Stalker of Elkland, owned the plant. The company manufactured hard wood floorings, flag sticks and poles and other products.

Rules on Lead Content in Paint.

The order of the Federal Trade Commission directing Louis Leavitt to cease using the terms "Gold Seal Combination White Lead" and "Combination White Lead" on products containing less than fifty per cent by weight of sulphate or carbonate of lead, was upheld yesterday by the Circuit Court of Appeals. Leavitt is a manufacturer of paints, varnishes and combination leads.

BUSINESS WORLD

COMMERCIAL PAPER.

Yesterday—4¼ per cent. for the best names. Thursday—4¼ per cent. for the best names. The quotations are for six months' paper.

Favor Small Textile Designs.

Smaller designs in multi-colored effects are favored here in Spring lines of printed silk and cotton goods. Among the fabrics liked by early buyers are printed Celanese voiles, as well as sport fabrics in high shades made all of Celanese or of Celanese mixtures. Rayon alpacas with embroidered dots or small woven patterns are expected to sell very well in the high shades. Prices on these lines of wash goods are approximately 20 per cent. under those current on similar types of fabrics for the Spring season of 1926.

Gray Goods Continue Dull.

Gray goods continued dull here yesterday. A few actual spots of 38½-inch 60-48 printcloths sold at 6⅝ cents and there was also some trading in spot 38½-inch 64-60s at 6⅝ cents. Contracts of the latter for January-March delivery moved at 6⅝ cents. Sheeting business was also small. In the sales were spot 37-inch 48-square, four-yard goods at 6⅝ cents and 36-inch 5.50s at 5⅝ cents. Near-by sales of 37-inch 3.95-yard and 37-inch 2.75-yard drills were made at 7½ and 10¼ cents, respectively. Fine-yarn goods were without feature, but in the few sales of the specialties reported were Eastern spot 37½-inch 4.37-yard sateens at 11½ cents.

Spring Hats to Be Colorful.

Spring neckwear and suits will not be the only colorful merchandise, for color will also be a prominent feature of the new lines of men's hats. Hat manufacturers are introducing shades in felts that have hitherto been confined to women's wear. Lavender, for example, will be an outstanding color in one hat line. Fancy hat bands will again be used to offer a harmonizing or contrasting appearance to the solid color of the felt. Only minor changes are being made in the size and shape of the crown. Snapbrim styles are expected to be again popular.

Shawls Are Selling Well.

Fancy shawls for evening wear have been having a particularly good retail turnover and at present are selling briskly for gift purposes. Retailers have been able to buy attractive shawls at prices that enable sale quotations of from $10 to $25, and at these levels consumers have shown much interest in them. Prior to this season the shawls were in the expensive luxury class, few being produced for the popular-priced trade. Most of the shawls are embroidered, vari-colored floral patterns in large effects predominating.

Prints for January Delivery.

Southern stores have been placing orders for printed crepes de chine for January delivery. This is the beginning of a demand that is expected to get increasingly active with the turn of the year. Prints are now regarded as staple and, while there may not be the hectic early activity in them that was the case last year, a good demand is reasonably anticipated. In the orders placed English print effects, small geometric designs and plaid patterns have been selected.

Growing Use of Gift Checks.

Increasing use is being made during this holiday period of gift checks or vouchers issued by stores entitling the recipient to merchandise of the value stated thereon. The gift check finds favor with many consumers, since it solves the problem of what to give by allowing the receiver to select what he or she wants. One of the large department stores here has adopted the idea and is said to be well pleased with the way its customers are taking to it. This store allows the merchandise check to be used at any time, it having no expiration data. It confines the values to $5 and $10 and allows a cash refund up to 10 per cent. of the face value, thus permitting change to be made on an article which costs less than the value of the check.

Ribbons Used in Many Ways.

The use of ribbon in finished merchandise is extensive this season, and the ribbon manufacturers have benefited accordingly. At the present time much of the holiday merchandise of a utility nature is ornamented in some way with ribbon, frequently combined with lace. Garter and shoe tree sets and handkerchief cases are outstanding items which retailers are selling and reordering. Also included are pillow adornments, fancy powder puffs and vanity bags for dances, &c. Staple satin ribbons in bright colors are used for much of this merchandise, but novelty kinds, particularly metallic effects, are also employed.

Spring Gingham Prices Confirmed.

Spring prices on Security 32-inch, Dan River 27-inch and Navarre 26-inch dress ginghams were confirmed in telegrams sent to the trade last night by the Riverside and Dan River Cotton Mills, Inc. The telegrams said that the confirmed prices covered deliveries from December to March inclusive, and that selling terms were, as usual, free on board mill. They added: "These prices represent extremely close bases, and we positively cannot afford to make any reductions. We are anxious to work with our loyal friends as far as possible in merchandising our goods and to stabilize conditions for the Spring season. To accomplish this and enable you to order the goods liberally and serve your trade, we will make an exception to our usual custom and agree to give you stock protection on any unsold goods to April 1 on Spring purchases of the above three lines." A guarantee against declines, effective to April 1, was made on Thursday by the Amoskeag Manufacturing Company on its staple and fancy ginghams.

Record Week in Rubbers.

The second snowstorm of the week, which began Thursday night, resulted in the largest volume of business done on rubber footwear in this market in a single week in the last seven or eight years. Total sales of this merchandise in the metropolitan district alone were estimated at several million dollars yesterday by an executive of one of the largest wholesale houses in the trade. Last Monday's consumer activities resulted in a quick wiping out of retailers' stocks here. These were replenished, only to be nearly wiped out a second time as soon as the goods were received. Another storm today or Sunday, this executive said, would make the local market absolutely bare of the goods, particularly galoshes.

Weather Helped Coal Dealers.

Several days of cold weather and a heavy snowstorm over the week-end brought cheer to the anthracite trade just when it was badly needed, Saward's Journal will say today. Not in years had the wholesale market been in such a state of depression on the first of December as was the case at the beginning of the present month. The line companies were getting requests to suspend shipments, while independent prices were becoming weaker every day. A slightly better demand for soft coal has been noted this week, particularly at tidewater. Prices have not improved, but the weakness would be still more acute if the storm and cold weather had not created a little more buying and slowed down transportation for a few days.

ST. LAWRENCE CANAL ASSAILED AS MENACE

Would Mean "Entangling Alliance," Declares New York Representative.

PREDICTS CONGRESS DEFEAT

Dempsey Asserts All-American Waterway Will Then Receive Favorable Consideration.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—A Suggestion that building the proposed St. Lawrence Waterway in cooperation with Canada would create an "entangling alliance" that might seriously embarrass the United States in the future was made today by Representative Dempsey of New York, Chairman of the House Committee on Rivers and Harbors and sponsor of an All-American Canal from the Great Lakes to the Hudson. He indicated that the St. Lawrence plan would have the right of way in the House, that it would be beaten and that Congress would then be asked to choose the All-American route.

Mr. Dempsey declared the experience of the United States in operating the Panama Canal during the World War emphasized the care that should be taken in avoiding any "entangling alliance" in the construction of a deep waterway from the lakes eastward to the sea.

"The United States has steadily refused, as often as the proposition has been presented, to involve itself in entangling alliances" said Mr. Dempsey. "It will not be forgotten that although we constructed the Panama Canal, the greatest engineering feat of all time, at our own cost, we felt compelled in the end to concede to Great Britain an equality as to tolls in the use of this waterway. Nor will it be overlooked that all through the early stages of the World War we were constantly faced with embarrassing questions raised by Great Britain regarding our commerce upon the seas.

"A waterway of such vast importance to this nation, as the report of the chief of engineers repeatedly states this waterway connecting the Great Lakes with the sea to be, should not be improved for over a thousand miles through a foreign country or under foreign control. It should be in our own country and under our exclusive control."

WATERWAY TRAFFIC REACHES A RECORD

Report Discloses Tonnage of 483,400,000 in 1925, Valued at $23,946,000,000.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—Traffic on the navigable waterways of the country is increasing and the public is beginning to turn to them to lessen freight costs, Major Gen. Edwin Jadwin stated in his anual report to Congress today.

"Varied opinions are held as to the part played by transportation by water in the economic life of the nation," he said, "but it can be demonstrated to the unprejudiced that the needs of the people are served so greatly by this form of transportation that its value can scarcely be measured in dollars any more than can the benefits of the postal service, the highway system, and numerous other activities of the Government which are maintained for the benefit of the people."

The waterways traffic during 1925 reached a new high total, he said, aggregating 483,400,000 tons, which had a value of $23,946,000. This was 35 per cent. of the tonnage handled by the railroads during the same year. It was nearly 30,000,000 tons in excess of the waterborne tonnage and had a value of nearly $2,000,000 in excess of the tonnage handled in 1924.

Of the total tonnage handled by water in 1925, 104,000,000 tons represented movement of coal, which, the General stated, was "nearly a ton for each man, woman and child in the country. About one-tenth of this tonnage was exported, leaving over 92,000,000 tons for internal and coastwise trades."

The second largest tonnage handled was that of petroleum and its products, 84,100,000.

"This enormous tonnage of a commodity that enters so largely into the domestic life of the people finds its source and destination mainly at our improved harbors," the General said. "The movement of this commodity in tankers with capacity up to 20,000 shotr tons demonstrates that savings are effected to the most humble user of the products of crude oil."

Nearly 62,000,000 tons of iron ore were transported in 1925, largely on the Great Lakes. In this conection General Jadwin pointed out that about $100,000,000 was saved in 1925 by transportation of iron ore and steel on the Great Lakes alone, "ignoring the other benefits accruing from the more generous use of iron and steel made possible by this initial saving."

Other leading commodities transported on American waterways in 1925 were sand and gravel, about 45,000,000 tons; lumber and logs, 34,330,000 tons; grain and flour, 22,300,000 tons; stone, 16,270,000 tons; sugar, molasses and syrup, 11,400,000 tons; fertilizer and ingredients, 5,300,000 tons; manufactured forms of iron and steel, 3,100,000 tons; cotton, 2,635,000 tons; copper ore and unmanufactured forms of metal, 2,849,000 tons, and cement, 2,150,000 tons.

BUYS VALENTINO'S HOME.

New Yorker Pays $145,000—Actor's Autos and Horses Sold.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 10 (AP).—Falcon Lair, home of Rudolph Valentino, the screen actor, was sold at auction today to Jules Howard of New York City for $145,000. An unimproved tract of 6 8-10 acres in Beverly Hills was sold for $21,000.

Valentino's automobiles brought a total of $12,532, an Italian town car going for $7,900 to an oil man.

"Firefly," an Arabian horse ridden by the film actor in "The Son of the Sheik," sold for $1,225 and three other horses were bid in for a total of $2,025.

Another estate, Wedgwood Place, situated on Whitley Heights in Hollywood, remains to be sold.

Next week a yacht, personal effects, furniture, art objects and studio properties will be knocked down to the highest bidders.

4 FIREMEN OVERCOME BY BURNING COTTON

Another Cut by Glass in Worth St. Blaze—Uptown Fire Drives 45 Families to Street.

Four firemen were overcome by smoke and another was cut by broken glass while fighting a fire that started yesterday morning in bales of cotton and waste in the basement of a store at 47-49 Worth Street. The place is occupied by the York Manufacturing Company, cotton converters, and the burning cotton produced dense masses of smoke which compelled the firemen to work in shifts, relieving one another every few minutes.

The firemen who were overcome were Lieutenant Thomas Grogan, Engine Company 7; Lieutenant Joseph Seifring, Engine Company 29; Richard Hall, driver for Deputy Chief John O'Connell; Phillip Silverman, Engine Company 7; and Edward Brauer, Engine Company 7. All were able to return to duty after being attended by ambulance surgeons from Beekman Street and Gouverneur Hospitals.

Several hundred persons on their way to downtown offices and stores gathered to watch the firemen at work, and police reserves from the Beach Street Station were sent to the scene. The fire was confined to the basement and first floor, and as soon as the smoke cleared sufficiently to permit the play of streams of water on the flames it was quickly under control.

Forty-five families fled from their homes when fire started yesterday morning in a six-story apartment house at 510 West 144th Street. Flames burned through the dumb-waiter shaft on the fourth floor and spread through the fourth, fifth and sixth floors to the roof. Reserves from the West 152d Street Station went through the place guiding scores of women and children to the street. Traffic on Amsterdam Avenue was diverted to other thoroughfares and 144th Street for two blocks on each side of the burning building was closed to traffic.

Eighteen horses were burned to death last night when a large wooden stable on the property of the Treasureland Homes Corporation at Cross Island Boulevard and Twenty-ninth Avenue, Bayside, Queens, was destroyed by fire. The animals and stable were owned by Charles Grecco and Joseph Sansoni, contractors.

SAYS TAX HANDICAPS REAL ESTATE DEALERS

Robert Jemison Jr. Tells New Jersey Boards Income Levy Sometimes Stops Business.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Dec. 10.—Robert Jemison Jr. of Birmingham, President of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, told the tenth annual convention of the New Jersey Association of Real Estate Boards today at the Ambassador Hotel that real estate business is handicapped under the present Federal income tax law.

"The operations of the tax system can slow up, and at times entirely stop the flow of our business," said Mr. Jemison. "The present revenue act compels a dealer or operator in real estate to pay income tax on all profits made, while a lawyer, a doctor, or a man in any other calling who buys real estate and sells it at a profit is classified as an investor, and pays a capital gains tax of 12½ per cent. We believe it would be fair for the Government to permit us to report all real estate profits as capital gains and limit the tax to 12½ per cent."

He also took exception to the law compelling the vendor in instalment sales to report as a closed transaction any sales in which 25 per cent. or more of the purchase price, is received in one year, and the classification by the Treasury Department of commissions paid by lessors or lessees to brokers for the negotiation of long-term leases as capital expenditures.

New Jersey lacks the metropolitan character which distinguishes nearly every Eastern State, Saul Cohn, President of the Citizens' National Bank of Newark, told the convention. "Do you realize there is not a single subway in New Jersey?" he asked. "Also that we have no great railroad station in the entire State. These things will come, but why not make them come in your lifetime, so that you, as realtors, may benefit by them?"

Realtors were urged not to rush pellmell into the subdivision development unless they were sincerely planning to carry out a complete program of development, by Herbert L. Close of Newark. "It is an injustice to other realtors, who anticipate putting in all improvements, for the 'land shark' to go out and chop off land into little lots, sell them and forget all about them."

"FOR those of us who are situated at considerable distances from New York and the Atlantic Coast, where local newspapers are necessarily limited in the amount of Eastern and foreign news which they can provide for their columns, The New York Times, even though belated in its arrival, is a genuine source of comfort and satisfaction, with its complete treatment of all events of real interest and its persistent refusal to feature the lurid and sensational at the expense of that which has actual importance for the public. * * *"

TWO KILLED AS AUTO HITS SNOW SWEEPER

Elmer L'Hommedieu, Theatre Manager, and Young Woman Are Killed Instantly.

TWO OTHERS ARE INJURED

Their Car, Rounding Boston Post Road Curve at Pelham Manor, Crashes Head-On into Trolley.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y., Dec. 10.—Elmer L'Hommedieu, 27 years old, of Beacon Hall, 111 Franklin Avenue, this city, and Miss Eleanor Jordan, 22, of City Island Avenue, City Island, were killed at 3:30 A. M. today when an automobile driven by L'Hommedieu crashed into a track-sweeping car of the Third Avenue Railroad Company at Fowler Avenue and Boston Post Road, Pelham Manor.

In the car with Mr. L'Hommedieu and Miss Jordan were Clifford Kingsbury, 21, of 88 North Avenue, this city, and Miss Helen Harris of 2 Throgs Neck Avenue, Silver Beach, the Bronx. Mr. Kingsbury was badly injured receiving a fracture of the right knee, severe lacerations of the face and head and losing several teeth.

Miss Harris, although unconscious for seven hours, regained consciousness shortly after 10 o'clock this morning at the New Rochelle Hospital, and late this afternoon was discharged and went to her home, seemingly suffering from nothing more than shock and bruises.

According to statements obtained by Medical Examiner Amos O. Squire, who conducted a preliminary investigation today, the four were riding toward New York City after attending a social function in Mamaroneck. A heavy snowstorm had set in and at the scene of the accident there is a curve in the roadway.

As the car swung around the curve it collided head on with the sweeper, which was being operated by Motorman Edward Connelly of 25 Neptune Terrace, this city.

Mr. L'Hommedieu, who lived with his invalid mother, was manager of Loew's New Rochelle Theatre for the past five years. He had previously been with the Loew offices as an emergency manager and was one of the youngest and best-known theatrical managers of the Loew enterprises. His father, Stephen L'Hommedieu, who died suddenly about a year ago in Baltimore, was known as a racing man.

FOG DELAYS OCEAN LINERS.

The Reliance Is Held Up at Quarantine After Stormy Passage.

The dense fog which hung over the lower harbor yesterday forenoon caused considerable delay to the navigation of incoming and outgoing vessels.

The Hamburg-American liner Reliance from Hamburg, Southampton and Cherbourg had to anchor for an hour and a half after leaving Quarantine on her way to her pier at the foot of West Forty-sixth Street. The ship encountered very stormy weather from the English Channel to the Grand Banks ending in a seventy-five-mile westerly gale with very high seas, which smashed one of her windows on the hurricane deck and loosened the tiles in the swimming pool through the strain.

Danziger Sentence Again Postponed.

The sentencing of Harry Danziger of Middle Village, Queens, who eight months ago pleaded guilty of extortion in connection with the milk scandal, was postponed again yesterday by Supreme Court Justice Aaron J. Levy, in the Bronx, this tim to Jan. 24. The prosecutor told the Court that Danziger's testimony was needed in the investigation being made by ex-Justice Charles H. Kelby.

NEW SUIT TO CHANGE GOODYEAR CONTROL

Mrs. H. H. Benedict Appeals to Federal Court in Toledo to Oust Sieberling Group.

TOLEDO, Ohio, Dec. 10 (AP).—The fight for control of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company of Akron and its $200,000,000 in assets took a new turn with the filing of a bill of complaint by K. G. Benedict of New York, a woman stockholder, in the United States District Court here late today.

The suit is aimed to break the control of the common stock alleged to be held by F. A. Seiberling, Russell L. Robinson and Henry S. Manton as voting trustees of a majority of the common stock, said to be dominated by Mr. Seiberling, once Goodyear's President. The bill of complaint names as defendants Mr. Seiberling, Mr. Robinson, F. Masek, Mr. Manton, Francis Seiberling and A. H. Scoville of Akron and Cleveland, the Union Trust Company of Cleveland, the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company of Akron, Arthur A. Fowler and W. A. Phillips of New Jersey, F. G. Wilmer of Michigan, C. R. Erwin and Robert Schaffner of Chicago, George P. Miller of Wisconsin and George M. Jones and James W. McMahon of Toledo.

It alleges that F. A. Seiberling induced holders of common stock to join a voting trust, but did not put in the major portion of his own holdings; that he dominates the majority through relatives; that he has set up competing companies in the rubber industry and has maintained a minority of the Board of Directors of the Goodyear company to learn the inside workings of the company. It charges that his relations to the Goodyear company all along have been for his personal benefit and to the detriment of the common and other share holders.

The bill asks that Mr. Seiberling and his associates be restrained from further acting as voting trustees on the grounds that they have violated their duties and have been guilty of bad faith as such trustees and asks an order requiring the Union Trust Company of Cleveland to ascertain the views of the real owners of common stock as to the proposed plan of recapitalization and to vote the stock accordingly. The bank is depositary under the trust agreement and holds the actual certificates of stock.

Two suits are pending in State courts at Akron involving control of the Goodyear company. The first action was brought by the Prosecutor of Summit County to reopen the refinancing settlement of 1923 whereby control of the company was vested in a bankers' committee. The second action, while having a similar object, is directed against John Sherwin of Cleveland and Clarence Dillon, head of Dillon, Read & Co. of New York, as members of the bankers' committee.

Mrs. Katherine G. Benedict of this city, who filed the suit in Toledo relating to control of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company, is the wife of Harry Harper Benedict, once President of the Remington Typewriter Company. She declined last night to comment on the litigation. She was Katherine M. Geddes of Hamilton, Ont.

FOUND ODD WAYS IN EUROPE

No Man Offered Her His Flask or Smoke, Says Girl, Returning.

Miss Ethyl Weiss of 316 West Ninety-fourth Street, who returned on the Hamburg-American liner, Reliance, yesterday, from a tour of Europe, said she had met men of all nations, but that not one of them had asked her to take a drink or smoke while at dinner or dancing with them.

"In America one cannot be in the company of a man for five minutes before he offers either his cigarette case or his hip flask," said Miss Weiss.

DE MARTINI FREED WITH MRS. CLARK

Last of the Defendants in Hall Case Acquitted on Motion of Prosecutor Bergen.

BILLS FOR TRIALS DELAYED

Case Urges Justice Parker Not to Approve Them Without Careful Inspection.

Judge Frank L. Cleary of the Somerset County Court of Common Pleas at Somerset dismissed complaints yesterday against Felix de Martini, private detective, employed by Mrs. Frances Stevens Hall, and Mrs. Minna Clark, personal friend of the woman who was lately acquitted with her two brothers of the murder of her husband and Mrs. Eleanor Mills.

Neither de Martini nor Mrs. Clark were present, nor had they counsel to represent them. Judge Cleary signed the dismissals on application of County Prosecutor Francis L. Bergen. De Martini and Mrs. Clark had been charged with withholding facts concerning the murder. Dismissal was based on the acquittal of the other defendants a week ago.

Consideration of bills in connection with the investigation and trial was postponed by the County Board of Freeholders, following word from Senator Alexander Simpson, former special prosecutor, that the bills were not ready and would be sent first to Supreme Court Justice Charles W. Parker for his approval.

Senator Clarence E. Case, who defended Mrs. Hall and her brothers in court and who is counsel to the Freeholders, said that he had urged Justice Parker not to approve the bills without careful inspection because, he said, the board would then be obliged to pay. About one-third of the total expenses have been billed for to date, it was estimated. This includes $11,000 for a stenographer and an item of $1,300 for taxicabs for investigators.

Frank Caprio, a detective who was the witness who produced a razor which he said had been used to slash the throat of Mrs. Mills, was reported last night by The Associated Press to be ill at a Jersey City hospital. The information was said to have come from the Detroit Fidelity Surety Company of Newark, bondsmen for the detective, who is charged with conspiracy and extortion. He failed to appear for trial at Freehold, and the information was offered to explain his absence.

Newton Smalley, a taxpayer, denounced the trial and suggested that De Russey's Lane, where the murder occurred, be transferred from Somerset to Middlesex County because "De Russey's Lane is a dangerous place."

E. F. Shepard Escapes Pneumonia.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., Dec. 10.—Removed to Mercer Hospital suffering from exposure after being marooned on his yacht in the ice of the Raritan River near New Brunswick Tuesday, Elliot F. Shepard of New York and Miami has successfully evaded the threat of pneumonia, officials at the institution said today. Shepard and his wife were en route from Quincy, Mass., to Florida when their craft was frozen in the floes of the stream. They were saved by the heroism of the yacht's captain, George W. Roe, who risked his life to get food.

NAPOLEON ASPIRED TO WRITE BEST SELLER

Collector Gets Manuscript of Corsican's Youth, Probably Written Around 1789.

Napoleon had an ambition to write a best seller before he aspired to conquer Europe. That fact is shown by an autographed manuscript which has recently been acquired by Harry B. Smith of 319 West 107th Street, musical comedy composer and book collector. Mr. Smith said yesterday that students of the life of Napoleon were well aware of the fact that Napoleon in his youth aspired to write history before he realized that he was destined to make history, and that they also knew that he wrote a history of Corsica and contemplated a life of Caesar.

"The manuscript is entirely in Napoleon's autograph and is apparently autobiographical fiction," says Mr. Smith's announcement of his purchase. The hero is a young officer named Clisson belonging to a noble but impoverished family; and the story is of the rivalry of two young women, both of whom are in love with him. His preference is for the beautiful but humble Eugenie; but the course of true love is disturbed by Amelie, an aristocratic lady who is infatuated with the gallant young officer.

"The manuscript covers four folio pages closely written in Bonaparte's almost illegible handwriting. Frederic Masson, the French historian, is of opinion that the story was written at some time between 1785, when Bonaparte was 16 years old, and 1789, when he was 20. Then came the Revolution, and Lieutenant Bonaparte had no further time for literature. The manuscript has been deciphered by Noel Charavay of Paris, the authority on Napoleon autographs.

NICARAGUA CHARGES MEXICO IS PREPARING FOR OFFENSIVE WAR

President Alleges Expedition Is Now Being Fitted Out to Aid Liberal Revolutionaries.

CALLES DIRECTLY ACCUSED

President Seeks to Set Up New Regime, Diaz Asserts in Manifesto.

WORLD'S SUPPORT IS ASKED

Calles Is Made to Rebels and Publicly Promised Them—Other Chiefs Warned of Peril.

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, Dec. 11 (AP).—President Adolfo Diaz of Nicaragua today issued a manifesto in which he stated his accusations that the Mexican Government is actively supporting the present Liberal revolutionary movement in his country.

He charged that reliable information existed that officials of the Mexican Government were outfitting a vessel which, with an armed expedition, would proceed upon to Nicaragua, under the guise of Mexican gunboats, to make war against his Government.

Asserting that successful Mexican interference in the Government of Nicaragua would mean the confiscation of private property, the denial of religious freedom, communism and political disorder, President Diaz called upon the liberal revolutionists to make peace with his Government.

Then, general amnesty, compensation for revolutionary losses on the side of political fair play and a national Government in which the Liberals, who have set up a Government with the Presidency of Dr. Gilberto Alfaro Cabezas, would help in equilibrium, were promised to the revolutionists.

Calles Is Directly Accused.

Under the cooperation of all Nicaraguans and the moral support of the rest of the world, President Diaz said Central American Governments and their sovereignty would be menaced if Mexico were to obtain a foothold in Nicaragua by materially aiding in the overthrow of the present Conservative regime, which had been recognized by the United States.

President Diaz's manifesto directly named President Calles of a desire to effect a political order in Nicaragua, with the aid of a Nicaraguan political faction, which would follow the "reformist examples" of Mexico.

He said that his Government showed the warmest feelings of sympathy and racial kinship with the Mexican people, but that it felt a solemn obligation to set its face resolutely against the efforts of the Calles regime to interfere in Nicaragua.

The Conservative Government, the manifesto said, did not attack the political tendencies and policies of Mexico so long as they were restricted to that country, but that it would fight against the introduction of those ideas and practices into Nicaragua through a revolution supported by Mexico.

[The Liberal Party's Government has been recognized by Mexico.]

Text of the Manifesto.

The text of President Diaz's manifesto follows:

"My Government has information that the Mexican Government, following the same policy which impelled it to equip and dispatch last August to the Pacific coast of Nicaragua an armed expedition on the Mexican vessel El Tropico, is now organizing and equipping another expedition of even more formidable proportions to be landed from Puerto Mexico, Mexico, against the Atlantic Coast of Nicaragua.

"It is understood from reliable sources that it is the plan of the Mexican Government that the vessel Supetan, now being outfitted by officials of the Mexican Government with an armed expedition, should proceed soon to Nicaragua under the escort of Mexican gunboats for the purpose of making war against the constitutional Government of Nicaragua, over which I preside.

"In bringing to the attention of the Nicaraguan and foreign public these manifest designs of the Mexican Government to make war without any provocation on my Government, through the agency of Mexican military and naval officials and certain Nicaraguans calling themselves Constitutionalists, my Government affirms its confidence in its ability under any normal conditions to maintain order in the republic and to re-establish its control over certain remote and sparsely inhabited regions of the Atlantic Coast now held by the Liberal revolutionists.

Appeal to America Is Cited.

"My Government does not invite foreign intervention in its political affairs, but, on the contrary, has the firm purpose of maintaining the sovereignty, liberty and independence of the Nicaraguan nation.

"With this determination, on Nov. 15, last, I formally addressed to the American Government, through its representative in Managua, a protest against the activity of the Mexican Government directed against the peace and political institutions of Nicaragua. My Government felt confident that

Gye and Barnard to Reveal Further Cancer Discoveries

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Co.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Dec. 11.—Further announcements will shortly be made concerning the discoveries of Dr. W. E. Gye and James E. Barnard regarding the cure of cancer, according to a report here tonight. It is said that Dr. Gye is preparing a new series of papers which will make further revelations concerning his work which attracted world-wide attention when its preliminary stages recently were described.

These papers will seek to prove, it is said, that an organism causes cancer, but only in alliance with a chemical agent which may differ not only according to species but even more fundamentally.

It is said that immunity ultimately may be won by the isolation of the two factors, some recent experiments by Dr. Gye on animals appearing to indicate this possibility.

ALLIES AND GERMANY ARE NEAR ACCORD

League Council Ends Sessions, but "Big Five" Ministers Stay On.

HOLD CONFERENCE TODAY

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

GENEVA, Dec. 11.—Without awaiting the conclusion of the Allies' negotiations with Germany concerning the fulfillment of the disarmament stipulations of the Treaty of Versailles, the Council of the League of Nations adjourned since this evening leaving the Foreign Ministers of the powers concerned to settle the matter in private before leaving the shores of Lake Leman.

This the Ministers expect to do at a meeting to be held tomorrow. M. Briand tonight said smilingly that he hoped to take the train homeward tomorrow night. Dr. Stresemann, likewise smiling, said he would stay till a decision was reached. The British also expressed the greatest optimism.

At the concluding session of the League Council the delegates of the nations represented in the Conference of Ambassadors carried the spirit of Locarno to the point of accepting in full an interpretative document giving the Germans complete satisfaction on all points regarding League investigation in the territories of Germany and other former Central Powers.

This document was accepted after B. Briand, Sir Austen Chamberlain and Dr. Stresemann in response to congratulations by the President of the Council on their receipt of the Nobel Prize had pledged themselves to continue their work in the interest of world peace.

The first point on which the Germans obtained satisfaction today without previously giving the Allies satisfaction on the subject of disarmament is a change made by the French in the person presiding over the League Control Commission. General Desticker, who had been President for the last two years and was objectionable to the Germans because of his relationship with Marshall Foch, has been dropped and General Baratir named in his place. At the same time the Belgian President of the Bulgarian Commission was replaced by a Hollander.

As to the interpretation of the protocol for the League investigations, it is stated in a document adopted by the Council that the Council shall specify the object and limits of the investigations and that the commissions shall act under the authority and on the instructions of the Council.

This paragraph gives the Germans satisfaction in their demand that the commissions shall not go to any places not designated by the Council and shall not continue their investigations indefinitely, which would give them a certain autonomy and permanence.

It is further provided that the commission shall apply to the representative appointed by the Government, subject to investigation, who will pro-

REPUBLICANS BAN ANY TAX REVISION BY THIS CONGRESS

Ways and Means Members Turn Down Both Coolidge and Democratic Proposals.

VOTE IS ON PARTY LINES

Majority Leaders Want Surplus Used to Reduce the National Debt.

DEMOCRATS FIGHT IN VAIN

Garrett Charges Republicans Seek Party Advantage by Postponing Cuts Until Next Congress.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—By a unanimous vote Republican members of the Ways and Means Committee voted today against acceptance of the Administration's tax proposal and rejected the Democratic plan for a permanent tax reduction of $335,000,000.

This action, which apparently removes all chance of tax revision from the short session program and makes possible a tax cut in 1928—if there is no business slump—provides that the surplus for this year shall be applied to reduction of the national debt.

On motion of Representative Hawley, the committee voted to postpone all tax reduction after having refused to set a date for consideration of the proposal of Representative Garner for a permanent reduction. The vote was on party lines, the Democrats supporting the move for a permanent reduction this session and the Republicans opposing it. The only absentee was Representative Chindblom of Illinois.

Republican leaders did not favor the proposal made by President Coolidge four days after election, that there should be a refund of 10 to 15 per cent. of the taxes paid in 1926 on incomes earned in 1925. The modified scheme of giving a credit on the taxes paid in 1927 suggested later by Secretary Mellon appeared to be equally objectionable to the party leaders, and when President Coolidge failed to declare strongly for his plan in his message, but suggested that application of the surplus to reduction of the debt would eventually be a tax reduction, it became apparent that they would exclude revision from this session's program.

Green Explains Action.

Representative William R. Green, Chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, explaining the action of the committee, said:

"The report of the Secretary of the Treasury estimates the surplus for the fiscal year 1927 at $383,000,000. Three plans have been suggested with a view to giving the taxpayers the benefit of this surplus. Mr. Garner, in behalf of the Democratic Party, has introduced a bill to amend the revenue act of 1926, which will provide for a permanent tax reduction of approximately $335,000,000 a year. The Secretary of the Treasury, in his annual report, suggests that a credit might be allowed of 30 per cent. of the half year's taxes due and payable in the first six months of 1927, which would represent a credit of 15 per cent on the total taxes due for the entire calendar year 1927, which would reduce the surplus of the present fiscal year by approximately $300,000,000, but would not affect the revenues of the fiscal year 1928. If no action is taken by Congress the surplus will automatically be applied to the reduction of the national debt.

"The Republican members of the Ways and Means Committee have considered the propositions with great care. They are unanimously agreed that no further revision of our tax system should be made until the full effects of the last revision are known and the Congress is in a position to estimate the normal revenue that may be expected from the Revenue act of 1926. The law has been in effect less than six months and the figures as to its yield are based on estimates rather than actual receipts for a full fiscal year.

"The Republican members of the committee have also carefully consid-

Loree Buys His Way Into Lehigh Valley To Use It as 'Missing Link' in Merger

An important announcement is expected in railroad circles soon regarding the purchase of a substantial interest in the Lehigh Valley Railroad by the Delaware & Hudson.

Bankers for the Delaware & Hudson, of which railroad Leonor F. Loree is President, have added materially to their holdings of the Lehigh's stock in the last two weeks, until it now is believed that they have close to 20 per cent. of the total amount outstanding. This is not sufficient to give them control of the property under the Lehigh peculiar corporate organization, which requires the President to name the directors, but it is sufficient to give Mr. Loree or one of his associates a place on the board and a voice in effecting a traffic agreement favorable to the Delaware & Hudson.

If the Delaware & Hudson is able to establish an arrangement of this sort, which is similar to that of the Baltimore & Ohio with the Reading, Mr. Loree will have a strong argument for the Interstate Commerce Commission to approve his petition for permission to lease the Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburgh, a plan which the commission's examiner disapproved on the ground that the properties do not connect. The Lehigh Valley could be used as the "missing link" between the D. & H. and the B., R. & P.

The Loree interest in the Lehigh will mean that three large and powerful financial groups will be represented on the road's directorate. The first is that of George F. Baker, Chairman of the First National Bank, whose stock will be voted squarely behind the present management; the second, that of the New York Central, which had hopes of acquiring the road before Mr. Loree stepped into the picture, and the third that of Kuhn, Loeb & Co., who have acted for Mr. Loree and the Delaware & Hudson in purchasing the stock of the Lehigh Valley.

OIL TRIAL EVIDENCE IS ENDED ABRUPTLY

Both Sides Rest Without Fall Testifying — Verdict Is Expected Wednesday.

McCORMACK LAUDS DOHENY

Singer Hopes to Achieve "The Same Kind of Reputation" as the Defendant.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—Both the prosecution and the defense in the trial of Edward L. Doheny, the California oil operator, and Albert B. Fall, former Secretary of the Interior, charged with having engineered a conspiracy to defraud the Government in the Elk Hills naval oil reserve lease, rested their cases today. Summing up by opposing counsel will begin Monday and is expected to last two days and in that event Justice Hoehling will charge the jury Wednesday. A verdict therefore is expected Wednesday afternoon or evening.

The defense closed without having called Mr. Fall to the witness chair.

The end of the trial was tame. Only one witness was called today by the defense. John McCormack, the singer, testified to the good character and reputation of Mr. Doheny. He said he had known the oil man intimately for twelve years and expressed the hope "that when I arrive at his age I shall have the same kind of reputation as he has."

When Mr. McCormack quit the witness chair, Frank J. Hogan announced the case of the defense was completed. Owen J. Roberts of Government counsel, then read into the record various documents, most of them in the form of letters, which he contended go far to establish the case for the Government. One of the letters he emphasized was the Doheny memorandum of October, 1922, in which the leasing of the naval reserve was cited as necessary to render efficient the then contemplated pipe lines from Elk Hills to San Pedro and the filling of the naval fuel tanks in California and elsewhere.

Were Part of Senate Records.

All of these letters were contained in the records of the Senate investigation of the oil lease transactions. After the letters and documents were read to the jury Mr. Roberts announced the closing of the Government side of the case.

That no rebuttal in the form of direct testimony was offered by the Government occasioned considerable surprise. It had been expected that Admiral Griffin, former chief of the Naval Bureau of Engineering, who strenously opposed the Fall oil policies, would be called and that Commander Stewart, who was Admiral Griffin's assistant, would also take the stand. Charles E. Hughes had likewise been mentioned as a possible witness, but they were not called.

It was understood that Mr. Hughes had he testified, would have been asked about the "Pacific war peril" of 1921 and 1922, which Captain Robison unfolded to Mr. Doheny when he urged him to come to the aid of the navy and undertake the construction and filling of the Pearl Harbor oil fuel station. Mr. Hughes, it was expected, would have been asked to explain why preparations for a war with Japan, as stated by Captain Robison to Doheny, were so urgent at a time when Japan, the United States and other first-class powers had agreed on the most comprehensive naval disarmament plan in the history of the world.

Government counsel will argue in their summing up that the Doheny memorandum of October, 1922, disproves the contention of the defense that Mr. Doheny had very little to do with the actual Elk Hills negotiation.

Had Plans for the Refineries.

"It is estimated," the memorandum says, "that this new venture will necessitate the expenditure of approximately $10,000,000. It can only be justified if those who undertake to carry it out have confidence in the assurances which the different fields offer of a sufficient supply of oil to keep the refinery operating to capacity. There are two reliable sources of supply for oil that might be used in connection with the enterprise to the great advantage of the controllers of these sources.

"The one is the Government royalty oil from the wells now being operated on the public lands in California and in naval reserves No. 1 and No. 2. This royalty oil is at present devoted

DOOMED, TRIED TO AID LONG-TERM PRISONER

Maxwell, Gunman Executed on Thursday, Confessed Theft to Clear Brooklyn Youth.

AFFIDAVIT MAY FREE HIM

Patterson, 22, Serving 15 Years, Couldn't Prove Alibi—Guilt Doubted by Officials.

Fifteen minutes before he died in the electric chair at Sing Sing last Thursday night, John Maxwell, a gunman and robber, called a keeper.

"There's a man outside there," the condemned man said, waving his hand toward the cell block, "who's doing a bit for a job I did myself. He's innocent and I want to square him before I go."

The keeper called the Rev. John J. McCaffrey, Catholic chaplain, who had just given Maxwell the last rites of the Church, and Principal Keeper John Sheehy. Father McCaffrey told Maxwell there was no hope for him, and that if he could clear an innocent man he certainly ought to tell the truth before he died.

Maxwell then declared that Victor Patterson, 22 years old, of 264 Eighth Avenue, Brooklyn, had had nothing to do with the hold-up of an Atlantic & Pacific chain grocery store in Third Avenue, Brooklyn, in December, 1925, for which Patterson is serving fifteen years in Sing Sing.

"I'm the guy that pulled that job," said Maxwell. "Patterson looks like me and that's why they identified him. He didn't have anything to do with it."

Makes Confession in Affidavit.

Father McCaffrey and Sheehy questioned Maxwell closely. He insisted his story was true and they asked him if he was willing to make his statement in affidavit form.

"Sure," he replied. "They're going to knock me off in a few minutes anyway. Why shouldn't I help this bird out if I can?"

The attendants brought paper and pen and Maxwell signed his name to a statement confessing the A. & P. robbery and absolving Patterson of all connection with it. Father McCaffrey and Sheehy witnessed the affidavit.

A few minutes later Maxwell said his last prayers and walked into the death chamber on Father McCaffrey's arm. Maxwell and two others—Casmir and William Barsxyouck, brothers—were executed for the murder of Mrs. Mary Betsch, a customer, who was shot when they held up a chain grocery store at 173 Lee Avenue, Brooklyn, more than a year ago.

Warden Lewis E. Lawes of Sing Sing, notified of Maxwell's statement, said Patterson had always maintained his innocence of the A. & P. hold-up. Two men participated in this crime. They got only $30, but they threatened Hugh Finnerty, the store manager, and Robert Byrne, his assistant, with pistols, and one of them struck Finnerty on the head when he hesitated to open the cash register.

Patterson and a friend named Keenan were arrested. Both maintained their innocence, but both were identified by Finnerty and Byrne. Keenan was able to prove an alibi. He produced several reputable witnesses to testify that he was at a prize fight at the time of the hold-up, and he was freed.

Patterson Alibi Failed.

Although Patterson also had an alibi, he was unable to produce witnesses to support it. He said he was in Brownsville at the time of the robbery with a sample of bootleg whisky, trying to sell a consignment of contraband to a bootlegger. When the police questioned the bootlegger he denied Patterson had been with him that night. There was an impression even in police circles that the bootlegger was afraid to tell the truth lest he be implicated in a crime himself.

When Patterson was tried he admitted that he was a second offender, having served a previous term in Sing Sing for a felony. A jury before Judge Franklin W. Taylor in Kings County convicted him. Judge Taylor and Joseph V. Gallagher, the Assistant District Attorney, who prosecuted Patterson, both felt there might be some doubt as to the youth's guilt, and the Court withheld sentence for two months to give Patterson and his attorney time to produce new evi-

FEAR OF AN INQUIRY BY REPUBLICANS MAY FORCE TRANSIT MOVE

City Leaders Apprehensive of Legislative Investigation to Fix a Policy.

ENABLING LAWS AT STAKE

If City Is to Get $300,000,000 Lawmakers Again Must Pass Amendment.

ALL WARY ON CONFERENCES

Officials Approve Parleys on Unification, but Nobody Is Willing to Call Them.

Students of the transit problem in New York City agree that the situation is rapidly approaching a crisis. There are leaders who are influential in the Democratic organization who fear that unless early steps be taken looking toward what Controller Berry terms the adoption of a definite transit policy for the future, the coming session of the State Legislature, which is Republican in both branches, may vote to send a legislative investigating committee to this city to learn why something more definite than mere talk is not being done toward that end.

It is pointed out by Democratic leaders who entertain that fear, that if the city is to have $300,000,000 with which to promote subways and other transit betterments by January, 1928, it is necessary that the coming Legislature shall vote the measure, already approved last year, exempting that sum from the city's debt limit. As this exception involves a constitutional amendment, it is necessary that it be approved by two successive Legislatures before being submitted by referendum for the approval of the electorate. It has been already passed by one Legislature.

During the coming session in Albany, it is feared, the Republicans might make their further support of this measure conditional upon the results of an inquiry directed toward a definite answer to the question which Controller Berry has shot at the Board of Estimate, barbing it with his pledge to vote for no more transit appropriations until a specific transit policy be formulated. If the Controller, himself a part of the City Administration, can properly withhold his personal approval of further appropriations in these conditions, it is asked, who could object fairly if the State should seek further light before extending the city's transit credit to the amount of $300,000,000?

Nobody Willing to Call Parleys.

When it comes to instituting "conferences" between all the parties directly concerned looking to a unification or consolidation—the latter term is preferred by Mayor Walker—of the city's subway interests with those of the present operating companies, the situation at the moment seems to be that, while everybody says the idea is a fine one, nobody desires to take the initiative in calling such conferences. It is conceivable that such a getting together might lead to a revision of the city's dual contracts with the Interborough and the B. M. T., to a fare in excess of 5 cents and to other revolutionary changes. However desirable some of these changes might be, nobody who entertains political aspirations wants to have an 8-cent fare or a 10-cent fare laid upon his political doorstep.

John H. Delaney, Chairman of the Board of Transportation, though the primary function of that body is to build new subways rather than to regulate the policies of the old ones, has suggested in his Brooklyn speech a plan of consolidation of interests which to many experts seems feasible. Both Frank Hedley, President of the Interborough, and Gerhard M. Dahl, Chairman of the Board of the B. M. T., have hastened to record their willingness to confer with the city authorities. Mayor Walker has declared that he is ready to consult with any and all persons who have no axes to grind and who are actuated by a desire for the city's welfare.

So, with the possible exception of former Mayor Hylan and his ad-

Governor-Elect in New Mexico Balks at Full Dress at Ball

SANTA FE, N. M., Dec. 11 (AP).—Out here where gorgeous woolly chaparrajos cause no comment and the abbreviated costume of the Indians causes not so much as the flicker of an eyelash, a great stir is being raised over formal evening dress.

Governor-elect R. C. Dillon is the centre of the controversy. He says he will not wear full evening dress to the inaugural ball on New Year's Eve and would prefer to have no dance rather than have it formal.

"I've never seen the necessity for wearing a dress suit in my life and I hardly want to begin 'to put on the dog' at my age," he has said.

The committee in charge of ceremonies has countered with a statement that "the ball will be strictly formal" and that "Mr. Dillon will not direct our actions until after the first of the year and until that time he is our guest and must conform to custom as well as every one else."

There the matter rests and the outcome probably will not be known until the festivities start.

GIRL WITH PISTOL ROBS BANK IN TEXAS

Stenographer of Governor-Elect Moody Is Arrested and Identified by Victims.

GRADUATE OF UNIVERSITY

Slender "Bandit" Locked Men in Vault and Escaped in Auto With $1,200 to $2,400.

AUSTIN, Tex., Dec. 11 (AP).—A mere slip of a girl, alone and unmasked, at noon today robbed the Farmers Exchange Bank at Buda, a typical "Main Street" town near here of between $1,200 and $2,400.

Calmly the girl walked into the bank, posed as a newspaper woman and borrowed a typewriter in the rear of the building. When all but two employes had left for lunch the girl produced a pistol from a coat pocket and robbed the institution. After locking Cashier S. A. Jamieson and Raymond Howe, bookkeeper, in the vault, the "flapper" bandit escaped in a coupe.

Rebecca Bradley, stenographer in the office of Attorney General (now Governor-elect) Dan Moody and graduate of Texas University, working on her master's degree, was taken into custody here tonight in connection with the robbery.

Chief of Police J. N. Littlepage said charges of robbery would be filed against the girl. He said she had been identified by Cashier Jamieson and Bookkeeper Howe.

Mother Moves to Free Prisoner.

Miss Bradley merely smiled when taken to the police station, Chief Littlepage said. She was nonconmittal. She is 22 years old.

The police said they learned the girl was not at work today in Governor-elect Moody's office. Her automobile is declared to correspond to that used in the robbery.

Upon learning of the arrest, Mrs. G. E. Bradley, the girl's mother, began habeas corpus proceedings, charging illegal restraint. The writ was granted by District Judge James R. Hamilton, who ordered Chief of Police Littlepage, Sheriff W. G. Mills and Ranger Frank Hamer to produce the girl in court.

When the prisoner was brought in the District Attorney announced that formal charges had been filed against her and the writ was dismissed.

Drives Man Into Vault.

The girl robber was described as a slender brunette weighing from 110 to 115 pounds and quietly dressed. She appeared at the bank an hour before the robbery and told officials she had been sent to write an article about the town of Buda, which has a population of about 300.

She chatted with half a dozen or more visitors and waited until all customers had left at noon. Jamieson and Howe were preparing to go to lunch

OIL SHIP EXPLOSION SHAKES BROOKLYN; PEOPLE ASHORE HURT

SEAMEN SLIDE TO SAFETY

Warned by First Rumble, They Rush for the Deck—Next Blast Lifts the Vessel.

NINE PERSONS INJURED

Tanker Agwisan Is Sunk by the Firemen to Prevent Another Explosion.

An explosion so violent that it was felt all over Brooklyn and brought hundreds to the streets, fearing that the city was being rocked by an earthquake, injured nine persons yesterday evening and destroyed the oil tanker Agwisan, anchored off Robbins Ferry Dock, at the foot of Dwight and Beard Streets, Brooklyn.

The explosion is believed to have been caused by the ignition of fumes from the recently emptied tanks of the vessel. A check-up last night revealed that no lives had been lost, but considerable property damage was wrought, in addition to that to the vessel, which was badly battered and torn.

The following were injured:

MURPHY, JAMES, city fireman, 32, 2,210 Fifty-fourth Street, Woodside, Queens; lacerations of right shoulder and right hand.

Warned by One Explosion.

That no lives were lost was credited last night by men who had been on the tanker to the fact that a slight explosion, a few minutes before the heavier one which shattered the vessel, had warned them, and nearly all on deck when the emergency came. Quick action and heroism got them off the ship to safety then.

The Agwisan is owned by the Atlantic, Gulf and West Indies Company, under the control of the International Shipping Corporation of 26 Broadway. It is a steel ship of 6,704 tons gross and was built in 1920 at Chester, Pa.

It had arrived last Tuesday from Beaumont, Texas, with 78,000 barrels of crude oil in its nine tank compartments stretching in series through the hull and had discharged these into tank barges at Tompkinsville, S. I. The tanker then put into Robins Dry Dock for the minor overhauling, including tuning up the engines and painting the hull. It came out of the dry dock Friday to its anchorage off Dock No. 2, and was to have sailed in ballast for Beaumont, Texas, today.

Yesterday it was undergoing a final tinkering. A corps of painters under foreman John Day were painting the hull standing in a lifeboat alongside the Agwisan. A dozen men of the dry dock force were busying about. Only fifteen of the crew of thirty-eight were aboard and they were under command of Second Officer Albert Hansen. Captain R. L. Dobbins of Portland, Ore., and the other navigating officers were all on shore leave. Chief Engineer Talbot Smith was in his office far aft in the ship where also were some of the engine crew. A group of men were in the messroom far forward. Not a man was on deck.

Man Back to Deck.

At about 5:20 in the afternoon there was a subdued explosion, a "pop", the men described it afterward. This was followed by an odd rumbling. Most of the men on the ship heard it and ran up the deck.

While they stood there—one group far forward on the deck and the other far aft—trying to analyze the sound, the second explosion came. It was tremendous. It raised the centre part of the deck high in the air and tore out a huge section of the port side of the vessel and laid it over on the dock. Fragments of the inner workings of the ship were shot upward and pelted down on the shipyard and the streets outside.

Charles O'Neil of Rochester, N. Y., a pumpman on the tanker, was just coming aboard, crossing over from the dock to the tanker on a ladder, when the blast hurled him back on the dock and stunned and bruised him.

Chief Steward Fred Keller was asleep in his cabin below when the second crash came. It knocked him unconscious, but others of the crew picked him up, carried him to the dock and lowered him to the dock.

There was one flare of light when the first tank let go, bystanders said, then a column of black smoke rose from the shaken vessel and spread over the waterfront.

The rumbling continued as the explosion, starting in No. 6 tank below ran in succession through five other tanks and raised section after section of the deck and ripped out many yards more of the vessel's steel sides.

Engineer Smith and the men with him at the aft end found a rope dangling from the stern and slid down it to the dock. A half dozen or so more ran to the outer side of the boat and tossed a rope down. The painters' rowboat was about to make off

Bachelor Tax Booms Italian Marriage Mart; Eligibles Scan Brokers' Lists of Spinsters

ROME, Dec. 11 (AP).—Premier Mussolini's recent creation of a tax on bachelors between 25 and 65 is causing a stir on the Italian matrimonial market.

Within 24 hours of the announcement that male celibates would henceforth be obliged to pay an annual tribute for their single bliss, hundreds of professional matchmakers, who have been suffering hard times because of the high cost of living, began active angling for business.

Simultaneously scores of marriage brokers mushroomed into existence, advertising their services by word of mouth and the newspapers.

Marriage brokers believe that there will be an excess in the demand for wives over the available supply, thus restoring as marital possibilities many elderly maiden ladies who long since resigned themselves to be considered definitely "on the shelf."

It is estimated that at least 100,000 bachelors, a majority of whom are beyond the first blush of youth, are now consulting the lists of spinsters being compiled in the matrimonial bourses.

The actual number of men subject to the new tax runs into several hundred thousand, Rome and Milan each furnishing about 100,000. The male population of Rome and several other large cities, as a matter of fact, far exceeds the feminine.

All classes of women—the most bitter anti-feminists as well as the small brave band of feminists—hail the Government's step joyously, especially since the proceeds of the tax will be used for the benefit of indigent women and children. [The Institute of Maternity and Infancy, which also cares for unmarried mothers and their children costs the Government 50,000,000 lire a year.]

Joy, however, is not confined to the women. Photographers report a greatly increased business in the last few days. One Roman camera artist pointed out with delight that the demand for large "touched-up" photographs is now greater than since the war days. The newspapers also are profiting by matrimonial, personal and furniture-on-the-instalment plan advertisements.

Our Army Battle Deaths in World War 50,510; 193,663 Wounded, Revised Figures Show

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11 (AP).—American army battle casualties in the World War, exclusive of Navy and Marine Corps personnel, are placed at 244,173 in revised figures just completed by the War Department. Those killed in action are put at 37,568, including 1,656 officers and 35,912 men while 12,942 died of wounds, including 539 officers and 12,383 men, the total of these battle deaths being 50,510. The record shows that 10,535 men received more than one wound, 436 were hit three times and eighteen four times each.

The total of non-mortal wounds was 193,663, although the number of individuals treated was only 182,674, of whom 6,475 were officers and 176,195 enlisted men.

Of all wounds treated, including those which caused death, 127,228 were gunshot, 68,975 gas, 9,406 shell, 229 air weapons and 164 bayonet. The total of authenticated shell shock cases is placed at 5,016.

There were 244,088 casualties in the A. E. F. in Europe, including Northern Russia and at sea, and 97 among the American forces in Siberia.

The revised casualty figures totaled above show that 5,237 soldiers who enlisted from New York were killed in action and 1,750 died from wounds. Those wounded, but not mortally, were 26,955 and the total casualties were 33,942.

Of those enlisting from New Jersey, 1,273 were killed in action, 398 died from their wounds, 6,743 were wounded, but not fatally, and the total casualties were 8,409.

Of the noted divisions of the A. E. F., the 26th (New England), 27th (New York) and the Rainbow had the following casualties:

Twenty-sixth, 1,587 killed in action; 694 died of wounds and 11,363 were wounded, but not mortally.

Twenty-seventh, 1,442 killed in action; 387 died of wounds; 6,505 wounded, but not mortally.

Rainbow, 2,058 killed in action; 782 died of wounds; 11,873 wounded, but not mortally.

from the exploding ship, but they saw the men above awaiting rescue and the foreman grasped the rope and held it taut while the sailors slid down it to safety.

Tugs meanwhile were rushing toward the scene from every part of the harbor, shrieking their whistles to bring still more aid. One of them, a Standard Oil tug, came near and the remaining sailors aboard the tanker threw a line to it and went down it hand-over-hand.

Meanwhile fire and ambulance alarms had been turned in and twenty-five fire companies and fireboats were hurrying to the dry dock. The first alarm placed the scene of the explosion at Twenty-fifth Street and Third Avenue, Brooklyn, where the Tebo Yacht Basin is situated, and the fire apparatus went there. The companies then were compelled to pick their way along the waterfront to the spot where they were needed.

Disregarding the danger, the firemen worked on the dock alongside the Agwisun, hidden from each other at times when the heavy smoke descended on them.

Rescuers Use Gas Helmets.

The explosion was almost devoid of flames, and police and fire rescue squads entered the tanker in gas helmets and searched it thoroughly. They found that every one had escaped, and this was confirmed afterward by a check-up of all who had been on board.

Because of the danger of further explosion, however, it was determined at once to flood and sink the vessel. The seacocks were opened, and with the fireboats pumping water into it, the boat settled down on to the mud bottom, with most of its hull still above water.

Members of the crew marveled last night at their narrow escapes.

"I was asleep in my bunk," said Edward Colberth of Cambridge, Mass., a seaman, "when I heard an explosion, quickly followed by a second and a third. I was thrown from my bunk against the opposite bulkhead and was knocked unconscious. All I remember after that was feeling myself being carried up on deck."

Albert Pavoldy, also of Cambridge, Mass., who said he was making his second trip in the tanker, was eating in the crew's mess.

"There was a loud explosion, and then two more," he declared. "I was thrown clear over the table and landed on the deck. The lights went out after the first explosion, and I didn't know anything more until I was helped to the deck."

William Schultgetch of Baltimore, Md., radio operator on the tanker, said he was sitting in the wireless house reading when the explosion knocked him from his chair.

"The lights went out," he said, "and I could see stuff flying around in the dark. It was too dark to see very much, but it looked as though pieces of steel were flying around."

About 200 persons were at work in the shipyard. There were about thirty members of the crew aboard the Silvia. They were shaken up by the explosion. Glass on near-by vessels was broken and doors were torn from their hinges. Hot metal fragments fell on ships 400 yards from the Agwisun.

Felt on Staten Island.

The area over which the shock of the explosion was felt, and the uncertainty for a time as to what had occurred, failed to mind the confusion reigning after the Lake Denmark explosion in New Jersey. The shock was clearly felt on Staten Island and inquiries came to the police from as far away as Atlantic Highlands. It was felt distinctly at the Barge Office at the Battery.

The shock was so severe on Governors Island that officers there who heard the roar and saw the sky lighted by a sudden flare thought that an arsenal had blown up.

Nearer the scene the effect was tremendous. As tank after tank blew up in the ship, the explosions imparted a rolling concussion to the earth which was carried for blocks and sent the residents of near-by tenements hurrying to the street. The windows of seamen's restaurants and lodging houses were smashed and debris was showered as far as three blocks from the yards.

Outside the yards John Walter of 124 Dykman Street, Brooklyn, a shipyard worker, was hurled to the ground and was taken to the hospital with his face cut and his left leg fractured. Mrs. Cameron was injured in a similar manner as she was passing the yards.

Policemen kept the region around the yards cleared for two hours after the Agwisun had been sunk, to avoid the possibility of persons being injured in further explosions.

Chief Fire Marshal Thomas Brophy went to the scene and made an inspection from the dock. Fire Commissioner Dorman also was present soon after the first shock. He had felt the concussion in his home in Flatbush several miles away.

No authoritative estimate of the damage could be obtained last night.

CRIMSON TO HONOR ELIOT.

Harvard Paper Will Publish a Special Memorial Edition.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Dec. 11 (AP).—The Crimson, Harvard undergraduate daily, will publish on Wednesday a special edition in memory of Dr. Charles W. Eliot, President Emeritus of Harvard, who died several months ago. The edition will be of tabloid form and of twenty pages printed on heavy paper, and will carry many portraits and drawings relating to the life of Dr. Eliot.

"Since the death last Summer of the great educator, The Crimson has been working on a memorial to the man who, during his lifelong connection with the university, did more than any other individual to mold the destinies of Harvard," the student newspaper will say tomorrow.

"The work has now been completed and The Crimson is ready to publish what it considers to be in a small way a memorial to the man it recognizes in this way."

The edition will include a series of letters, hitherto unpublished, exchanged between Dr. Eliot and Professor Emeritus George Herbert Palmer, thirty-five years ago. Essays will be contributed by Dean Henry Wilson Holmes, Professor Albert Bushnell Hart, Professor Emeritus Paul H. Hanus, Bishop William Lawrence, Professor Byron S. Hurlbut and former President Arthur T. Hadley of Yale.

OTTINGER BACKS TUNNEY.

Finds No Law Broken by Fighter in Vaudeville Sparring.

At the request of the New York State Athletic Commission and District Attorney Banton, Attorney General Ottinger rendered an opinion yesterday that Gene Tunney, champion heavyweight prizefighter, had not been guilty of a misdemeanor in giving a boxing exhibition in connection with his appearance in vaudeville.

Mr. Ottinger held that Tunney's sparring on the stage was in no sense a contest for superiority, but merely to show that Tunney is physically fit and has championship qualities. He said that persons who attended these exhibitions did not go to see a prizefight any more than those who went to see Babe Ruth in vaudeville went to see a baseball game.

Tunney and the managers of Loew's State Theatre were arrested Nov. 29. Their cases have not yet been disposed of. Mr. Ottinger said that in his opinion if such an exhibition as Tunney's required a license the remedy would be by injunction rather than criminal proceeding.

GLUE PLANT BLASTS HURT FOUR IN BRONX

Cleaning Fluid in the Caldrons Catches Fire and Causes Series of Explosions.

FIVE WORKMEN FLEE PERIL

Flames Burst Out in Ruins of Building—Near-By Factories Severely Shaken.

Four men were severely injured yesterday afternoon in a series of three explosions which shattered the three-story building occupied by a glue factory at 144th Street and Park Avenue, the Bronx, shook surrounding buildings and sent an excited crowd clamoring into the streets from the near-by tenements.

The damage was estimated last night at $100,000. The cause of the explosions was undetermined, but was presumed to have been a combination of chemicals used in cleaning hot glue caldrons. The investigation is to be continued. The injured were as follows:

ALBERT YOUNG, 35, fireman, 429 East 144th Street; broken right shoulder.

JOSEPH JUDINO, 34, engineer and foreman of the wrecked plant, 206 Macey Place, the Bronx; burns of the face and head.

HARRY WALDMAN, 31, 2,040 Forty-first Street, Brooklyn; burns about face, head and body.

JOSEPH MacBRYAN, 34, 100 East Twenty-third Street; burns on face and fractured right leg.

The destroyed plant was operated by the Metropolitan Glue Company, which is understood to have leased the place only three weeks ago. The factory was on the third floor, which is level with the street, the sidewalks having been raised since the building was erected.

The accident occurred soon after 1 o'clock, when most of the force had left for the day. Five men had remained in the shop to clean it up. Judino, Waldman and MacBryan were at work on one of the seventy-five-gallon iron caldrons in which the glue is heated, cleaning it with a mixture containing ethyl acetate. Near them were six more barrels of ethyl acetate, and 1,000 pounds of caustic potash and ten drums of alcohol also were said to have been stored in the factory. Two other workmen, Adolph Mink of 1,447 Fifth Avenue and Albert Fuller also were busy around the factory.

As the three men worked on the huge caldron, still hot, the cleaning fluid suddenly caught fire and blazed up into their faces. They fled precipitately down the stairs to the street. They had barely reached safety outside when there was a tremendous explosion in the building behind them. The roof bulged up, then fell in, and the entire Park Avenue side of the building collapsed and tumbled across the street. Flames sprang up from the wreckage.

There was a second explosion, as violent as the first, and the 144th Street side of the building blew out in a shower of bricks. One of these bricks hit Fireman Young of Hook and Ladder 17, who was standing near by, and broke his right shoulder.

The tracks of the New York Central Railroad run only seventy-five feet away from the building, but none of the wreckage struck on the track and there was no interruption of train service.

An investigation of the fire was begun immediately by Deputy Fire Marshal Herman de Maligmon and Detective Charles Armstrong of the Alexander Avenue Police Station. Judino said the factory was conducted by two men named Halcort and Fader, but he could not tell where they lived. MacBryan also was questioned after his injuries had been dressed, but he could give little information. The police were told that the building belonged to a Mrs. Davis of Glendale Road, Corning.

DEFENDS OLD TESTAMENT.

Dr. Schulman Objects to Comparisons Laid to Dr. Fosdick.

Comparisons of the Old and New Testaments made by the Rev. Harry Emerson Fosdick, pastor of the Park Avenue Baptist Church, were criticized by the Rev. Dr. Samuel Schulman, rabbi of Temple Beth-El, Fifth Avenue and Seventy-sixth Street, in his address in the temple yesterday morning. Dr. Schulman did not refer to Dr. Fosdick by name but quoted from THE NEW YORK TIMES of Nov. 22 a report of a lecture by Dr. Fosdick on his recent visit to Palestine.

"It is rather late in the day for Jews to be called on to defend the realness of the God of the Old Testament," Dr. Schulman said, "and yet a few weeks ago a Modernist Christian preacher in the course of an address said the God of the Old Testament is not the real God. It seems to me that it does not help religion to make comparisons in popular lectures and indulge in distinctions of levels of inferiority and superiority.

"I claim the right to say that the glorious literature which is our Jewish Bible, commonly called the Old Testament, is the equal of any Bible which is the foundation of any religion."

Dr. Schulman said meetings such as the one held on last Sunday night in the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, when Catholic, Jew and Protestant voiced their common brotherhood in sympathy with suffering humanity, helped religion better than comparisons in lectures.

Rush for Christmas Gold Coins Begun Here; $15,000,000 Distribution in City Expected

The annual "gold rush" on the nation's banks has begun. Stacks of gold coins in the $2.50, $5, $10 and $20 denominations are now leaving the vaults of the Federal Reserve Banks in truckloads bound for large and small banks throughout the country, from which they will be drawn for distribution in Christmas stockings.

Executives of the Chase National Bank of New York, one of the country's largest financial institutions, estimated yesterday that between $80,000,000 and $90,000,000 in gold coins would be withdrawn from the banks of the country for use as Christmas gifts this year. The custom of distributing gold coins at the holiday season is growing steadily in popularity, and the current demand indicates this year will break all records.

More than $75,000,000 in gold was put into circulation throughout the country last year as a result of the gift custom. Within the past two weeks New York banks have withdrawn about $5,000,000 in gold coins and before the holiday rush is over the Federal Reserve Bank expects to see between $15,000,000 and $20,000,000 pass into the hands of the New York public alone.

The Treasury Department has minted a limited amount of new $2.50 gold pieces as its contribution to the holiday movement. The demand for these coins always exceeds the supply, many persons keeping them as mementos or ornaments. They are frequently purchased at premiums ranging up to 50 cents. The New York Federal Reserve Bank has available for distribution only $240,000 of the $2.50 gold coins and will be obliged to make allotments of them to all banks in this district. Supplies of the larger pieces will be ample.

The peak of the demand for gold will be reached in the three days immediately preceding Christmas. Most of the gold will be returned to the banks by the middle of January to serve as reserves until the next Christmas rolls around.

Rivaling the scramble for gold at this time of year is the expansion in the demand for currency, particularly crisp, new bills. Withdrawals of currency on a large scale started toward the end of November and will expand progressively until Christmas, after which the return will be just as rapid. Based on previous experience, the Federal Reserve Bank of New York expects to pass out between $100,000,000 and $200,000,000, while the enlarged circulation for the country as a whole will be between $300,000,000 and $400,000,000.

MRS. CHAPLIN TO SEEK DIVORCE IMMEDIATELY

Will Ask Custody of Babies—Reported as Saying She Will Return to Catholic Church.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 11 (AP).—Lita Grey Chaplin, estranged young wife of Charles Chaplin, film comedian, would file suit for divorce and custody of their two babies immediately, it was announced tonight in a statement issued in her behalf by her attorney.

The statement said this action was the result of failure to negotiate a settlement out of court.

"Negotiations pending have failed to result in any reasonable or adequate proposal on Mr. Chaplin's part for support, maintenance and education," the statement read.

"He has refused to relieve their present inconvenience and necessity. He has even made it a condition of settlement that she give up her youngest baby. This she will positively not consent to under any circumstances."

Chaplin, who has been absent from his home for three days and nights, and his attorney, Lloyd Wright, were reported out of the city tonight. Earlier in the day, however, Wright had announced a definite break in the negotiations.

"We made them a fair offer," he said, "and it was refused. The next move is up to them."

The offer mentioned by Wright, it was intimated, was for a settlement of $300,000 on condition that Mrs. Chaplin give up one of the children to the comedian.

Mrs. Chaplin has announced her intention of returning to the Catholic Church, according to The Times. She renounced the Catholic faith when she married Chaplin, who was a divorced man, two years ago, the paper quotes her as saying.

ASKED TO GET AUTO PLATES.

Westchester Residents Warned by County Clerk to Avoid Rush.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Dec. 11.—County Clerk Charles J. F. Decker gave out a statement yesterday urging residents of Westchester County to procure their automobile license plates for 1927 at once. He said that he had mailed application blanks to all automobile owners, who have heretofore procured their plates in Westchester County. But that the response on the part of the people had not been what he had hoped for.

In Westchester County there are about 70,000 pleasure cars and 15,000 commercial cars, and up to date of the pleasure cars only 10,000 applications for renewals have come into his office.

"Unless the public avail themselves of the mailing system and immediately send in their applications," Mr. Decker said, "congestion will ensue at the end of the year which will make it impossible to give service to the public along the lines which would be of great convenience to them. I wish to call the public's attention to the fact that if they delay in procuring these papers, it might be necessary for them to stand in line three or four hours waiting to be served."

NOBILE'S $800 HELD UP.

Explorer's Davenport Audience Sues His Backer.

DES MOINES, Iowa, Dec. 11 (AP).—General Umberto Nobile of Italy was forced to leave $800 behind when he closed his Iowa lecture tour Friday. His ability as a linguist was questioned by a Davenport audience, which attached a portion of his lecture receipts in a Des Moines court.

The complainants charged that General Nobile, who accompanied Roald Amundsen and Lincoln Ellsworth in the flight over the North Pole last Summer, because of his enunciation left the Davenport audience guessing as to portions of his narrative of the harrowing polar flight, particularly at the climactic moments. A suit for $1,800 against the booking company followed, and an attorney detailed to garnishee the proceeds arrived here before the General had collected in full from the promoters of his lecture.

North Pelham Orders Arrests of Violators in Illness Wave.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Dec. 11.—Complaints having been received that quarantine regulations fixed by Dr. A. C. McGuire, Health Officer of North Pelham, to check the spread of scarlet fever there, have been repeatedly violated, the Board of Trustees of North Pelham has instructed the police to arrest all violators.

For a month the spread of scarlet fever has been noticeable, it was learned when the trustees' order was made public. There are twenty-two cases now, twenty of which have been found in twelve North Pelham homes, one in Pelham Manor and one in Pelham. Dr. McGuire announced today that residents of Pelham need not feel alarmed.

Proposes a Medal for Hensen.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—A medal of honor will be conferred upon Matthew A. Hensen of New York, the negro who was Admiral Peary's only companion when the American naval officer reached the North Pole in 1909, if Congress passes a bill introduced today by Representative Celler of New York.

QUEEN MARIE'S VERSE IN WYOMING ARCHIVES

She Pays Tribute to State of Which Nellie Ross Is Governor.

CHEYENNE, Wyo., Dec. 11 (AP).—Queen Marie of Rumania has qualified as a writer of free verse in a tribute to Wyoming which was presented to Governor Nellie T. Ross and was given by her to the State Historical Department today. The encomium is titled "Oh, West, of West," and reads:

"Land of a man who as a boy was a mighty pioneer in the development of a new world. Rider, intrepid, audacious, simple, unconscious wild Western country boy of the Pony Express, William Cody, Buffalo Bill, master of the hunt, charmed against harm, loved and trusted by the Indians. Buffalo Bill, a master of picturesque beauty and grandeur, from Wyoming, a great country which has stood side by side with its sister States in the great sacrifice for victory, "I have to some to you one day."

The tribute was written with pen and ink on royal stationery and enclosed in a scroll.

HUBBARD WILL APPEAL.

He Decides to Fight $50,000 Verdict for Miss Anne Caldwell.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 11.—John W. Hubbard, clubman and manufacturer, has changed his mind about ending the breach of promise suit against him by Miss Anne Caldwell, New York show girl. Yesterday he stated that he permitted his temper to get the better of his judgment, and was sorry that he had not settled the suit. Today he said he had decided to fight to the bitter end, and would not pay without a further contest the $50,000 which the jury agreed that he owed Miss Caldwell for his failure to carry out his promise of marriage.

Mr. Hubbard's counsel said that a motion for a new trial would be made on Monday. One of the grounds to be advanced for a new trial is the contention that Judge Thomson erred in not permitting Mr. Hubbard to introduce evidence attacking Miss Caldwell. The Court, in refusing to permit a supplemental affidavit to be filed during the trial, held that Mr. Hubbard had fourteen months in which to look up the record of the plaintiff and that he had ample opportunity to make additional charges in his pleadings. The Court ruled that it would be an injustice to ask Miss Caldwell to defend herself against eleventh-hour charges.

SAYS MEXICO PLANS FOR OFFENSIVE WAR

the Government and people of the United States, who have always shown a high regard for the independence and rights of foreign States, however small and weak, would accord their moral support to the Government of Nicaragua in its efforts to defend the institutions of this nation against the aggressions of Mexico, a country twenty times larger than Nicaragua.

"My Government does not attack the political tendencies and policies now so notable in Mexico, such as laws and regulations violating private property rights, communism and the persecution of religion, in so far as these policies are limited to Mexico and do not infringe upon Nicaraguan rights.

"My Government, however, is firmly resolved to oppose the efforts of the Mexican Government to introduce these ideas and practices into Nicaragua through the violent overthrow of the established and constitutional Government and through the setting up of a régime in Nicaragua, which, having been nourished in its infancy by the funds of the Mexican Government, would doubtless remain subservient to the will of its parent during a long minority.

Friendship for Mexicans Voiced.

"The members of the Conservative Party supporting my Government cherish the warmest feelings of sympathy, racial kinship and fellowship of ideals with the Mexican people, but my Government feels a solemn obligation to set its race resolutely against the efforts of the Mexican Government, as now directed by President Calles, to erect a political order in Nicaragua, with the aid of a Nicaraguan political faction, which, following the recent sinister examples of its progenitor, would confiscate property, deny religious freedom, close churches, banish ministers of religion and establish in general in Nicaragua the manifold evils of communism and political disorder now only too apparent in Mexico.

"My Government feels that many worthy Nicaraguans, members of the historic and illustrious Liberal Party of this country of noble traditions, have, in the blindness of political passion, allied themselves with the forces of communism, radicalism and religious persecution now in control and running rampant in Mexico, but not representative of what is believed to be the true sentiments of a large majority of the Mexican people.

"My Government believes that these Nicaraguan Liberals, on due reflection upon the tragic consequences which they might bring upon their native land by aiding in turning it over to the horrors of the régime of President Calles of such unhappy fame throughout the world, will, because of their inherent patriotism and love of country, their love of their religion and their respect for the rights of property, decide to accept the olive branch of peace which my Government ever holds out to them.

Peace of "Honor" Offered.

"The peace which my Government is offering is one of honor, good faith and mutual self-interest. The few fundamental differences of opinion which divide the two histeric parties of Nicaragua and over which our Liberal brothers propose to slay their fellow countrymen, are sterile questions of constitutionality, concerning which lawyers might appropriately engage in heated arguments, but about which patriotic citizens and commonsense individuals cannot reasonably cut each others' throats.

"Technical questions of constitutionality, similar to those now being invoked by our Liberal brothers as a justification for the prosecution of a fratricidal civil war, are raised every day in the political and legal forums of every great country having a constitutional form of Government.

"These questions are often subjects of acrimonious legal debates, but, in these advanced countries, not of civil war. Thus the United States Supreme Court, the most illustrious tribunal deciding questions of constitutionality in the world, frequently resolves a disputed point of constitutional law or procedure by a five-to-four vote of its nine eminent jurists, and there is rarely an important decision rendered by that celebrated tribunal on a disputed point of constitutional law without one or more dissenting opinions of its members.

"It would be a crime against humanity were a minority dissenting opinion on a disputed point of constitutional procedure in Nicaragua to continue to cause rivers of blood to flow in fratricidal war and further to invoke the armed aid of the Mexican Government to vindicate a legal contention which the said minority have failed to sustain with their own means.

"My Government invites the Liberal Party now in arms in certain remote and sparsely inhabited regions of the republic among the banana groves of the Atlantic Coast, where they are maintaining a faction of a national Government in the sequestered buildings of an American company in a village of some 300 inhabitants, to accept peace, general amnesty, compensation for revolutionary losses on the basis of political fair play and a national Government in which the Liberal Party will be assured of an equitable participation.

"My Government is confident that considerations of patriotism and self-interest will prevail upon our Liberal antagonists to accept this invitation. It has received the recognition and moral support of the Government of the United States.

"The sister republics of Central America, whose independence and sovereignty are now categorically challenged by the armed aggressions of Mexico against the constitutional Government of Nicaragua, cannot fail to sympathize with my Government in its present attitude.

"Should the Government of Nicaragua fall at the hands of the Calles Government of Mexico, no other Central American Government would be secure from a similar fate whenever the caprice of the Mexican Government might so decide.

"The public opinion of the other nations of the world, whose interest in Nicaraguan affairs, while somewhat less important than that of the United States with which Nicaragua has 75 per cent. of its trade, and of the Central American neighbor States, must, nevertheless, be unanimous in morally supporting the attitude of my Government, now recognized not only by the United States but by the principal European nations.

"Moreover, the consistently fair treatment which all foreign interests have received in Nicaragua during the past fifteen years of Conservative Government in Nicaragua, as compared with the present fate of foreign property owners in Mexico, cannot be disregarded by any foreign Government.

"The political issue of the moment in Nicaragua is: Shall Nicaragua be free from Mexican control, from communism, from religious persecution and from all the unhappy political conditions prevailing today in Mexico?

"My Government solemnly dedicates itself to the task of maintaining Nicaraguan independence on the basis of constitutionality, law, justice and fair treatment for all political parties. It solicits the cooperation of all patriotic Nicaraguans of every shade of political opinion and the moral support of the nations of the world."

Latimer Reports Rifles Landed.

Rear Admiral Julian L. Latimer, commander of the American naval forces in Nicaraguan waters, reports that 2,100 rifles for the Liberals have been landed at La Cruz.

The revolutionists on the east coast are refusing to accept orders of W. J. Crampton, United States Customs Inspector, to permit the exportation of mahogany logs belonging to adherents of the Diaz Government.

Charges "Absurd," Mexico Says.

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 11 (AP).—When shown the statement by President Diaz reiterating his charges that the Mexican Government was supporting armed opposition to the Diaz Government, a spokesman for the Mexican Foreign Office declared today that "it is so absurd and lacking in reasonableness that it does not deserve official comment."

Washington Hears of No Parley.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—The State Department has not been officially apprised of any new development in the Nicaraguan situation and therefore is unable to confirm reports that the Diaz and Sacasa Governments are negotiating with a view to an accord, it was stated on behalf of Secretary Kellogg today.

It was pointed out by department officials, however, that the two factions might have the good offices of the United States if they requested them.

FOG AND SNOW FORCE BIG SHIPS TO ANCHOR

Eleven Outgoing Liners and Two Arriving Delayed for Hours—8,000 Passengers Aboard.

TRAFFIC IN HARBOR CREEPS

Ferryboats Five to Ten Minutes Late—Visibility Reduced to 100 Feet by Murk.

Eight thousand passengers, of whom nearly 50 per cent. were Italians, bound to spend the Christmas and New Year's holidays in their native land, were delayed several hours yesterday by a dense fog, combined with a snowstorm, which blanketed the harbor so completely that navigators could not see more than 100 feet ahead of their ships, and were compelled to anchor.

The White Star liner Majestic, with 2,350 passengers on board for Southampton via Cherbourg, was delayed so long that when the fog lifted at 3 in the afternoon she had missed the tide. The liner had to wait until 12 P. M. to get away. A notice was posted in the first and second cabin companionways informing the passengers in those two classes that they could go on shore and return by 9:30 P. M.

Among the Majestic's prominent passengers were Mrs. Reginald C. Vanderbilt, the Duchess of Roxburghe, the Countess of Granard and her three children, Prince Hohenlohe-Langenburg, Mrs. Cavendish Bentinck, the Countess de Limur and others.

Numerous Liners Delayed.

The other steamships delayed were the Roma of the Italia-America Line for Naples and Genoa, the Anchor liner Transylvania for Moville and Glasgow, the White Star liner Baltic for Queenstown and Liverpool, the Cunarder Alaunia, also for Queenstown and Liverpool, the Cunarder Antonia for Plymouth, Havre and London, the Holland-America liner Veendam for Plymouth, Boulogne and Rotterdam, the French liner Roussillon for Vigo and Bordeaux, the Ward liner Orizaba for Havana, the United Fruit steamship Ulua for Central America, the R. M. S. Araguaya for Bermuda.

The President Harding of the United States Lines, and the Nieuw Amsterdam of the Holland-America Line, both incoming and bringing numbers of Americans returning home for the holidays, were compelled to anchor for five hours off St. George, S. I., because of the thick fog, which according to pilots and navigators was one of the worst in the last ten years. No accidents were reported.

Owing to the density of the atmosphere, the sirens on the ferry boats and the bells on the timbers at the slips sounded as if they were muffled and far away. At the Battery one could not distinguish the craft creeping by beyond a hundred feet from the sea wall. The ferryboats on the North and East Rivers and from South Ferry to Staten Island and Thirty-ninth Street, Brooklyn, caused inconvenience and some delay to their passengers, but fortunately the rush of commuters was over before the fog settled down on the water of the harbor.

Some of the ferryboats were ten minutes late, between the Jersey terminals and New York City. The Greenpoint ferries were five minutes late. The fog was at its thickest about noon and commenced to lift after 2:30, when the breeze came up. By 3 o'clock the Baltic, Roma, Transylvania, Volendam and the other delayed liners started to move slowly down the river.

100 AUTOS CRASH IN NASSAU.

Cars Inch Their Way Through Fog on Icy Roads.

Special to The New York Times.

HEMPSTEAD, L. I., Dec. 11.—A dense fog rolled in from the ocean this afternoon, rendering driving on the ice-covered roads of Long Island even more difficult for motorists. At nightfall the already imposing list of accidents in Nassau County alone had passed the hundred mark and was steadily increasing, despite unusual care on the part of drivers. Because most of the cars were merely creeping along the roads, no one had been seriously injured, though many were cut and bruised. The accidents ranged from crumpled fenders to complete wrecks.

The fog was so thick that automobile headlights turned on full cut narrow beams but a few feet ahead. Ten miles an hour or less was the accepted speed. Wrecking cars patroled the highways.

At one point on the Hempstead Turnpike, only a few yards east of the Queens County line, where there is an abrupt decline for eastbound cars and a stiff climb for westbound cars, four heavy trucks lay in the ditch beside the road. No one had hit the other nor had the accidents happened at the same time. Each driver had attempted to apply his brakes at the same point on the icy incline and each had gone into the ditch.

A heavy truck met a light car head-on on the Hempstead Turnpike near Hempstead. No one was injured, but before the truck could be pushed off the road and even before a red lantern could be placed in the rear of the crumpled car another crashed into it. A third car went into a ditch to avoid the mass of wreckage. A fourth hit it, and the last one stopped within inches of it, having skidded completely around on the slippery surface and faced in the other direction.

FATHER GROGAN SAILS.

Friend of Immigrants to Spend Christmas in Ireland.

The Rev. Anthony J. Grogan, Rector of the Church of Our Lady of the Rosary at State and Whitehall Streets, who has been meeting Irish immigrants for the past twenty-five years at the piers and Ellis Island, sailed yesterday on the Cunarder Alaunia to spend Christmas with his family at Tullamore, Ireland. This is his second trip abroad since he was appointed to the old-fashioned church at the Battery which faces the Statue of Liberty. The previous one was in February, 1926, when he went to Naples and there saw the Pope in Rome. He paid a visit to Ireland on his way home.

Before sailing Father Grogan said the number of immigrants arriving in America from Ireland would steadily decrease as a result of the improved living conditions in their own country. A number of friends were at the pier to see him off and telegrams were received by him from Cardinal Hayes, Bishop John J. Dunn, Surrogate John F. O'Brien, James F. Thalmen and others.

Will Rogers Finds Congress Interested in That Surplus

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Co.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 11.—Have spent the entire day watching our two great lawmaking bodies in action. The Senate debated all day on whether to have the bridge that they are building between Oregon and Washington white or orange-colored. Dawes sat there so bored he looked like he could have murdered the ones that gave him his job.

Congress is just sitting around waiting with suggestions as to how to divide up the $350,000,000 surplus. Coolidge made a big mistake by ever telling them he had it at all. They won't get a thing done till they get that split up some way among their voters.

Sol Bloom and Copeland are looking after New York's interest.

Yours for the common people's share, WILL.

ROUTS SIX GUNMEN IN BROADWAY FIGHT

Patrolman Withstands Fire of Gang in Auto as Crowds Watch Pitched Battle.

SHOOTS CALMLY, HITS TWO

Pair Pursues as Car Speeds Away —Curious Persons Rush Into the Danger Zone—Reserves Called.

Six patrolmen and five gunmen battled with pistols early yesterday morning in Broadway between Forty-ninth and Fiftieth Streets while scores of persons going home from the six-day bicycle races at the new Madison Square Garden and the night clubs dodged the bullets. The gangsters, finding a fusillade from an automobile stopped after two of them had been wounded. Instead of fleeing from the danger zone curious people rushed to it from all directions. Police reserves were required to restore order.

Patrolman Glennon, the patrolman, who has annoyed gangdom by helping land a number of thugs to Sing Sing, was eating lunch in the St. Regis Restaurant in West Fifty-first Street near Broadway. Despite the hour, 4 o'clock, there was traffic outside and hundreds of "bike fans" were on their way to the Fiftieth Street subway station.

Glennon paid his check and sauntered back to his post. Between Forty-ninth and Fiftieth Streets, on the east side of Broadway, he noticed a heavy car with no rear license plate stop suddenly away from the curb. A man leaped from the left-hand side of the machine. The policeman noted a gray soft hat, a long nose and a gray overcoat.

Then he noticed a pistol in the man's hand. The dapper gunman apparently had not seen the policeman. Glennon did not change his pace. He reached for his own weapon and advanced. He had almost reached a position where he could cover both the man and the occupants of the car, when the gunman, glancing about, discovered him. He raised his weapon, an automatic, and a shot rang out.

Before Glennon had had time to return fire the four occupants of the automobile set up a bombardment. Fortunately for Glennon, none of the gunmen was a good marksman. Their bullets shattered window glass and dented the stone front of the Rivoli motion picture theatre.

Glennon, unhurt, dropped to his knee. People rushed around the corner of Forty-ninth and Fiftieth Streets, some, panic-stricken, tried to get back to safety. A second fusillade stemmed from the car, and the man in the fedora, who had run back to it, jumped on the running board, groaning, "I got one." Glennon, who had been shooting steadily into the rear of the car, said he heard one of the four gunmen answer, "So did I," followed by oaths.

The man with the fedora was pulled into the car by a companion, and the machine roared off up Broadway. Glennon commandeered a taxi, and a running battle ensued until the gunmen's car turned off at Fifty-fifth Street and was lost to sight. More than twenty shots were fired. The gunmen are believed to have been on a pick-up expedition or on the hunt for kidnappers.

...L BODY FROM CAR, PATROLMAN NEAR

...ects Disappear, Leaving Victim, Shot Six Times, on Sidewalk.

As Patrolman George Albrecht of the 152d Street Station passed the south of the tunnel in Park Avenue at 138th Street at 3 A. M. yesterday a heavy touring car hurtled forth at top speed and careened southward. Albrecht sounded his whistle and the car slowed down. The policeman ran forward, his hand near his hip. The car gave a sudden lurch, a door swung open, and what looked like a bundle of clothing, tumbled outward and thudded on the pavement. The machine speeded up again, and by the time Albrecht had reached the bundle and discovered it to be the body of a man it had disappeared.

The body was that of a man, apparently an Italian, nearly six feet tall, weighing 180 pounds, dressed shabbily. Attempts to fingerprints at headquarters identified him as Dominick Alvaro, 24 years old, of 2,422 First Avenue.

Alvaro had been killed by four shots in the head, one in the neck, another in the hip. The police sought out his wife, Frances, but she could give no information of who were the murderers.

Alvaro had a police record and Inspector John J. Coughlin characterized his death as the result of "a falling out between thieves."

...IX SEIZED AS HOLD-UP MEN

...ought in 15-Foot Shaft in West 50th St.—One Said to Be a Slayer.

Six men, one said to be a murderer, were arrested in an alleged speak-easy at 422 West Twenty-fifth Street early yesterday morning and held without bail in connection with the hold-up the day before of the cashier of Charles P. Rogers & Co., Inc., furniture dealers. William Ryan, the cashier, was robbed of a $5,700 payroll in front of the company's factory at 517-519 West Twenty-ninth Street in broad daylight.

The men, all of whom were hauled out of a 15-foot shaft at the West Twenty-fifth Street address, gave their names as John McCann, 29 years old, of 23 South Pennsylvania Avenue, Wilkes-Barre, Pa., wanted for murder; Ralph Lucien, 20, of 505 West Twenty-fifth Street; Edward Eakins, 20, of 420 West Twenty-fifth Street; John Pospello, 20, of 407 West Fifty-third Street; James Monohan, 20, of 412 West Nineteenth Street, and James Gerraly, 28 of 103 Thayer Street.

The one who gave his name as McCann, according to police, is Joseph Kinlen, who is being sought for the murder on Aug. 17, 1925, of John Pousant, in front of 351 West Forty-ninth Street. According to police records, Pousant was shot during an altercation over his sister. Kinlen, they said had since been in hiding.

The arrests were made by Detectives Sinclair, Stapleton and Shean of the West Thirtieth Street Station, who said the men were also suspected of having taken part in the robbery on Dec. 6 of Frank P. Smith, who was carrying a payroll at Thirty-sixth Street and Seventh Avenue.

WIFE'S '14 POINTS' UPHELD.

Decree Affirmed for Mrs. Whitney, Who Drafted Rules for Husband.

The Appellate Division of the Supreme Court in Brooklyn upheld yesterday the separation decree granted about six months ago by Supreme Court Justice William Hagarty to Mrs. Virginia Mowbray Whitney of 838 Third Street, Brooklyn. At the trial it was brought out that Mrs. Whitney had drawn up "fourteen points" to which she demanded that her husband subscribe. The husband is Arthur Whitney of 360 St. John's Place, Brooklyn.

The decree also gave $60 a month alimony to Mrs. Whitney and custody of the son, John Livingston Whitney 10 years old.

To support a charge of cruelty, Mrs. Whitney alleged that her husband struck her at the Shoreham Club, at Sound Beach, Conn., on Aug. 28, 1922.

40 ARE INDICTED FOR RUM BRIBERY

Two Former Local Justices and Former Mayor Are Named in Federal Inquiry in Ohio.

COURTS BACKED DRY RAIDS

"Fixers" Then Arranged Payment by Bootleggers for Release, Government Charges.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Dec. 11 (AP).—Forty men, including two former Justices and a former Mayor of Newburg Heights, were named in four conspiracy indictments returned today by the Federal Grand Jury in connection with the Government investigation into administrations of dry raiding justices in Cuyahoga County.

One indictment named thirty-nine persons, including former justices, dry raiders and alleged bootleggers, and another secret true bill named six persons whose identity was not revealed. The investigation is directed against alleged bribery and corruption in justice courts.

Chief among those named in the blanket indictment were Charles F. Zimmerman, former Newburg Heights Mayor; Herman Geltman, former Parma Justice, and C. O. Peters, former Justice in Independence. About twenty-five overt acts were charged to Geltman alone in this bill.

Another indictment against Geltman contained six counts. Three occasions are cited when he is alleged to have received bribes for "fixing" liquor cases.

The blanket indictment also named seventeen victims of alleged "fixing" operations. These persons were not made defendants, but are included to explain operations of those participating in the alleged conspiracy.

More indictments in the inquiry are expected later, Federal authorities indicated.

CROWDS FILE PAST BODY OF PASHITCH

Many Touching Scenes Are Recorded Before Bier of Veteran Yugoslav Premier.

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BELGRADE, Dec. 11.—All day yesterday crowds were waiting outside the late ex-Premier Pashitch's house in deep mourning. Early this morning the body was transferred to a church for a public view, which took on an atmosphere of worship as thousands filed past for a last look at the great leader. On M. Pashitch's breast stands a silver ikon which he got in Russia.

The body rests in a coffin weighing 400 kilograms and is made of oak and lead. Around the coffin stands a guard of honor.

Concerning the conflicting stories about M. Pashitch's last hours, the ex-Premier's Secretary, M. Sokolovitch, said today that his agony did not last 20 seconds.

On Thursday evening at 7 o'clock M. Sokolovitch presented his letters for signature, which he signed, laughing and joking.

Maro Trifkovitch and other important Radical Party leaders spent the whole of last night, according to Serbian custom, in a room with the body. The death mask was made by Kjoka Yovanovitch before the embalming of the body.

The patriarch Dimitrije, head of the Serbian Church and M. Pashitch's friend, wept child-like when ushered into the death room. Dimitrije will officiate at Sunday's funeral.

All the foreign diplomats personally expressed their condolences. Telegrams are pouring in from different countries There are said to be hundreds of wreaths which all the Yugoslav Radical Party organizations are sending.

The French Minister, M. Grenar, wrote:

"We are mourning a great statesman who was a faithful ally and friend and who finished the consolidare pouring in from different countries to France among all others.

Premier Mussolini of Italy sent a beautiful wreath with the inscription: To a great statesman and patriot, Nikola Pashitch, from his admirer, Benito Mussolini. The Italian Minister at Belgrade, Signor Bordero, also sent a wreath.

The Russian refugees this afternoon held a commemoration service. The Russians always thought and had cause to think of M. Pashitch as their greatest friend.

An emotional moment came when M. Pashitch's old servant, Svetozar Uroshevitch came. The same age as M. Pashitch, Uroshevitch fell over the body weeping and crying in a distressed old voice.

M. Pashitch's unmarried daughter, Rada, shut herself in her apartment, where she cries and refuses to see anybody. His married daughter, Pava Ratshitch, arrived this morning from Dubrovnik, having traveled half-way in an auto and half in a special train.

One untoward incident occurred to spoil the solemn occasion. The incident allegedly arose from the inability of the Croatian leader, Stefan Raditch, to remain friends long with M. Pashitch, even though dead. As M. Raditch and the other Croatian leaders were leaving the house where they went to express their consolation the crowds outside began anti-Raditch shouting. M. Raditch demanded apologies from the family of M. Pashitch, which were not forthcoming; therefore M. Raditch decided that his party would not participate in the funeral. M. Raditch himself, as a demonstration, departed to Zagrab today.

CHICAGO AT ODDS OVER ORMISTON

State's Attorney Orders His Arrest, but Police Chief Awaits Pacific Warrant.

LATTER UPBRAIDS SLEUTH

Condemns Apprehension in Harrisburg (Pa.) of Mrs. McPherson's Former Radio Operator.

CHICAGO, Dec. 11 (AP).—While Kenneth Ormiston remained today in a suite provided by his captors following his detention at Harrisburg, Pa., officials of Chicago and Cook County bickered over his disposition. He has not been arrested.

The former radio operator, charged in California with subornation of perjury and conspiracy to obstruct justice in the Aimee Semple McPherson kidnapping case, was apparently undisturbed by the asperities which he aroused between the Chief of Police and the State's Attorney.

The latter official, Robert E. Crowe, telephoned today to Chief Collins that he understood Ormiston had been brought to Chicago last night in the company, but not in the custody, of Harry Donnelly, a city detective, and directed that Ormiston be arrested.

Chief Collins replied that he did not know Ormiston's whereabouts. Mr. Crowe responded that there was a warrant out for Ormiston's arrest and directed the Police Department to produce him at the State Attorney's office at 11:30 o'clock.

That hour came and went. Photographers poised their flashlights and cameras in the corridors of the Criminal Court Building. But Ormiston did not appear nor did the State's Attorney.

Later police executives indicated that no steps had been taken to produce Ormiston, and Chief Collins said the radio man was not wanted here for anything and would not be arrested except on a fugitive warrant from California.

The Chief of Police upbraided Donnelly for going to Pennsylvania to detect a man neither sought here nor charged with an infraction of the law in this city and county. But Donnelly explained he thought the Chief's permission to work on the case had been given carte blanche.

NEW PLEA FOR AFFLICTED.

Brown Seeks Immediate Funds for Jews Abroad.

With the rigors of Winter threatening acute new hardships to hundreds of thousands of Jewish men, women and children in eastern Europe, a new call for funds to be rushed overseas for immediate aid was issued yesterday by David A. Brown, national Chairman of the United Jewish Campaign.

The call was sent to State and local officers of the campaign in every section of the country, urging them to make available with the utmost speed possible the moneys pledged to the overseas fund by the hundreds of communities in which drives have already been held.

Nearly 1,500 communities in every part of the United States, it was said within the year have conducted local drives for the campaign which is raising a $25,000,000 national fund for relief and reconstruction aid in the affected countries.

KIRK, DRY AGENT, OUSTED.

Weehawken Man Is Charged With Hudson County Political Activity.

Colonel Ira L. Reeves, Regional Prohibition Administrator in New Jersey, announced yesterday that he had recommended the dismissal of Agent Charles Kirk of Weehawken, who had a prominent part in the Weehawken rum exposure in 1924.

According to Colonel Reeves, Kirk resigned Friday at the Administrator's request, but withdrew his resignation yesterday. Colonel Reeves thereupon notified prohibition headquarters at Washington of Kirk's dismissal, and requested a confirmation.

Colonel Reeves charged that Kirk, who is a Republican, has been active in Hudson County politics, and said that he did not permit his agents to interest themselves in politics.

SALM IN SECLUSION; HASN'T FOUND JOB

Count Is Said to Be Dissatisfied With Reported $500,000 Offer to Settle Suit Against Wife.

ENDING OF ACTION EXPECTED

He Says He Can Get Work, but Can't "Bother With Such Petty Matters" as $400 or $500 Month.

Count Ludwig Salm went into retirement yesterday to await the outcome of negotiations with Colonel Henry H. Rogers which are expected to culminate in the Count dropping suit against his wife, the former Millicent Rogers, for separation and for custody of their 3-year-old son Peter.

Trial of the suit has already been adjourned and the Count is no longer visiting his son four times weekly, as he is permitted to do by court order.

The count is reported to be dissatisfied with an offer of $500,000 to drop the suit and quit the country. He checked out of the Gladstone Hotel at 114 East Fifty-second Street yesterday afternoon after instructing attendants to conceal the destination of his baggage. He left no forwarding address, but told a reporter that he was "just going down to some friends on Long Island for the week-end."

Herman B. Goodstein, his attorney, denied he had gone to Long Island. "He has moved to a private apartment right in New York City," he declared. "He doesn't want to be disturbed." Mr. Goodstein declined to discuss the reported offer of $500,000.

Count Salm, who denies the truth of the report and insists that he is not averse to work, was asked if he had found a job.

"I have had some offers," he replied. "But nothing that I would consider." He recalled a position he had had with a manufacturing company in New Jersey. "That was my last position," he said, "but they gave me only $400 or $500 a month. Of course, I could not bother with such a petty matter as that."

Mr. Goodstein characterized as "all bunk" a rumor that his client was about to sue Colonel Rogers for $1,000,000 on the grounds of alienating the affections of the Countess.

Boys' Club Gains in 50 Years.

The annual report of the Boys' Club, Avenue A and Tenth Street, which was organized fifty years ago, contains the story of its origin in Tompkins Square through the energy of E. H. Harriman. He recognized the evil results of having no better playground for boys than the streets. He started with three boys. The club has now 7,800 members in a seven-story clubhouse, three complete Summer camps, medical and dental clinics and an employment bureau. Under construction is a clubhouse uptown to cost $780,000. The President of the organization is Charles H. Sabin.

...HMAN ACTS TODAY TO END RED CONTROL

...International Garment Union Is Expected to Plan to Take Over Cloakmakers' Strike.

WORKERS CLAMOR FOR JOBS

...Effort to Have Lockout of 20,000 Employes Called Off Also Likely —Dress Union Hits Communists.

...responding to appeals from the rank and file of the striking cloakmakers, ...President Morris Sigman of the Inter...national Ladies' Garment Workers' Union announced last night that a special meeting of the union's Executive Board would be held at the Hotel Cadillac this morning. Important action looking to the assumption of control of the entire local situation by the International Union will probably be taken at today's meeting.

It is understood that plans will be drawn up to take the leadership of the strike out of the hands of the Communist and Left Wing forces led by Louis Hyman, Chairman of the General Strike Committee; Charles Zimmerman, Joseph Boruchowitz and Julius Portnoy.

The plans include an effort to prevail on the contractors to call off their lockout of 20,000 workers, many of whom have been clamoring in the meeting halls for permission to go back to work.

Strikers in Further Appeals.

The revolt of the locked-out workers against their Communist and Left Wing leaders was marked by further visits of union members to Mr. Sigman with requests that he act to bring order out of the chaotic situation, so that they may be enabled to return to their shops.

The Communists made efforts to turn a meeting called at Beethoven Hall to distribute the weekly union benefits to striking cutters, into a demonstration against the pro-Sigman leaders of the Cutters' Union. David Dubinsky, manager of the Cutters' Union, who learned that his members had been detained for several hours while Communist attacks were made on the union administration, hurried to the hall and demanded the immediate distribution of the strike benefits. He charged that the payments had been withheld several days to incite the members of the union against their leaders, who come up for re-election next week. The benefits were paid without further delay.

Communist leaders of the cloakmakers were condemned at a meeting of Local 89, consisting of 6,000 dressmakers, headed by Luigi Antonini. The dressmakers are not on strike, but their agreement expires this month and a movement is under way to prevent a strike of the 25,000 dressmakers in the industry. The dressmakers are affiliated with the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union and the head of the dress division is Charles Zimmerman, who is also Vice Chairman of the Cloakmakers' General Strike Committee and a member of the Trade Union Educational League and the Communist Party.

Dressmakers Are Antagonized.

Recent intimations by associates of Zimmerman that a dressmakers' strike will be called at the end of this month have aroused antagonism in the dressmakers' unions. The Trade Union Educational League, directed by W. Z. Foster, who has been in touch with some of the cloak strike leaders, has called a meeting for Jan. 1 and 2 in this city to discuss the situation in the dress industry.

Local 89 of the dressmakers' division adopted a resolution supporting the officers of the International Union, the parent organization, in its fight against the Communists.

Louis Hyman, Chairman of the General Strike Committee, who was reported to have conferred with C. E. Ruthenberg, Alexander Trachtenberg and other leaders of the Communist Party, denied that he had ever met Ruthenberg.

The Merchants' Ladies' Garment Association, the jobbers, met at the Hotel McAlpin yesterday and adopted a resolution backing up the stand of the American Cloak and Suit Manufacturers' Association, the sub-manufacturers, in their lockout of the 20,000 workers because the Communist leaders refused to give the sub-manufacturers the same agreement as that written with the inside manufacturers. The jobbers announced an agreement with the sub-manufacturers whereby they promised to deal with none but contractors conducting union shops if the later obtained the same terms from the union as those granted to the inside manufacturers.

Joseph Engel, President of the Jobbers' Association, said the jobbers were not employers of labor, as they bought garments from sub-manufacturers or had them made up by the sub-manufacturers. The issue to him was whether, as free Americans, the jobbers would be permitted to conduct their business as efficiently as possible or whether they would submit "to disastrous interference with the conduct of our business by a labor union whose members we do not employ."

Samuel C. Beakind, President of the American Cloak and Suit Manufacturers, announced that the Executive Board would meet in a few days to decide when the 800 shops of the contractors might reopen.

The assertion that the shutdown of members of his association was general was disputed by Chairman Hyman of the General Strike Committee, who asserted that only a few shops closed down. The contractors again demanded that the strike leaders permit submission of the dispute to arbitration.

SEEKS CHICAGO MAYORALTY

Thompson to Run Again and on Wet Platform.

CHICAGO, Dec. 11 (AP).—William Hale Thompson, who served two terms as Mayor, again is a candidate on a platform advocating repeal of the Volstead act. The announcement was made at a political rally last night in response to 423,000 pledge cards piled ten feet deep in front of the speaker's stand.

"I accept, and with grateful thanks," said the war-time Mayor when a speaker tossed his hat upon the cards and reminded him that he had promised to run for Mayor if 350,000 pledges were obtained.

TELEPHONE JUBILEE PAST.

Smithsonian Ceremony of Thursday Did Not Mark 50th Anniversary.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—A bust of Alexander Graham Bell was unveiled at the Smithsonian Institution here on Thursday, the occasion being the annual meeting of the Board of Regents of the institution.

The year 1926 is the fiftieth anniversary of the discovery of the telephone, but there is some dispute as to the exact day. Officials of the Smithsonian said the principle of the telephone was discovered on June 2, 1875, the first conversation was held over the telephone on March 7, 1876, and the patent was granted on March 10, 1876.

A bust of Alexander Graham Bell, inventor of the telephone, which was unveiled on Thursday at the Smithsonian Institution in Washington, was the work of a New York sculptor, Victor Salvatore, it was made known locally yesterday. Salvatore, who is an Italian by birth, lives at 8 Macdougal Alley. He has received several awards for his work, including a bronze medal at the St. Louis Exposition in 1904; a silver medal at the Panama-Pacific Exposition in San Francisco, 1915, and the Barnett Prize in 1913.

Walter Gifford, President of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, presented the bust to the Smithsonian Institution; Mrs. Gilbert Grosvenor, daughter of the inventor, unveiled it, and Chief Justice Taft formally received it.

Although the fiftieth anniversary of the patenting of the telephone occurred last March, the presentation at the Smithsonian was in the nature of an anniversary celebration. "Back in 1876, when Dr. Bell was despairing of his completing the instrument, it was Joseph Henry, then Secretary of the Smithsonian Institution, who gave him the encouragement to go ahead and learn more about electricity. Bell took Henry's advice and was enabled to make his conception an actuality.

REPUBLICANS WARN OF FARMERS' PLIGHT

It Menaces Industry With Loss of Great Market, Declare Luncheon Speakers.

WADSWORTH ASSAILS TAXES

Opposes Further Credits to Farms or Government Paternalism—Praises Cooperatives.

The farmer is not getting a square deal and it behooves industry to concern itself for his plight or it will lose a very substantial part of its home market, according to several of the speakers yesterday at the Saturday luncheon of the Republican Club, at which Senator James W. Wadsworth Jr. spoke as a farmer, but not in entire agreement with the other speakers.

Senator Wadsworth had talked with considerable feeling on the manner in which taxes had been increased, contending that though the Federal Government had reduced taxes, the States and municipalities had raised them so there had been no net saving. He said this affected the farmer deeply. He asserted that unless this stopped, there would be no value to any undertaking for farm relief. Then he said:

"I very much dread that in the present situation agriculture in this country may deliver itself into the hands of Government. I dread the day when from a Government office in Washington, or a Government office anywhere else, there shall come a decree that I and my neighbors shall sell a particular crop for a certain amount of money, at a certain place and to certain specified individuals or concerns. I have never seen, nor do I ever expect to see, the Government engage in a commercial business without politics being injected into that effort."

Approves Cooperatives.

The Senator condemned paternalistic efforts in Government, and heartily approved of cooperative movements among farmers.

"There has been a lot of talk about the extension of credit," he said. "I think the Government has gone as far as it can in that direction. Sometimes I think we are all in the habit of borrowing too much—Governments and individuals. It is a significant fact that in my county the bond issue amendment was beaten 9 to 1. I think there was a psychological condition behind that vote. The farmer has learned so much about debt and been burdened with it so much, that he is instinctively against more debt, and I agree with him."

Senator William H. McMasters of North Dakota said he did not think the farmer got enough benefit out of the tariff, which acts to increase the cost of nearly everything he has to buy. He contended that industry must realize how dependent it is on agriculture. The farm problem in this country, he said, threatens to destroy the purchasing power of between 6,000,000 and 9,000,000 of the population."

Industry's Stake Told.

Magnus W. Alexander, President of the National Conference Board, agreed with Senator McMasters as to the vital interest that industry has in the agricultural situation. He asserted:

"If agriculture is economically handicapped and therefore not prosperous, industry, commerce, finance and transportation cannot attain their full measure of prosperity because of the impairment of one of their principal customers."

He pointed out that the income of the farmers, though they constitute one-third of the population, has been decreased to 10 per cent. of the national income, and probably will not be more than 7½ per cent. of the national income this year.

R. W. Dunlap, Assistant Secretary of Agriculture, spoke, he said, as a farmer rather than as a member of the Administration. He asserted that the purchasing power of the farmer's products is again declining, and is now six points lower than it was last year.

MERSEREAU PLEA IN COURT.

Tennis Head Gets Order for Wife to Appear for Contempt Hearing.

Supreme Court Justice Crain granted yesterday the application by Jones W. Mersereau, President of the United States Lawn Tennis Association, for an order directing the Sheriff of New York County to bring his wife, Mrs. Edith B. Mersereau and their two children, Wilder and Jones Mersereau, before the court on Monday for a hearing as to whether she should be punished for contempt of court.

Mr. Mersereau appealed to the Court because of the refusal of his wife to return their sons to St. Paul's School at Garden City, L. I., on Dec. 9, as directed by Justice Crain in habeas corpus proceedings brought the day before, because his wife had taken the boys from school. He said in asking for the punishment of his wife for disobedience of the Court order that she told his attorney in the presence of others that she intended to ignore it, and has done so.

The Mersereaus have been living apart under a separation agreement since Aug. 30.

...AZIER RESTORED TO REPUBLICAN FOLD

...ority Managers Vote North Dakotan His Old Seniority Rights in Present Senate.

...FERENCE WILL APPROVE

...publicans Forgive Insurgent for Role of His Vote Next Session—Other Committee Changes.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—Senator ...ank J. Frazier, the North Dakota ...ogressive, who, with Senators Brook...hart and Ladd and former Senator La ...ollette, was ejected from the coun...ils of the Senate Republicans two ...ears ago, but whose political adher...nce is essential to Republican control ...f the next Senate, was officially taken ...ack into the fold this afternoon. The ...epublican Committee on Committees ...oted to restore Senator Frazier to the ...eniority rights in the present Sen...te which he held on committees be...ore he was thrown out for his radical...sm. In addition to other places which ...e will regain he will become, through ...he action today, the second ranking ...epublican on the Committee on In...ian Affairs, and, because Senator ...apper, the committee Chairman, was ...efeated for re-election, Mr. Frazier ...ill head that committee in the next ...ongress.

The Committee on Committees will ...eport to a Republican conference on ...onday, to which it is expected Sena...or Frazier will be invited and which ...ill also almost certainly reinstate him ...s a full-fledged Republican. Ratifi...ation of the committee action virtu...lly is assured, as the Republicans are ...obliged to have Senator Frazier and ...enator Shipstead, the Minnesota in...ependent, with them to organize the ...enate in the Seventieth Congress.

Another concession made by the ...ommittee on Committees to an insur...ent was the naming of Senator Nor...is of Nebraska as Judiciary Com...ittee Chairman to succeed the late ...enator Cummins. Senator Norris is ...hairman of the Agricultural Com...ittee, but prefers to leave that post ...o Senator McNary, the ranking mem...er, and to accept the Judiciary post, ...hich Senator Borah wishes to re...inquish, as he desires to retain his ...resent command of the Foreign Re...ations Committee.

One more change was the appoint...ent of Senator Edge of New Jersey ...o fill the Finance Committee vacancy ...reated by the death of Senator Mc...ary of Illinois. The Norris and ...dge appointments are effective in the ...resent Senate.

In view of the overtures which have ...een made to him by the Administra...ion and its Senate lieutenants, there ...as nothing unexpected in the Frazier ...ction. Republican leaders promised ...im some time ago his old places if ...e would vote with them next March. ...ll plans were laid and apparently ...ere going smoothly until a short ...hile ago, when Senator Frazier and ...is colleague, Senator Nye, became ag...rieved over an appointment President ...oolidge made without consulting Sen...tor Nye. The situation then became ...ritical and the North Dakotans were ...ngaged on a visit to the White ...ouse. Senator Nye obtained a promise ...hat the appointment would not be ...ade and that he would be asked ...bout future North Dakota patronage.

After Senator Frazier's ejection by ...he regulars two years ago he was ...laced at the bottom of his committees ...nd was designated in the committee ...ists as an' independent along with ...enator Shipstead. But now that he ...as suddenly become a regular Repub...ican he leaps upward in rank not only ...n the Indian Affairs Committee but ...lso on Banking and Currency, Mines, ...orests and Postoffices.

Removal of Senator Frazier's case to...ay winds up the story of the four ...enators ousted in 1924 because they ...ppealed to the then Senator La Follette ...hen he ran against Mr. Coolidge for ...he Presidency. Since then Senators ...adge and La Follette have died, and ...enator Brookhart has been defeated ...y Mr. Steck, a Democrat.

BULGARIANS ESCAPE FEUD SHOTS IN VIENNA

Bomb Fails to Kill Two Former Colleagues Exiled From Native Land.

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VIENNA, Dec. 11.—For the second time in less than a year Vienna was chosen by Bulgarian feudists as a setting for a drama of blood. Contrary to custom, however, the intended victims this time escaped unscathed. They were Philip Atanasoff, leader of the Macedonian Federalist Movement, and Lieutenant Slawe Jwanoff.

MM. Atanasoff and Jwanoff were sitting in the former's home when a 28-year-old Bulgarian dancing teacher, Boris Proseff, entered and without a word opened fire, missing both, but seriously wounding M. Atanasoff's landlady.

Proseff fled from the house and was caught by some passing men and turned over to the police. M. Atanasoff is a colleague of Todor Panitza, who was killed by a "woman patriot" in the Vienna Burg Theatre earlier in the year. Both fled from Bulgaria when the "Imro," the anti-Federalist organization, decided to kill them as its next victims in a feud which dates back to 1903.

By the feud laws Proseff now also becomes an exile from his native country, because his colleagues would kill him on his return for his failure to carry out their orders to kill M. Atanasoff.

FIGHTS ALIMONY SENTENCE.

H. P. Hevenor, Engineer, Seeks Release From Ludlow Street Jail.

Herman P. Hevenor, an engineer specializing in railway construction, who is said to have built the Municipal Street Railway in Detroit and has been employed by the New Haven Railroad, applied in the Supreme Court yesterday to be released from Ludlow Street jail, where he was taken on Nov. 17 when he was fined $10,150 for failure to pay alimony to Anna E. Hevenor, in a separation suit in Westchester County. He contends that the papers on which he was made a member of the "Alimony Club" are defective.

Mr. Hevenor said in his petition that his wife got a decree on Jan. 8, 1924, for $175 a month for herself, and $37.50 each for their two children. When she sought to have him punished for failure to pay he was without funds to hire an attorney, he said, so he consulted his father-in-law and brother-in-law, and they advised him not to appear because it would only antagonize his wife. The next thing he knew the Sheriff took him to jail.

Attached to the petition of Mr. Hevenor is his wife's affidavit in which she says he has held important positions and has received as high as $100,000 a year, which he got on the Detroit job. She says he disappeared after the alimony order was signed, and that she and her children would have been compelled to appeal to the town of Mamaroneck or to her friends for support if her father had not aided her.

...MITTEE ADOPTS ALIEN CLAIMS BILL

...ce for Return of Property ... Paying American Losses ... Go to House Wednesday.

...LY PASSAGE EXPECTED

...,000,000 Needed to Start Plan ... Over $270,000,000 From German Funds in Escrow.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—The Ways and Means Committee by a unanimous vote today adopted a bill to restore alien property taken during the World War and for the payment of damages to American claimants against Germany.

Chairman Green will report it on Monday and the present plan is to take it up without delay and pass it before the holiday recess. There appears to be little opposition to it as amended now and apparently it should become a law in a month.

Congress will be asked to appropriate about $50,000,000 to carry out the terms in the complicated plan.

It provides for an appropriation equal to the valuation of the ships, patents and radio equipment seized from Germany by the American Government. Half of the allowance for the valuation of this seized property is to be applied to the payment of the American-German claimants, who have agreed to accept 50 per cent. of the awards for ships, &c., and to wait for an indefinite period for the balance.

Provision is made to pay all awards of American claimants up to $100,000. On all large awards payments of a sum not exceeding 70 per cent. are to be made on a pro-rata basis.

By its terms 20 per cent. of the alien property in custody of the Alien Property Custodian is to be used to pay American claimants. The remainder goes to the owners. Certificates of indebtedness will be given to those Germans whose property is confiscated.

It is estimated that the value of seized property is $370,000,000, making $54,000,000 for American claimants.

All German property eventually will be returned, taking about twenty years under this bill.

The first payment to American claimants will come out of $26,000,000 of unallocated interest on seized German property which has accumulated in the Treasury. This interest also eventually will be returned to the German owners.

The 2½ per cent. allowed America by the Reparation Commission under the Dawes plan is to be applied to the payments of American claimants. This amounts to about $11,000,000 per annum. None of the funds paid to the United States are to repay the cost of occupation on the Rhine.

According to Chairman Green, all the awards to victims of the Lusitania disaster, amounting to $2,750,000, will be paid in full.

With the exception of 178 large claims awarded by the Mixed Claims Commission, about 1,300 such awards will also be paid in full.

Up to the present the Mixed Claims Commission has granted awards to American claimants of $190,000,000 and to the American Government of $60,000,000. About 300 cases are pending and these may add $40,000,000 to the awards.

GRADE CROSSINGS TO GO.

Transit Commission to Abolish Those in Bayside and Auburndale.

The Transit Commission has initiated proceedings looking to the elimination next year of further grade crossings on the north side division of the Long Island Railroad at an estimated cost of approximately $1,000,000. Of the two principal crossings concerned, one is known as the Whitestone Road (Cross Island Boulevard) in Auburndale, and the other is at Bell Avenue, Bayside.

Counsel for the commission, it was announced last night, has been asked to obtain the names of property owners in the vicinity of these two crossings preparatory to the calling of a public hearing.

GIRL WITH PISTOL ROBS BANK IN TEXAS

when she suddenly drew a gun from her coat and commanded:

"Stand where you are!"

"Move over closer to him," she commanded Howe. He obeyed.

The girl then ordered both men into the vault.

Abandoned Auto Leads to Arrest.

She told Jamieson to unlock the safe. "Dig that money out," she commanded, her gun leveled at Jamieson's head, with Howe also in front of its muzzle.

Jamieson handed out two packages of currency, each containing $1,200; another he dropped to the floor without the girl seeing it.

She then slammed and locked the vault door, leaving the men inside.

Persons on the street, who had not suspected the robbery, said they saw her calmly enter her coupe and drive away on the Post Road toward Austin.

With a screwdriver Jamieson and Howe succeeded in opening the vault door from the inside within ten minutes and immediately telephoned officers at Austin and other towns.

Austin police and Travis County officers immediately set watch on roads between Buda and Austin for the girl, but did not intercept her.

Late this afternoon her automobile was found parked in Austin. The car provided the clue which led to the arrest of Miss Bradley.

Linked to Visitor in Town Near By.

Tom Nelson, President of the Farmers' State Bank at Round Rock, near here, revealed tonight that a young woman, answering the description of the Buda bank robber, had "hung around" his bank for several days this week. She represented herself to be a Waco newspaper woman.

Mr. Nelson said that yesterday afternoon she came into his bank and yelled "fire" several times, but that he and the bank employes paid little attention to her. A vacant house did burn in Round Rock yesterday afternoon.

This morning she again came to the bank and was questioned about the fire, but denied all knowledge of it.

While in the bank the young woman asked customers about crop conditions and several times questioned bank employes on what they did in case of fire, whether they "dashed out of the bank."

REINDEER THEFT IS FOILED.

But Buffalo Zoo Specimen Breaks Leg and Is Killed.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Dec. 11 (AP).—Some one tried to steal one of Santa Claus's reindeer from the Buffalo Zoo last night.

Although the thief was frustrated, Santa's team will be one short this year, unless he has a spare steed, because the deer stumbled and broke a leg as the robber was dragging it away. Keepers frightened the man and he escaped in an automobile.

The animal had to be shot, but nevertheless it will bring some Christmas cheer to children, for Commissioner Moore ordered it sent to a packing plant to be properly dressed for an appearance on the dinner table of one of the city's orphanages.

B. W. MORSE BANKRUPT.

Son of Steamship Man Owes $229,759 and Has No Assets.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Dec. 11.—A voluntary petition in bankruptcy was filed here today by Benjamin W. Morse, son of Charles W. Morse, the steamship executive, with liabilities of $229,759 and no assets.

The premature end of the real estate boom in Cape Cod contributed to his financial troubles, it was said.

The largest creditor against Mr. Morse is the United States Government, with a claim for $87,000 unpaid income tax for 1920. Other large creditors, none of whom is secured, are the Continental Trust Company of Washington, D. C., $32,807, and the Dollar Bank of Wheeling, W. Va., $54,000. The latter claim was in connection with the financing of the Adriatic Steamship Company.

MOTORS JOIN HUNT FOR MRS. CHRISTIE

Thousands in Cars and Cycles to Scour Surrey Downs for Novelist.

PUBLICITY THEORY SCORNED

Her Writing Career Laid to Interest in Dorothy Arnold's Disappearance Sixteen Years Ago Today.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Dec. 11.—Thousands of motorists and amateur detectives will spend Sunday helping the police seek Mrs. Christie, the American writer of detective novels, who has been missing under sensational circumstances since last Friday. Without telling why, the police still believe that she is somewhere on the downs not far from the spot at Newlands Corner, Surrey, where her empty automobile was found.

Today the police appealed to the public to assist in the search, and requested owners of bloodhounds to bring them to the downs. The searchers have been told to gather at various spots, from which the detectives will direct their movements.

Theories advanced today to account for the novelist's disappearance are, first, that she has been murdered or abducted; second, that she has committed suicide, and third, that she has deliberately disappeared.

The police lack clues in support of the first theory. The second is believed probable, but if so, where is the body? The third supposition is now being investigated. It has received some credence from an advertisement in The Daily Herald announcing the forthcoming serial publication of "The Mystery of the Downs" by Agatha Christie in that newspaper. But it may be that this story has been in the hands of Mrs. Christie's literary agent for some time and that he took advantage of the billows of publicity she is receiving to dispose of it.

Secretary Flouts Voluntary Flight.

The novelist's secretary today indignantly denied the idea of her voluntary disappearance for purposes of publicity.

"It is ridiculous," said the secretary. "Mrs. Christie is much too quite a lady for that. She never for a moment would think of causing all this sorrow and suspense. Naturally, I have a great deal to do with her and know her ways and moods intimately. That's why I am certain that the people who suspect her of disappearing, either for the sake of publicity or to work out a new plot or for any other reason, are wrong. It is the last thing in the world she would do."

Before her disappearance, Mrs. Christie wrote three letters in none of which she said anything indicating mental aberration. The most important was one left for her secretary. It is the only one that was not destroyed and is in the hands of the police. One of the letters was a personal note to her husband. He declares there was nothing in it having any possible bearing on his wife's whereabouts. Another was to a brother-in-law. It gave no clue to her movements. Both these letters were burned. The letter to the secretary contained only ordinary instructions.

Canceled Week-End Engagement.

"At first I thought it unimportant," said the secretary, "and I did not think of showing it to the police, but in order to satisfy them I handed it over. It merely told me to cancel an engagement she had at Beverley, in Yorkshire, because, as she was feeling queer, she would not go there for the week-end. She wrote that she was going for a run in her car and would let me know Saturday by telegram or telephone where she was.

"There was nothing unusual in this, because often when she felt a little restless she would go for a run in her car and come back refreshed. She did not write the words attributed to her to the effect that if she did not leave Sunningdale soon, it would be the end of her. There is nothing of the kind in her note."

One clue on which hope had been based was abandoned today. It suggested an explanation of the mystery might be found in examination of the unfinished manuscript of the novelist's story, "The Blue Train," which was believed to be in the possession of her brother-in-law.

"We are disappointed," said his wife today, "that his suggestion has come to nothing. It was not 'The Blue Train,' but an earlier manuscript that Mrs. Christie sent to my husband."

Deputy Chief Constable Kenward of Surrey today reiterated his conviction that a solution of the mystery would be found near Newhands Corner.

"My Sergeants are on duty there day and night and I expect developments," he said.

Followed Dorothy Arnold Case.

LONDON, Dec. 11 (AP).—Dorothy Arnold's disappearance in New York sixteen years ago is believed to have inspired the American novelist, Agatha Clarissa Christie, to adopt her career of writing mystery fiction.

When Dorothy Arnold disappeared from her home in New York in January, 1911, Mrs. Christie, a few years her senior, took an intense interest in the search. She even talked of going to New York to satisfy her curiosity concerning so unusual a case. Friends recall that she read all the cabled developments in the Arnold mystery and for weeks bought the New York papers as the investigation was conducted in one part of the world after another.

On a crisp day, Dec. 12, 1910, just after noon, Dorothy Arnold dressed smartly in a blue tailor-made suit, a long blue coat, a small black velvet hat and carrying a black fox muff, left her parents' home at 108 East Seventy-ninth Street, after telling her mother she was going shopping.

She stopped at the Fifty-ninth Street store of Park & Tilford and bought a box of candy. Then she walked along Fifth Avenue to Brentano's and bought a book, "An Engaged Girl's Sketches." Salesmen at both places recognized her and remembered her visit, but after leaving the book store all trace of her vanished as completely as if the ground had opened up and swallowed her.

Today, exactly sixteen years to the day since she left her home, the disappearance of Dorothy Arnold is as much an unsolved mystery as it was then.

ITALIAN FLIERS HAILED ON RETURN AS HEROES

Naples and Rome Cheer Major de Bernardi, Winner of Schneider Cup, and Teammates.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, Dec. 11.—Major Mario de Bernardi, winner of the Schneider Cup at the international race at Newport News, Va., and his teammates, Captain Arturo Ferrari and Lieutenant Adriano Bacula, were welcomed back to Italy today as conquering heroes. In Naples, where they landed from the liner Duilio this morning, and later in Rome, where they arrived this evening, high officials vied with the humblest citizens in giving them honor.

In Naples, in addition to all local authorities, they were met by Signora deBernardi, who greeted her husband most affectionately half way down the gangway and gave to him a large bunch of red roses. In Rome the fliers were welcomed officially by Italo Balbo, Under-Secretary of Aeronautics, representing the Cabinet, and Prince Potenziani, recently appointed Governor of Rome, representing the city. In both places many thousands of citizens cheered the returning aviators.

Major deBernardi expressed high praise for the sporting spirit displayed by American airmen, for the great kindness shown to the Italian competitors wherever they went in America and for the perfect organization of the Schneider Cup race. He said he was looking forward to meeting the American aviators again in Italian waters next year.

"The organization of the race," he said, "was absolutely perfect. Everything went like clockwork. The events were remarkable, as was the extraordinary cordiality shown by all officers and officials with whom we came into contact. From the President down all seemed to put themselves out to be kind to us. I wish publicly to thank them all through THE NEW YORK TIMES.

"I also wish to express my admiration for the remarkable sporting spirit displayed by the American competitors. They all flew a fine race and were the first to congratulate us on our victory. Cuddihy especially flew remarkably well and was a dangerous opponent always. Next year I hope to compete again with him in Italian waters.

"I ascribe our victory chiefly to the greater ease with which the Italian machines can be handled, which gave us a great advantage in rounding corners at the two ends of the course."

Replying to the congratulations of the Italians, Major de Bernardi said: "The merit is not ours. Premier Mussolini sent us to America, saying that we must win. We have obeyed; that is all."

Luncheon for Mexican Official.

...DD A WITNESS ...LONDON BOOK CASE

...Ambassador to Italy Denies ...Connection With Author of "Whispering Gallery."

...LANE ALSO GIVES EVIDENCE

...of Publishing Company ...Told Court Book Was Never ...Referred to Firm's Reader.

...1926, by The New York Times Company. Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Dec. 11.—Sir Rennell Rodd, who woke up one morning recently to find himself famous as the author of "Whispering Gallery," a book he never wrote, which he subsequently indignantly repudiated, today testified in the now famous case concerning it.

Ralph Pearson, charged with securing money under false pretenses in connection with the publication of the book and alleged to have sold the manuscript to the John Lane Company on the strength of Sir Rennell Rodd, a former British Ambassador to Italy, being the author, was also in court today.

...Lane, a member of the publishing company, who purchased the book and arranged for its publication, also testified.

...Rennell Rodd on the witness stand declared he had no recollection of ever meeting Mr. Pearson, or ever hearing his name before Nov. 21, about the time the publication of "Whispering Gallery," purporting to contain the views of a well-known diplomat, caused an angry storm.

...questions, the veteran diplomat said it had been his custom to keep notebooks in which he wrote. He added emphatically that he had not shown these notebooks to Mr. Pearson, and declared that he had neither written nor telephoned to Mr. Pearson about "Whispering Gallery."

Sir Rennell also said that he could find out a large number of things in the book which could not possibly have happened.

Points Out Errors.

"It does not bear any resemblance to your literary style?" asked the presiding counsel.

"It is hard for me to judge, but I do not recognize it," replied Sir Rennell.

Counsel then asked if it ought to be detrimental for any competent publisher to see that a book was not written in Sir Rennell Rodd's style.

This question the Judge refused to allow the diplomat to answer.

The former Ambassador then pointed out upon request some erroneous statements in "Whispering Gallery." In one place the author of the book is stated to have said:

"I am thankful that I did not go to Oxford."

"I would certainly have been finished for me to have said such a thing," Sir Rennell testified. He is a graduate of Balliol College, Oxford.

...Lane of the publishing company, testifying, said that the manuscript was read by the directors and was not referred to the firm's reader.

"On consensus of opinion," he said, "we felt it would be a book worth publishing for, but the directors were not all of the opinion it would be desirable to publish it."

...answer to a question, Mr. Lane said he did not remember telling Mr. Pearson that the directors were enthusiastic about the book. He admitted suggesting £250 down on account of royalties. He also admitted that he demanded no proof from Mr. Pearson that "Whispering Gallery" was as represented, by a well-known diplomat.

The case was adjourned till next week.

ALBANIAN SENATE RATIFIES TREATY

Compact With Italy Passes the Upper House in Tirana Unanimously.

TIRANA, Dec. 11 (AP).—The Albanian Senate in extraordinary session last night unanimously ratified the treaty of friendship and security with Italy. The compact, which has been the subject of censure in Yugoslavia, was ratified by the Chamber on Thursday.

BUCHAREST, Dec. 11 (AP).—The Little Entente, composed of Rumania, Czechoslovakia and Yugoslavia, shows no ill effects from the Yugoslav protests over the treaty concluded between Italy and Albania.

Rumania, say those in a position to know official opinion, sees no blow at her neighbor in the compact, which the Yugoslavs contend will operate to their disadvantage.

Representatives of the Little Entente powers at Belgrade are already actively urging Yugoslavia to talk over the matter with Italy and suggest remodeling the treaty into a tripartite agreement, with Italy and Yugoslavia dividing influence in Albania.

SUMMER SCHOOLS IN SPAIN.

The Government Plans University Courses for Foreign Students.

MADRID, Dec. 11.—American University Summer schools are being carefully studied by the Spanish Government, which, according to well-confirmed reports, intends to establish similar ones in connection with several of the leading universities here.

The plan of the Government is directed mainly to give facilities for foreigners, especially American students, to study the Spanish language, history and arts which have been available only in private schools. A beginning will probably be made at Madrid, Valladolid and Oviedo, the latter one of the most delightful Summer resorts in Spain, where a course of six to eight weeks' length will be offered.

Man Dies on Bridge Trolley.

Stricken with a heart attack as he was crossing Brooklyn Bridge on a surface car yesterday morning, Charles J. Stevenot, 56 years old, of 15 Clark Street, Brooklyn, proprietor of a soda fountain supply house at 382 Pearl Street, died before Dr. Vazeera of Beekman Street Hospital arrived.

GLOOMY DEAN AMAZES LONDON WITH LAUGH

Dr. Inge Says 'Ha! Ha!' to Report That St. Paul's May Tumble Any Moment.

LONDON, Dec. 11.—Londoners are overwhelmed with amazement at what Dean Inge, their world-renowned "Gloomy Dean," did today. He actually refused to be gloomy. Confronted with the pessimistic reports on the condition of St. Paul's Cathedral, from which he irradiates gloom to the four corners of the kingdom, he absolutely refused to credit them.

These reports, which are growing ever more serious, culminated today in a statement by former City Surveyor Todd that "every person passing St. Paul's does so at the peril of his life."

A reporter rushed off to the Dean with that statement expecting England's apostle of gloom to fall into such a fit of depression as possibly to bring St. Paul's down on his head. Instead, however, the Dean merely ejaculated, "Ha! Ha!"

Optimists here tonight are wondering whether, now that Dean Inge has laughed, London will lose its fogs and become a popular Winter resort.

W. B. Leeds Goes to Nassau.

William B. Leeds sailed yesterday afternoon for Nassau on the Munson Line steamship Munamar. Mrs. Leeds, the former Princess Xenia of Russia, was at the pier. The young couple appeared to be on the most affectionate terms and Mr. Leeds said he could not understand how a rumor had been circulated in London last week that either he or Mrs. Leeds was seeking a separation or a divorce.

ANNE MORGAN TRIES REALTY FOR CHARITY

CORPORATION FORMED HERE

Profits in Sale of 84 Building Lots Near Orlando Will Be Contributed by Owners.

Miss Anne Morgan has entered an entirely new field of activity in her social and welfare work career by forming a company to sell and develop Florida real estate.

The new organization, which has been incorporated under the name of R. D. Jenkins & Co., 50 East Forty-second Street, with Miss Morgan as Chairman of the Board of Directors, will have a limited existence, as Miss Morgan has no intention of going into the real estate business permanently.

Its life will depend entirely upon the time it will take its incorporators to sell to the public eighty-four building plots in a proposed restricted residential development to be known as Bon Havre, located between Lake Conway and Lake Gatlin, two-and-one-half miles from the City of Orlando, in Orange County, Fla.

The profits that accrue from the sale of the land will be used to carry on the work of the Franco-American Branch of the American Good-Will Association, of which Lawrence F. Abbott is President and Miss Morgan Chairman of the Executive Committee.

An Original Campaign.

The plan is a complete departure from the traditional campaign for donations. According to Miss Morgan, it is an outgrowth of a decision reached some weeks ago by several friends of the association to provide funds for its work by turning over to it the profits from a privately undertaken business operation of a nature which would allow completion within a limited time and reasonably immediate financial returns.

In a statement issued yesterday Miss Morgan said:

"The plan we have adopted provides for a restricted residential development of eighty-four lots known as Bon Havre, located in almost the geographical centre of Florida, near the cities of Orlando and Winter Park.

"The property will be developed and the lots sold under the direction and control of R. D. Jenkins & Co.

"By agreement of the stockholders the Franco-American branch of the American Good-Will Association has been designated as the beneficiary of the profits.

"Several unusual safeguards have been incorporated in the plan. The expenses of selling the property have been underwritten. Agreements to purchase all of the eighty-four lots will be obtained before any money will be accepted in payment for any of them.

"The sale of each lot therefore is made contingent upon the sale of them all. No money will be spent, either for the property itself or for its improvement until every lot has been sold.

Describes Property.

"Describing the property, Miss Morgan said:

"The Bon Havre site is a heavily wooded peninsula which lies between Lake Conway and Lake Gatlin. Surrounding the property on three sides, the lakes, with the canal which connects them, give the property a continuous water frontage of 3,625 feet.

"The plans for the development and beautification of the site are based on the preservation of its natural features.

"The average size of the eighty-four lots is one-half acre. There is no uniformity either of size or design among them.

"The plans include two and one-half acres of private park space, a yacht basin, roadways sixty feet in width, Orlando city water, electric lights, telephone service and other facilities."

When asked about the present ownership of the land, R. D. Jenkins, President of the new company, said that it was held by five residents of Orlando, one of whom was a member of the Franco-American branch of the American Good-Will Association.

Mr. Jenkins stated that the plots, which varied in size from 55 by 201 feet to 212 by 286 feet, would be sold at prices ranging from $2,400 to $11,000.

The Board of Directors of R. D. Jenkins & Co. is composed of Miss Anne Morgan, Chairman; General James G. Harbord, Forsyth Wickes, Lawrence Lawton and R. D. Jenkins.

The Franco-American Branch of the American Good-Will Association, the beneficiary of the Bon Havre project, is a national membership organization devoted to educational work in furthering friendly relations between the peoples of the United States and France.

AUTO CLUB WARNS RECKLESS WALKERS

Police Control of Foot Traffic Seen as Possibility—Penalizing of Leopold Commended.

The action by Commissioner Charles A. Harnett of the Bureau of Motor Vehicles in revoking the automobile license of James M. Leopold Jr. was commended yesterday by the New York Automobile Club, which utilized the incident to point a moral for motorists generally and to warn persons afoot that they, too, may come under regulatory measures if they are not careful.

Mr. Leopold's registration privilege also was taken from him because it was found he had been convicted of several offenses against the motor vehicle law before he was involved in an accident that resulted in the death of Frederick Spiegelberg and because he was driving recklessly at the time of the accident.

In its statement the Safety Committee of the Automobile Club commended the action of the Commissioner without mentioning Mr. Leopold's name, and said:

"Reckless operation of motor vehicles upon the public highways must be eliminated, even if more drastic measures than those now invoked are necessary.

"Experience has proven that campaigns to promote safety in an effort to prevent individuals from carelessly injuring themselves has to be constant and continuous. The recklessness of the average citizen is an everyday event.

"The issue is clearly one which concerns both the driver and the pedestrian. With the imposition of greater penalties for violations of the motor vehicle laws will quickly come regulations to curb carelessness and thoughtlessness on the part of pedestrians. It is the belief of many that within a short time the traffic police in all of the larger cities will be given the same authority and control over pedestrians as they now exercise over drivers and operators of all types of vehicles."

MOST SPIRITUALISTS CLASSIFIED AS 'NOTHING'

Driesch Says in Clark University Address That Making Every Man a Medium Is a Probability.

WORCESTER, Mass., Dec. 11 (AP).—Ninety-nine per cent. of the "spiritualists are nothing" and Sir Conan Doyle as a scientist "is not to be taken seriously," but nevertheless there remains unexplained facts awaiting solution, declared Professor Hans Driesch at the last meeting here tonight of the Clark University Symposium of Psychical Research. Dr. Driesch, President of the British Society for Psychical Research, is Carl Schurz Exchange Professor in the University of Wisconsin this year.

"There have been strange occurrences," he said in part. "Their happening cannot be questioned, but what or who caused them is still a point not clearly shown.

* * *

"Why, then, are we not all omniscient? The only possible answer to this question may be because it would make us unfit for life; we would be confused by knowing too much.

* * *

"The best thing, of course, would be if we could get mediumship as a whole into our hands, that is, if we could make every human being a medium whenever we like. This is not at all out of the realm of probabilities. Every man is probably a potential medium, but we do not yet know the conditions under which his potences become actualities. We shall know this one day, so I hope."

GUGGENHEIM SEES BRIGHT AIR FUTURE

Urges Young Men to Take Up the Science of Aviation in Talk at New York University.

HONORED BY FRATERNITY

Founder of School of Aeronautics Says Cobham's Predictions Were Not Extravagant.

Speaking last night at the annual dinner of the Delta Mu Delta Chapter of New York University at the Hotel Shelton, Daniel Guggenheim, Honorary Chairman of that fraternity and founder of the Daniel Guggenheim School of Aeronautics at the university, not only expressed his faith in the future of aeronautics, but urged young men to enter the field as a profession.

After asserting that, despite his doctor's orders, he had felt he must attend the dinner and thank the society for the honor it had conferred upon him, Mr. Guggenheim continued:

"I have the greatest faith in the future of aeronautics and its unlimited possibilities for the youth of our country. In aeronautics is an outstanding opportunity of the age for education and training in a science that is in its infancy and that has before it a brilliant future. My natural optimism, with which I was no doubt born, may be responsible for this conviction on my part, but I am willing to risk the chance of being over-confident or mistaken, based on my experiences from judgments of the past, in which my optimism played a large part.

"But my optimism and enthusiasm over the great part aviation is to play in the future of all countries seem to pale when compared with the statements and predictions made in recent addresses by Sir Alan Cobham, and yet I do not think he has been extravagant in his praise of the science, for to my mind there is no subject in the wide world at the present time that is of greater importance or would have more far-reaching effects than the conquering of the air to the extent of safe travel for pilot, passenger and merchandise.

"It seems to me that this particular field opens the way for a splendid career, and I have no hesitancy in suggesting young men's enrolment in the universities offering scientific courses, with special training in aeronautical engineering and industrial aviation. This does not mean, of course, the training of pilots, but the education and training of boys who have a marked tendency in that direction in the practical work of designing, building and scientific developing of aircraft and air-craft engines for the utilization of the airplane on a commercial basis. These courses include the fundamental training of mechanical engineering, which is in itself a great training.

"I am constantly asked by members of my family, friends and acquaintances for suggestions about a career for their sons and I invariably give the same answer—'aeronautical engineering.' If I had a dozen sons (I am sorry to say I have not) and they wished to pursue professional or commercial careers, I would recommend such a course of training to them, believing as I do in aviation's tremendous possibilities.

"Your own New York University is taking a very active and leading part in this field, and under an extremely able and energetic faculty the School of Aeronautics is fast establishing an enviable international reputation.

"The people have not as yet awakened to a realization of the possibilities of air transportation, but in my judgment they will surely and rapidly do so, and I believe that it will not be a great while when they will come to understand what it all means to our country and, in fact, to the whole world as well."

Chancellor Elmer Ellsworth Brown, told the members of the fraternity "that Delta Mu Delta is standing for the aproach to business with the larger view which sound education can impart, is making its addition to the company of American men of affairs whose names add strength and confidence to the American character."

Percy S. Straus, Vice President of R. H. Macy & Co., who was not present, was made an honorary member of Delta Mu Delta. It was announced that Mr. Straus was suffering from water on the knee.

Other speakers were Dean Thomas Madden, who presided; Dr. William H. Nichols and Professor Harold De Wolf Fuller.

RADIO GIVES AID IN DEATH.

Relatives of Carteret Man Located Quickly by Station WOR.

How the radio enabled the police of Carteret, N. J., to get in touch with the relatives of a man who was killed there on Friday was told yesterday by Hollywood McCosker of Station WOR. On Friday evening the station was requested by Henry J. Harrington, Chief of Police of Carteret, to broadcast the announcement of the death of George Armstrong, a watchman, who had been killed in an accident in the afternoon.

Nothing was known of the relatives of Armstrong other than that he was said to have a brother living in Philadelphia. An announcement of the watchman's death was broadcast from WOR, in Newark, at 7:40 Friday evening, according to Mr. McCosker. Charles Armstrong of Philadelphia, brother of the dead man, happened to be listening in at the home of a friend in Philadelphia and heard the account of his brother's death and description of him. The brother caught a train for Carteret at once, Mr. McCosker said, and arrived the same night.

Briand Likely to Spend Nobel Prize Money In Buying Sheep and Pigs for His Farm

PARIS, Dec. 11 (AP).—Foreign Minister Briand's Christmas present, in the form of half the Nobel Peace Prize for 1926, will enrich the French Treasury to the equivalent of about $5,000 in taxes. The remainder, approximately $11,000, friends say, will go to buy sheep and pigs and build a new wing on his country house at Cocherel, on the River Eure.

M. Briand is regarded as out of want financially, but he is far from being rich. He earned from $10,000 to $20,000 a year before the war as a corporation legal adviser, and he saved part of this. His present salary as Foreign Minister is equal to only about $3,200 annually.

Part of his savings went into the farm at Cocherel, which friends say he is fixing up as a place in which to spend his declining years fishing. It is understood the rest has been well invested to keep the wolf from the door when the time for retirement from public life comes.

The Foreign Minister leads a frugal life for a man of his prominence. His table is of the simplest when he is at Cocherel. His principal pastime is fishing in the River Eure, the Gulf of Morbihan or the Mediterranean.

He likes good living when in town, but indulges his tastes less than in years gone by, because of his doctor's orders. So far as known he has disobeyed these only on two occasions, one of them being his now historic luncheon with Foreign Minister Stresemann of Germany at Thoiry and the other when he entertained the Spanish Ambassador, Count Quinones de Leon at the Quai d'Orsay.

Altogether his circumstances are represented by those who know him as such that he can, with equanimity, hand over to the State the 32 per cent. of the prize which will be due as income tax.

M. Briand is the seventeenth Frenchman to receive a Nobel Prize, and the fifth to get the award because of peace efforts.

BANDITS KILL TWO IN DETROIT HOLD-UP

A Third May Die of Injuries—Thugs Shoot Up Restaurant at the Noon Hour.

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, Mich., Dec. 11.—Killing two men, wounding another and terrorizing a dozen persons with a fusilade from a sawed-off shotgun and automatic revolvers, four thugs looted a restaurant here today at noon of $4,000. They missed $6,000 more that was there, according to the police, for the purpose of cashing neighborhood factory workmen's checks.

The dead men are Samuel Reece, a waiter in the eating place, and Samuel H. Dopp, the proprietor. The third victim, Ralph O'Dell, is in the Receiving Hospital in a critical condition, with buckshot wounds in the abdomen.

A dozen other persons were in the place, including two women. These escaped injury by dropping to the floor, hiding beneath tables or cowering along the walls.

Police Student Accidentally Shot.

Discharging his revolver accidentally as he was making a purchase in a cigar store at 881 Eighth Avenue yesterday afternoon, Probationary Patrolman William O. Grady, attached to the police academy, shot himself in the right hand. He was treated by surgeon at the West Forty-seventh station and went home.

COTTON IMPORTER SEIZED.

Accused of Getting $25,000 From a Bank on a False Statement.

Obtaining a loan of $25,000 from the Hamilton National Bank, 130 West Forty-second Street, on the strength of an allegedly false financial statement, according to the police, resulted in the arrest yesterday afternoon of Ernest Kunz, 35 years old, an importer of cotton goods with a business at 111 Fifth Avenue. Kunz was locked up at the West Thirtieth Street Station, charged with grand larceny.

According to Detectives Edberg and Manning, who made the arrest, it was charged by Charles Doty, Vice President of the bank, that to satisfy a debt, Kunz had borrowed about $18,000 from another bank. Being pressed for payment of this loan, the police allege, Kunz applied at the Hamilton National Bank for a loan, showing the financial statement on the strength of which the loan was extended.

BOY GIVES UP TOYS TO LITTLE PATIENTS

GLAD TO SHARE HAPPINESS

Fairfield Hoban Meets Santa Claus After Parting With His Treasures for Bellevue Sick.

In response to an appeal made by the Camp Fire Girls for second-hand toys to be made over in their toy factory, at 31 East Seventeenth Street, for the children of Bellevue Hospital, 5-year-old Fairfield Wallace Hoban visited the office of the organization yesterday with his mother, to take an offering.

The little boy said he wanted to give up his playthings for the Bellevue children because this was the first Christmas he had spent out of bed that he could remember. He brought his Teddy Bear, kiddy car, fire engine and two boxes of smaller toys.

Three years ago, when he was still a baby, Fairfield was stricken with infantile paralysis. He was paralyzed from the waist down and the doctors said he never would walk again. He has been in hospitals most of the time, but is now recovering. Although still quite lame, he can be about and play, and now he wants to make a happy Christmas with his toys for the little children who are still in sickbeds, as in Bellevue.

The child's mother, Mrs. Anita Hoban, who lives at 18 Pomander Walk, was once a Campfire Girl, and she read of the organization's toy factory and its appeal to her son just before his bedtime one night.

"The appeal seemed to make a great impression on my boy when I read it to him during his 'cuddle' hour," the mother said.

"It took him two days to make up his mind to give up his kiddy car, but he did finally. He carried his teddy bear in his arms as he went downtown on the bus to the office of the Camp Fire Girls, and cuddled it all the way. 'I love my teddy bear,' he said to me, 'but I guess the little sick boy that gets him will love him more than me.'"

Fairfield is as fair as his name, with short golden hair and the deepest blue eyes. He is of French extraction, and is up early every morning in fine weather and playing Wild West in his cowboy suit on the protected pavement of Pomander Walk.

"I like to play knight, too," he said, "and when I grow up I'm going to have a helmet, a long spear and a couple of daggers. And if any nice lady gets locked up in a castle, I'm going to get her out."

"I'm glad now I gave my toys for the other sick children," said he. "I wrote a letter to Santa Claus, and I guess he'll give me some more. I saw him today down at one of the stores. I saw something that walked on four feet, too, and a funny clown. I hope the little boy that gets my Teddy Bear will love him like I did."

Ex-Gov. Philipp Left $1,840,027.

ILEANA MAY WED HUMBERT OF ITALY

Report, Denied by Queen Marie While Here, Is Revived In Bucharest.

BRIDAL WITHIN 6 MONTHS

Princess Sets Outdoor Fashions in Rumanian Society With American Sport Clothes.

BUCHAREST, Dec. 11 (AP).—Princess Ileana will marry Prince Humbert, Crown Prince of Italy, within six months if King Ferdinand lives, or as soon thereafter as the period of mourning ceases should the monarch die. This information has been given to The Associated Press in circles close to the royal palace. Ileana, youngest daughter of King Ferdinand and Queen Marie, is 17 years old. Humbert is 22.

The betrothal of the Princess and the Prince, so the story goes, was arranged at the time of the Italo-Rumanian conventions last September, when, among other things, Rumania obtained a credit of 200,000,000 lei from Italy. The convention at the time aroused great criticism in Rumania, owing to the fact that the credit embraced mostly material for a railroad. The Government objected to taking possession of it, declaring it old and obsolete.

Remark Attributed to Premier.

When the criticism was at its height Premier Averescu is reported to have said to one of his closest friends:

"Maybe they're right. I didn't get much from Italy, except a throne for a Princess of Rumania."

Meantime, Ileana, who recently toured the United States with her mother and her brother, Prince Nicholas, has introduced American styles in Bucharest as far as sport clothes are concerned. She has been seen on the Boulevard Kisseleff—Bucharest's Champs-Elysées—wearing a woolen golf sweater and heavy tan shoes, both certainly of American origin. The Princess still buys her gowns in Paris, but she invests in outdoor costumes in the United States.

Queen Marie Denied Report.

Only five weeks ago, while on her Western trip, Queen Marie of Rumania officially denied that there was any truth to the reported engagement of her youngest daughter, the Princess Ileana, to Crown Prince Humbert of Italy. The marriage of her daughter to the heir of the Italian throne would still further strengthen the reputation that Queen Marie has obtained of being "Mother-in-law of the Balkans." Her eldest daughter, Elizabeth, married the former King George II of Greece, and her second daughter, Marie, is the wife of the King of Yugoslavia.

Princess Ileana has frequently been mentioned as the possible bride of the Prince of Wales. Before her departure from Bucharest on her recent American tour Queen Marie, in discussing the possibility of her youngest daughter marrying either the Prince of Wales or Prince Humbert, said that Ileana could afford to wait.

"My dearest wish is that when she does marry she will be as happy as her sister Marie, who is now Queen of Yugoslavia," the Queen said. "As a matter of fact, though, she is still only a child and she can afford to wait."

The Prince of Wales dismissed the rumors by remarking that the Princess was "a jolly little kid and a good sport."

The Princess was very popular on her visit here with her mother and brother, and her democratic manner and pleasing personality made friends for her in every place she visited.

Because of the presence of her mother she naturally remained somewhat in the background during the official functions, but she managed to find time to attend several affairs that were given here and in other cities especially for her. She also arranged to slip off with her brother and a few friends and see a football game while in the West, and just before she sailed for home she also visited the United States Military Academy at West Point so as to be able to lunch with Cadet William J. Glasgow Jr., whom she met when she and her mother officially visited the academy some weeks previously.

About the time the denial of an engagement between Prince Ileana and Prince Humbert was issued a report from Paris said that the Italian Prince would wed the daughter of the Duke of Guise, the head of the House of Orleans and the Pretender to the French throne. A few months previously it was reported that Premier Mussolini was trying to marry his daughter to the Prince.

The Crown Prince has played very little part in public life and it has often been said that he and the Princess Marie José of Belgium, who was educated in an Italian convent, were particularly fond of each other.

FERDINAND RESUMES BUSINESS OF STATE

Has Long Talk With Interior Minister—Doctors Will Issue No More Bulletins.

BUCHAREST, Dec. 11 (AP).—King Ferdinand has improved, following his surgical treatment early this week for an intestinal ailment, to the extent that the doctors have decided to issue no more medical bulletins.

The last bulletin, given out at noon today, says:

"The King continues to improve. Temperature 97.9, pulse 68."

The King today resumed active participation in the affairs of State by receiving Minister of Interior Goga, with whom he had a long conference.

PARIS, Dec. 11.—To rumors that preparations are being made for the abdication of King Ferdinand of Rumania and the appointment of a Regency the Rumanian Legation this afternoon issued a direct denial.

No Paris paper has published the rumors about the King described in the denial. What has been published is that, owing to King Ferdinand's feeble health and the character of the disease from which he is suffering, which the French doctors have definitely established to be intestinal cancer, the possibility of relieving him of part of his duties by the creation of a Regency Council to act with the King has been considered at Bucharest.

It is considered here almost certain that Queen Marie will obtain her wish of getting the predominant place on the Regency Council, a step which will certainly mean the final exclusion of her eldest son from all chance of succession to the throne, to which he last year abandoned his claims. Prince Carol himself has during the last few days been several times reported to have left Paris, but today friends declared he was still at Neuilly and considering leaving for the Riviera or Switzerland soon for a Christmas vacation.

Assembly Floats $900,000 More for Extension of Chiriqui Line.

BALBOA HEIGHTS, Dec. 11.—The Panama National Assembly has approved an additional loan of $900,000 for an extension of the Chiriqui railroad from Concepcion to Puerto Armuelles, and the sale of the bonds was completed today by cable with Kissel & Kinnicut and Bauer, Pond & Vivian at 95.10, to run thirty years, interest at 6½ per cent.

This makes a total loan of $2,200,000 for railroad construction, less $250,000 to be used to retire the National Defense 8 per cent. bonds that were sold to finance the war against Costa Rica.

This releases the retail liquor tax, which was mortgaged to guarantee the new loan.

The loan for the railroad has been increased because the estimates submitted by the American engineers of the Panama Railroad were considered too small, and so the increase was recommended.

LABOR WILL RULE FINLAND.

HELSINGFORS, Dec. 11.—The decision of the Labor Party to form the new Cabinet, despite strong Parliamentary opposition, is interpreted today as a desire to lay before Finland labor's definite program regarding finances, defense and social reforms.

Apparently this is regarded as opportune in view of the approaching general election, especially the party faces opposition.

Labor's best forces will be represented in the Cabinet, including the country's first woman Minister, Miss Millanpar, who, before her distinguished political career, was a domestic servant.

One Minister Says He Lent 140 Zloty From a Salary of Only $250 a Month.

WARSAW, Dec. 11.—Declaring that Polish diplomats and officials of the country were obliged to go about with their trousers baggy at the knees, Vice Premier Bartel, Marshal Pilsudski's personal agent, pleaded before the National Diet today for an increase in their pay and for 20,000,000 zloty to make Polish representatives throughout the world equal in fashion to other diplomats.

The Deputies, many in the boots and smocks of the peasants, were objecting strongly late tonight against such a show of splendor before the world, but it is probable that Polish diplomats soon will be able to attend fashionable functions without the sense of shame hitherto experienced.

"Why, I have been many times obliged to lend to members of the Government 140 zloty to buy top hats in order to be able to attend Government functions," declared a Minister, "and I earn but $150 myself in my position, with an extra $100 a month as a Deputy in the Sejm."

M. Bartel, who is virtually Prime Minister despite the fact that Marshal Pilsudski holds that office, has no fortune of his own and is serving the Government as a matter of patriotism, as was shown when he accepted the second place to the dictator after having served him well as Premier.

Speaking before the Sejm tonight, M. Bartel declared that Poland's representatives at every international conference presented a poor spectacle sartorially, which hampered their political influence.

"With £30 a month ($150), how can Poland's envoys expect to command recognition abroad?" he asked.

The Diet was besieged to provide funds by taxation or otherwise to cover the increase in salaries to enable officials to entertain and buy the drinks in their turn and perform other social amenities such as the diplomats of foreign countries do.

MARCONI WILL MARRY COUNTESS, ROME HEARS

Senator Denies in London That He Is Engaged to Her or Anyone Else.

ROME, Dec. 11.—Newspapers here say that Senator Guglielmo Marconi, inventor of wireless telegraphy, is engaged to the young Countess Maria Christina Bezzi Scali, a member of a well-known Roman aristocratic family.

The Bezzi Scali belong to the "Black aristocracy," that section of the Roman aristocracy which still gives its allegiance to the Pope. The young Countess's father, the Marquis Giovanni Bezzi Scali, is a papal Count. Her mother is a niece of the Marquis Sacchetti, papal Master of the Horse. They are relatives of Prince Barberini, Prince Lancelotti and others prominent in Vatican circles.

The Roman papers says that the engagement accounts for Senator Marconi's suit for annulment of his first marriage, which is now before Rota, the Vatican tribunal.

Senator Marconi's latest romance is said to have begun this Summer at Viareggio, one of Italy's best-known seaside resorts. Before leaving Rome for London, a week ago, Senator Marconi denied that he had asked for annulment of his first marriage because he intends to remarry.

LONDON, Dec. 11.—Senator Marconi today denied that he was engaged to the Countess Maria Bezzi Scali, daughter of General Bezzi Scali of the Pope's Noble Guard.

"I am not engaged to anybody at all, and that is the truth," said Senator Marconi.

It was recently announced that the proceedings before the Sacred Rota for the annulment of Senator Marconi's marriage to Beatrice O'Brien would be conducted in private to avoid unpleasant discussion. This marriage was dissolved by a civil court in 1924.

SAY SHIRT WAVERS FAKED.

Northern Poles Declare Bloody Garment Trophy of Russian Clash.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

WARSAW, Dec. 11.—Those who waved a bloody shirt in the Sejm yesterday are branded as fakers today by many papers of Northern Poland, which declare the garment a trophy of one of the constant clashes with factions of White Russians.

The controversy has reached fever heat, but so far as the political incident is concerned, the Government is taking no notice of it.

The shirt was said by those who waved it to be evidence of a murderous attack on a racial minority in Poland.

Of much more concern to the public is the delight caused by an increase in all Bourse transactions and the inflow of foreign currency to the State Bank, which has followed upon a statement of the Budget Committee, that in the first half of 1926 the Government piled up a surplus of 42,000,000 zlote and that the end of the year would show a surplus of at least 50,000,000.

The zloty rose two points on this announcement, which was entirely unexpected.

EX-MINISTER REFUSES TO FACE VIENNA CHARGE

Former Finance Chief Declines to Quit Cuba for $16,000,000 Bank Investigation.

VIENNA, Dec. 11.—Ex-Minister of Finance Jakob Ahrer has declined the Government's request to return from Cuba to face the Austrian Parliamentary Commission investigating 613,000,000 losses in the Postal Savings Bank while he was in office. Herr Ahrer, in a message from Havana to Chancellor Seipel, given out to-day, declared that the charges against him are groundless, that he is now trying to establish himself in Cuba to earn a modest living and cannot afford a trip to Austria taking twenty days. He states that he was responsible for all acts for himself and his subordinates while in office, and that he is willing to give concrete answers under oath to all questions through the Consulate in Havana.

He points out that he served his country loyally for six years in a responsible civil office and left Austria merely for private family reasons.

Neither members of the Government parties nor the Socialists are satisfied with this answer. The investigating commission will decide next week what steps to take; the Socialists will probably demand his extradition.

LABOR CONTENTED, SECRETARY ASSERTS

Workers Share in Our Unprecedented Prosperity, Davis Points Out in Annual Report.

GENEROUS WAGES ARE PAID

And That, He Says, Provides an Army of Buyers—Urges Saving for the Rainy Day.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—James J. Davis, Secretary of Labor, in his annual report made public today, draws an optimistic picture of American industry. The country has never been more prosperous, more contented, he says—the richest country in the world and the richest that ever existed. Prosperity is shared by American workers, Secretary Davis points out.

The most significant thing, according to Secretary Davis, is that the American people have established their prosperity in the foundation of their own production and demand. Restriction of immigration and the emergency tariff were given as the causes of our prosperity following the depression of 1920, says Mr. Davis. The spirit of fairness and good-will largely prevailing between employer and employe is also partly responsible, he points out.

"After the war it was commonly assumed that wages must fall to their former level before the country could get on its feet," he says. "Instead, wages have not gone back, but have reached a level higher than ever before in history. Better than this, the fact is everywhere clear that the prosperity we enjoy is due in great measure to these generous wages paid. Since the more than 42,000,000 American workers are by far the nation's greatest consumers and buyers, the business sense of the country was early convinced that well-paid workers constitute a vast and liberal consuming and buying element. Without failure, the courageous American employer adopted this policy of an ample wage, and the profit returns to us all in this state of general employment, vast production and nationwide prosperity we all enjoy.

Industry at Peace.

"Industry is, for the most part, at peace. Except for conditions in the coal and textile industries which still call for adjustment, the workers, with little to complain of, are very generally employed under satisfactory conditions. The American home, especially the home of the worker, was never so well supplied with all the comforts of life. Never has the Communist, the radical of every sort, had so little to complain of, and never has his sort of criticism been so little heeded. Never has he been so few in numbers.

"Every effort of American industry should be bent toward maintaining this condition of harmony and good-will between worker and employer, which so largely accounts for our present prosperity. Every man who employs labor, every man who devotes his skill to another for hire, should never lose his present realization of the fact that both are partners in a single business, indispensable to the business ability each other. They have learned that partnership means profit for both, and they should never forget the fact.

Industrial Accidents.

"We must reduce the toll of life and limb resulting from industrial accidents. This wastage of life, happiness, profit and energy is still too great to be tolerated by a mechanism so proud of its scientific functioning as is American industry. Our accident record is still a blot on industry's reputation and we are hopeful for the best results from the conference held during the past Summer to consider the vital matter.

"We must also soften still further the lot of the woman whose necessity or whose ambition has sent her into the shop or factory. This praiseworthy turning toward self-support must be encouraged, yet at every turn it must be safeguarded, lest the American race of tomorrow suffer by injury to its mothers. Two bureaus of the department, the women's and the children's, have programs in hand for broadening the already excellent labors they have wrought toward this important protection of the woman who works.

"Finally, our people have never had greater need of observing thrift than in this period of well doing and being. It is during the prosperous years that we have had the best opportunity and the greatest need to practice prudence and economy. It is then that the temptation to extravagance is greatest. If the morrow is to be safe, we must save for it some of the substance of today."

McLAUGHLIN REPORT NEAR.

To Tell Mayor Early Next Month of Police Reforms.

Police Commissioner McLaughlin will submit his annual report to Mayor Walker early in January, it was said at Police Headquarters yesterday. According to advance information, the report will present in the light of effective reform measures numerous changes brought about by Mr. McLaughlin. It was not stated whether the report would undertake to show that these changes had effected a greater control of crime or would furnish any facts or figures on criminality during the Commissioner's tenure of office.

It was said the report would record that Mr. McLaughlin at the outset visited all station houses to learn what was needed to apprehend criminals and minimize crime. His abolition of the Special Service Division, which released 600 patrolmen to sidewalk duty, will be mentioned, as will also his act in ridding the department of honorary titles and positions and doing away with "P. D." signs on many automobiles.

The report will say that six station houses closed by former Commissioner Richard E. Enright will be reopened before the end of the year.

Debate on the Baumes Law.

To clarify public opinion about the Baumes law, the League of Women Voters has arranged a debate to be held at the Hotel Ansonia, Broadway and Seventy-third Street, at 8 P. M., on next Friday. State Senator James Higgins of Brooklyn, who worked for the passage of the Baumes law in the Legislature, will lead those who look upon the bill as a means of preventing crime. J. A. H. Hopkins will head the opponents of the law.

5,016 ITALIANS OBTAIN CITIZENSHIP IN MONTH

National Survey on September Admissions Shows Poles Are Second, Mexicans Fewest.

The League for American Citizenship, which has been conducting a survey of naturalization throughout the United States, made public yesterday an analysis of the new citizens admitted in September, when 23,608 persons took loyalty oaths. The list was headed by 5,016 Italians, while ten Mexicans were at the bottom. The Poles were second highest, with 3,717, while other nationalities numbering more than a thousand were: Irish, 1,905; Russians, 1,690; Greeks, 1,154; Czechoslovkians, 1,068, and English, 1,026. M'KINLEY A HERO IN LOVE TRAGEDY

Senator Had for Thirty Years Given Devoted Care to Absent Invalid Wife.

MADE AND LOST MILLIONS

He Went 'Broke' After Kansas Boom in 1881, but Later Paid All Debts and Became Wealthy.

CHICAGO, Dec. 11 (AP).—William B. McKinley, Senator from Illinois, was the hero in a love tragedy that covered a space of thirty years, during which he lived apart from the semi-invalid wife he adored, provided amply for her, sought her judgment in bestowing benevolences, and by whom he in turn was loved, The Chicago Daily News related today.

Mrs. McKinley formerly was Kate Frisbie of Champaign, Ill., described, at the time of their marriage in 1881, as the belle of Champaign County.

She lives in Southern Pines, N. C., and it was there that Senator McKinley saw her last just before he went to Baltimore for a surgical operation which was followed by a long illness and his death a few days ago from prostatic cancer at Martinsville, Ind.

Two or three times a year for the last thirty years Senator McKinley saw his wife, in recent years at the North Carolina resort. Most of her time, however, was spent at a villa near Florence, Italy, where the climate suited her, with occasional returns to the United States to spend the Summer months in Maine and a Winter month or two in Louisiana.

Lost All in Kansas Boom.

When they were married in 1881 Senator McKinley was in the private banking business with an uncle. The Kansas land boom was on and McKinley was "up to his neck" in frozen securities on Kansas farm lands when the boom suddenly expired. The money could not be taken out to meet loans placed in his confidence by many citizens of Illinois. Mrs. McKinley, because of her intense activities, suffered a nervous breakdown and has been a semi-invalid ever since.

In 1893, says The Daily News, Mr. McKinley was broke, holding the frozen paper but no liquid credit. He devoted himself assiduously to the task and by 1908 had paid 100 cents on every dollar given him for investment.

Mr. McKinley is described at that period as an intensely busy young man and Mrs. McKinley as temperamentally different.

After Mrs. McKinley's breakdown McKinley provided liberally for her in her life abroad. Some of the securities made over to her were of the frozen mortgages, and, without her knowledge, he traded income-paying securities.

Gave Away Several Millions.

After the Kansas loans, at one time amounting to $3,000,000, were worked out, Mr. McKinley devoted himself to public utility development and achieved success, says The Daily News.

He became several times a millionaire, gave away between $4,000,000 and $5,000,000 and died with a fortune estimated at well under $1,000,000.

"Yet he lived this extremely busy and productive life under one of the most intense inferiority complexes that any human ever endured," says The Daily News. "And McKinley suffered. Every man was bigger in his estimation than himself. He dreaded personal contact, yet he loved people and his heart was warm within him. For the last thirty years he lived closely within himself."

ACCORD ON GERMAN COKE.

Six-Month Price Agreement Is Made With French Steel Men.

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Dec. 11.—French steel men and delegates of the German Kohlensyndikat, who are attending a meeting of the European steel cartel here, have agreed on a new coke contract, effective Dec. 1. It is to run for six months with the option of a seven-months renewal at any time before April 15 next.

The price fixed for German coke will be twenty-one marks a ton at the Ruhr furnaces for the first six months and nineteen marks for the last seven.

After Jan. 1 no more coke will be delivered under the reparations plan, but during December 150,000 tons will be furnished.

A free market will mean higher prices to French buyers, who consider the plan unfavorable. However, the direct contract was made necessary by the Cologne coal agreement, which contained the principle of a free market for coke.

The Reparations Commission intends to obtain labor and manufactured goods instead of coke.

The delegates to the steel meeting have considered the matter of obtaining German ratification of the European Railmakers' Association plan, which the Germans have failed to sign on the grounds that treaty obligations affecting the Silesian steel makers of Poland make adherence difficult.

ARTISANS GET RECOGNITION.

Good Work of 14 on Seamen's Bank Brings Merit Certificates.

Certificates of merit and gold buttons for outstanding work on the new home for the Seamen's Bank for Savings at the corner of Wall and Pearl Streets were presented to fourteen artisans by R. H. Shreve, President of the New York Building Congress, Friday during the noon lunch hour. The certificates were signed by the President of the bank, the builders and the architects.

The men receiving recognition for superior work were: William Little, plumber; John McDermott, steam fitter; Joseph Losi, steamfitter's helper; Arthur Olsen, sheet metal worker; James Downey, electrician; John Gillon, electrician's helper; Frank Steel, metal lather; John Jones, plasterer; Nicholas Germatti, marble setter; Charles Clark, tile setter; George Seig, painter; Edward Gregorson, elevator constructor; Fred Hoffner, elevator constructor's helper and William L. Miller, ornamental iron worker.

Ralph Crow, of the William L. Crow Construction Company, the contractors building the bank, said the building would be ready Dec. 20.

cure the assistance of administrative, judicial and military authority competent under the law of his country. The representative of the interested party is to have the right of a hearing.

Prohibition against nationals interested in the countries forming part of the commission is interpreted as not preventing the nationals of one of the former Central Powers serving on the commission sent into territories of another former Central Power.

Finally, it is explained that the provisions of Article 213 of the Versailles Treaty relating to investigations shall be applicable to the demilitarized Rhine zone, as to other parts of Germany, and it is stated:

"These provisions do not provide in this zone any more than elsewhere for any special control by local standing and permanent groups. In the demilitarized zone such special groups not provided for in Article 213 shall not be sent up except by a convention between the Governments concerned."

Nobel Prize Winners Respond.

In a discourse replying to the Council's congratulations this evening M. Briand, after stating that he could not be reproached with ever having sought personal distinctions, said his cup was filled with joy because his name was linked with an ideal which had always been dear, which he had always served with all the force of his being, and to which he would be happy to devote the remainder of his life. In the path ahead there were many obstacles to be surmounted before he could fully justify the honor which had been paid him. He knew, he said, that in receiving the distinction he and his comrades merely represented the work of peace which the League of Nations was nobly carrying on. Because of the League, events which would have meant war were solved by pacific means. Despite irony and sarcasm, peace made progress. If they continued, their undaunted efforts at last would be crowned with success, which was the success of humanity.

In conclusion he said he hoped to deserve the honor by continuing with all his intelligence, enthusiasm and vigor to serve the cause of peace.

Chamberlain's Part the Easiest.

Sir Austen Chamberlain declared that the part he played at Locarno had been the easiest of all, because he was troubled by fewer differences of opinion in his country than were his two collaborators. He was grateful to have represented his country in a work which he believed would be judged by history to have marked a real division between the mentality of peace and the mentality of war in Europe.

When he came into office the horizon was dark with dangers and he was convinced that unless a basis of understanding could be laid between the former enemy countries another great disaster could not be escaped. It was, therefore, with the greatest satisfaction that he received the proposals of Dr. Stresemann which resulted in the treaties of Locarno. Stressing the difficulties still to be solved, he declared that the surmounting of the greatest difficulties in the recent past gave him hope.

In conclusion he mentioned the great satisfaction he had experienced when the great assembled free nations which compose the British Empire had congratulated Britain on the part which she played in the Locarno peace.

Dr. Stresemann called attention to the fact that he had had to surmount considerable opposition, but, remarking on the difficulties which were caused by the difference between the long historical past of the German people and the policy which was the only possible policy of the German people in existing circumstances, he said:

"If we serve mankind and our own people faithfully, it must be to lead them to peace, for it is in peace that the abilities and capacities of the nations will find their fullest development. I sometimes have been asked whether the policy which Germany has adopted is consistent with dignity and honor, and I have always replied that the path of peace is necessarily the path of dignity and honor because it is a policy which permits nations to develop their capacities to the utmost.

"The path to Geneva has been long and tollsome and there have been times when we thought the climate at Geneva was not so sunny as at Locarno; but when one is satisfied with a result obtained it is always a satisfaction to consider the obstacles which had to be surmounted in order to reach it.

"I am confident that our great ideal will triumph, and trust that the path we have hitherto trodden will be a path along which the German people will persevere, because it is the path of progress and leads to general peace."

PARIS, Dec. 11.—Europe's peace charter of Locarno has survived because no one has anything to put in its place and no one dares risk its definite abandonment.

Between the Allies and Germany there is not going to be a breakdown of the negotiations or even a deadlock. Within the French Government there is not going to be any split. There is going to be a patched-up peace and agreement everywhere, because even a patched-up peace is better than no peace at all.

It would have been the utmost folly to risk scrapping Locarno because the Germans have fortified Koenigsberg in a manner which the Allied military experts think is rather too modern and because the Germans are exporting lenses and half-made cannon against British mercantile interests. Yet it would also have been an undoubted sign of weakness on the part of the Allies to have simply let these matters slide, especially since Berlin and its representative here, General von Pawels, seemed to make them matters of principle.

Cause for a "First Rate Crisis."

When the Conference of Ambassadors, stiffened by Marshal Foch and General Walsh, stated quite definitely in their report yesterday that on these two matters the German Government had failed to fulfill their interpretation of the Versailles Treaty disarmament conditions, they made what would have been in other days a first rate crisis.

In Geneva three Foreign Ministers, each with the fresh bays of the Nobel Peace Prize upon his brow, could not accept the Ambassadors' report. If they had done so then Dr. Stresemann, not the least important of their trio, would certainly before many days have fallen from power and glory. Nor could they discard the report and withdraw the Military Control Commission at once. Had they done so M. Briand would have run the risk of being lynched by some of his own colleagues at the very first Cabinet meeting on his return.

It has been for these three peace prize men an anxious day in Geneva. But they are wary politicians. Last night both M. Briand and Dr. Stresemann passed some of their responsibility back to their home Governments.

Wires With Geneva Kept Busy.

Between Paris and Geneva the telephone and telegraph wires have been overworked all day with diplomatic conversation in a manner which recalled the great days of Lloyd George's whirlwind attempts to cure by conferences Europe, which has taken eight years to grow slowly convalescent.

The day's events were hectic. At dawn Premier Poincaré found the fact that Foreign Minister Briand had consulted him by telegraph was prominently displayed in the Paris press. That fact alone created a situation of no small importance, both internally and externally. The Foreign Minister of France, who was responsible for the Locarno policy, had asked the former Foreign Minister who was responsible for the Ruhr to share with him in the decision and responsibility as to what should be done with regard to two points in Germany's disarmament program on which satisfaction, according to the Conference of Ambassadors, had not been obtained.

Politically the move was one which only M. Briand could have imagined. It relieved him of a responsibility which he could not shoulder alone as Minister in a Cabinet which contains Poincaré, Louis Marin and Tardieu. It forced the Cabinet either to side with him and support him to success or take the responsibility with him for failure, whether that failure cant only failure to secure from Germany what she has refused or failure of the whole Locarno idea and ideal.

The Premier called the Cabinet at once and read M. Briand's communication. Then there followed a long telephone communication between the two men which inevitably failed to succeed because the line was bad. The telegraph had to be resorted to and that entailed a second Cabinet meeting at 6 o'clock which lasted until 8:30, and further telephoning.

During the day there were rumors in Geneva that M. Briand and the Premier had disagreed so heatedly over the telephone that the Foreign Minister had already resigned. Here there were rumors that M. Poincaré was preparing another "Cannes" for his colleague and would so oppose all compromise that M. Briand and Locarno would have to be scrapped. These reports, however, proved the usual exaggerations of a feverish day.

M. Briand last night and today suggested three possible ways out, and it has been to one of these that the French Cabinet has rallied. Briefly, this proposal, which it is believed will be the one accepted by Germany tomorrow, at the Big Five meeting in Geneva, is that the fortifications begun along the German-Polish frontier shall be discontinued and that argument as to whether or not they are legal shall be continued through the usual diplomatic channels, with the Conference of Ambassadors acting for the Allies. In case there is no agreement, then recourse will be had to The Hague Arbitration Court, which will examine the German claim that these defenses and export of half-manufactured war material are permitted by the Treaty of Versailles. Meanwhile, the definite date of Jan. 31 will be set for withdrawal of the Interallied Control Commission and substitution for it of League of Nations control.

Thus it looks likely that tomorrow everything will be settled amiably on Lake Leman's shores. Dr. Stresemann will have secured his definite date for withdrawal of control and he will have a good chance of getting away with Koenigsberg and Germany's half-made arms commerce and stocks in foreign countries.

M. Briand will be able to return home without fear of the least reproach, for Poincaré and Louis Marin have endorsed this settlement.

The Poles will have got their case against Koenigsberg referred to the Hague Court. The English also will have that solution for their complaint against Germany's way of laying up war stocks across her frontier which she could buy back whenever they were needed badly. All the flurry and alarm of the past twenty-four hours will subside into quiet.

But it takes quick thinking brains to get out of such difficulties as occurred yesterday when the Ambassadors left the decision up to Geneva on an adverse report. These three men who wear the laurels of peacemakers did not win them by sentimentally seeking peace, but by wooing her with winning tongues and nimble wits and by hoodwinking instead of fighting their enemies.

Tomorrow they seem likely to separate well content.

FREE HAND FOR STRESEMANN.

German Cabinet Lets Him Close Up Negotiations.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Dec. 11.—A hastily called Cabinet meeting this afternoon decided to give Dr. Stresemann a free hand in closing up the Geneva negotiations, since the developments show that the real bone of contention is not a political affair but a trade struggle.

England's stand on the German manufacture of half finished materials which can be converted to war use threw a wrench into the otherwise smoothly-running political machinery and so utterly disrupted it that there is no use of Dr. Stresemann remaining in Geneva, since the date when repairs can be effected is too far distant to warrant his absenting himself from turbulent inner political affairs here.

The Government decided to leave the task of straightening out matters to the diplomatic corps, relieving Dr. Stresemann of the burden of a matter which is regarded as a purely trade affair. It is learned from authoritative sources that the question of what constitutes material which can be used for warfare is too big for decision within a short time and Germany must first have a chance to determine to what extent her industry and export trade would suffer if England's plans were carried out.

That Germany won a victory regarding military control is granted, but it is also a well known fact in Government circles that the new cloud on the horizon portending a trade war between England and Germany is darker than that cast by the Interallied Control Commission, which though hurting Germany's national pride did not severely injure her industry.

The idea is expressed that England's move is designed to make Germany realize that the dual compact at Thoiry is frowned upon by London and that when Germany wishes to enter into partnership with one other nation instead of a group it is best to choose England. The anxiety shown by M. Tchitcherin, the Soviet Foreign Minister, during his recent visit here, is thought to confirm the belief that England is ready to form a commercial compact with Germany to the exclusion of France and the endangerment of Russo-German trade relations. It is believed that this possibility furnished M. Tchitcherin with the reason for his attack on British foreign political and commercial policies.

Mrs. Burch Returns From Elopement.

Mrs. Isabel Keys Burch, who eloped with Captain Analdo Marson, her mother-in-law's husband, last October, returned to New York from San Francisco yesterday and communicated with her husband, Lyndon Walkup Burch, grandson of the late Bishop Burch.

At Mr. Burch's home, 50A Locust Hill Avenue, Yonkers, it was learned that Mr. Burch talked yesterday with his wife in the city. James N. Dunlop, attorney for Mr. Burch and Mrs. Marson, refused to confirm reports of a reconciliation. Several days ago Mr. Burch intimated that such a possibility was remote, declaring that whatever happened he would retain possession of his two children.

ART GALLERY FOR NATION.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11 (AP).—Early establishment of a $10,000,000 National Art Gallery was predicted in the Senate yesterday by Chairman Smoot of the Public Buildings Committee. He said that the Government had offers of three of the greatest art collections in the nation if a gallery is established.

The new building program for the capital does not provide for such a building, he explained, because there are some "fairly good prospects" that the gallery might be given to the Government.

Calls Off Sale of Valentino Home.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 11 (AP).—Several hundred persons to-day roamed over Wedgewood Place, Hollywood home of the late Rudolph Valentino, and plucked flowers for souvenirs while an auctioneer called in vain for bids on the estate, valued by S. G. Ullman, administrator, at more than $60,000. After an hour's effort had failed to get a single bid above the $10,000 mortgage, the auctioneer dismissed the sale.

AMERICAN ANTIQUES BRING IN $77,662

Second Day's Auction of Sack Collection at Anderson Galleries Nets $47,915.

$2,480 FOR A DAY-BED

Mahogany Desk and a Rare Wing Chair Also Are Sold for High Prices.

The second and last session yesterday of the sale at the Anderson Galleries of a collection of American antiques owned by I. Sack of Boston brought $47,915. The grand total for both sessions was $77,662.50.

A block-front mahogany chest of drawers by Goddard, Newport, R. I., circa 1760, brought $4,300 and was bid in by H. F. Collins, agent. It is a fine piece. The four block-front drawers are carved at the top with conventional shells, two enclosing another shell. The object has original brass handles, shaped bracket feet and the unusual tray-shaped top.

A maple daybed, circa 1730-1750, was sold in by Miss Counihan, agent, for $1,000. Miss Counihan also acquired for $1,300 a block-front mahogany desk by Goddard, circa 1760. The front of the slant writing flap is also blocked. The same buyer paid $1,500 for a Queen Anne walnut wing chair, circa 1730, a rare early American wing chair covered with figured green silk damask.

Mr. Robert W. Daniel bid in five chairs ranging from $635 to $2,000 each. The latter price was brought by six Chippendale mahogany chairs, circa 1760, with slip seats. The shaped splat backs have pierced centers carved with acanthus scrolls and tassels depending from quatrefoil medallions. The serpentine-back shaped crest rails have whorled ends, the centre are carved in shells and sprays and the carved square legs have scroll bracket feet. Mrs. Daniel also paid $1,300 for an applewood Hepplewhite chair, Connecticut, circa 1785, the shield back having carved slats radiating from a leaf carved medallion at the base. The seats are covered with antique yellow silk damask and the square legs are grooved and tapered. For a rare tambour-front inlaid mahogany secretary, 1770-80, she paid $1,350. Mrs. Daniel also paid $950 for a carved and partly gilded walnut "Washington" mirror, and $600 for an inlaid mahogany corner cabinet, circa 1790.

A Duncan Phyfe type three-part dining table, circa 1820, went to Mrs. T. Curtiss for $1,400. A set of six Queen Anne chairs, circa 1734, the high open backs having vase-shaped splats and yoke crests said to have been originally in the Stuyvesant family of New York, brought $1,275, going to James Curran.

A mid-eighteenth century walnut chest-on-chest with carved and flame finials and a carved fan went for $1,600 to E. F. Collins, agent. The same buyer paid $1,200 for a Sheraton inlaid mahogany sideboard with Hepplewhite knife boxes. One of the rarest pieces in the collection, a William and Mary lowboy, late seventeenth century, with trumpet-shaped legs, ball feet and scrolled stretchers, three sides with triple-arched skirts and the front embellished by pendent turned finials, was bid in by George S. McKearin for $1,300. He also paid $950 for a seventeenth century oval walnut gateleg table, $900 for an eighteenth century Queen Anne walnut mirror and $560 for a maple scrutoire, 1730-40, on stand.

M. Berry bid in for $1,000 a William and Mary six-legged walnut highboy faced with burl walnut and having trumpet turned supports, and for a Duncan Phyfe mahogany sofa covered with antique green brocatelle he paid $900. The Brooks Reed Gallery bid in for $900 an inlaid mahogany secretary bookcase, circa 1780, the pediment centred by the original gilt bronze eagle.

AUTO TERMINALS URGED.

Building Owners Call Them Only Solution of Traffic Problem.

Only through terminal facilities for automobiles can the constantly pressing problem of traffic congestion in the business districts of America's larger cities be solved, according to an announcement by the National Association of Building Owners and Managers.

Building managers of skyscrapers in thirty-six cities, each having local associations of building owners and managers, agree that in handling the traffic problem in downtown districts the chief stumbling-block is parking. They are agreed that parking, if not strictly prohibited, should be limited to brief periods.

"The men who laid out American cities could no more visualize the advent of the automobile than we can safely predict the future of the airplane," the announcement says. "Accordingly, they made no provision for the many lanes of traffic necessary to handle automobiles. The result is congestion in the downtown districts of nearly every large city. The congestion is added to to a marked degree by the parking of automobiles, which automatically reduces the available lanes of traffic by two—one for each side of the street. With most of the streets in downtown districts at best only six lane streets the efficiency of the streets has been reduced by 100 per cent. to 66 2-3 per cent."

ROSEN RETURNS TO AID JEWS ON SOVIET LAND

Director of Agricultural Work Says Settlement Work Is a Success.

Among the passengers who sailed yesterday on the Roma of the Italia-American Line, for Naples, was Dr. Joseph A. Rosen, who is returning to Russia to resume direction of the agricultural reconstruction work of the American Jewish Joint Distribution Committee, by which thousands of Jewish families have been enabled to begin a new livelihood as farmers on land granted to them by the Soviet.

Dr. Rosen came to America this Fall with the first detailed report on the back-to-the-soil movement among the Jews of Russia through the aid of American funds, which was read before the recent Chicago Conference of the United States Jewish Campaign.

"The effort of the Jews of Russia to establish themselves on the land," said Dr. Rosen, "is no longer an experiment. The permanence of the colonies and of this new Jewish life in Russia, today is established beyond a doubt. Some of the settlements are already two and three years old. A number of new ones were established last Summer. There are now over 100.

"The response and enthusiasm I have met among the leaders of American Jewry are an assurance of continuing support. The future hinges on the appropriations to be made in America for carrying the job forward."

FEAR OF INQUIRY MAY FORCE TRANSIT MOVE

berents, it seems to be unanimous. And yet nobody as yet has called any such conference. Members of the City Administration are now suggesting that, after all, the proper persons to take the initiative in this movement are the members of the State Transit Commission, who are the appointees of Governor Alfred E. Smith. The Transit act, which was adopted by the Legislature in 1921, during the Administration of Governor Nathan L. Miller, defined the duties and responsibilities of the original Transit Commission, created under its provision.

Board's Proposal Fell Through.

That act clearly laid it upon the shoulders of the commission, as one of its primary duties, to formulate a plan for the combination, rehabilitation and improvement of New York City's transit facilities. Governor Miller's appointees, George McAneny, LeRoy T. Harkness and General John F. O'Ryan, after long study and the taking of much testimony, did formulate such a unification plan. But the operating companies objected to the commission's valuations of their properties. Mayor Hylan would have none of it. He condemned the plan and declared that, in including in it the proposed absorption of the old surface trolley lines as well as the subways, the commission was seeking "to unload upon the city millions of dollars worth of useless junk." Mayor Hylan continued to press his campaign for an independently owned and operated municipal subway system and the McAneny-Harkness-O'Ryan proposal came to naught.

Despite that original failure, however, it has been pointed out to Mayor Walker that to formulate some plan of coordination and unification still remains a statutory and mandatory duty devolving upon the present Transit Commission, the members of which are John F. Gilchrist, a close associate and confidant of the Governor; Leon G. Godley and Charles C. Lockwood. Mayor Walker, his friends say, is disposed to think the initiative in the matter should be taken by the present Transit Commission. He is anxious to help, so long as nobody has an opportunity to hang upon him the sign of a 10-cent fare, or even a 6-cent one, but he is said to feel now that any conferences called and sponsored by him, though with the best of intention, might only obstruct the Transit Commission in the prosecution of a task which, by law, is imposed specifically upon it.

Though Messrs. Gilchrist and Godley refused yesterday to discuss the subject, persons who are believed to enjoy the entire confidence of members of the present Transit Commission declare that Mr. Gilchrist and his associates recognize the responsibilities laid upon them by the transit act and that they have "not been idle." Their attitude, however, is said to be that, so far from resenting any action the Mayor might take toward bringing together in conference the interests most concerned, the Transit Commission would welcome such a course as likely to smooth the path in some measure toward an ultimate solution.

Neither the Transit Commission nor the Mayor and his associates in the City Administration, it was said yesterday, would be at all pleased to see a Republican legislative investigating committee come down from Albany this Winter, armed with inquisitorial powers to rip open the whole transit muddle, and brandish a club with which it might smash the proposed $500,000,000 transit credit.

BRITONS DISCOVER SYNTHETIC THYROXIN

Two Doctors Succeed in Great Chemical Feat Long Attempted by Experimenter Here.

EQUALS ESSENCE OF GLAND

Dr. Kendall of Mayo Clinic First Started Work Which Has Aided Many Sufferers.

By T. R. YBARRA.

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Dec. 11.—A feat in organic chemistry classed as among the most remarkable ever made has been accomplished by two British doctors, according to a statement by an expert here. They have succeeded in synthesizing thyroxin, the hormone produced by the thyroid gland.

Working along the lines followed in 1917 by an American, Dr. Kendall of the Mayo Clinic at Rochester, Minn., these two British investigators—Dr. C. R. Harington of the University College Hospital, London, and Professor George Barger of Edinburgh—have succeeded in obtaining a complete synthesis where organic chemists throughout the world have been vainly seeking since 1917. Dr. Harington, one of the successful pair, spent several years in fruitless research before success at last crowned his efforts.

Commenting on the remarkable discovery the scientific correspondent of The London Observer explains that the thyroid gland, which lies in the neck, is one of several which pour secretions necessary for normal life into the blood. A number of these secretions, including insulin, have been obtained in forms valuable to medicine, but only two, those of the adrenals and thyroid, so far have been obtained pure. Abrenaline was isolated twenty-five years ago, and made synthetically in 1904.

Feeding with the thyroid gland or its extracts is the only treatment available when the human thyroid is absent or functions badly, and such treatment has saved many from death and many more from idiocy and stunted growth. But the amount of active principle contained in such extracts varied greatly, and where a dose of one batch might be correct, the same dose of another was often too strong or too weak.

The experiments of Dr. Kendall, the American, resulted in isolating from the thyroid a crystalline substance of immense potency, which he called thyroxin, half an ounce of which would keep a man who had no thyroid gland normal for seventy-five years. But as the entire human race has only about fifteen tons of it in their bodies, it was available in extremely small quantities and more precious than diamonds.

Dr. Harington began experimenting in 1925, and finally devised a method of obtaining the substance in much larger quantities than Dr. Kendall. He also threw considerable additional light on its structure. Now, working with Professor Barger, he has accomplished a complete synthesis, using, it is understood, coal tar products and iodine. A full account of the remarkable discovery, it is announced, will be made soon.

The new synthetic thyroxin has been tested on human beings and found to be as effective as the product obtained from a gland, it is said.

"It is not known whether the process of manufacture will be patented, as in the case of insulin," says The Observer correspondent, who states that a dose of a quarter grain will double the pulse rate for a week or more, while prolonged overdosage would be fatal.

"Apart from its medical and commercial value," The Observer says, "the discovery marks a great step forward in biochemistry, being a successful imitation of the highly complicated process which goes forward in a living cell. It raises hopes of an eventual synthesis of insulin, a far harder task, but one which would be of even greater value if accomplished."

Incidentally, it is pointed out that marketing of the synthetic product will kill one of the sidelines now exploited by the Chicago meat factories.

MANY RESCUED IN FIRE.

Women and Children Trapped When Blaze Sweeps Tenement.

Exciting rescues of aged women and small children were made during a fire yesterday afternoon in a five-story tenement house at 306 West Eleventh Street. The flames, which started in the basement, spread swiftly. Eleven persons were found trapped on various floors and carried to safety by firemen.

Mrs. Margaret Fitzpatrick, 65 years old, a bed-ridden invalid, and her 17-year old nephew, Elmer Corrado, also an invalid, were carried from their third-floor apartment by Mrs. Fitzpatrick's son, Lawrence. Mrs. Rose Curran was taken over the room by Firemen Fawcett and Mathias of Hook and Ladder 5 and reached the street through an adjoining building. Other women and children were carried down the fire-escapes and ladders.

The fire was discovered by Mrs. Minnie McLean, who lived in the rear of the basement. Patrolman Robert Murray of the Charles Street Station climbed up the fire-escape and notified tenants on the upper floors and then assisted them to the street. The house was destroyed.

$1,600,000 IN PENSION FUND.

Presbyterians Report $600,000 Gifts Here in Two Days.

New gifts of $600,000 reported within the last forty-eight hours brought the total ministerial pension fund receipts of the Presbyterian Laymen's Committee yesterday to more than $1,600,000 in the Eastern Division, which comprises New York, New Jersey and New England. The division's quota is $4,400,000. The entire goal is $15,000,000. The effort is scheduled to close here Tuesday evening.

Reports of the campaign fund upstate yesterday showed that Syracuse had raised $81,000 of a quota of $84,000 and Utica $68,344 of a quota of $95,000. Geneva has raised $35,000 and Albany $37,161.

The Presbytery of New York has raised more than $300,000 of its quota of $1,156,000. The workers will meet Tuesday evening at the Hotel Biltmore to make further reports. Will H. Hays, Chairman of the National Laymen's Committee, will speak. Today, 1,500 Presbyterian ministers in the East, including 60 in Manhattan and 70 in Brooklyn, will talk to their congregations on the Pension Fund.

Brooklyn Democrats Gain 32,324 Enrolled Voters

Party enrolment figures for Brooklyn, made public last night by Jacob A. Livingston, Election Commissioner, show that the Democrats gained 32,324 enrolled voters in 1926, while the Republican enrolment fell off 2,636. The figures indicated that virtually every Assembly district in Brooklyn is Democratic.

Party enrolments made on registration days this year were as follows:

Socialist—Male, 3,298; female, 2,231; total, 5,529.

The Democratic Party has an enrolled plurality of 135,427 over the Republicans, Mr. Livingston reported.

The committee has decided to continue the campaign, although yesterday was the date for ending it.

APPEALS TO OUST DISCONTENTED ALIEN

DEPLORES CRIME INCREASE

Another Mayflower to carry back to their native countries all foreigners who refuse to become American citizens was proposed by Archdeacon Joseph H. Dodshon of the Episcopal Church, who spoke yesterday at the annual anniversary luncheon of the Daughters of the American Colonists in the Hotel Astor.

"Foreigners come here and have things better than they ever had before, and yet they talk against the country and refuse to become citizens," Dr. Dodshon declared. "The worst kind of foreigners are those who won't become citizens, and if I had my way I'd have another Mayflower to take back to the old countries all of those who refuse to become American citizens."

Deploring conditions in the country which he indirectly attributed to prohibition, Dr. Dodshon said that in England, "even with open saloons," drinking and crime is on the decrease. "In America with prohibition," he added, "the Governor of Ohio sent a message to Judges to let out on suspended sentences as many prisoners as possible because the penitentiary was full. The old criminal who would give you a chance for your life with 'Hold up your hands' is gone. Most criminals nowadays are young men and women who shoot on sight.

"Education is not the remedy. A man who has a crime tendency, the more he is educated the smarter he becomes. Education in itself only makes them smarter. It is because home life is changed. In these days when we are busy getting off to the movies children don't get the proper home training. They don't know the Ten Commandments and the old-time parental authority is gone. The Prince of Wales said that the most striking thing in America was the way parents obeyed their children."

In an attack on "Emperor" Cook, the English labor leader, Dr. Dodshon referred to Mr. Cook's present visit to Moscow as proof that Bolshevism was attempting to control the affairs of other nations. "You get the two great Anglo-Saxon nations under the thumb of Russia and the world would be conquered," he said. "Cook is not only a Socialist but a Bolshevik. He kept the strike going on and nearly bankrupted the nation. And in the industrial centres of America, Bolshevik agents are spending millions of dollars to undermine the country."

"I attribute the failure of the League of Nations," Dr. Dodshon continued, "to the fact that God was left out of it. Events have proved it true. After all these years of Christianity we fail to mention God in the greatest treaty the world has ever known."

PLEDGE TO GO STRAIGHT SAVES AN EX-CONVICT

A plea for "a chance to go straight" saved a convict, David M. Gardiner, from a return to Sing Sing Prison as a second offender and a long term for a second robbery when he was arraigned yesterday in the Kings County Court. Released from Sing Sing Prison a few weeks ago, after serving six years for a jewel robbery at Fifty-sixth Street and Third Avenue, Brooklyn, Gardiner was taken by the Sheriff to the Raymond Street Jail to stand trial on an indictment for a robbery which was committed prior to the one for which he was sentenced.

Gardiner and two accomplices, Charles Smith and Charles W. Larsen, were sentenced together for the jewel robbery. Larsen was deported to Norway after his release from prison. While Gardiner was in Sing Sing it was found he was implicated with another suspect in the robbery of a café at 1,002 Third Avenue, Brooklyn, a month prior to the jewel robbery, in 1919. In court yesterday Gardiner said to Judge W. Bernard Vause:

"I am guilty of the charge. But I have just completed six years in Sing Sing and I'd like a chance to go free and straight. I'll never get in trouble again."

Frederick Lemmerman, Chief Clerk in the District Attorney's office told the Court that he was convinced mercy might be shown in this case to give the convict an opportunity to prove himself reformed. Judge Vause then sentenced Gardiner to one day in the Raymond Street Jail, from which he will be released this morning, and added:

"You now have your chance. Your future is in your hands. If you offend again, the gates of the prison will be locked behind you for the rest of your life." Gardiner told the Court he would get work and report to the District Attorney his progress.

dence. This they were unable to do, and Judge Taylor finally pronounced sentence. Patterson has been in Sing Sing since April 21, 1926.

Doubtful of Youth's Guilt.

Prison officials said they would submit Maxwell's affidavit to Judge Taylor and District Attorney Dodd of Kings County for whatever action those officials saw fit. Assistant District Attorney Gallagher said that he intended to make a thorough investigation. He said that he had been doubtful of Patterson's guilt at the time of his conviction, and had done everything he could to establish the facts, but that the prisoner had been unable to get corroboration of his alibi. Following Patterson's conviction, Mr. Gallagher added, a detective had told him that in his opinion the prisoner had been unjustly accused.

Sing Sing officials said it was quite possible that the pair held up the A. & P. robbery could have implicated Patterson for Maxwell. They said the two criminals were about the same age, and looked very much alike.

Gen. Ludendorff Cured of Goitre.

MUNICH, Bavaria, Dec. 11 (AP).—General Erich Ludendorff, who underwent an operation for a serious case of goitre at the surgical clinic at the University of Munich on Nov. 20, was discharged from the clinic cured. The goitre was so far down General Ludendorff's neck that it interfered seriously with his breathing and the operation was decided upon as a necessary relief.

The limit of appointments to three each member will not provide sufficient commissioned personnel for of the strength of the of the navy on a proper basis, even if no appointments are made to the various staff corps from graduates of the Naval Academy."

The pride of the navy in the flight of Commander Richard E. Byrd over the North Pole is expressed in the following language:

"Commander Byrd and his com- Floyd Bennett, aviation chief mate, United States Navy, out by airplane from Kings Bay, Spitsbergen, on May 9, 1926, and the North Pole in approxi- nine hours and three minutes, to Spitsbergen without hav- landed.

"The expedition was an independent initiated and commanded by Lieut. Commander Byrd. It is felt that the successful use made of recently in- and unfamiliar scientific instru- on the trip marks a great ad- in aerial navigation. The feat flying a plane 600 miles from land to land and then returning directly to the spot of departure without land- for observations is a remarkable of the accuracy of these in- and of the skill of Lieut. Commander Byrd. Congress will no doubt make appropriate recognition of this unparalleled achievement."

Regarding aircraft and radio the re- says:

"Steady progress has been made in developing designs of aircraft to meet the special demands of each class, and research and development are being carried on with the prospect of defi- continuing this progress. Ser- ice types have been developed in each of the classes of aircraft decided upon as necessary, and while efforts to im- prove these designs have been going on and will continue, an urgent require- ment now is the procurement of a suf- ficient number of airplanes of each of the classes with adequate replace- ments to permit the filling out of the present organization of naval aeronau- tics and of its efficient operation as a part of the fleet."

The report touches on the problem of naval oil supplies, now in the fore- front of public attention because of the Fall-Doheny case.

"During the past year," says Sec- retary Wilbur, "the Secretary of the Navy has continued under his immedi- ate supervision all activities in con- nection with the naval petroleum and oil shale reserves and the general policy relative to future fuel supplies for the navy. * * * The receivers have continued in charge of the operations of the reserves throughout the year. No new drilling has been done in any of the reserves other than that abso- lutely necessary to offset drilling on adjoining property."

Pays Tribute to F. H. Whitin.

The Committee of Fourteen, of which Jonas Pedersen is Chairman, made public yesterday a resolution of tribute to the late Frederick H. Whitin, for twenty years its General Secretary. The resolution adopted at the annual meeting of the committee last week, had been prepared by Edward J. McGoldrick, Vice Chairman. Announcement also was made of the re-election of Mr. Pedersen as Chairman, Mr. McGoldrick and Percy S. Straus as Vice Chairmen and William H. Baldwin as Treasurer. George E. Worthington is the new General Secretary and Counsel of the committee.

HOUSE VOTES TO DROP ENGLISH IMPEACHMENT

Senate Will Be Informed That Proceedings Are Unnecessary Because Judge Resigned.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11 (AP).—Impeachment proceedings against Federal Judge George W. English of Illinois, charging wrongful use of bankruptcy funds, tyrannical practices in court and other "high misdemeanors," were dismissed by the House today because of his resignation from office.

By a vote of 286 to 22 a resolution was adopted to advise the Senate that in view of the Judge having tendered, and President Coolidge having accepted, his resignation, the House did "not desire further to urge the articles of impeachment heretofore filed" with that body.

The resolution was sponsored unanimously by the nine members appointed by the House to prosecute the case before the Senate, which sits as a high court in impeachment cases. It will be presented to the Senate on Monday, when, by special order, that body convenes as a high court to receive the House managers. Final dropping of the impeachment articles then will be passed upon. If usual procedure is followed the Senate will accept the recommendation of the House and close the case.

Adoption by the House of the resolution came after Representative Michener, Republican, Michigan, head of the Managerial Board, had presented a report recommending that the case be dropped, but asserting the right of both House and Senate to proceed with the prosecution if it should be desired regardless of the Judge's resignation.

Ten Republicans, eight of them from Wisconsin, combined with nine Democrats, two Farmer-Labor members and one independent in opposing dismissal of the proceedings. This group urged that the case be carried to completion so that, as Representative LaGuardia, Republican, New York, asserted, the "trial and punishment" on the Judge would serve "as a deterrent to others."

NAVY WILL PREPARE NEW FLEET MANOEUVRES

Withdrawal of Army From Spring Joint Drills Upsets Program Already Arranged.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—The Navy Department has made no definite decision in the matter of changing its operating schedule of the combined fleet manoeuvres off the New England coast this Spring as a result of the withdrawal of the army.

Secretary Davis formally notified Secretary Wilbur yesterday that the army was forced to withdraw from the proposed joint manoeuvres because it was felt that the money for the army's part in the war games, which would be at least $26,000, could not be taken from available appropriations.

Admiral C. F. Hughes, Commander-in-Chief of the fleet, will prepare a new schedule of operation of the fleets in the manoeuvres, but pending receipts and approval of the new schedule no comment was made.

It is believed by the Navy Department that the plans will not be materially altered, as the joint manoeuvres were to be only a part of the work attempted by the fleet. The navy problems, it is pointed out, are still to be solved.

Macy's Easily Reached From All Points in City and Suburbs

Subways, Tubes, Elevateds, Trolleys, Buses, Trains Bring New Yorkers and Out-of-Towners to Store.

Macy's, situated as it is, at 34th Street and Broadway, "the hub of the Metropolis," is easy to reach from almost any point in Greater New York or its suburbs. Stations on tubes, subways, elevateds and railroads are near the store, as well as trolley and bus stops.

Those who reside in Manhattan come to Macy's on the Interborough west or east side subways. The 34th Street east side subway station is a few blocks distant, but the shuttle from Grand Central to Times Square saves the walk.

From Brooklyn runs the B.-M. T., with an express station at 34th Street. Customers from Queens may reach the store by the B.-M. T. also or by way of the I. R. T. to Grand Central, the shuttle to Times Square and the west side subway to 34th Street.

Long Islanders use the Long Island Railroad to the Pennsylvania Station, only more than one short block from Macy's. Residents of New Jersey use the Pennsylvania Railroad or the Hudson Tubes, with a station under the R. H. M. station at 33d Street.

The shuttle from Grand Central also brings customers from Westchester and other parts of New York States who use the New York Central Railroad.

In addition to all these transportation systems with stops near by, Macy's may be reached by trolley on Sixth and Seventh Avenues and on Broadway and by the Sixth Avenue elevated. The Fifth Avenue buses bring passengers within a block of the store.

MERCHANDISE ADVERTISED HERE will be on sale tomorrow and Tuesday unless otherwise specified.

FINE ETCHINGS, UNFRAMED, IN NEW SELECTION

Soper, Dowd, Kinney and Clark Included in Group.

The overwhelming response to the etching sales held recently in the Picture Department on the sixth floor at Macy's indicates clearly how rapidly etchings and colored etchings are coming into their own. An exceptionally fine new selection of unframed etchings has just been received in this department, in time for their use as Christmas gifts.

They are from many countries, by well-known artists, and are on sale at Macy's typically low prices. There are some delightful etchings of children at play, by Eileen Soper and J. H. Dowd, whimsical, charming and full of life.

Fine new etchings by Brouet, Wyllie, Fittom, Wilkinson and Kinney are also in the group. Clark, Green and Austin have contributed etchings of wild fowl, lovely patterns in velvety black, with beautiful movement of line.

At one dollar and fifty-four cents is a new group of the very popular Cherry etchings of English scenes. That of the Houses of Parliament in London is especially striking.

The colored etchings include street scenes of Paris, London and Vienna, as well as landscapes of little French villages. At nine dollars and seventy-four cents is a colorful group of small harbor scenes by Figura. Kasimir, Simon and Luigini are well represented.

For bedrooms there are delightful, new French drypoint etchings. Some, by Louis Icart, are priced as low as eight dollars and four cents.

There is still a last-minute opportunity to have a few of these pieces framed in simple black or walnut before Christmas. It is entirely correct, however, to present them as gifts unframed.

MACY'S GROCERY ANNOUNCEMENTS ARE ON PAGE 24.
OTHER MACY NEWS IS ON PAGES 11, 22 AND 26.

New Powder Compact Matches Evening Gown

FOR some time the dainty woman has looked, often in vain, for powder compacts to match her evening gowns. Now—just in time for the festal events of the holiday season.—Macy's has secured compacts in Chanel red, jungle green, Valencia blue and beige.

The cases are round, very thin, and enameled in the various colors. A small design in the center is heavily nickel plated. They are on sale in the Perfume Department on the street floor at ninety-four cents each.

Macy Merchandise Bonds Help Solve Gift Problem

Merchandise Bonds, redeemable in merchandise from any of Macy's departments except the restaurant and soda fountains, are on sale at the desk on the street floor. For Christmas they are excellent, because they do away with the likelihood of an unsuitable gift by permitting the one who receives it to select his own.

The bonds are sold in denominations of one, two and five dollars, so that by combining them a gift of any desired amount may be made. Merchandise may be purchased with them at any time in the future, since they have no expiration date. If the price of the article selected is not as much as the total value of the bonds used in its purchase the balance will be paid in cash provided it is no more than ten per cent. of the face value of the certificates.

SAYS WET RECORD BARS GOV. SMITH

Upshaw Asserts Governor's Course on Dry Enforcement Will Keep Him Out of White House.

DENIES RELIGIOUS ENMITY

Michigan Member Asks House to Investigate the Financial Activities of the Wets.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—Governor Smith's action in leading New York "to break with the Federal Government in enforcing our constitutional prohibition law forever shuts the door of the White House in his face," according to Representative William D. Upshaw, Democrat, of Georgia, dry leader, who indicated today his belief that if the Governor failed to become President it would not be because he was a Catholic, but solely on account of his espousal of the wet side of the prohibition issue.

Mr. Upshaw was prompted to discuss the Smith candidacy for the Presidency by statements made in the Senate by Senator Bruce of Maryland that "only an outstanding wet like Governor Smith or Governor Ritchie has a chance as the nominee of the Democratic Party."

Mr. Upshaw said he was impelled to notice "the brazen stupidity" of Senator Bruce in view of his belief that the Democratic National Convention of 1928 would name a candidate who would be compelled to run on a bone dry platform. He referred to the declaration by "the ponderously brilliant President of Columbia University, Nicholas Murray Butler," made just after the November defeat of Senator Wadsworth, that "the Republican Party cannot endure half wet and half dry."

"We sober, dry, constitutional Democrats," said Mr. Upshaw, "just dare the Republicans to take Dr. Butler's damp advice. If the wets in both parties want an out-and-out wet program in platform and candidate, let Nicholas Murray Butler, Al Smith, Jim Reed, Governor Ritchie and others of their kind get together and organize a straight-out liquor party and quit embarrassing the vast majorities in both the Republican and Democratic Parties."

Mr. Upshaw brought in the question of religion by mentioning that Senator Walsh of Montana, who is supposed to be in a receptive mood toward the Democratic Presidential nomination, is a Catholic, and adding that Mr. Walsh's religious affiliations would not excite the "religious bigotry" portrayed by Senator Bruce in discussing the availability of Governor Smith in connection with the Presidency.

"Walsh is as American Catholic, but he is as dry and as loyal as the Constitution of his country, while Governor Smith had made the grave mistake of using his great popularity and ability to lead New York to break with the Federal Government in enforcing our constitutional prohibition law. I said on the floor of Congress, Jan. 8, 1924, that that act forever shut the door of the White House in his own face," said Mr. Upshaw.

A Congressional investigation of the organized forces fighting prohibition was demanded in the House today by Representative Grant N. Hudson of Michigan, Chairman of the Committee on the Alcoholic Liquor Traffic.

PUSSYFOOT, HERE, SEES PROHIBITION GAINING

What Is a Referendum? He Asks, Saying "We Still Have Control of Congress."

William E. (Pussyfoot) Johnson, prohibition crusader, arrived yesterday on the United States liner President Harding. He was wearing his familiar black soft hat and seemed in excellent health. He has been abroad for six months. He said that in his opinion prohibition was steadily gaining, and refused to acknowledge that the last elections had given even a temporary setback to the cause.

"After all, what is a referendum?" he asked. "We still have control of Congress and strengthened our representation at the November polls. Prohibitionists have a majority in both branches of Congress, and Congress is where the laws are made and repealed. The real referendums are the elections to Congress. There have been four since prohibition and each left us stronger than before."

FORMER WIDOW WINS SHARE IN HART ESTATE

Disinherited by Husband, 94, She Gets a Third of $1,00,000 by Settlement With Heirs.

An agreement for withdrawal of the contest of the will of the late James Harvey Hart, who died on Jan. 28, 1925, at the age of 94, was filed in the Surrogate's Court in Kings County yesterday on behalf of his widow, Mrs. Kate Hart-Rigelow, and his five daughters. Hart ignored his young wife in his will and left his $1,000,000 estate to his daughters. His widow sued for her dower rights.

Hart was a widower, 88 years old, when he married Kate Wolff, 18 years old, a manicurist. Soon after they returned from their honeymoon at Atlantic City Hart sued for annulment of the marriage on the ground that he "was too old to marry." His suit was dismissed and he and his wife separated. He allowed his wife $175 monthly alimony and the use of a house at 367 Monroe Street, Brooklyn.

By the terms of the agreement, submitted by Charles Coleman Miller, attorney for the daughters, Mrs. Bigelow, now the wife of Randolph M. Bigelow, 36 Plaza Street, will receive a one-third share. Edmund L. Mooney was attorney for Mrs. Bigelow.

The five daughters of Hart are Mrs. Emily Hart Foster, 97 Columbia Heights; Mrs. Clara Hart Bow, 68 Montague Street, and Ellen, Adelaide and Lauribel Hart of 128 Willow Street, Brooklyn.

to the payment of the cost of construction of a naval base at Pearl Harbor.

"If a contract could be made according to the terms of which this royalty oil could be acquired for a period of ten years after the completion of the Pearl Harbor contract or including the period during which the Pearl Harbor contract is being carried on it would become a valuable adjunct to the above enterprise; not sufficient, however, to justify the investment of the substantial sums which the enterprise necessitates.

"The other assurance which would be required in order to make it possible for the enterprise to be of advantage to the Government is the assurance that lands situated in naval reserve No. 1 should, when leased, be leased to the company establishing such an enterprise, the development of said lands to be done when and as rapidly as required by the Government to protect its lands from depletion by drilling on adjoining territory; the royalty on such lands to be the regulation royalty required by the Government."

Two Speeches on Each Side.

In the summing up of the case Mr. Hogan will argue for Mr. Doheny, while Wilton J. Lambert is expected to render the same service in behalf of Mr. Fall. For the Government, Mr. Roberts will make the opening and former Senator Atlee Pomerene of Ohio the closing argument. It is believed the summation will be limited to two speeches for each side.

The oratorical fireworks will begin Monday morning at 9:30 o'clock.

Secretary Kellogg was asked today about testimony given at the Fall-Doheny trial that the conference for the limitation of armaments held in Washington was for the purpose of curbing Japan's power in the Pacific. He said that every one knew that the armament conference was called for the purpose of limitation of naval armaments and to find a solution for Pacific and Far Eastern problems. He declined to comment on the Fall-Doheny trial.

'WAR PERIL' HIT IN TOKIO.

Newspaper Accuses America of Double-Dealing on Naval Cuts.

TOKIO, Dec. 11 (AP).—The Tokio Mainichi, one of the oldest newspapers in Japan, commenting on the war-scare testimony in the Fall-Doheny trial now in progress at Washington, accuses the American Government of "double-dealing" in reference to the Washington Arms Limitation Conference.

Referring to the testimony of Captain J. K. Robison, concerning the strategic importance attached in the Navy Department at that time to the Pearl Harbor base as an important factor in the oil reserve leasing policy, the newspaper says:

"Since the lease was granted for the purpose of securing the navy's oil supply for an emergency in the Pacific in the same year as the Washington Conference, it now becomes plain that while the American Government was anxiously trying to have world naval armaments limited the American navy was trying to increase its strength in the form of an oil supply.

"Whatever may be said of the navy's position, there is no denying the fact that America was guilty of double-dealing in so far as the spirit in which the arms limitation conference was called is concerned.

"Although Japan will not by any means change her attitude toward the limitation agreement, it is now up to America to make clear her position, especially as regards the meaning of the Pacific war peril as feared by American naval authorities. If Japan is really the object of a Pacific war peril we would like to know it for future reference. We would also like to know whether Admiral Robison still thinks Japan is a danger to America."

Says Hawaii Sees No War Signs.

CHICAGO, Dec. 11 (AP).—Relations of the countries on the Pacific are perceptibly improving and at no time in the last few years have Hawaiians felt any apprehension over war possibilities, Riley H. Allen, editor of The Honolulu Star-Bulletin, told The Daily News today.

Whatever may have been the situation in 1921 or Japan's attitude toward the United States at that time, when naval oil lands were leased to Edward L. Doheny as disclosed in the trial of Doheny and Albert B. Fall, Mr. Allen said, Hawaiians sensed no tension.

"While we in Hawaii fully realize the necessity for adequate defense, there is not now and has not been at any recent date apprehension that war in the Pacific actually threatens us," Mr. Allen was quoted. "We who live in the islands have not only a feeling of friendship toward all the Pacific nations, but a very real belief that none has active designs for initiating hostilities with us."

LIDGE AGAIN, SAYS WADSWORTH

ident Can Be Renominated and Reelected if He So Desires, Senator Adds.

STER ALSO IS HERE

Dubuisson Says La Follette's Health Doomed Third Party Movement.

United States senator James W. Wadsworth Jr., in an interview here at the National Republican Club, said he believed that President Coolidge would again be the Republican nominee for President in 1928.

"Of course, I do not know what the intentions of President Coolidge are," Senator Wadsworth declared. "It is my opinion, however, that he will be renominated. The country wants him for another term awaits him if he wants it. In the event of his nomination there is no doubt about his re-election, no matter whom the Democrats nominate."

He said the farmers in the Middle West and the Northwest are reported to be not so friendly toward the President and there is said to be little doubt that he will suffer defeat in the Presidential primaries in several agricultural States unless there is a change of sentiment.

However, there is said to be some hope among Republicans in the farm belt of being able to prevent the renomination of Mr. Coolidge by the Republican National Convention.

Senator William H. McMaster of South Dakota, who was also at the club, admitted that Governor Smith was following among the Democrats of his own State.

"But he could not carry South Dakota against President Coolidge, nor could any representative the Democratic nominee," the Senator added.

"In the event of Mr. Coolidge being the Republican nominee again, despite defeats in the primaries throughout the Middle West and Northwest, do I believe there is a prospect of a third party movement being organized in that section of the country, as there was in 1924?" Senator McMaster was asked.

"There is no likelihood of that," the Senator replied. "The third party movement seems to have evaporated with the passing of the third party sustained two years ago. There is another reason. 'Bob' La Follette is gone and there doesn't seem to be anybody to step into his place as leader of such a movement."

Senator Wadsworth has been urged to sponsor a bill to modify the Volstead law at the short session of Congress. He may do so but has not fully made up his mind about it. There is reason to believe that he would gladly stand aside and permit somebody else to lead the fight for modification.

Senator Wadsworth does not believe that a fight for modification can be effective in the present Congress or in the next, and that ten or twenty years may pass before any Congress will be found in a frame of mind to pass such legislation. A bill introduced now, as he views the situation, would not come out of committee.

LECTURERS ATTEND DINNER.

Discuss Reorganization in School Program, Effective Jan. 1.

The reorganization of the public school lecture courses, to take effect Jan. 1, was discussed yesterday by Ernest L. Crandall, Director of Lectures of the Board of Education, at a luncheon given at the Town Hall Club by the New York Public Lecture Association. Mr. Crandall said that his address was in the nature of a valedictory, since the "drastic cutting down of the lecture program" and a general change in policy would mean that few of the 100 lecturers present would henceforth appear in the courses.

The lecture centres, Mr. Crandall said, had been reduced from thirty-five to ten, and the reorganization plan, he explained, provided only for lectures by persons of note and distinction in their special fields. The old system of stressing the subject rather than the notability of the lecturer, had been abandoned, he said.

ASKS FOR TOMBS EVIDENCE.

Wallis Wants Data From Banton for Own Inquiry on Outbreak.

District Attorney Joab H. Banton received yesterday a letter from Frederick A. Wallis, Commissioner of Correction, requesting all evidence adduced by Mr. Banton in his investigation of the attempted escape from the Tombs on Nov. 3 which resulted in the death of five men. Mr. Wallis wrote that he wanted the evidence so that he might conduct his own investigation with a view to disciplinary measures.

Mr. Banton said he would place all documentary and other evidence in his possession in the hands of the Commissioner not later than tomorrow.

Commissioner Wallis was exonerated by the Grand Jury Friday of charges of incompetency in the handling of his department and his recommendations were upheld by the investigators.

THIRTEEN ARE HURT IN AUTO ACCIDENTS

Seven Injured When a Bus in Jamaica Skids Into Car—One Taken to Hospital.

MAIL TRUCK DRIVER HELD

Is Charged With Homicide When Man He Hit Friday Dies—Bus in Fordham Collides With Truck.

Seven persons were injured yesterday when a bus owned by the Queens Bus Line ran into an automobile at Sutphin Boulevard and Jerome Avenue, Jamaica. Peter Bangle, 58 years old, of 130-16 147th Street, Jamaica, a passenger in the bus, was taken to the Jamaica Hospital with a badly sprained back. The others injured were treated by Dr. Everett Fousel for cuts and bruises and sent to their homes.

The bus was operated by George Palevado of 153-14 Little Street, Jamaica. Witnesses substantiated his statement that he had slowed down at the crossing, but on account of the slippery condition of the street had skidded into the automobile, which was driven by Anthony Manso of 4,267 Eightieth Street, Woodhaven.

A United States mail truck severely injured a woman, while the driver of another mail truck was held in $5,000 bail yesterday by Magistrate Stanley Renaud in Jefferson Market Court on a charge of homicide after the death of Peter Reilly, 50 years old, of 361 West Fifteenth Street, who was run over Friday night at Bank and Hudson streets. Carmelo Prenittio, the driver of the truck, was charged with homicide.

Inspector Rebuked by Court.

A General Postoffice Inspector who testified that Prenittio was driving his truck at eight miles an hour at the time of the accident was rebuked by Magistrate Renaud, who declared: "I have never seen a mail truck travel at that speed; more than likely it was going eighty miles an hour!"

The woman mail-truck victim yesterday was Mrs. Mary Agnes Roden, 60, of 107 South Granville Avenue, Atlantic City, N. J., who was struck at Lexington Avenue and Thirty-fourth Street. Both her legs were broken. She was taken to Bellevue Hospital in a serious condition. The police absolved the driver of responsibility.

Five persons were slightly injured last night when a bus owned by the Fordham Bus Line in which they were riding collided with an automobile truck on Eastchester Road, between Pelham Parkway and Williamsbridge Road, the Bronx. John Malfrey, 32 years old, of 4,431 Third Avenue, the Bronx, the driver of the bus, was removed to Fordham Hospital with a possible fracture of the leg. Four women passengers in the bus were treated by an ambulance surgeon for cuts and bruises and went home. The police said the accident was caused by the slippery condition of the pavement.

GOVERNOR HERE FOR WEEK.

Will Talk Water Power and Housing and Do Christmas Shopping.

Governor Smith, who arrived in the city late on Friday evening, will be here for most of this week. Tomorrow evening he is to deliver an address on "Water Power and the Social Stake in It" before the Survey Associates, who will have a dinner in the Hotel Astor and have invited Elon R. Hooker, President of the Electro-Chemical Company, and Miss Ann Dennis Bursch, head of the Living Cost Committee of the League of Woman Voters, to discuss the problem, together with the Governor.

It is expected that on this occasion the Governor will unfold in detail his plan for hydroelectric power development and contrast with it the Republican proposal for private development under strict State supervision.

On Wednesday the Governor will talk on housing to members of the Housing Committee and others interested in the subject.

Before returning to Albany the Governor expects to discuss proposals to be included in his annual message to the Legislature with some of his political advisers and also to do his Christmas shopping.

RETIRING JUDGES HONORED.

Four Justices Guests at Dinner of the Manhattan Club.

The Manhattan Club gave a club dinner last night in honor of Judge Chester B. McLaughlin of the Court of Appeals, Presiding Justice John Proctor Clarke and Justice William Burr of the Appellate Division, and Justice Charles L. Guy of the Supreme Court, all of whom are retiring from the bench, and all of whom have been active members of the club for many years.

John Godfrey Saxe, President of the club, presided, and addresses were made by former Governor Nathan L. Miller, Chairman of the Dinner Committee, former Justice Morgan J. O'Brien, Frederic R. Coudert and the four guests. The dinner was limited to club members, of whom there were about 150 present.

WOMEN ASK FISHER TO CLEAN VARE STAIN

Voters' League Begs Governor-Elect to Save Pennsylvania for Republicans in 1928.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 11.—A plea to "set Pennsylvania right before the eyes of the nation" by "making it clear that Pennsylvania's Republicanism is not represented by Vareism," is contained in an open letter to Governor-elect John S. Fisher, broadcast today by the State League of Women Voters.

The statement, issued under the direction of the League's State Chairman, Mrs. John O. Miller, points out that the country looks at Pennsylvania and observes nothing but terrific campaign expenses. It asserts that "Mr. Fisher can turn the spotlight of the nation from Mr. Vare to himself and his conduct of the State Administration."

Mr. Fisher's election, the statement says, represents a harmony of the voters, so the Governor has no need to linger over the harmony of bosses.

"Republican members of the Commonwealth of Citizenship," reads the statement, "quite naturally hope that Mr. Fisher as Governor will loom so large in Pennsylvania's politics and public affairs that he and his work will distinctly overshadow the $3,000,000 primary and its production of Mr. Vare as the candidate for United States Senator. Just now the country looks at Pennsylvania and sees nothing but terrific campaign expenses and the triumph of a wet boss.

"Just as the nomination of Mr. Vare had a share in cutting down the Republican strength in the Senate of the United States in the late election, so may the program of Mr. Fisher in Harrisburg help to save the Republican Party in the Presidential election of 1928."

Dies Day After His Marriage.

Special to The New York Times.

BLOOMFIELD, N. J., Dec. 11.—Henry Collins, 24 years old, who was married yesterday afternoon to Miss Mary Low, died at five o'clock today of a heart attack in the home he had occupied for scarcely more than twenty-four hours at 43 Orange Street. It was his second attack within six weeks. He was employed by the Townsend Lawnmower Company. His parents live in Greenock, Scotland, which was his birthplace.

A KAHN-HECHT SHOW.

Young Owner of Night Club Collaborating on Musical Satire.

Roger Wolfe Kahn, 19 years old, son of Otto H. Kahn, Chairman of the Metropolitan Opera Company, has found time, while running his night club, La Perroquet de Paris, 146 West Fifty-seventh Street, and several jazz bands, to collaborate with Ben Hecht on a musical satire, "Hearts and Flowers," which is to be produced by Horace Liveright "in a Greenwich Village theatre, or even further downtown" early in the new year. Mr. Kahn said yesterday the piece was to be a satire on conventional musical comedies—a sort of Gilbert and Sullivan comedy.

It will include fifteen songs. Already the industrious Mr. Kahn has written the scores for ten pieces. Hecht, in California, is working on the lyrics.

Mr. Kahn has other artistic aspirations, and while working on the score of the musical comedy is rapidly shaping another musical composition. It is going to be a kind of a rhapsody which Mr. Kahn says has been suggested by Gershwin's "Rhapsody in Blue."

ISOLATE AMERICAN WOMEN.

Bandits Capture Chinese City Where Two Missionaries Worked.

LONDON, Dec. 11 (AP).—Two American women missionaries are reported to be isolated in Yungchang, Yunnan Province, through the capture of the city by Chinese bandits, who massacred many of the inhabitants.

Reports from China said the women were British, but the China Inland Mission, to which they are attached, stated they were believed to be Americans. They are the Misses A. Kratzer and J. O. Jack, and were sent from the mission headquarters at Philadelphia.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 11 (AP).—The Philadelphia headquarters of the China Inland Mission had received no word today of the isolation of two of its women missionaries in Yungchang, China. Notice of their predicament, it was said, might be sent to the Toronto headquarters.

The office here confirmed that the missionaries were sent from Philadelphia. Miss Kratzer comes from Buffalo and Miss Jack from Cleveland.

Warned Against Bad Checks.

Bank depositors, and particularly business houses, were advised to observe special vigilance against check crooks during the pre-holiday season in a warning sounded yesterday by James E. Ryan, manager of the Forgery Bond Department of the Metropolitan Casualty Insurance Company. Experience shows, said Mr. Ryan, that check forgers are never more active and successful than in the busy days just before Christmas.

PARKIN'S ACCOUNT OF MARCONI FEAT

How the First Wireless Message Was Sent Across Atlantic on Dec. 16, 1902.

STORY ENCOUNTERS DELAY

Underpaid Postage t. London Prevents for Weeks Publication There and in The New York Times.

The interview with Guglielmo Marconi, published in a London dispatch to THE NEW YORK TIMES yesterday, describing the transmission of the first wireless signal across the Atlantic twenty-five years ago today, recalled a curious incident that occurred about a year later, when the first transatlantic message was sent from Glace Bay, Cape Breton, Nova Scotia, to England.

Senator Marconi invited as his guest at the latter event, on Dec. 16, 1902, the late Sir George R. Parkin, a professor at Upper Canada College and correspondent for The London Times, and gave Sir George the privilege of sending the first message, which was one of congratulation to England and to Italy. Following the successful test, Sir George took a train for New York City, writing en route a full account of what had been done. He brought his article to the office of THE NEW YORK TIMES, where two typewritten copies were made, one to be mailed to London and the other to be published here simultaneously with its publication there.

The "release" of the article from London was awaited anxiously, but weeks went by and it did not come. At last there reached the office of THE NEW YORK TIMES from the dead letter office in Washington the message which had been sent to London. Bearing the address of THE NEW YORK TIMES on the envelope, it had been sent back here because Sir George had underpaid the postage by five cents. With a penalty of the same amount, that made ten cents due in London, and at that time The London Times had an iron-bound rule that all underpaid postage matter should be refused.

Story of the Transmission.

Sir George's story of his transmission of the first transatlantic message, rescued from yellowed newspaper files, follows in part:

"The message was to be sent immediately after 1 o'clock, one of the fixed hours at which the operators at Poldhu, in Cornwall, were expected to be on duty and ready for the reception of signals.

"A little after midnight our whole party sat down to a light supper. Behind the cheerful table talk of the young men on the staff, one could feel the tension of an unusual anxiety as the moment approached for which they had worked and to which they had looked forward so long. It was about ten minutes to 1 when we left the cottage to proceed to the operating room. I believe that I was the first outsider who had been allowed to inspect the building and its machinery.

"It was a beautiful night—the moon shone brightly on the snow-covered ground—a wind which all day had driven heavy breakers on the shore had died away, and the air was cold and clear. All the conditions seemed favorable. I suppose that experience will soon prove how far success depends on atmospheric conditions.

"Inside the building and among its somewhat complicated appliances, the first impression on the untechnical observer is that he is among men who understand their work. The machinery is carefully inspected, some adjustments are made, and various orders are carried out with trained alertness. All put cotton wool in their ears to lessen the force of the electric concussion, which is not unlike the successive explosions of a Maxim gun. As the current is one of most dangerous strength those not engaged in the operations are assigned to places free from risk.

Marconi's Calmness.

"It had been agreed that at the last moment before transmission I should make some verbal change in the message agreed on, for the purpose of identification. This was now done and the message thus changed was handed to the inventor, who placed it on the table where his eye could follow it readily. A brief order for the lights over the battery to be put out, another for the current to be turned on, and the operating work begins.

"I was struck by the instant change from nervousness to complete confidence which passed over Mr. Marconi's face the moment his hand was on the transmitting apparatus—in this case a large wooden lever or key.

"He explained that it would first be necessary to transmit the signal letter S in order to fix the attention of the operators at Poldhu, and enable them to adjust their instruments. This continues for a minute or more and then, with one hand on the paper from which he reads and with the other on his instrument, the inventor begins to send across the Atlantic a continuous sentence. Outside there is no sign, of course, on the transverse wire from which the electric wave is projected of what is going on, but inside the operating room the words seem to be spelled out in short flashes of lightning. It is done slowly, since there is no wish on this occasion to test speed. But as it is done, one remembers with a feeling of awe what he has been told—that only the ninetieth part of a second elapses from the moment when he sees the flash till the time when the record is being made at Poldhu.

Over Mountain and Sea.

What gives it direction? One asks, but gets no answer. We send it into space, Mr. Marconi had remarked during the afternoon, and it must find its way to a point in Cornwall. Mountains in the path of the current do not affect it the inventor tells us, and when we remember that between the point of departure and the point of reception the curvature of the earth represents a mass of land and water more than a hundred miles high, this may be understood better.

The first message has been sent through the ether across the Atlantic. What that means for mankind no one can even guess. The path to complete success may still be long and difficult. Between George Stephenson's "Puffing Billy" and the great mogul engine which swings the limited express across the American continent, there lies three-quarters of a century of endeavor, experiment and invention. But in the great original idea lay the essential thing which has revolutionized the world and the conditions of human intercourse.

"I came away from Glace Bay with the feeling that Mr. Marconi's modest confidence in his work will in the end be justified by results. Meanwhile, patience may still be necessary. Weeks, months, even years may be required to bring the system to complete efficiency."

AMERICANS DIFFER ON DIVORCE NEWS

Rabbi Wise Warns That Law Like Commons Plans Will Result From Abuse.

LINDSEY WANTS PUBLICITY

Denver Judge Says Forbidding of Details of Cases Would Be Dangerous to Society.

Passage by the English House of Commons of a bill prohibiting newspapers from publishing the details of divorce cases caused interest yesterday in New York in different fields, according to The Associated Press.

Dr. Stephen S. Wise, Jewish leader and rabbi of the Free Synagogue, said: "We have recently had some exhibitions in this country of the publication of salacious details in connection with divorce and other legal cases. The press, like the theatre, would do well to address itself to the question of whether it is to persist in making censorship inevitable by publishing, as it now does, the details of lewd and filthy affairs. The press and the theatre will do their own house cleaning or it will be done for them through legislative processes."

Samuel Untermyer, lawyer, who has figured as attorney in several outstanding divorce cases, said:

"Without having seen the text of the bill, it is impossible to say whether such legislation is desirable here. As a general proposition, however, I favor prohibiting the publication of salacious details of divorce cases. I would favor limiting the right of publication to bare statements of fact and to the judgment."

Miss Fanny Hurst, writer, said:

"While I respect the freedom of the press, the pendulum has swung so far that it seems to me that it would be of social service to call a limit somewhere. Certainly any one can see what is going on. We seem to have reached the stage where we have no delicacy and decency in dealing with certain subjects in the press. When a lack of taste turns journalism into a horror, then I can see where some form of censorship would be commendable."

Edward W. Browning, wealthy real estate man, who is now engaged in separation litigations with his bride, "Peaches" Browning, said:

"I am in favor of absolute publicity in divorce cases. Light should be thrown publicly on such cases so that the truth may be brought out, enabling those who are in the right to be proved right and those who are in the wrong to be proved wrong."

Judge Lindsey Sees Danger.

DENVER, Dec. 11 (AP).—Judge Ben B. Lindsey, founder of the Juvenile Court and one of the outstanding investigators of the cause of modern divorce, heartily disapproves of any legislation to prevent newspapers from carrying details of divorce cases.

"It is dangerous not only for the education of the public, but is a dangerous thrust at education and justice and the progress of society," he said. "It is a thrust at a free press, for it prevents the people learning what society is doing."

POLICE DINNER CALLED OFF.

Sergeants' Association Yields to the Opposition of McLaughlin.

The annual dinner of the Police Sergeants' Benevolent Association, which was scheduled to be held at the Hotel Commodore Jan. 17, 1927, it was learned yesterday, has been called off, because of Police Commissioner George V. McLaughlin's openly expressed opposition to all departmental affairs which sell tickets to the public.

Several months ago Mr. McLaughlin told representatives of the various Police Department associations that he would not tolerate social or other affairs by their organizations to which tickets were sold to the public. Plans for the sergeants' dinner, which has been given annually for about ten years, seemed to be going ahead, however. Several days ago Mr. McLaughlin heard of this and called in Sergeant Patrick G. Fitzgibbons, President of the Sergeants' Association. Now the Police Lieutenants' Association, biggest of the departmental organizations, which has given dinners annually for twenty-three years, is in a quandary. Their dinner always has been held at the Waldorf on Washington's Birthday. It is thought likely that even the Lieutenants' Association will yield to the views of the Commissioner.

Oil Agreement in Mexico Denied.

Guy Stevens, Director of the Association of Producers of Petroleum in Mexico, issued yesterday a statement denying the truth of a dispatch from Mexico City published in Washington to the effect that the foreign oil companies in Mexico, through Roberto Pesqueira, had reached an agreement with the Mexican Government whereby the oil companies would file applications for concessions under the new petroleum law before Dec. 31. There had been no negotiations on petroleum matters through Señor Pesqueira and no such agreement had been made by the members of his association, Mr. Stevens said.

$85,975 FOR TOLENTINO ART.

Highest Price Is $4,100—Mme. Jeritza Pays $1,200 for Statue.

The fourth and final sale yesterday of the Tolentino collection of Italian antiques at the American Art Galleries brought $85,975. The grand total for the more than 800 items was $169,647.50.

The highest price of the sale, $4,100 was paid yesterday by Mrs. W. S. Moore for the walls and ceiling of a sixteenth century Northern Italy dining room, elaborately paneled and carved. Arthur Arnold paid $2,000 for four fifteenth century Tuscan carved walnut castle doors and $1,300 for a fifteenth century Florentine sculptured Fiesole stone fireplace. G. E. Spencer bid in a Madonna and Child by Del Bondi for $3,900. Mrs. S. Sherri paid $1,700 for a sixteenth century carved walnut refectory table and for Leone Leoni's Portrait of a Patrician in Armor, she paid $1,600? G. M. Moffett bid in for $1,450 an Andrea Della Robbia Madonna Adoring the Child. Franklin Daly acquired for $1,450 a pair of Venetian Régence period red lacquer fauteuils, and Mme. Jeritza of the Metropolitan Opera Company bought an eighteenth century provincial Gothic carved walnut statue of the Virgin from an old Florentine church, for $1,200.

SEIZE CHAMPAGNE ON SHIP.

Raiders Find 1,000 Bottles—Captain and Crew Face Charges.

Alleged champagne with an estimated retail bootleg value of many thousands of dollars was seized yesterday by members of the United States Customs Harbor Patrol in the hold of the steamship Vincent, Cosmopolitan Line, at Pier 2, Hoboken, N. J., where it had docked earlier in the day. The quartermaster of the steamer was arrested on a charge of interfering with the officers making the search, and three other members of the crew, including the captain, were directed to appear tomorrow before the Assistant Solicitor of Customs in the Law Division for a preliminary hearing on charges of violating the Volstead law.

The search was conducted under the supervision of John J. McGill of the Customs Patrol, who said that 1,080 bottles of Piper Heidsick champagne bottled in 1914, were found in No. 5 hatch of the boat. The flooring of the hatch was torn up by the Government raiders.

TO AUCTION UNCLAIMED LOOT

Police Department's Sale Also to Include Articles Found.

The Police Department's 237th auction of unclaimed property will be held at 10 A. M. next Wednesday, and the goods to be sold will include everything imaginable from pins to motion picture cameras and automobile tires. The sale will be conducted in the office of Property Clerk Thomas J. Horgan at Police Headquarters. Some of the goods represent the loot of burglars and some are found articles. For none of them have the police been able to find owners. The proceeds will go to the Police Pension Fund.

Two items which will not be auctioned are a $35,000 pearl necklace found in a gutter five months ago by Miss Adelaide Forts of 201 West 127th Street, and an envelope containing $9,500 which Captain Hugo Wunche of the Marine Division found on his desk on April 27. If the necklace is not claimed by February, according to Mr. Horgan, it will be turned over to Miss Forts to keep, and if no claimant appears for the cash it will go into the Pension Fund.

ERMINE

This season's subtle fabric-like treatment of fur attains its ultimate perfection in Ermine Wraps by Gunther. Not only is every refinement of tailoring employed to mold the chosen silhouette but the pelts themselves are laid in ingenious patterns that harmonize with the spirit of the model.

Sometimes an elaborate design of concentric ovals adorns a luxurious loosely-cut Wrap while a simple, perpendicular arrangement of pelts may accentuate the charm of some slim, straight model.

These and many other interesting workings of Ermine skins appear in the collection of exclusive Ermine Wraps at Gunther—each a creation of compelling beauty.

GRIDIRON PRESENTS 'THIRD TERM BABY'

Butler' and 'Ma Stearns' Newsboy Infant at Washington Newspaper Men's Dinner.

...ON SLY BY CALVIN'

...k Holmes Returns to Solve ...tion Mystery and Finds Everybody Won.

Special to the New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—Members of the Gridiron Club at their Winter dinner tonight produced the "Third-Term Baby," dressed in swaddling clothes and smoking a long black cigar, for the entertainment of the President, Vice President, the Speaker, Cabinet members, Senators and Representatives and many other notable guests. The infant's "pa" and "ma" were played as William M. Butler, Chairman of the Republican National Committee, and Frank W. Stearns, Boston millionaire, who has been mentioned as a possible Republican candidate for Senator from Massachusetts.

The skit was entitled "Desire Under the Elms of Vermont," and was a burlesque of the much-discussed play by Eugene O'Neill.

The authors had the "parents" produce the "baby" from attacks by a group of farmhands, representing Vice President Dawes, Speaker Longworth, Senator Borah, Senator Watson and Senator Joseph O. Lowden, all of whom, according to report, have their eyes on the Republican Presidential nomination in 1928.

Following this an alarm clock was presented to Vice President Dawes. It started making a terrific clatter and the latter was rebuked for reviving an old issue dealing with the fact that Mr. Dawes had been asleep when his vote was needed to obtain the confirmation of Mr. Warren as Attorney General.

"That isn't the point," he retorted. "The Republican majority will be so slim in the next Senate the Vice President may have to break a tie every few minutes and the sender of the clock wants the Vice President to stay awake."

Asked who had sent it he read, "Yours hopefully, Calvin Coolidge."

With the scene set in Vermont, the baby's nurse of "Pa Butler" asked for "Calvin," one of the missing farm hands.

"Calvin's gone fishing," Longworth quipped.

"Always fishin', but don't ketch nuthin'," Butler declared.

"Ma Stearns" brought in the "third-term baby," which "she" said Calvin wouldn't even feed. "You ought to see Calvin' up to it in his quiet way when he thinks nobody is lookin'," she said to the diners. "He's afeared it won't grow fast enough, and he's always feedin' it on the sly."

"What does he give it?"

"Mostly Mellon's food."

A feature of the evening was the appearance of Sherlock Holmes and his friend, Dr. Watson. Holmes, it appeared, was on the most baffling case of his career, having been retained to discover who lost the November election. Watson wanted to know the reason.

"That's the trouble," Holmes replied him, "everybody won."

Among the dinner were "The Political Sporting Guide of 1928," which was dedicated to the late Arthur Wallace Dunn, a former President of the club, under whose direction work upon it had been started. The book contained a series of caricatures by C. K. Berryman, the retiring President; jingles, a crossword puzzle and an advertising section. In the latter were found praise for the brand of electric lighting used by President Coolidge and flowing endorsements of "Soundless Shotguns" by Frank W. Stearns and "Water" by Thomas Heflin.

Besides the President, the speakers included Charles Evans Hughes, former Secretary of State, and Senator Underwood of Alabama.

PHELPS ON CURRENT BOOKS

Yale Professor Praises "Heaven Trees" and "My Mortal Enemy."

Professor William Lyon Phelps of Yale University gave yesterday the second of his series of monthly talks on books and plays at the Town Hall, under the auspices of the League for Political Education. Stark Young's "Heaven Trees" and Willa Cather's "My Mortal Enemy" were mentioned as two of the outstanding novels of the season. "This Day's Madness," a book announced for early publication, by the anonymous author of "Miss Marion Goes Out," would take its place as one of the foremost works of fiction of the present day, he predicted. "A Biography of Abraham Lincoln," by Nathaniel Wright Stephenson, was recommended as a work that reflected better than any other biography the personality of Lincoln. "The Ninth Wave," by Carl Van Doren; "Adventuring in Editing," by Charles Hanson Towne, were other books recommended. Among the plays he lauded Shaw's "Saint Joan" as "the best Theatre Guild production since the guild entered its new playhouse." "Broadway," he said, was "deserving of praise only in so far as it was superior to its type."

Democratic Leader's Will Filed.

Williams, contractor and Democratic leader of the Ninth Assembly District, was filed for probate yesterday, leaving the bulk of his estate, declared to be more than $10,000, to his family. Williams, a son, and the decedent's brother get the income from one-fifth each. Sisters and brothers get the rest.

BLUECHER RE-ELECTED BY WELLINGTONIANS

He Is First German for Whom London Club Bar Has Been Taken Down Since World War.

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Dec. 11.—Prince Blücher, great-great-grandson of the Prussian General who helped to win the battle of Waterloo, has been re-elected a member of the Wellington Club, to which he belonged for twenty years before the World War, this being the first time a German has been elected or re-elected to a London club since the outbreak of the conflict. The present German Ambassador here, to be sure, was made a member of the St. James's Club recently, but this is classed as a diplomatic move due to his position, and the St. James's, it is recalled, is partly a diplomats' club and outside the usual rules governing other aristocratic haunts of clubmen in St. James's Street, Piccadilly and Pall Mall. Moreover, the German Ambassador, despite his election, is said to have refrained from entering the club portals.

Prince Blücher was re-elected unanimously. Commenting on his re-election he said tonight:

"Every one is becoming more and more friendly. It is now only a few die-hard old ladies who try to be difficult. Some of them still want the Kaiser to be hanged and quartered, and almost foam at the mouth when he is mentioned."

The Prince's wife is an Englishwoman, who became well known through her book, "An English Wife in Berlin." The Prince served during the war in the German Red Cross.

Besides crippling Germany's optical industry, England's demands would practically compel the gigantic Mannesmann firm to shut shop since 80 per cent. of the steel tubing which they are manufacturing is exported. England brands this product as suitable for converting into rifle barrels and therefore half finished war material. England also objects to Germany's furnishing Chile with motors to replace the obsolete machines of Chilean torpedo boat destroyers which were built in Germany before the war.

Rolf Brandt, correspondent of The Lokal Anzeiger at Geneva, commenting on the present warfare between the three Nobel Peace Prize[winners assembled there, says:

"Mr. Baldwin, Prime Minister of His Britannic Majesty, owns the largest munitions plants in England besides powder plants and other war material-producing industries. Sir Austen Chamberlain owns and controls the largest optical works in England. The throttle on German export of half finished materials hits hardest the German optical industry."

At the same instant the Cabinet instructed Dr. Stresemann to return, leaving the trade matter to future conferences the Nationalists agreed in a party conference with the People's Party to bury the hatchet and come to Stresemann's and the Government's rescue. The reactionary afternoon papers stopped their presses and changed the tone of their articles on the Geneva agreement. Headlines which proclaimed a Geneva crisis were changed to "Agreement Reached at Geneva."

As a result of this dual party conference the Nationalists will have freedom to vote when the Socialists bring in a lack of confidence motion before the Reichstag next week and a sufficient number of Deputies will support the Government parties to vote down the combined Socialist, Communist and ultra-reactionary Voelkisch mandates. Nor will the reactionaries demand immediate representation in the Cabinet. However, after the New Year should Chancellor Marx decide to make changes it is intimated that the Nationalists would accept several portfolios in the same Cabinet with Stresemann.

There is also an indication that Herr Hugenberg, the Nationalist Deputy and German Northcliffe, will relieve Dr. Stresemann of the ownership of his embarrassing newspaper, The Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung, adding it to his reactionary papers. The Nationalist leader who yesterday expressed the view that Dr. Stresemann's only hope of saving the Government from a crisis lay in bringing home a signal victory, tonight stated that the Foreign Minister probably did the best he could, which is all anybody can do.

BEDRIDDEN 15 YEARS, HE FINDS IT GREAT FUN

Injured Iron Worker's Books and Radio Keep Him in Happy Frame of Mind.

Special to The New York Times.

PASSAIC, N. J., Dec. 11.—Fifteen years ago today a group of iron workers were busy on a small job in this city. One of them was Tom Shinners. A derrick collapsed, the boom striking Shinners on the back, directly between the shoulders. He was taken to St. Mary's Hospital, where physicians gave him a few hours to live.

Today, fifteen years later, Shinners is still on his back in the hospital. Despite the fact that he has been indoors all the while, he insisted today that he has had more fun in the last fifteen years than in any similar period of his life. After he entered the hospital he became a reader and today he is well informed on all important books and on the important happenings of the day. Beside his cot is a radio and a typewriter, on which he answers his mail.

Fifteen years ago he prayed for death. Today, on his anniversary, he was humming, "I'm Looking at the World Through Rose Colored Glasses." Shinners is 45 years old.

N. Y. U. Dean Guest of Colleagues.

Members of the Faculty of the School of Education of New York University gave a dinner last night to Dean John W. Withers and Mrs. Withers at the Town Hall Club. The dinner was an expression of the Faculty's appreciation of Dean Wither's decision to decline the Presidency of the University of West Virginia, recently offered to him.

REPUBLICANS BAN ANY TAX REVISION

and the suggestion made by the Treasury to grant a credit on the first two income tax payments to be made in the calendar year 1927. They recognize that there is much to be said in favor of their proposal, but of necessity the benefit of this reduction would be limited to income tax payers, whereas a reduction of the national debt inures to the benefit of all taxpayers."

Views Against Revision Now.

Representative Tilson, Republican leader of the House, issued a statement which foreshadowed the committee's action, in which he said:

"Under present conditions, with a session over two months of the present term of this Congress ahead of us, I think it would be unwise to attempt a general revision of our revenue laws at this session. The fact is that the present tax law has been in effect such a short time that it has not been sufficiently demonstrated just what its permanent revenue producing qualities are."

This brought a statement from Representative Garrett, of Tennessee, the Democratic leader, who asserted that the Democrats favored giving the taxpayers relief by permanent tax reduction, but could do nothing in this direction because of the attitude of the majority.

"The Democrats are strongly and firmly of the opinion that conditions at this time justify tax reduction, and they feel that with the cooperation of the majority party this could be brought about with very little difficulty, said Mr. Garrett. "We cannot, of course, force them to act because they have the power and are responsible to the country for the use of that power. We cannot avoid the feeling that underlying the whole matter there is a certain amount of partisan byplay, in that the majority party wishes to postpone tax reduction until the first session of the seventieth Congress, so that it will be done on the eve of election and thus create a public psychology favorable to the party in power."

PROFESSOR VERRILL, YALE SCIENTIST, DIES

Last of Noted Men Who Created Sheffield School, Says Ex-President Hadley.

WAS A PIONEER IN BIOLOGY

Made Discoveries Called Revolutionary — Wrote Many Books on Zoology.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Dec. 11.—The death of Professor Addison Emery Verrill in Santa Barbara, Cal., yesterday removed a distinguished international authority on sea life. Professor Verrill was a member of the Yale faculty for forty-six years and was Professor Emeritus of Zoology upon his death, at the age of 87.

His fame was world-wide as zoologist, naturalist and biologist. His researches on the origin of life, based on study of sea urchins, revolutionized scientific theories of biology. He was the author of about 500 books and pamphlets on marine life and of that part of Webster's Dictionary in the '90s dealing with zoology.

He was one of the group of pioneer scientists whose original researches brought its early fame to the Sheffield Scientific School of Yale.

Professor Verrill left New Haven two months ago to spend the Winter with his son, George E., a Government engineer at Santa Barbara.

He was born in Greenwood, Me., and was graduated from Harvard in 1862. Three years later Yale made him a Master of Arts.

He spent thirty years in original investigations of the invertebrata of the entire Atlantic and Pacific coasts of North America, also of the deep sea fauna there, and of the marine fauna of Bermuda, West Indies, Brazil and Panama. For this work he made several inventions of apparatus, among them the rake-dredge.

He was Professor of Zoology at Yale from 1864 to 1907 and Curator from 1867 until 1910. During this time, also, he was an associate editor of The American Journal of Science. He retired from active professional life in 1900.

Dr. Arthur Twining Hadley, President Emeritus of Yale, said, in speaking of the passing of Dr. Verrill:

"He is the last of the great scientists who were responsible for the great development of Sheffield Scientific School. His entire life was marked by zealousness in scientific work which was almost unsurpassable and which often was carried on at great detriment to himself. He was indefatigable in his researches."

He outlined various stratagems for winning a jury's favor. Other speakers were the Rev. William J. Duane, S. J., President of Fordham University, and the Right Rev. John J. Collins, founder of the Fordham Law School. Earnest C. Cullen, President of the Forum of Fordham University, was Chairman.

THOUSANDS MOURN FOR JAMES KANE

Governor Smith Among Those Who March From the Dead Leader's House.

THOUSANDS WAIT IN STORM

Scores of Men Prominent in Public Life Are Honorary Pallbearers.

Despite the stormy weather, St. Paul's Roman Catholic Church, at Court and Congress Streets, Brooklyn, was crowded yesterday morning when a solemn requiem mass was celebrated for James Kane, Elections Commissioner and oldest Democratic leader in the city, who died on Wednesday night. Several thousand persons, unable to gain admittance to the church, waited outside in the storm until the services were over.

Governor Alfred E. Smith headed a long line of mourners who marched from the dead leader's home, at 195 Congress Street to the church. The Governor was accompanied by Major Gen. William N. Haskell. Behind the Governor came John H. McCooey, Democratic county leader, with Borough President James J. Byrne. Next in line was John R. Voorhis, 97 years of age, President of the Board of Elections and Tammany Sachem.

The mass was celebrated by the Rev. John J. Donlon, pastor of the church. He was assisted by the Rev. James J. Sullivan as deacon and the Rev. John Halloran as sub-deacon. Monsignor Michael G. Flannery, pastor of the Church of Queen of All Saints, who for many years served in St. Paul's, sat within the altar rail. There was no eulogy.

Among the honorary pallbearers were Commissioners of Elections Jacob A. Livingston and Charles E. Heydt, former Mayor John F. Hylan, William H. Todd, County Judge George W. Martin, Supreme Court Justices Mitchell May, Edward Lazansky, Harry E. Lewis and Edward Riegelmann, County Judge Algeron I Nova, Surrogate George A. Wingate, Special Sessions Justices Arthur C. Salmon and James McInerney, District Attorney Charles J. Dodd, Sheriff Frank J. Taylor, County Clerk William E. Kelly, Register James A. McQuade, William J. Kelly, Presiding Justice of the Appellate Division; United States Senator-elect Robert F. Wagner, Controller Charles W. Berry, Aldermanic President Joseph V. McKee, Representatives Christopher Sullivan, John Quail and Thomas H. Cullen, State Senator Daniel J. Farrell, Albert Cornell and John N. Harman.

Following the pallbearers came the members of the Third Assembly District Democratic Club and of the Democratic Executive and County Committees.

Just before the coffin was closed at the house an elderly woman, poorly dressed, entered, carrying a white rose, which she placed on it. She told Miss Helen Joyce, a niece of Mr. Kane, that she was a scrubwoman in Borough Hall. "Mr. Kane has always been very kind to me," she said, "and I would like to give him this rose."

MANY HEAR DOHNANYI.

Pianist Proves Himself an Artist of Finest Ideals.

Ernst von Dohnanyi, composer and pianist, gave his first New York recital of the season yesterday afternoon in Carnegie Hall. Mr. Dohnanyi's program began with the Liszt Fantaisie and Fugue on Bach, continuing with music principally by Brahms, Beethoven and Dohnanyi. His own brilliant and formidable arrangement of Delibes's "Coppelia" music was the last piece of the printed program.

Mr. Dohnanyi can seldom have played more felicitiously. At moments, it is true, there was a little technical blurring, to remind us that musicians are human, but there was not an instant in the performances heard by the writer when the pianist failed to show his great musicianship, his imagination, his artistic insight. He fortunately did not slacken or sentimentalize the Brahms of the poetic intermezzi. He had at command much physical strength and abundant technic, but these were only agents of his ideas. The mood of the intimate E flat Intermezzo was felt, probably, by everyone in Carnegie Hall.

The "Rondo Alla Zingarese" is one of Mr. Dohnanyi's loveliest and most original piano pieces in the Hungarian vein; his performance is as personal as the composition, and not to be imitated.

The E flat sonata, having much the same relation to Beethoven's other works in this form that the Eighth Symphony has to his prodigious compositions of larger mold, was like a sublimated Mozart. Nothing remotely approaching the ponderous or untransparent was conceivable to the listener; there were delightful fancy and deftness of touch.

The artist was obliged to play encores long before the end of his program. The hall was crowded and many sat on the stage to hear him. They listened to the performances of a sound and sincere musician as it is possible to find among the virtuosos of the day, and to an artist of the finest ideals.

FRENCH EXTEND WAR GAME.

Manoeuvres in the Mediterranean Will Continue Until Saturday.

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Dec. 11.—During the past two weeks the French Mediterranean fleet has been conducting somewhat extensive practice, with the cooperation of the air force and marines, in home waters between the Riviera coast and Corsica. These manoeuvres, it is learned, have been extended for a fortnight over the time originally set, and the squadron will not return to Toulon until Saturday.

Under the command of Vice Admiral Violette, flying his flag aboard the Jean Bart, the squadron has made several sham landings on various parts along the coast, testing out the efficiency of the cooperation between naval and land forces.

The French airship service at Cuers Pierrefeu has also had an extensive test in cooperation with submarines. At Toulon the Thirteenth Infantry Division has been engaged in manoeuvres in the mountain gorges of the district.

These military and naval activities are normal at this time of year, but rather special attention and somewhat longer time have been devoted to them than in the recent past.

To Give Plays at Cooper Union.

Students of the Woman's Art School of Cooper Union will give two Christmas plays in the auditorium of the union on the evening of Dec. 22. "Poor Madelena," by Louise Saunders, and "Pot Boiler," by Gerstenberg, will be produced. Miss Katharine Strauss will coach the players. The cast for "Pot Boiler" includes Alta Schifrine, Ruth Light, Alice Menaker, Margaret L. Dodd, Minna Liebowitz and Marjorie Peyser. That for "Poor Madelena" will be Marion Rothschild, Helen Gerstenlauer and Minna Koref.

YALE GLEE CLUB SINGS ON 60TH ANNIVERSARY

Concert Program Ranges Back to Civil War Days—Old-Timers Take Part.

Songs of Yale back to the Civil War period marked a sixtieth anniversary concert of the Yale Glee Club last evening at Carnegie Hall. A long program was held up many minutes by an audience still arriving at 9 o'clock. The undergraduate singers were assisted by seventy-five former members, now of the University Glee Club of New Haven, and by soloists from the last three or four decades of the Yale Glee Club itself.

Marshall Bartholomew was applauded as he raised the baton for the opening campus son, "Mother of Men" by Seth Bingham, 1904, and Brian Hooker, '02, sung unaccompanied and with sterling volume of tone. Richard Durant, '28, led the antiphonal "As Freshmen First We Came to Yale," and R. H. Conrad, '24, returned to yodel the "Matin Bell." Carl A. Lothman, '10, carried the solo in a setting by L. B. Turtelot, '86, Sheffield, of the old air, "I Arise from Dreams of Thee." A veteran bass, Noah H. Swayne, '93, came back in the old college jingle of "Romeo and Juliet."

Something of a latter-day trend to Latin classics, in which other clubs than Yale have more closely followed Harvard's lead, was perhaps suggested in old French and German carols arranged by A. T. Davison of the Cambridge rival and by his "March of the Peers," arranged from Gilbert and Sullivan's "Iolanthe." It was, however, an evening of straight college glees for the most part, with L. P. Ross, '28, and Charles Kullman, '24, among the later solo numbers.

CONCERT FOR CHILDREN.

Walter Damrosch Points Out Motifs in Psalude to "Lohengrin."

Walter Damrosch and the New York Symphony Orchestra gave the fourth concert for children at Carnegie Hall yesterday morning. The prelude to the third act of "Lohengrin" gave Mr. Damrosch an unexampled opportunity for one of his witty discourses. "What is the most exciting thing that can happen in a house?" was his first question. "Fire!" was the quick reply. While admitting the claim of "fire" to excitement, Mr. Damrosch received the right answer from the girls, "A wedding!" Then he launched into a glowing account of a medieval royal wedding, making everybody's mouth water at the menu of the banquet. Having settled these gastronomical details, he pointed out the different motifs and directed an animated performance of the prelude.

The "Hymn to St. Cecilia," which followed the "Pizzicati" from Tchaikovsky's Fourth Symphony, gave Mr. Damrosch a chance to introduce his flock to some of the saints of the Roman calendar; St. Peter for the fishermen, St. Francis for the poor and St. Cecilia for the musicians. Mr. Mischakoff, the concert-master, played the violin solo.

The concert ended with Mozart's overtures to "Figaro" and "Turkish March." For the latter Mr. Damrosch caused the cymbals to give a solo demonstration before the piece began.

The fifth and last concert will take place on Jan. 8.

OVATION TO FRIEDMAN.

Pianist Tumultuously Recalled in an All-Chopin Program.

Ignaz Friedman gave an all-Chopin program for his second recital before a large audience at Aeolian Hall yesterday afternoon. Mr. Friedman, who belongs to the older generation of pianists, has Chopin at his fingers' ends. He plays with a nervous energy that reveals a brilliant conception of the composer. His hearers may not always agree with his interpretation, but they can admire the extent of his resources.

For his first group, which consisted of three preludes, two mazurkas, a polonaise and two ballades, Mr. Friedman was obliged to give two encores. He continued in triumph through a second group that numbered a nocturne, two valses and the Fantaisie in F minor, and that resulted in three more encores.

The pianist's closing composition was the Sonata, Opus 35. Mr. Friedman played the opening bars of the Largo in the heaviest type. The wildness of the doppio movimento was beautifully contrasted with a softer mood and earned a vehement "Bravo!" The "Marche Funèbre" had all the pomp of public obsequies, only the unspeakably lovely air reminding one of its spiritual meaning. The artist was tumultuously recalled, and gave his admirers more encores from his endless repertory.

Mr. Friedman returns to Europe in January to resume his tour in Great Britain and France. He will play at the Beethoven Festival in Vienna from March 20 to 30.

DMITRI TIOMKIN HEARD.

Russian Pianist Gives a Recital Out of the Ordinary.

Dmitri Tiomkin, a Russian pianist of towering stature, introduced himself yesterday to an audience that scantly filled the Town Hall but that showed personal interest in the player. Mr. Tiomkin sat all afternoon in semi-darkness on the stage. He played Busoni's "Album Leaves," arrangements of several Bach chorales, also by Busoni, and a Bach-Liszt fantasy and fugue. Modern French works made the remaining three-quarters of his matinee, including the first of Faure's "Eleven Nocturnes," dedicated to Lalo; two "Rag Caprices" by Milhaud, three "Mouvements Perpetuels" by Poulenc, and no fewer than five piano works of Ravel. These last ranged from a fanciful minuet "based on the name of Haydn" to such realism as "The Gallows," "Birds of Sadness," "Playing Waters" and Ravel's "Toccata." The performance was as interesting musically as it was far from hackneyed technical parade.

By OLIN DOWNES.

Verdi's "Forza del Destino," the opera in which Rosa Ponselle made her metropolitan début with Enrico Caruso on Nov. 15, 1918, was revived yesterday afternoon in the Metropolitan Opera House. The last previous performance by the Metropolitan was on Feb. 17, 1923. Mme. Peralta then substituted for Miss Ponselle. The cast yesterday restored Miss Ponselle to the title rôle and added an important fresh factor to the interpretation of the opera, namely, the conductor, Vincenzo Bellezza.

It was due largely to Mr. Bellezza's brilliant and dramatic reading of the score that this lurid opera of the earlier Verdi sounded so fresh and often so effective yesterday. The significance of a musical work, especially when it is of uneven and transitional quality, depends in a considerable measure upon the interpretation. Three hours and a half of the banalities and intensities of the music of "Forza del Destino" found an audience intent and interested to the absurd end of the plot, when all but one of the principal characters had either killed each other or themselves, and Mr. Martinelli, sobbing his loudest, was left, regretting that life held untold aeons of misery for him until either he died or the curtain before the stage of the Metropolitan Opera House descended. This was due to a number of factors; not the least of them was the conductor.

Miss Ponselle's début as Leonora is remembered by this writer. Comparisons with that début, eight years ago, would be difficult and very possibly inaccurate, but it may be said that the voice has fulfilled its promise as to quality and dramatic capacity, while the art of the singer has materially advanced in the interval. Miss Ponselle did much to enhance the effect of Verdi's melodies, even when they were not the best Verdi; she was genuinely dramatic when opportunity made this possible, and often made much of passages in themselves showy or trivial. A defect not characteristic of her was that on more than one occasion she deviated the pitch. These occurrences were incidental, accidental too, and not a criterion of an interpretation of much excellence.

Mr. Martinelli naturally sang his loudest quite frequently. Equally, of course, the voice was ample in its ring and power for any climax that the tenor chose to mount. But it is a pity that he did not pay greater heed to roundness and beauty of tone. Mr. Danise showed himself well accustomed to music of a conventional turn. The voice is of secondary quality. The duet of allegiance with Mr. Martini was one of many moments that occasioned applause. Mr. Tibbett indulged freely in comedy of the quite obvious kind as Melitone and amused the audience greatly. He apparently has a capacity for making fun which has not been extensively exercised up to the present time and which savored too much of burlesque for his Pogner of "Die Meistersinger." But Father Melitone's rôle is less exacting in these matters. Mr. Pinza was an excellent Abbott, sonorous, impressive, without undue pompousness or strut.

The chorus singing made one of the best features of the afternoon and somewhat eclipsed Miss Telva, who was in none too good vocal trim, in the "rataplan" refrain of the third act. The opera as a whole was presented in its best light, with vigor, clearness, proportion.

Cong Recital by Iseo Ilari.

Iseo Ilari, a tenor announced as having sung in Rome's leading opera house, the Costanzi, gave a concert in the Town Hall last night, assisted by Anna Carbone, organist, and by Edna Sheppard as accompanist at the piano. He sang Handel's melody of the "Largo" with organ, a classic of Gluck's, an air from Massenet's "Manon," and songs of German, French and English composers. A final group by the singer's countrymen included light modern lyrics by Castelnuovo-Tedesco, Leoncavello, Curci and Tirindelli. Many compatriots were in the house that gave the newcomer his welcome here.

MME. VETTORI AS GIOCONDA.

Opera Singer Carries Audience With Her by Dramatic Dispatch.

Mme. Elda Vettori, in place of Florence Easton, previously announced, was Gioconda in Ponchielli's opera of that name last night in the Metropolitan Opera House. Others in the cast was Armand Tokatyan as Enzo, Jeanne Gordon as Laura, Merle Alcock, La Cieca; Guiseppe de Luca, Barnaba; Leon Rothier, Alvise. Mr. Serafin conducted. Mme. Vettori's appearance in the rôle of Gioconda was creditable to her self-possession, her intelligence and equipment as a singer. On the stage she displayed an effective conception of her rôle and in the early part of the opera her voice was well employed. She carried her audience with her by virtue of a dramatic disposition and a sense of the theatre. Unsteadiness of tone in the last act was due perhaps to fatigue; in the main Mme. Vettori made an advantageous impression.

Mr. Tokatyan, who now has over twenty-four rôles in his repertory, took the part of Enzo for the first time at the Metropolitan, making, in turn, a good effect by his stage bearing and the adequacy of his singing. Miss Gordon's Laura and the other rôles were filled competently as before, and the ballet added to the entertainment.

Italian Welfare League

Additional members are required for the Italian Welfare League in order to meet the demands upon its resources made by Italian and other families.

The League takes in hand immigrants from the moment of their landing at Ellis Island and shows them how to get adjusted to the new conditions of their adopted country. It finds work for those who are unemployed, provides medical help and hospital care, arranges compensation cases, prevents deportations and encourages the study of the English language. In the last year it has handled 6,000 cases, and has had the cooperation of 70 welfare organizations and 40 hospitals.

This is a most deserving institution and worth the consideration of Americans who seek the assimilation of the foreign elements by social methods.
